Returning to Belleville he opened a practice on Bridge (present) Street, later becoming associated with other physicians at the clinic on Church St.

Dr. Faulkner was president of the medical staff of the Belleville General Hospital this year and also represented the medical staff on the Hospital Board of Governors.

Dr. Faulkner took time from his medical duties to indulge in sport. He was an excellent golfer, rated one of the best in this district, and the winner of many links trophies. He was a member and president of the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club, and his work and efforts did much to expand the activities of this organization. He was a member and an executive member of the Ontario Golf Association, and a member of the Belleville Club. He was regarded as an excellent bridge player. He was a member of St. Thomas' Church.

Surviving besides his wife, the former Philippa Burrows, are two children, a daughter, Miss Anne Burrows Faulkner, and one son, George Crawford Faulkner; one sister, Miss Betty Faulkner, and one brother, Farley Faulkner, both of Toronto.

LAW RULED OUT

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) The Supreme Court Wednesday ruled unconstitutional a 1935 law requiring newspapers to print details when executions of articles when ordered to do so by a civil court. Under the law any person or institution theoretically could get a court to order a paper to publish a correction of any article pertaining to them.

Members of Gamma Sigma fraternity of Mimico High School visit students at Variety Village which is operated for the Variety Club of Greater Toronto by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children. Each year the Ontario Society for Crippled Children conducts an Easter Seals Campaign to finance the work.

Variety Village Helped Set Stage For Success of Handicapped

There are 75 young men in Ontario today, former residents of a unique community, who once lived the world with much less reliance and confidence than they feel now as self-dependent citizens who are making their own way.

It is only a little more than 5 years ago that Variety Village in Toronto had its existence, an example of what can be done by the cooperation of many people inspired by an idea. Into it have been directed the skills of the ablest experts in the field of training of handicapped people. And now it has come a dividend in happier human relations that has rewarded the people who made it possible.

OFFERED FINANCE CENTRE

For many years the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and a wide network of Ontario service clubs had collaborated in several programs of treatment and therapy for crippled youngsters, in 1942 an extra phase of the drive to aid such children was opened when the Variety Club, service club of the entertainment industry in Ontario, offered to finance a centre where lads restored to near normal ability, could learn trades. As a result, Variety Village, where the lads may live and learn, was built. Thus business and professional men, linked by the Society with the people of the entertainment world, found a chance to the youngsters who had benefited from treatment to become self-supporting.

Today the 75 graduates of the now famous Village have proven the worth of the experiment. The lads, who learned watchmaking and similar trades, are earning an average of $2,000 a year, but far more important is the sense of self-reliance they have developed. Aided to better health by the funds created by the annual sale of Easter Seals, which finances treatment programs, the boys were able to benefit from the school's training program, and to face the world with confidence.

Electric Machines Under Discussion By Accountants

Advantages of modern electric computers to the accounting profession recently were underlined at the opening session of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario at the Bala Shoe Company.

Guest speaker was Edgar F. Codd, consulting scientist of Computing Devices of Canada Limited. His address sparked an interesting discussion period during which it was pointed out in many cases computers were operating only a small percentage of working time and the problem was to find more work for the machine.

The speaker was introduced by Bruce McRae of the Belleville Lock Company and thanked by Dave Ibbotson, Central Bridge, Trenton, Chairman of the meeting was Jack Bennett.

Quick and Robertson Store Re-opens Under New Owners

After 50 years of service to the Belleville community, the store of Quick and Robertson, 258 Front Street, re-opened its doors this morning under new ownership and featuring expanded lines of quality men's furnishings and new departments offering clothing for the entire family.

The Quick and Robertson store was sold last year by its former owners and is now owned and operated by the Ross Sleeth Company Limited, with headquarters in Toronto. Parent company of the Ross Sleeth Company Ltd., is J. Bradshaw and Son, Ltd. of Toronto.

The old Quick and Robertson store so familiar to Belleville residents has been completely redecorated and expanded by the new owners and there is little to remind of the former store.

Floor area of the store has been greatly enlarged and a basement work clothing department added from which the store management boasts that any workman, whatever his vocation, can be outfitted.

The old familiar Quick and Robertson store front has remained but inside there has been a complete transformation. Modern light-hued display cases line the walls and other store fixtures are to the same mould. New tile floors have been laid and new lighting installed. The store area has been extended greatly to the west and the new basement work clothes department has an entrance from the rear parking area for the convenience of customers.

All store renovations were completed by local firms with store fixtures being procured from out-of-town suppliers.

BARGAINS BEING OFFERED

Real bonafide bargains in all departments are being offered here for the opening sale which commenced this morning and will last through Friday and Saturday. The store boasts eight departments including men's and boys' wear, ladies' wear and children's and infants' wear and the basement work clothing department. Other departments include notions, linens and dry goods. Quality goods at moderate prices with satisfaction guaranteed is the store motto.

Free roses for the first 300 women shoppers were handed out this morning by the store management and early feminine shoppers Friday and Saturday will also have roses pinned on their coats. Also there are free opening draws with right prizes being given away on Friday and the same number to be drawn for on Saturday.

Congenial, experienced sales help had been hired to staff the store with all department heads having long experience in the clothing business. Store manager is Mr. A. Duval, who comes to Belleville from Sarnia. A native of Toronto, Mr. Duval has spent all his life in the clothing business. He came to the city late last year and early in January moved his wife and family of small son and daughter here.

Zabud Council Cryptic Rite Holds Meeting

Another page of Masonic history in Quinte district was written on Tuesday evening, March 22, when Zabud Council, Cryptic Rite, held its first regular meeting with Three Illustrious Master Bram Humphreys in the chair of King Solomon.

The first act of the newly-formed Council was to receive the Grand Illustrious General Right Illustrious Companion S. Sword, also Most Illustrious Companion T. Wescott, Past Grand Master, and Very Illustrious Companion William Ogilvie.

Following the regular business, the degree of Royal Master was conferred by Companions Bert Adams, William Connor and Doug. Kendall.

Grand Inspector General Sword delivered an instructive and inspiring address on "The Carvings on the Ark of the Covenant." He was assisted by Companion the efficient manner in which the Royal Master degree was exemplified, particularly as this was the first meeting of the new council.

At the banquet board, Three Illustrious Companion M. Hancock proposed the toast to the Visitors, which was responded to by Most Illustrious Companion T. Wescott and Very Illustrious Companion William Ogilvie. The toast to the newly-honored candidates was proposed by Illustrious Companion William Haggar and responded to by Companion Bert Adams. Companion McKinley Rankin presented the Right Illustrious Grand Inspector General with a Belleville cheese.

Arrangements were made for a number of Belleville Companions to attend the District Convocation in St. Thomas on April 2.

Zabud Council meets on the fourth Tuesday of each month in the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue.

ICE NEARLY

The river reached a record height Wednesday night when it was more than four feet above normal. But river currents shifted today carrying the packs out towards the middle of the river and waters have dropped to just half a foot above normal this morning.

The jam continued to take a heavy toll of damage this morning and the office and dock of the Cayuga Steamship Company at Queenston, three miles north of here, were buried under the ice. Water was reported pouring into the Ontario Hydro's plant at Queenston and generators were being sandbagged.

The Canadian Niagara Power Company, a private power plant, has almost finished operations because of lack of water. The company's intake, which normally operates in the forebay, was grounded in mud.

Volume of water running over the American falls was reduced considerable this morning and the ice bridge was jammed solid from the Whirlpool bridge to the cataracts.

A large crack in the rock immediately above the Ontario hydro commission plant was noticed this morning. It is located near the point where a portion of ornamental railing fell over last year.

Officials at Hydro headquarters in Toronto said this morning that there has been no damage to their installations so far. They said they have enough power reserve if an emergency should arise.

Adjustments Made in Salaries Of High School Teachers

Inclusion of cost-of-living bonus into the salary schedule for teachers at the Belleville Collegiate and Quinte Secondary school, together with the across-the-board salary increases, was approved by members of the Board of Quinte High School Board at an adjourned meeting held this week.

The move increases basic minimum salaries for male teachers from $2,900 plus cost-of-living bonus to $3,200, while the maximum salary for non-specialist teachers will now be $6,200 instead of the former $6,000 plus cost-of-living bonus.

A different cost-of-living bonus for teachers with married and unmarried status had been paid by the high school board. Teachers with married status were receiving $249 per year, while teachers with non-married status received $165.

For inclusion into the salary schedule a straight cost-of-living bonus figure of $200 was taken for all teachers, while to make adjustments for married teachers, who receive $100 less than grades, actual decrease in money received, an across-the-board salary increase of $100 was granted.

In effect single teachers will receive an actual increase of $135 while married teachers will have salaries increased by $51 per year. The increases will be effective in September 1955.

A salary increase of $200 was approved by the Board for Alfred Cooper, part-time band instructor, the increase to be effective in September.

TOOK TWO MEETINGS

Board members took two separate meetings to conduct the business on their agenda. Originally called for March 15th, the meeting was not completed a week ago and another meeting was called for this week.

The high school board will handle all insurance matters through an insurance broker, representing the two insurance associations, instead of dealing with individual firms, it was decided. The firm of Jack Hanna has been named by the association as their broker and this appointment was approved by the board.

A standing committee of A. C. Campbell as chairman, with C. E. McArthur, A. O. Drysdale and J. J. Trudeau, was named by the board to handle all insurance matters.

A minimum charge of $1.50 per plate was set for outside organizations using the auditorium of the Quinte Secondary School cafeteria for banquets. The board also decided that it would pay to the cafeteria on a monthly basis the cost of meals for teachers remaining at the school for supervisory purposes. Previously the cost of such meals has been taken out of cafeteria profits.

The applications of A. D. Archibald, commercial department head, and Kenneth Hill, science department, and John Hagerman, caretaker, for a year's extension of service, was granted. The resignation of Mrs. Archibald as department head was accepted with Mr. J. Snetsinger being named in his place, the change to be effective in September.

FOUR RESIGNATIONS ACCEPTED

The resignations of four high school teachers were accepted by the board. Teachers resigning from the Belleville Collegiate staff in June are Norman Sheffe, who is going to Marathon high school, and Ernest Tindale, who has accepted a position at Etobicoke. Resigning from the Quinte Secondary School staff are J. L. Tierney, who also is going to Etobicoke, and Robt. Wright, who is returning to his home town at Guelph.

Two teachers were hired for the Collegiate. They are John Hyde for the drafting and electrical department, and Miss Winnifred Patterson. The appointment of Fred Bradley, as social studies department head, was approved by the board. Mr. Bradley will replace Mr. Sheffe.

A committee of the two high school principals, with Principal E. Arnold Orr, and to Miss Sheila Doyle and Wallace Ewald at the Collegiate, and to Mr. K. Tancock at the Quinte Secondary School.

The board decided to go ahead with the construction of the jumping field and track at Quinte Secondary School with tenders for the work to be called. Purchase of a scaffold for the servicing of lights and sounding walls at the Quinte school was also authorized.

PLAN EXPANSION

PRAGUE (CP) — The Czechoslovak National Assembly Wednesday unanimously approved the 1955 budget and state plan for more coal, electric power and crops. The budget of 86,039,000,000 crowns (about $12,300,000,000) allocates over one-sixth of annual expenditure for industry to raise coal output by five per cent, electric power by nearly 10 per cent and to develop mining.

BELIEVED PRICELESS

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)— Dr. Hector Barrera of the Puerto Rican department of education said Wednesday long research indicates a painting in St. Joseph's church in San Juan is a priceless work of Rodier van der Weyden, a 15th-century Flemish artist. The painting, entitled "The Virgin of Bethlehem," is believed to have been in the church nearly four centuries.

MARMORA. — Marmora and Campbellford met at the Marmora arena on Wednesday evening in the fifth game of the Northern section TVL play-off series and after ten minutes overtime, the score was 4-4. The crowd was one of the best of the season having around 400.

LAZY DAYS COMING

Against the drear grey of Tuesday morning's sky, wearing wands of pale green waved their magic message. Spring was on its way, said the branches of the willows. For, of course, it was the willows that brought the first confirmation of the astronomer's assurance that the sun was north of the Equator once again. There were those who had listened to the robins, or goaded heads wisely in unison to the swaying of rat-blotched wings attached to the dark dabs of feathered life clinging to dead reeds in the marsh. There was at least one man who, answering the call of the calendar and responding to the gold gleam of Sunday's sunshine, had sallied forth in his sailboat on Sunday, threading the ice-bordered lanes of open Quinte waters. But it was until that very day that we contrasted with the wintry grey of Tuesday's skies that one could be sure that bird and calendar are both right and that spring is coming.

Before it arrives, there is one little point which we would like to get straight, something which must be said for the record.

Spring sees Nature pumping energy into almost all her children except man. The same urge that bursts buds and pushes plants up through the mud to meet the sunlight produces battle hustle and activity amongst all the wild life of field and forest and stream. The fish leap, the birds build nests, the mammals mate and multiply. Only man yawns and stretches and seeks a sunny spot on the lee side of the house.

In the spring a young man's fancy may turn to thought of love, but when he gets older that's nothing either to write home about. Unfortunately Nature's preoccupation with growth makes it impossible for many men to satisfy their desires. If he is a farmer he is forced into intellectual energetic activity of plants and animals. Even if he has escaped from Nature's rural shackles and has ensconced himself in a man made environment in the city, there is a tendency for every machine that does the chore that once strained biceps and bent backs is a tribute to a lazy mat. Not a wheel revolves, not a pulley turns, not a lever presses, not a motor hums but does so because once, long ago or in the near past, some man was lazy. Some man, laboring mightily, said to himself: "There ought to be an easier way to do this," and then he discovered that easier way. But, alas, before he had really settled himself in that sunny spot on the lee side of the house, somebody was discovering something else that he could be doing with his spare time, that time spared him because he was lazy, and clever enough to discover a way by which he could loaf and get his work done also. And so he must needs plan to loll again, until laziness forced him into another invention.

Now the only thing man has to invent is a convincing argument as why the garden should not be planted, the house should not be painted, the car should not be washed and spring cleaning should be postponed until the fall.

COINCIDENCES

Coincidences, as someone has so wisely said, are the very devil.

Consider the list of Ontario ticket holders in the Irish national hospitals sweepstakes draw on the Grand National steeplechase.

The Canadian Press reported two Ontario residents had drawn tickets on Martinque. One was "Lucky You" of Toronto. The other was "Lucky One" of Toronto. "Lucky" however is not an unusual nom de plume for a person purchasing a sweepstake ticket. It is something more difficult to explain what happened at Kirkland Lake and Dunnville when two persons selected their nom de plumes on tickets which were eventually the only Ontario tickets drawn for the horse Mas-Tu-Vu. The Kirkland Lake resident chose "Breadless". The Delaware customer selected "Nemo," the name of a well-known brand of bandeaux.

LAWYERS' OWN BUSINESS

Mr. Alan C. Ewart, lamenting what he considers "debasement" of an ancient title, points out that only 5½ per cent of English barristers are Queen's Counsel while 28 per cent of Toronto barristers are Q.C.'s.

The title "Queen's Counsel" is an honor given lawyers. It is a profession of concern to lawyers alone. If lawyers want 28 per cent or 100 per cent of their colleagues to have the title "Queen's Counsel" that is their business. Creation of their own elite should not concern the public, unless, of course, the title is accompanied by a higher scale of fees.

ALIVE

Done with worry; done with care;
Done with weather foul or fair;
Done with taxes; done with bills;
Done with powders; done with pills.

Who with these still has to strive
Day by day, is still alive.

Done with loss and done with pain;
Done with weariness and pain;
Done with doubt and done with debt;
Done with all the fears that fret.
Peace like this will not arrive
Just as long as you're alive.

Feeling poorly? Feeling well?
Would it hurt you if you fell?
What if some one struck a blow?
Would you feel like dying or not?
Must you work from eight to eight?
If you live!
Thank the Lord, you're still alive.

Letters to the Editor

Objects to Criticism Of 'Peg O' My Heart'

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

May I use a small section of your very fine newspaper to voice a protest against Harry Mulhall's adjudication of "Peg O' My Heart" a comedy presented on St. Patrick's Day at St. Michael's auditorium.

For the past several years it has been the custom for the Solidity of Our Lady to put on some form of entertainment for parishioners and their friends on St. Patrick's Day. This year they decided to do J. Hartley Manners' "Peg O' My Heart".

They set to work under the direction of Catharine Darlington and on the night of March 15, after weeks of line reading, rehearsals and doing scenes countless times, they invited an adjudicator to sit in and criticize their efforts. Many good points of constructive criticism were handed out that night. The adjudicator summed up the whole effort as being "a delightful entertainment."

On the night of March 17, Mr. Mulhall was to attend the play and cover the evening's entertainment for the Ontario Intelligencer. Upon opening The Intelligencer next day I was dumbfounded to read Mr. Mulhall's self-styled adjudication of the play.

I will give Mr. Mulhall credit for the first two paragraphs in which he stated that the play was a hit with the audience and that the play was an instantaneous success. Had he proceeded then to give an outline of the plot and the names of the players in the cast along with a pat on the back, all would have been well. Without too much forethought he ventured to adjudicate, more or less, a comedy he was not qualified to do.

First he calls the play "a rollicking farce" whilst the author called it a comedy. Next he says that all the players had to be comedians in the play, then goes on to describe one character as "vinegary". Next he says that St. Michael's possesses a good stage and auditorium. Then concludes himself and says that there were "meagre facilities".

I could go on and on but one last point—he was not present for all of the play.

I take objection to his panning the players who worked so hard to made the evening the success that it was. Mr. Mulhall could have encouraged these young people to repeat their efforts next year, but, unfortunately, he used heartless instead.

Perhaps Mr. Mulhall would give his right hand to be able to write his story and correct some wrong impressions that he spread through your newspaper. But could he do that now without losing considerable face?

This letter is written with the sole purpose of correcting a wrong.

Sincerely,
P. J. Cleary,

Acid View of Eden

- (New Statesman and Nation)

Political England rocked with mirth in some quarters, anger in others—when the New Statesman and Nation came out recently with a barbed and poisoned review of Anthony Eden, the man and politician. Eden's friends rushed to his defence against the scurrilous article. His political foes chortled and made sure as round people as possible read the criticism. It became one of the major political happenings of recent days. The article follows.

It is possible to see most Conservative leaders in another role. Churchill would have cut a dash in a dozen different guises. On Butler, Un mitre or the scientific mood would have been equally becoming. But Anthony Eden has been typecast too long—he is either the diplomatist, or nothing at all.

It is perhaps unfair to blame him for looking like a diplomat. The truth is that he began by being delicately and ambitiously to tread his way forward in government, the better to play the foreign office have taken him as their model.

At every embassy, in every corridor of the foreign office (and on the parliamentary benches) are charming, elegant and languid exponents of effortless urbanity, grace and the dimpled grin.

Yet the truth is, however surprising, that Anthony Eden is as much a part of the foreign office as though he were made of patches and telegrams more quickly and understands them better than any other Parliamentary secretary ever, he is neither respected nor liked nearly so much as the rest of his officials.

So much of his industry is abortive. It is a smokescreen concealing an overwhelming inferiority complex. His whole occupation with the external affairs of state is to be carefully faced with their reality, a most difficult man to bring to the point of decision.

He lacks, in fact, both the temperament and the capacity of direction which makes decision possible. He is also at times guilty of spectacular ineptitude.

These two personal traits, vacuity of purpose and overwhelming streak of ill-temper, explain the nature of the public facade Sir Winston Churchill's Barn this afternoon at three o'clock. Admission one cent. See the REAL LIVE MONKEY.

He must never let himself go in case, in so doing, he offends.

And there is no profit in upsetting people.

So, in the House, for example, when he is provoked into irritability, he will quickly try to save himself with a shamefaced smile.

When interrupted, he will rarely snap back with a crisp rebuttal, as any man who is sure in control of himself (and more sure of himself and his purposes) would do.

He almost pleads, plaintively, "This is a complex point. I am trying to explain. . . . Perhaps the House would permit me to continue without interruption. . . ."

When, occasionally, he does make a fighting comeback, it is generally directed at some one who is either weak or unpopular. He does so want the majority to like him.

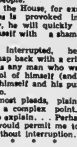
For it was by being liked and not disliked that, early in 1934, Anthony Eden, allied to successive Conservative leaders, have known that he had neither the weight nor the purpose to lead successfully a palace revolution. He was next in the line of succession just 20 years ago and has remained there ever since.

His stood out when he entered Parliament in 1934. Appearance, breeding, the renown of a brilliant first in oriental studies at Oxford, a good war record and did not mix, the possession of a private income, all combined to make him a MP, won as a very young soldier before going to Oxford, were all factors in his favor. Then came the years of 1924.

Eden's sheer quality of his facial structure, a fine head, despite his deficiency of chin, gave him distinction which, allied to impeccable taste in clothes, made him look too good to be true.

He is, today, no longer quite the slim Adonis that his appearance looks almost careless. It is as though he has grown heavy and does not take to other men who look too good to be true.

He is, in fact, a victim of his good looks, which is why he prefers to be seen in the House and in the several Baltic dialects. From an adjoining table one afternoon a Canadian who had served in the army in India and knew Hindustani.



It was agreed among all these gentlemen that there is not, as far as can be discovered, a single sound of which the human voice is capable that has not occurring in some language . . . CALCIUM AND SINUS TROUBLE

"It seems to me, that an optimal daily ration of calcium, daily the year around, is, as doctors say of medicines, "indicated" in almost every single sensitivity. If that's about talk, then let us put it in other words: From theoretical and scientific study of the peculiar state known as allergy, and spontaneous reports or testimonials of innumerable readers, I am convinced that calcium deficiency is the main predisposing cause of this hypersensitive state.

Whether more persons are allergic to this and that nowadays than in the past is debatable. From a casual view one really does get that a larger portion of the population is affected today, but this offhand impression is invalidated by two pertinent facts—first, that physicians today diagnose allergy in thousands of cases which formerly would not have been recognized; and second, that sophomoronic who have learned to say "de-ilnitely" when they mean yes, or I believe so have learned also to allure around in the atmosphere, "ulcers" and "allergies".

This is a dinky little piece but hard to write. I have wrestled for many hours over it, trying to decide what to tell you so that people good yet do others no harm.

Often, says Dr. Warren T. Vaughn, M.D., Primer of Allergy, nasal allergy is erroneously regarded as sinus trouble. A person who says "I catch cold all the time", or "I hardly get over one cold before I get another" is likely to be suffering from nasal allergy. In nasal allergy the secretion is more likely to be thin and watery, while in sinus disease it is more apt to be thick, whitish or yellowish.

It is in just such cases of chronic sinus trouble that I recommend correction of calcium deficiency by supplementing the ordinary diet with a daily ration of calcium and vitamin D. This is not medicine, not treatment. It is merely better nutrition and it must be followed for months or every day the year around, at least until the everyday diet is planned to insure an adequate intake of calcium and vitamin D.

Frequently I hear from some hunchbacked that he has "tried taking calcium" as he says it suggested, and it did no good. I do not suggest that you "try" calcium. I suggest that you take it every day for not less than three or four months, and along with it that you insure an adequate amount of sunshine vitamin D to insure assimilation and normal metabolism of the calcium. That vitamin D promotes calcium utilization in the body is a bit of physiology which some doctors have not yet learned.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There was an impromptu gathering of linguistic experts at a Rotary club table I was at the other day. One visitor spoke Afrikaans and has a working knowledge of two or three native tribal dialects from Africa. Another could read and read Chinese. A third was a Pan American who could speak Spanish and Portuguese perfectly, but had travelled in the Baltic area and thoroughly knew the ins and outs in the several Baltic dialects. From an adjoining table one young man attracted a Canadian who had served in the army in India and knew Hindustani.

It was agreed among all these gentlemen that there is not, as far as can be discovered, a single sound of which the human voice is capable that has not occurring in some language . . . For the fun of the thing they invited me to utter words that were sheer double-talk, that had no meaning whatever to me. It was astonishing how many of these formless words were immediately declared by the linguists to have meaning in Chinese or Dandish or maybe some dialect of the African jungle. With the addition of a few to be eaten either before or after the gibberish I uttered, a majority of those present decided as soon as the few languages represented at the table, down to the several hundred languages and dialects spoken in the world are taken into consideration, that I was certainly to suppose that it is highly unlikely we can invent a word that has no meaning, somewhere on earth.

What started the discussion was Arabs and Japanese at the mail waiters at the luncheon had got into, and considering I had the dining room entrance and very nearly dropped their laden trays. Immediately they had made a harvest of mutual abuse in a crackling and explosive language which required the intervention of the head waiter to quell.

Since it is a commonplace in Canada nowadays to hear and overhear all manner of strange languages on the streets, in buses and in the crowded shops, we ask of our readers if they what language the waiters had been speaking.

"Polish," said the Finn at our table. "Then he added, with disapproval. "And one of them was a red-headed lass with a very Canadian accent!"

Irishman Said What He Meant

(Montreal Gazette)

There were lapses in the typewriter when the Gaelic gazette published notice of an "Open House" reception for St. Patrick's Day at the offices of the Irish Expert Promotion Board, 1015 Beaver Hall Hill.

In the notice, George McVitty, the trade representative, guaranteed all those attending the reception between 3 p.m. and 6 p.m., a "drink on the house."

Mr. McVitty meant the advertisement in a friendly sense, and assured all prospective guests the only drew at the party would be on the shamrocks distributed at the door.

ALL'S WELL!

I have a beautiful lithograph, drawn by that noble French-English master, Alphonse Legrue. It is "The Seven Cries" about which we know little except that we have read about him. He was a part of the New England life of his time, through the streets of a town at night ringing a bell and announcing, "All's well!" It was the privilege to warn, watch, and cry the hours. That was the duty of

What a power the able physician has as he voices security and hope to banish all fear from the mind of his patient. His smile, his faith, his very touch are a powerful aid to any medicine. Often the mere presence of the kind accomplishes wonders! It has a silent voice which says: "All's well!"

All through the homes of millions of human beings, irrespective of surance.

whether it is a simple home or a mansion, and traveling the highways, walking through towns, cities and country roads, there is a silent figure who keeps whispering to us that all is well. We have only to have faith, and be convinced that God's well is able to follow us throughout all life, delivering us safely to our chosen destination.

It is this inner consciousness that gives the daily blessings that are sent by directed by this silent all's well of a Superior Mind, the one that knows the needs of the mind of you and me here, and to whom we owe unbounded thanks for this unspeakable blessing. How much happier each one of us would be if we but subdued the fears and doubts and listened to that all's well that never fails to bring hope, comfort and as-

WE NEED TO BE ALERTED

Everyone is greatly alarmed at the present time over juvenile delinquency. Probably the most alarming aspect of the matter is not that it indicates much more widespread moral infirmity than is revealed in the few cases that come to the courts.

In other words, juvenile delinquency is only the evil which comes out into the open. For every youngster who is caught and dealt with there police there are many more whose moral standards (not either been lowered or arrested to such an extent that they are constantly in danger of getting into open violence. Worst of all, juvenile delinquency would seem to indicate that there has been a moral relaxation all along the line. Or, to change the figure, we have gradually sunk down more than we realize.

There are still just a few children and young people today as humanity has ever produced. But it must be admitted that the general lowering of moral standards has affected a whole generation and not seminal one. Moreover, the juvenile delinquency problem should cause us anxiety not only because of what it means to the few who get legally involved, but to the children and grandchildren within the confines of our own quiet homes. Powerful forces are being brought to bear on their lives, and many of these forces exert an alarmingly adverse influence.

Coroner's Jury Blames Nobody For Three Deaths

TRENTON — (Special) — A coroner's jury, investigating the deaths of three RCAF persons killed in a head-on crash on No. 2 highway west of here on the morning of March 16, decided that Cpl. George Watson, 40, ACI Eldon Graham Corson, 23, and ACI Ralph Paterson Smith, 23, died as the result of an accident due to road and weather conditions. The inquest was held at Brighton yesterday afternoon. The jury attached no blame to George Edmonds of Toronto, driver of the truck involved in the crash.

The three airmen, all living with their families at Smithfield were riding to duty at the Trenton Air Station when their car and an O'Keefe's beer truck crashed in dense fog.

Plan Campaign To Raise Funds For Centre

TRENTON — (Special) — A caravan of industries, business places and homes in Trenton for funds to aid the Trenton Community Centre project starts here officially on Friday, April 1. Yesterday members of the general committee approved a receipt form to be used by canvassers. All donations can be deducted on income tax returns.

Jack Goldberg, chairman of the publicity committee, announced that Mayor Ross Burtt and Senator W. A. Fraser would publicly encourage the canvass.

The drive with an objective of $70,000 has already been supported by proceeds from a crowd-pleasing boxing show at RCAF Station Trenton and Major Leaf's trainer Tim Daly's visit to Trenton March 15.

Bayfax Given Spring Inspection

TRENTON, (Special) — People of Trenton who thought the S.S. Bayfax was in distress yesterday can rest assured that she is a sturdy ship.

The whistle blowing, bell ringing and lowering of the ship's lifeboats was thought by some to indicate that the ship was afire or sinking. Nobody panicked on board however as the federal government inspector went about the annual routine task of checking the ship's equipment.

The boat's skipper, Capt. Rob McKeen, comes from Hanover. He expects to be ready to sail as soon as the ice leaves the bay.

The Bayfax will not be in her usual role on the first trip. She has a cargo of poles to deliver to Lake Erie for B.E.P.C., instead of starting to carry coal for the season.

CAMPBELLFORD

"Estate Planning" Discussed At Rotary Club Meeting

CAMPBELLFORD — The Campbellford Rotary Club held its regular noon luncheon meeting in the parish hall on Monday.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. J. F. R. Douglas, a local lawyer, who chose the topic, "Estate Planning."

He stressed the point that the planning of an estate should not be solely based on monetary considerations. Primarily, he said, "one of the greatest assets of mankind is his capacity for happiness, which, of course, has little to do with what is ordinarily considered as an estate. An estate must be started from the time of one's youth. Children should first be taught that efficient is the price one must pay for monetary return, and much trouble arises from the fact that people do not learn the true value of money early in life. Another factor in the success from a financial standpoint can be found in good vocational guidance programs for youth.

FUTURE SECURITY

Provision for future security can be made through various agencies. First of these is providing insurance against the day when one is too old to work or can afford to retire. Secondly, if possible, one should own a home as if aids to his sense of accomplishment as well as to his happiness. Thirdly, if practical, one should have some savings invested in bonds or other reliable securities.

One should plan also on the disposition of his assets upon his decease. His estate is then valued at market value, and if it is over $50,000, succession duties are demanded by the Dominion in relationship to the size of the estate and the degree of kinship of the heirs. In Ontario, the exemptions vary as to kinship. If the estate devolves to the widow or husband, the first $25,000 is exempt, and the same applies to children; if the estate goes to sisters, brothers, aunts or uncles or nephews, there is $10,000 exemption. All other bequests are taxable beyond the limit of $5,000.

TAX CIRCUMVENTING

There are means of circumventing this tax while the person is alive. This can be accomplished through gifts. One may give away $1,000 a year to any number of persons and pay no tax for the Dominion. If this is done within three years of death, and if done within five years of death, the provincial tax is not demanded. Thus one's estate may be reduced during his lifetime. Sometimes a trust fund set aside for a son or daughter is a practical way to reduce one's estate, and, of course, the succession duties thereon.

Mr. Douglas answered many questions after his address.

He was introduced by past president F. G. DeCarrol.

Newfoundland to Get Another Paper Mill

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newfoundland's speech from the throne predicts the province will soon have a third paper mill.

The speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor Sir Leonard Outerbridge as the legislature opened Wednesday, said the government is "taking all necessary steps" to bring Newfoundland a third pulp and paper mill at "the earliest possible moment."

Manitoba can expect less provincial revenue in the coming fiscal year due to a decline in succession duties, provincial treasurer Ron Turner told the legislature in bringing down his budget Wednesday. Mr. Turner forecast a surplus of $156,436. The apparent surplus in the past fiscal year was $298,700.

Owing to illness, Mr. W. Burkitt, Mr. G. Minaker, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Howell were unable to be present.

During the evening, progressive euchre was played with the prizes going to Mr. and Mrs. Norris Gibson.

A contest was also enjoyed with Mrs. Ben Anderson and Miss Lillian Sprague being the lucky contestants.

PAINTING STOLEN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Art Museum reported Wednesday that an oil painting by Pierre Auguste Renoir was stolen from the museum on or about March 12. A spokesman for the museum said the 10-by-12-inch oil entitled "Girl of a Young Girl," painted about 1915 or 1916, was taken from its frame in the museum gallery. The spokesman said no value was placed on the original but added "it is characteristic of the work of Renoir."

Former Baroness Acquitted On Fraud Charge

MONTREAL (CP)—Mrs. Harry Pursey is free to return to England today after being acquitted on a charge of having possession of counterfeit United States currency.

The former Hungarian baroness stepped from the prisoner's dock into the arms of her husband-Cmdr. Harry Pursey, Labor member of Parliament for East Hull—after hearing the jury return a verdict of "not guilty due to lack of evidence."

The attractive 41-year-old woman showed no emotion when the verdict was announced Wednesday.

It was the second trial for Mrs. Pursey on the charge of possessing $1,730 in bogus American bills. The first ended with a hung jury last November.

The jury deliberated one hour and 40 minutes before returning its verdict.

GOING HOME

Cmdr. and Mrs. Pursey said following the trial that they will leave for their London home after cleaning up a few things in Montreal. Cmdr. Pursey, 60, flew here to be with his wife for the two-day trial.

Chief Justice W. R. Scott, in a 1½-hour address to the jurors, stressed that they should guard against being swayed by "imaginary doubts . . . mere fancy . . . whims, caprice or lack of courage in facing their responsibility."

Mrs. Pursey was arrested last Sept. 28 in a downtown furrier's after arranging for the purchase of two fur coats with a combined price of $1,100. RCMP officials testified she had $1,730 in counterfeit U.S. bills, $733 in genuine U.S. money and jewelry worth $25,000 in her handbag.

Testifying in her own defence, Mrs. Pursey said she did not know the money was counterfeit. She said she had found it among the papers of her second husband after his death in 1951 and kept it for a trip to America.

United Church Exceeds Quota In M & M Fund

TORONTO — With an objective of $4,350,000, the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of The United Church of Canada this year raised $4,309,710, Rev. W. T. Mooney, treasurer of the United Church of Canada, announced today.

Included in the total are the contributions of the United Church congregations of $230,041, for food for the world's hungry.

Dr. Mooney reported that 1400 contributions had been received toward the Ontario Hurricane Relief Fund and a total of $95,000 had been given to that fund.

Another $23,584 was contributed through the treasurer's office, mostly by women's organizations across Canada, for shipping charges on overseas relief materials of which 179 tons were shipped from the Toronto and Vancouver depots.

During the year, Dr. Mooney said, the United Church received $317,935 in bequests.

He said that the book value of the United Church pension fund investments show an increase for the year of $782,763. The general funds investments of the church show an increase of $744,-254.

Main concerns of the board of finance have been to provide adequate budgets for the church boards, to pay reasonable salaries to ministers and other full-time workers, to provide funds for the building of new churches and manses, to help home mission charges, to assist students for the ministry, and to build up adequate reserve fund for "rainy day" periods.

The total sum appropriated to the church boards for their regular work has more than doubled since 1945, Dr. Mooney stated. An objective of $5,000,000 has been set for the coming year.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

GROOM'S PARENTS MUST RECEIVE DEFINITE LIST-INFORMATION

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Our son's engagement was recently announced and wedding plans are being made. It's to be a large, formal church wedding, reception following. Our only problem is we must be assembling our list of relatives and friends to be invited. We have a host of relatives and friends. Now in the world are we to know how many we may invite? Shall we ask our son to get us this information? — M.L.

You yourself should get this important information directly from the bride's mother, the hostess of the wedding, or from the bride-to-be. You should be told (1) the number of guests you may have on your list for invitations to the church and reception; (2) if not all guests are to be invited to both church and reception, then how many you may invite to each; and (3) if announcements are to be sent, how many are to be assigned to your list. When you have this definite information, you and your husband and son can begin work immediately on these lists.

WHO IS "HEAD OF TABLE"?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

1. How does one determine which is the head of the table? Who is seated there?

2. Where is the guest of honor seated at table?

3. On which side of a guest should a serving dish be presented, to the right or left? — M.W.

1. Wherever the hostess sits is the head of the table. The host is seated more or less opposite the hostess, depending on the number of guests.

2. The woman guest of honor is seated at the host's right. (The service begins with the woman guest of honor.) The husband of the guest of honor is seated at the hostess' right.

3. A serving dish is always presented at the left of a guest. Generally too a plate is removed from the left of the guest; but, if considered more convenient, it may be removed from the right of the guest.

How Do You Measure Up?

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Of course there isn't one regular reader of this column who would dream of making up an Ensun recipe and not use proper standard measuring cups and measuring spoons. Oooh noooo—it would be treason. Wouldn't it?

But strong as my faith is in you it was given a disturbing jolt last week. I mentioned to you that I was spicing some beef and went to the home of an acquaintance to learn her method, which she in turn had learned from a newly returned European traveller who had learned it at the hands of a Russian (white) chef in Paris.

I had written out the recipe as she gave it to me in ounces and teaspoons and tablespoons and cups—but when my teacher came to measure out the quantities ready to actually spice the beef, my brown sugar, salt petre, worcestered salt, allspice, cloves and black pepper, she did this with tablespoons and tablespoons from her silverware drawer.

As a result the spiced beef that I am now in the process of making is a total loss as far as this column is concerned. I can't tell you accurately what was done. Ah we can do now is eat it.

I'm not complaining about having something on hand to eat. Praise the Lord for that but every bit of food, as you know, that I prepare serves a double purpose—the nourishment of my family and grist for this column mill.

My most recent example which distressed me was to find that one of my neighbors blithely sifts the dry ingredients for her cakes after measuring the unsifted flour into the sifter, and then has the temerity to say to me she has had bad luck again with a certain recipe. Luck my eye—it had nothing to do with it—it was just plain laziness.

That's enough lecturing. If any of it hits you between the eyes for goodness' sake make a note on your grocery or marketing list right now to get some metal (not plastic) measuring spoons and cups this very week-end, and use them for everything you measure.

Don't make up recipes that I give you in this column by guess and by golly. I can tell you for sure that they won't be any good if you do.

What's the use of me holding filled measuring spoons up to the light at eye level and squinting at them to make sure not a grain too much is on the spoon—if you (heaven forbid, not you!) scoop a silver teaspoon into the baking powder can, give it a little shake to level it and then plop it into a mix? Level your measurements with a knife.

It just may be I'll stop receiving so many letters regarding cake failures after you read this blast.

We wast Canadians to be known as expert cooks don't we? We don't want any cooking failures. Failures are costly. New measuring spoons and cups are very cheap. Invest 74 cents (59 cents for set of cups; 15 cents for set of spoons—a trivial investment that will pay big dividends.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

CAN A WIFE EVER FORGET HER HUSBAND'S INFIDELITIES?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Can a woman ever forget her husband having affairs with other women and treat him again, especially when he has never said he was sorry, and still lies about it, even though quite a few people know what he has done? How can a man ever forgive his wife or children and do things like that?

I have always been a good, decent wife, and my husband has been a two-timer, and I just don't care for him as I once did. Still, if I had something to build some trust on, maybe things would be different. I would like to keep our home together but, unless I can forget the past, I just don't see how I can.

It just don't think a man loves his wife if she is decent. It seems that if the wife is mean, and always going out with other men, she is thought more of. Don't you agree? — Sallie

Dear Sallie:

No, I certainly don't agree, and I'm sure that, down in your heart, you don't either. If your husband doesn't appreciate you for the good woman you are, you may be quite certain that he would appreciate you even less if you were a woman who "runs around." So if I were you, I would stop thinking along those lines, because it isn't going to help you at all to have such a defeatist philosophy.

If your husband is continually having affairs with other women, and shows no signs of being sorry for what he has done and wanting to become the right kind of husband, I agree that there is nothing on which to build confidence in him, again. Under those circumstances, I can see only two alternatives. One would be for you to go to court and get a legal separation from him, which would oblige him to support you and your children even though you lived apart from him. The other would be for you to stay in your present home, avoid quarreling with your husband about what he does, and just treat him as though he were a visitor. In other words, try to avoid friction, so that your home will not be a battlefield with all of you in a constant uproar.

I suggest that you seek out the family welfare agency in your town and have a talk with someone there. To have someone at hand who can guide you to the right decision, and help you work things out in a practical way by keeping in touch with you would help you more than anything else.

HOW ABOUT DATES WITH OLDER BOYS?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Do you think it is wise for me to go out with boys 19 and 20, when I am only 15?

Please set me on the right track. — D.L.

Dear D.L.:

As a general rule, it always seems to me more natural for girls your age, who are presumably still in school, to go out with boys who are school friends. The reason is that the average young man of 19 or 20 is usually either in college or at work, and so his interests are, and should be, different from those of girls and boys who are still in high school.

I see no harm in your going out occasionally with one of these older boys, but for steady day-to-day companionship, I think you would be wiser to stick to boys in your own age group.

WHEN your youngster is first learning to read aloud, it's important for him to achieve a certain amount of continuity. If he's stuck on a word, try supplying it without a fuss. He'll benefit by your co-operation.

Adults, Children Enjoy Trip To Toronto

SHANNONVILLE — On Friday morning a group of 63 school children along with 23 adults gathered at the school all ready for a trip to Toronto to the Sportsmen's Show.

This trip was suggested by Mr. Gordon Sager, who has attended the show several times and knew from experience a more educational trip for the children would be impossible to find; so, taking this advice, the Home and School Association made all arrangements. Two buses from the bus line of Belleville arrived at 9 a.m.

Under the supervision of Mrs. Kilburn and Mrs. Helen Louis and assisted by several parents, the children were all tagged with pink ribbons bearing the name "Shannonville".

TRIP PLANNED

This educational trip is planned by the Home and School each year, and to a different place each time. These trips are not only entertaining but also instructive and this to the Home and School in payment in full for their efforts.

The buses stopped at Hope for refreshments proceeding later through to Toronto, arriving at 1 p.m. Tickets had been purchased in advance so there was no confusion or delay in order that all children could have good seats and enjoy the fine programs.

Following the show they all left for home, arriving at 9 p.m.

On behalf of the Home and School a vote of thanks is tendered to the bus drivers, Mr. Tommy Taylor, and Percy Lewington, for their considerate understanding and careful driving. The Association also wishes to thank all who so kindly helped in any way toward making this trip so successful.

ADULTERY STILL

Opponents said the measure would increase divorces and that it would be wrong to enact legislation to help a few which might worsen the conditions it sought to improve. Roman Catholic members from Quebec, whose church stands against divorce, spoke vigorously against the bill on religious grounds.

In the vote, 19 Quebec senators opposed the measure and only one, Senator A. K. Hugessen, a Montreal Liberal and Anglican Church member, voted in favor.

Senator Aseltine, 58 - year - old Roetown, Sask., lawyer and father of four, has for 30 years been a member of the Senate's divorce committee which considers cases from Quebec and Newfoundland. He was the seconder of a similar measure in 1938 which passed the Senate but died in the Commons.

ON ENGLISH LAW

This year's bill was based on the law of England as enacted in 1937 which Senate critics said had resulted in a British divorce rate of 50,000 a year. If adopted here, it would have applied only in the eight provinces with divorce courts.

On the vote, four of the Senate's five women members divided. Senators Mariana Jodoin (L—Quebec) and Muriel Fergusson (L — New Brunswick) opposed the bill and Senators Nancy Hodges (L—British Columbia) and Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario) voted for it.

Solicitor-General Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, was among those opposed.

Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, voted for the bill and argued Wednesday that the bill would "grant equal rights to women."

Husbands had the advantage in divorce cases because proceedings had to be launched where they were domiciled. A deserting husband could move over the country, keeping one jump ahead of any divorce action sought by his wife.

FOUR MEN ELUDE

He headed for a tiny cove at Clear creek, but just 10 feet short of the cove the vessel ran aground on a sand bar. It was noon.

As the two tugs stood by and an RCAF plane circled overhead, rescuers began their fight to bring the men to shore.

THREE-HOUR BATTLE

It took three hours for the men to be matched from the ship. Two of the rescue party, Jack Sutherland, 25, Port Burwell lighthouse keeper, and Telegram reporter John MacLean of Toronto, plunged 25 feet from the frozen bank into the water and tried to swim to the tug. They were pulled out exhausted before they had gone 30 feet.

Rod Smith, a Port Burwell fisherman, took his skiff to the side of the Cleeco. Measecar, father of six children, stumbled into the skiff and Smith headed for shore. The tiny boat swamped on the way. Smith and Measecar were pulled out.

A heavy steel davy set out with three men at the oars. The three remaining crew members piled into the davy and the rescue was over. One of the rescuers stayed behind because there wasn't enough room. He was picked up later.

The three exhausted men were hoisted up the bank by ropes to waiting ambulances and taken to hospital.

When Measecar came off he mumbled as he was put on a stretcher that one man had been lost.

Wilson's wife, who was at the scene, was one of the first to hear that he had been drowned.

"It isn't true, dad. It isn't true," she said to her father.

A brilliantly white enamel that stays white. Dries with a gleaming porcelain-like surface that's easy to clean as a piece of china. Keep kitchens, bathrooms, refrigerators, sparkling white. In gloss or semi-lustre.

Canadian Troops To Take Part In Open Exercise

By GEORGE KITCHEN

Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—The Canadian troops joining in the United States atomic tests in Nevada next month will take part in what is known as an open shot exercise.

This means they will operate in an area made radioactive by an atomic bomb fired from a tower—usually 300 feet high—as opposed to a bomb dropped from a plane. Both types of exercise are conducted at the proving grounds, a 415,000-acre atomic workshop laid out in the desert country of southeastern Nevada.

The 85 Canadians will be the first active foreign military group to participate in an American nuclear training test. Foreign observers were present at the first A-bomb tests at Bikini in 1946 but up to now no non-American military men have taken an active part during the actual testing of U.S. nuclear weapons.

They will be drawn mainly from the Canadian army's No. 1 radiation detection unit at Barriefield, Ont., and supplemented by technicians from the RCN and the RCAF. They will be under the immediate command of Lt.-Col. R. A. Klaehn of Kitchener, Ont., of the Canadian army's weapons development branch.

DEFENSIVE EXERCISE

Because of the secrecy shrouding all U.S. A-bomb tests, officials will say little about what the Canadians will do at the atomic site. However, it is known that the test will be a ten-kiloton blast, that their exercise will be defensive and its results will be used to train other Canadian military personnel back in Canada.

As a radiological defence group, atomic officials here say, they likely will test equipment and instruments and take readings of fallout and other atomic effects.

Nor is it known how closely the Canadians will operate to the actual blast. In all tests, the distances at which troops may be stationed from ground zero—the point of explosion—varies with the nature of the exercise, the type of detonation and other factors.

The U.S. army has disclosed that American troops taking part in the April tests, part of the main Operation Teapot being staged by the U.S. atomic energy commission, will operate 1,300 yards—roughly two miles—from the point of explosion. Manning tanks and armored personnel carriers, they will take part in an exercise designed to prove that task troops can survive and fight again after a nuclear blast. In the past, soldiers have been confined to trenches.

SENT JETS TO U.K.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is sending three of its latest-type CF-100 Canuck jet interceptor aircraft to the United Kingdom soon to give members of the RAF a chance to fly it and familiarize themselves with its operation, RCAF headquarters announced Tuesday that the planes will be flown to the U.K. "soon" to work out with the central fighter establishment of the RAF in connection with air defence problems.

Israel Offers Egypt Peace Pledging End to Incidents If State of War Eliminated

By WILLIAM HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Israel has promised peace with Egypt if Egypt will end its "state of war" against her.

Israeli representative Abba Eban told the United Nations security council Wednesday that Israel "is prepared to give an assurance that if no hostile act is carried out by Egypt against Israel, then no hostile act of any kind will be carried out by Israel against Egypt."

Eban spoke as the council for the third time considered the Feb. 28 clash at Gaza, in which 39 Egyptians and eight Israelis died. In connection with the clash, the council already has heard a report by Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Ottawa chief of the UN truce supervision organization in Palestine.

ASSETS A "RIGHT"

Eban said Burns' report reveals "with deep gravity" the tensions on the Israeli-Egyptian frontier.

"All the root of these incidents lie a theory and practice of belligerency," Eban said. "Egypt considers and proclaims that there is a 'state of war.' In the name of that 'state of war,' Egypt asserts a 'right' to perform hostile acts of her choice against Israel.

"On the other hand, Egypt claims immunity from any hostile response emanating from Israel. This is a doctrine of unilateral belligerency, and it has no parallel or precedent in the jurisprudence of nations."

Eban called for council condemnation "of the Egyptian incursions, murders, demolitions and sabotage activities described in Gen. Burns' report as 'a main cause of present tension' and for the mixed armistice commission resolutions as 'repeated aggressive acts by Egypt against Israel.'"

CRITICIZED REPORT

Foreign Leader of Egypt said Eban tried to "drown" Egyptian complaint against the Gaza incident in a general discussion of the whole Palestine question.

He carefully avoided dealing with his government's responsibility which had been established (by the mixed armistice commission). He failed to say why the guilty have not been punished; he failed to express any regret.

Loutfi said he would answer Eban more fully later—the council adjourned without naming the date of its next meeting—and went on to criticize Burns' report for going beyond the Gaza incident. He cited the reset his report to the council March 17, Burns dealt particularly with the cause of the tension between the two countries.

Canadian Padres Have 8 Best German Churches

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOEST, Western Germany (CP) Padres of the 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade have more claim than they have the eight best churches in the occupation zone — and the best troops to fill them.

Capt. R. Gelinas of Montreal, senior Roman Catholic padre, says "no other Canadian army churches are so well equipped." Capt. James Duncan of Vancouver, Protestant counterpart, is equally enthusiastic about the new yellow, wooden-towered places of worship opened in the last two months.

The German-designed churches, each seating about 500, are mainstretch covered by brigade units, reincarnate a 300-year-old German tradition. Similar are the Catholic and Gothic for the Protestant. Arched entrances lead into wide interiors, topped by the curving open ceiling meeting in a softened V. Pews are stained wood, with Canadian motif, and heating is provided by infra-red rays.

RECORDED BELLS

Each has a modern organ and the tall spires hold amplifiers that play recorded bell peels. Hoves are sited to bring in selections by the best choirs in the brigade area.

Each of the eight churches—plus the garrison headquarters chapel shared by the senior Protestant and Catholic padres—is the nucleus of Sunday school, boy scout and girl guide packs, women's groups and the like.

Educationally, the brigade is paying special heed to the residents and hocking space and other problems to do so.

"We are pioneering," says Dr. Jean Martin of Longueuil, Que., who has 23 teachers and expects to double that number by next autumn. Attendance then will be 1,200, for children of Canadians from kindergarten to Grade 13—handling students from all 10 provinces with their different curricula.

CLASSROOMS LOANED

Buses deliver children morning and evening. The German community, space — sky itself, has loaned classrooms, gymnasiums, three schools at Soest, Werl and Hemer and teachers for the near future.

A centralized high school opened in January. Canadian students are picking up conversational French and German as well as what is taught —and children of all ages are absorbing the language around them.

Dr. Martin is also running correspondence courses — down to Grade 8 — for a few particularly students living in outlying parts of the area, or even in other European countries.

Owned by Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—The four aircraft and some of the test equipment destroyed in Tuesday's fire at a hangar at the Avro aircraft plant at Malton, Ont., were owned by the federal government.

Defence Production Minister Howe informed the Commons Wednesday that insurance against practice no insurance was carried on the crown-owned planes and equipment. He was replying to a question by John Pallett (PC—Peel).

An Avro official estimated the loss in the fire at $5,000,000.

Earlier this month President Tito announced plans to build plants to produce her own nuclear energy.

Bill Would Set Up System Requiring Certificate of Title For Every Motor Vehicle

TORONTO (CP) — The legislature Wednesday gave first reading to a bill which would set up a system requiring certificates of title for every motor vehicle in the province.

The proposed legislation, not to be passed this session, provides penalties of up to $2,000 in fines and six months in jail for violations.

Robert MacAulay (PC—Toronto Riverdale) in introducing the bill said it would not be given second and third reading during the current session but would be re-introduced next year after interested parties had an opportunity to study it and make any recommendations they thought advisable.

The bill incorporates recommendations of the legislature committee on fires. The committee—Mr. MacAulay was chairman—asked the department of highways to issue certificates of title of ownership for motor vehicle.

Loans or claims arising against motor vehicles would be shown on the certificates, protecting buyers and sellers, the committee said in its report.

Mr. MacAulay said the bill was being dealt with in an unusual procedure because of the many complications which affected every motor vehicle owner in the province.

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver followed up the statement on the procedure. "We don't want an epidemic of bills introduced in this manner and then die on the order paper."

He said it was bad practice to bring in bills that are "supposed to die only to be born again."

Premier Frost said procedure in introducing the bill was not unusual parliamentary practice, the matter had been given considerable study.

Premier Frost said there were "grave misgivings" that provisions of the bill could be made effective in a short time. The bill has been approved in principle after full-scale debate.

W. J. Grummett (CCF—Cochrane South) said the matter was being dealt with in the only possible manner.

The proposed legislation provides that every motor vehicle owner would have to possess a certificate of title to the vehicle; that car dealers be said with out a certificate of origin; the certificates would have on it any encumbrances against the vehicle.

If the registrar of motor vehicles was not satisfied about ownership of a vehicle, he could require the applicant for a certificate of title to file a bond for an amount equal to 1½ times the value of the vehicle.

A person who did not comply with the act could be fined $25 to $500, receive a jail term of up to 30 days, or both. Provisions of the legislation would not come into force before Sept. 1, 1956, transfers Jan. 1, 1957 and to all motor vehicles after Jan. 1, 1958.

Canada Believes U.S. Should Take More Canadian Crude Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada believes the United States should accept more Canadian crude oil instead of curbing any action to restrict its import.

This was made clear in a note delivered to the U.S. state department in Washington March 8 by Ronald Heeney, Canadian ambassador to the U.S., urging that Canada be exempted from the terms of proposed U.S. legislation to curtail imports of foreign crude oil.

The note, read Wednesday in the Commons by Trade Minister Howe, said any decision to cut imports of Canadian crude would have an unfortunate and damaging effect on the Canadian oil industry.

Nothing should be done, it said, to "jeopardize the security of security capacity developed in the U.S. and Canada" to make use of Canadian crude.

"Both economic and strategic factors point to the desirability of increasing pipeline and refinery capacity in the U.S. to enable Canadian crude to find markets in the United States. The Canadian government has always attached the importance of avoiding restrictive measures in the United States which might frustrate or prevent the continuation of these desirable developments."

Proposed restrictions on foreign oil imports have been a problem for Congress by senators from oil- and coal-producing states. The argument is that U.S. oil reserves should be self-sufficient as a defence measure, and that oil imports are causing unemployment in the industry.

However Secretary Dulles said in Washington Wednesday that a "very considerable" number of members of Congress "realize the limit voluntarily their imports of foreign crude. He said the U.S. administration favors the voluntary method to a system of quotas. He added that no new legislation likely will be sent to Congress to restrict imports.

Mr. Howe said the note was sent to the state department to "protect" the Canadian oil industry legislation. However, it was titled an "aide memoire," supposedly by ordinary diplomatic channels and by external affairs department official as a diplomatic reminder.

Mr. Howe said the note was strictly on the basis that from strategic considerations, western Canada's oil fields are internal to the North American continent. Nothing could be more discouraging to the development of the full development of this strategic industry in this country than the imposition by the U.S. of a restrictive import policy.

It might be argued the U.S. should restrict imports from overseas instead, but Canada's crude oil industry self-sufficient as a defence measure.

Mr. Howe based on defence interests would certainly not be willing to see the United States imports from Canada," the note said. "The Pacific Northwest is at present largely dependent on Canada, the existing alternatives being tanker crude to that area, fed by tanker, whether from United States sources or from overseas. Interruption of such ports are as much more vulnerable in wartime than overland transport that the Canadian government would be unable to understand any decision which would have the effect of cutting imports from Canada for reasons of defence."

Storm Damage Not as Great As Was Feared

TORONTO (CP) — Damage in southern Ontario due to Wednesday's storm was not as great as first feared, Works Minister Grieginger told the legislature Wednesday.

He said department engineers were sent into the field as soon as the severity of the storm was realized.

"While we have not received full reports from all of them, there is every evidence that damage is not as bad as was feared," he said. "Our engineers have instructions to lend every assistance possible where it is needed."

AIR MISSILE SUCCESSFUL

EL TORO, Calif. (AP) — The United States Marine Corps announced Tuesday it has successfully fired an air-to-air guided missile it says can destroy all types of aircraft in any type of weather. A spokesman at the Marine corps air station said the missile, the Sparrow, is guided to enemy aircraft by use of a guidance system.

Charges Effort To Discredit Wheat Agreement

REGINA (CP) — J. H. Wesson, Saskatchewan wheat pool president, says the Winnipeg grain exchange has launched "a British grain officials in Á "quite transparent" attempt to discredit the International Wheat Agreement.

Mr. Wesson Wednesday released what he described as correspondence between the two groups which he said are attempting to discredit the Canadian system of wheat marketing and persuade Britain to remain outside the IWA. His contention was based on a questionnaire and a copy of a letter sent to a group of British millers and grain merchants by Stanley Jones, president of the Winnipeg exchange.

The questionnaire asked nine questions about the British organization polled found Canada's system of pricing wheat satisfactory and whether an open market price might not be more satisfactory; whether the present system of the open market system would provide most protection for the producer; whether trade is able to obtain the kinds of Canadian wheat it needs under the present system; and whether more Canadian wheat might have been purchased if the normal hedging facility of the future market had been available.

"The people of western Canada will have no difficulty interpreting the motives behind this move and know the type of questions that have been asked and the people who will answer them," Mr. Wesson said.

Man Partially Blinded by Bomb Gets Out of Bush

VANCOUVER (CP)—Temporarily blinded and in severe pain from the effects of a grenade bomb while working in the British Columbia wilderness Marius Marcotte has managed to find his way to safety.

"It's a terrifying experience to lose your sight when you are back in the bush miles from anywhere," said provincial game department coyote hunter. The six-inch-long bomb was being used to blast out for destroying predators.

Martinson was setting a line of traps north of Williams lake, 300 miles north of Vancouver.

"While preparing the trigger with my gloved hand," he said "the thing exploded in some unexplained manner. I felt the charge lifted my index finger so that it struck me between the eyes. I was thrown backwards."

"Then the world was pitch-black and my eyes were burning with pain. . . . By some miracle I managed to get 100 feet. I was grooved around until I foulé water and realized my eyesight was gone. I would surely be blind for life unless I could reach a doctor quickly.

"After about three hours of bathing the eyes, the pain eased a bit and the darkness began to lift slightly. A little later I could see a little and managed to make a poising CO was lacking. Experienced air observers were bottled selves proud. Vim, initiative and imagination produced a trail of substantiated little gems to help fighting the main achievement—the overnight withdrawal so successful that opposing forces, enjoying 6-to-1 numerical advantage, marched a victory parade one morning on the vacated Canadian position.

Canadian patrols returned bearing "captured" ignition wires and distributor caps. Prisoners also detailed that in one instance only a little more than a platoon, disguising CO was lacking. Experienced air observers were bottled up in Canadian dug-in positions.

Exercise umpires halted incensed jeep drivers and ordered civil cost used for British forces who had crossed German lines in error to exercise rules, and a crack British guards armour unit had to have its tanks returned to keep on with the war games.

EARLY MURDER

Conduct of Canadian troops has been the subject of close brigade attention. The brigade's first killing, set in 1954 year-end police report covering Canadian troops as a murder.

"The Canadian NATO units (2nd Regiment RCHA and 2nd Battalion PPCLI) . . . are not problem any more. Among 226 offences for disorder, disturbance and vagrancy are four offenders in allied uniform. Of 201 cases of drunkenness, of domestic peace and security, violation of public peace, bodily injury and assault, 28 involved troops. Of 28 in which NATO Canadians or British occupying soldiers are involved.

Soest police, who deal if necessary with 2nd Battalion RCR, garrison and environs unit personnel, give a similar clean bill of health, paying a special tribute to Lieut. J. McManus of Kingston, Ont., detailed to implement the Canadian mission to work hand-in-glove with German authorities on crime investigation.

FAVORABLE COVERAGE

Brigade authorities, keeping track of the brigade's Canadian coverage in 10 provincial newspapers, say less than eight per cent of stories can be classified as unfavorable, and most is in small items. German reporters get ready access to army investigations.

Traffic accidents are recurring special attention. Erring drivers are being clipped with heavy detention rooms to keep them on their toes in coping with some free-and-easy German traffic habits, narrow, tree-lined roads that become treacherously icy in winter and the rip-roaring traffic along the Autobahn, which has no speed limit.

A barometer of the Canadian crime sheet is the brigade detention barracks, which never has been rushed. At one point in January, Capt. Ed Petty of Galt, Ont., had only seven prisoners to keep the place tidy.

Strong drink probably is the biggest problem among Canadian troops, especially in celebrations in the latter cities. It is doubtful whether some troops—air force as well as army—added to Canada's prestige in Germany at the world hockey championships, where they had plenty to cheer about. And, in a country where the inhabitants know how to live with their current brews, the troops and civilian company in the victory revels.

FAR FROM HOME

"The broad picture is pretty good," says Salvation Army Major Harold Watt of Vancouver, who with his wife presides at the Soest hostel. "Men and cruelty lends a kindly ear to troubled troops.

"Some of these boys are very young and far from their homes. Some get in over their heads. But soldiers will be soldiers whatever nationality they are."

There is plenty to do in barracks of the camps spread over 45 miles, roughly clustered around Soest, Werl and Hemer.

There is a heavy sports agenda and fine equipment. There are two films, hockey, basketball prowess, four big movie houses and "girls" and other-orders clubs.

Local authorities hit hard and early at the camp follower problem, and it is a minor one, although further afield is another question. Brigade authorities neglect marriage applications—there are about 100 on tap at the moment—but are slow to throw back home gets a good wife if he's so minded. A number have.

WAIT AND SEE

GALT (CP)—Monsignor Emmett Doyle, pastor of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, has drawn a ticket on Red Seal, a non-starter in the Irish sweepstakes, and will receive a prize for doing so. Father Doyle said he has not made any plans about what to do with his winnings. "I want to see the money first," he said.

Lands and Forests Department Trying to Locate Park Areas

TORONTO (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Mapledoram said Wednesday his department is surveying the province in an attempt to locate potential park areas.

Speaking in the legislature on estimates for his department, Mr. Mapledoram said the parks division is planning special emphasis on the southern part of Ontario where there is a great dearth of recreational facilities.

He said 60 slips have been located and examined. Recommendations have been made for purchase of a number of them.

The department's estimated ordinary expenditures for the year starting April 1 is $13,500,000 compared to $12,780,000 for the current year.

The $13,500,000 includes $1,150,000 for land and recreational areas, $1,645,000 for forestation, $2,530,000 for timber management, $5,080,000 for forest protection and $3,095,000 for fish and wildlife.

ACCESS ROADS

Mr. Mapledoram said the main item of capital expenditure in the estimates is $900,000 for construction of access logging roads to crown timber lands in northern Ontario.

He said the government expects to recover the amount in a short time from increased stumpage returns from lumbering and timber sales the new roads would make possible.

Increasing interest in processing of low-grade hardwoods for pulp and paper by new processes was placing a "new economic value on the large quantities of hardwoods in the Ottawa — Huron area and along the north shore of Lake Huron." The hardwoods for formerly been considered waste materials.

Mr. Mapledoram said the forest resources inventory has been completed for most of northern Ontario and is moving down into southern agricultural areas.

Montreal Cuts Civil Defence From Its Budget

MONTREAL (CP)—City council Wednesday night voted unanimously to delete monies for civil defence from the 1955-56 budget, but urged that further talks be held with Ottawa to provide some form of protection in the event of war.

The vote backed up a city executive committee decision to scrap Montreal's CD set-up for reasons of economy.

During debate prior to Wednesday night's vote, Controller Jean Drapeau said it is dangerous to believe that an item in the budget the civil defence is sufficient to protect the public.

He said a proper civil defence scheme could not be organized "because we don't know where we're going."

HAS NO PLAN

"There is no serious plan to work on" but when the city has one "it will be the first to say we will do what we can," Mr. Drapeau said.

But civil defence was primarily a concern of the federal government, Mr. Drapeau added.

RECORD CRAB CATCH

KUSHIRO, Japan (AP) — Crab fishermen of northern Japan are making record catches because, they said today, of a mass flight of king crabs from Siberian waters. Crabs are being netted in such numbers that fishermen in northern Japan have been forced to slow down so the canneries can catch up with them. Since the season opened March 15 they have caught 2,450,000 pounds, a year's haul.

Believe Gold Stolen Somewhere In Red China

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says that $215,000 in gold bullion stolen from nearby Malton airport two years ago now is somewhere in Red China.

"The newspaper says the gold, which disappeared in 1953, is believed in Canada's history, was flown from Malton by private aircraft some hours before the theft was discovered." It was taken to New York and then to Hong Kong.

The story says an informant, who "for obvious reasons wished to remain unidentified," said that a well-known Toronto boodlum was paid $50,000 for the theft.

"Senior provincial police officials verified all the information except that the gold was sent to Communist hands."

The newspaper article added: "Our information, however, is that the bullion now is in a place that gives us no chance of recovery. That route, mean behind the Iron Curtain, Canada."

"Although police have knowledge of certain phases of the theft, they could not say how no proof with which to lay charges."

Three Fishermen Rescued From Lake Welcomed

LEAMINGTON, Ont. (CP) — More than 200 persons gathered here Wednesday to welcome three fishermen, rescued from a tiny Lake Erie island after they were reported missing and drowned.

The men spent the night on the small island before the ice left their off shore, after their crippled 18-foot fishing boat limped into the island's protected harbor.

The boat, which had pounded through waves described as the roughest ever seen on the lake" for nine hours, ran aground and sank within a few feet of shore.

The men, Fred Fuller, 48, his son, Everett, 20 and John Schiller, 18, were taken off the island by a rescue tug.

Their condition was described as good.

Forester's Comment Transforms Espanola Into Thriving Town

By FRASER MacDOUGALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ESPANOLA, Ont. (CP)—A forester's comment after his first Ontario timber cruise in 1917 led 29 years later to transformation of Espanola from one of Ontario's sorriest ghost towns into a thriving community.

R. F. (Ben) Avery, fresh from Yale University, came back from the limits held by the old Spanish River Paper Company and told the mill staff that "You fellows will have to find a way of making paper from jackpine if you want to keep the mill going."

He found an abundance of jackpine, then a despised wood, and a scarcity of spruce, traditional raw material for newsprint, in the 5,000 square miles of forest leased by the company north of this town, 50 miles west of Sudbury.

FRUITFUL INSPIRATION

One of his hearers was Ralph Haywood, who had joined the Spanish river firm at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., not long after he graduated from the University of Michigan as a chemical engineer.

The 1917 remark began to bear fruit in 1943 when Avery was woods manager for the Great Lakes Paper Company at Fort William. He had all but forgotten Haywood, who had returned to the United States and was president of the Kalamazoo Vegetable Parchment Company of Kalamazoo, Mich., which manufactured household and kraft paper from pulpwood from jackpine and other woods of the less desirable species.

Haywood wanted to develop in Canada a supply of jackpine pulp, and he was after detailed information on the Espanola limits.

DEPRESSED YEARS

Industrially, Espanola was dead. Its newsprint mill had closed Dec. 31, 1929. Population of the company-owned townsite had shrunk from 1,200 or so to some 200, flow upon row of once-trim frame houses stood dilapidated and empty despite a brief wartime revival brought on when the mill housed German prisoners of war. The prisoners left behind a memento which is still in the mill—a map of the world painted on a concrete wall.

It was a sorry state for a town that had known good days since lumbering started well before 1900. When trees suitable for timber ran out, the pulp business moved in. Pulp and groundwood mills were built. A dam, still source of electrical and hydraulic energy for town and mill, was built at the mill site on the Spanish river in 1903. The first newsprint machine was installed in 1911 and two more were added in 1916.

Spanish River, which also had mills at the Soo and Sturgeon Falls, became part of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company in 1928. Abitibi, which went into receivership in 1932, closed the Espanola mill because the newsprint market was shrinking and its production costs were higher than at other plants.

REBIRTH OF INDUSTRY

After his phone call in 1943, Haywood wasted no time. He went to Fort William in confer with Avery. He formed the KVP Company, a Canadian subsidiary of his Kalamazoo firm, acquired the Espanola mill and limits and began building staff.

KVP re-opened the pulp mill May 11, 1946, and many former Espanola residents came back to join the staff. Avery, whose heart was in Espanola's rehabilitation all through the lean 1930s, became president.

Haywood died in 1951 but the town continued to thrive. The mill now employs about 900 men and another 450 work in the bush 10 months a year. Annual payroll last year was about $6,500,000.

The attractive company townsite now has a population of about 1,800 living in 320 houses, 74 privately-owned with the property held on a 99-year lease. The Espanola Development Company, a KVP subsidiary, runs the townsite's affairs, administering housing and municipal services. It has built 132 new housing units since 1947. It has a shiny new 24-bed hospital, a modern high school and a good rink and community centre.

MAKES PULP

The mill, which uses about 225,000 cords of wood a year, still makes pulp for its parent firm at Kalamazoo. It also manufactures for sale is Canada household papers, food wrapping, parchment, wall paper and so on.

It uses a different process than most Canadian paper mills to recover cellulose, or wood fibre, from wood. Most Canadian mills with spruce and balsam as raw material, use a sulphite or acid process to dissolve resin and lignins. KVP, working with the less desirable jackpine and poplar, uses the more expensive sulphate or soda process. One of the by-products from its sulphate liquor is turpentine.

The offering was gathered by Mrs. Robert Christie, Mrs. Earl Bailey, Mrs. Oliver Stapley and Mrs. Volney Richardson.

W.M.S. WORK

Mrs. Earl Eggleton, stewardship secretary of St. Paul's and press secretary of Belleville presbyterial gave a special address on "Missions", dealing particularly with "The work of the Woman's Missionary Society".

She first paid tribute to the humanitarian work of the Red Cross, commemorating Florence Nightingale, and the Salvation Army, who recently celebrated 75 years of service. She paid tribute to the pioneer W.M.S. women who first banded together in the old Methodist days to form a missionary organization in eorder to help women and children in other lands. The first misionaries went forth in the name of Christ to help others and to carry on work that had never been done before.

The mothers and grandmothers of St. Paul's Auxiliary struggled through the years and they have left behind a rich heritage to this younger generation.

The speaker asked, "Will our pattern today be as worthy as the work of our pioneer women?" The work of the Woman's Missionary Society fills the churches greatest need. It is based on the motto "The World for Christ", with the watchword "Not by Night, nor by power, but by spirit, saith the Lord of Hosts, Whatsoever He saith unto you, do it."

FORMATION OF MISSION BOARD

The speaker pictured the amalgamation in 1925 of the Mission Boards of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches, when a United Church Board of Missions was formed. She briefly summarized the aims and objectives of this organization which is assisting in a world-wide area. Truly, the sun never sets on the mission fields of the United Church of Canada as they carry on overseas missions in Africa, Central India, Korea, Trinidad, and refugee work in Hong Kong, China.

The annual budget is $1,000,000. Today there are over 217,000 world-minded women and children who are sharing their friendship and service. Of this number, 275 qualified women serve in Canada and overseas, as doctors, nurses, teachers and social workers.

Young women are trained in Christian leadership. Scholarships are provided, newcomers of all races and creeds are welcomed at Canadian homes and gifts are given to the children.

The W.M.S. has worthy projects in Canada such as social welfare, good citizenship, world peace, better race relations, Sabbath observance, education and health and it ever proclaims the message of Christ for all people.

St. Paul's Baby Band has approximately 50 members and a portion of their givings were used for the Neemuch Babies' Home in India.

St. Paul's Mission Band has about 40 members and St. Paul's Missionary Society has about 50 members, also a number of associate helpers and all of the adult group give systematically.

SPECIAL TRIBUTE PAID

Special tribute was paid when Mrs. Eggleton read the names of some of the pioneer women who contributed so much to St. Paul's. One of these women made an annual collection throughout the village for 14 years gathering funds for missions.

The first Easter Thankoffering was made for a special fund to assist a needy hospital overseas. The affair was so successful that the idea was made a permanent venture.

The speaker also gave a vivid picture of the administrative work of Canada and in Canada. There is no greater field for the Christian ministry and the education of Christian citizens than in the local communities of Canada. Home missionaries are continually building for peace and mutual understanding. She told of the hospital work in the Peace River District, also to supply department and all that it entails in work and assistance for the needy.

The seaker paid tribute to the work of Dr. Ida Scutter at Vellore, Christian Medical College in South India, and pictured this large hospital with 450 beds. She also told of the Christian literature provided by groups from, "The World Day of Prayer" service.

MORE WORKERS NEEDED

In closing she made a plea for more missionary members and workers when at least 40 workers are needed for Canada and as many more for overseas work. Women are needed with leadership qualities, as well as those who are willing to work in the local group. Missions are like a flaming torch, it must be carried down through the years exemplifying the words "Inasmuch as Ye have done it."

This address was a climax to the hymn, "Fill up each hour with what will last."

The president voiced thanks to Mrs. Eggleton and all others who had assisted in the service and closed with the hymn, "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life."

The film entitled, "The Village of the Poor in India", which was a true story, was then presented by Mrs. Gordon Bailey. The president read the script which showed how when one person in India accepted Christ, then a vast chain carries it along to others."

Following the presentation, Rev. W. H. V. Walker of St. Andrew's, pronounced the benediction.

Padded Goalie Parade Will Mark Habs, Bruins Game; Wings Meet Leafs

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

With National Hockey League centres the scene of riots and junior "A" squads indulging in bloody all-out brawls, it is a distinct feather in the collective caps of the Belleville Memos and Kingston Goodyears that in the games played thus far in their sizzling senior "B" group finals, their play has been of the clean pucksplaying type rather than the "get-the-man" mayhem that has been evident in other centres.

It is against the rules of columnar warfare, but we shall strike a temporary truce with our arch-foe of the pinstripe, Michael I. Rodden, and wholeheartedly agree with his statement that "clean, scientific play as provided by the Memos and Goodyears in the group finals provides a happy contrast to conditions in other leagues . . . It is to be sincerely hoped that this trend will continue and that the league will be decided strictly on merit."

Mr. Rodden goes on: "Large attendances in Belleville and Kingston support the theory that skillful play is not lacking in appeal. Only twelve penalties (this was written prior to last night's game—all for minor offences—have been inflicted during the two games to date and these have been forgiven by nine players. Bob Wilson and Johnny Mackie of the Kingston squad and Tommy Gooderham of the Memos have not a low penalty pace; each with two minors; but all offence players who must take chances in checking opponents.

It is interesting to note that in two group finals only four penalties have been given each team, have been penalized and each served just one mino. sentence. But notwithstanding this absence to the code these keen rivals have waged two thrilling battles and have indicated that this is a series that will be decided on its merits."

For once we cannot take issue with the estimable scribe from Reddenville. Both the Memos and Goodyears, apparently acting from coaching instructions have emmyed to play the puck rather than the man and the result has been the brace of spine-thrilling battles mentioned by Mr. Rodden.

Apparently there is too much at stake for the ice gladiators to resort to the stick-swinging, punch-tossing type of hockey. Both clubs have set their sights on the group finals target, and knowing from past experience that they must be won with players in durance vile, have disdained the rough stuff and concentrated on attack and defence at full strength.

They know, too, that in a series like this, a penalty can mean the difference between victory and defeat. Both squads are known for their penalty-killing ability, but while they may keep score-sheet clean, they know their offensive tactics are vitally affected . . .

And don't get the idea they are "pasty-waisting." Those matchsticks would jolt a deceased grandmother, but at the moment the greater majority have been within the realm of legality. Both squads, as past experience proves, can play the rugged, boisterous type of hockey if they feel so inclined and will back up from none.

Thus, too, there is the officiating. OHA arbiters received firm instructions at the start of the season, to nip any potential rough play in the bud—which they carried out sometimes to extremes during scheduled play. But in series playoffs, especially the finals, tension is greater and tempers more liable to flare. Officials are keeping eagle eyes on the ice activities, and have a thumb at the slightest provocation. With this in mind, the fact that in the two games played the Memos and Goodyears have incurred official displeasure only a dozen times, is, as was said before, a distinct feather in their hockey caps.

* * *

THREE DOWN!

The question that is puzzling a lot of Belleville fans is how did the Cornwall Colts ever score nine goals in one game against this "Stonewall" Johnson, the Goodyears' "Brinks," unless they laundered a leg to each person? Or did they put the "evil eye" on him or use hypnotism in their attacking division?

However, they did it and what they used it is painfully apparent to the Memos' goalie, "Jet" Last night before 4,000 howling fans in Community Centre the Memos, especially the Duncan twins and Ted DeGray fired rubber at him from all angles and the rubber got a piece of Johnson every time but three. The Duncans and DeGray worked like Trojans and deserved at least four markers, but "Stonewall" say "No" and that was it.

* * *

Not detracting from the Goodi es' victory, they won their third tilt with their dashing, hard-driving opportunist style of play and four of their goals were well-earned. The other, the first of the night, was a bit freakish caroming into net from a right-angle shot off Parisi's body.

* * *

Now the Memos not only have their backs to the wall but they have it half pushed over. The fourth game of the series is slated for Memorial Arena tomorrow night and it is a do-or-die fray for the Bonchervons. They hope that this tilt will see a change in the distribution of the "breaks" and a lapse on the part of M'sieu Johnson. If they, perchance, come out with a victory they go back to Reddenville Saturday night.

* * *

RUSH SEATS

Memorial Arena manager Walter Gerow said today that 300 rush seats in the south end of the arena will go on sale at the arena box office at eight o'clock Friday night. The prices are general admission and again it is a case of "first come-first served." Better be on hand if you want a seat.

Double Shuffle of Custodians Will Be Frequent Says Irvin; Leafs' Brass Lauds Reibel

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The parade of the padded goalies plays a repeat performance tonight at the Montreal Forum and the casualties will be more frequent if not more furious.

It's a double shuffle of netminders, so far as Montreal Canadiens are concerned, just as it was Tuesday night in the opening game of the Stanley Cup semi-final against Boston Bruins.

Canadiens snatched the opener 2-0. Several times each period goalies Jacques Plante and Charlie Hodge, in full and cumbersome regalia, lumbered past each other like a couple of yard eaglets.

REVUE BY NEXT

"I'll change them more often this time," said coach Dick Irvin Wednesday night. "It would be a good idea if we had a bench right by the net so they'd only have to skate so far."

"We will go with the same plan despite what Schmidt and Schmidt think," said Irvin. "That's our complaint against Boston and until we are proven wrong we will go along with it."

General manager Lynn Patrick and coach Milt Schmidt undoubtedly were a bit surprised at the move pulled by Irvin. Patrick said he thought Irvin took a big gamble and that if Hodge had been scored on after first taking over from Plante the whole Montreal team might have been disorganized.

EXPECT GOALS

"We expect to have goals scored against us in the series whether Plante or Hodge is in the net," said Irvin. "Any time a goal is scored against either one of them it doesn't mean he will be taken out then and there.

"I know the critics would have criticized me if things had gone wrong in the first game. Now the second guessers are running out of material . . .

"Our fellows checked closely in Tuesday's game but they didn't play as well as they did in Detroit Sunday."

This situation may startle some because in the Sunday game Canadiens were humbled 6-0 by Detroit and lost the National Hockey League championship.

FASTEST FIRST SEASON

"That first period in Detroit was the fastest hockey I've seen this season," said Irvin. "In that second period Detroit ran in four quick goals—we had some penalties, too, by the way.

"If our fellows can play the way they skated—checked for 55 minutes in Detroit we won't lose many games. We can play better than we did Tuesday night, too."

The Bruin brass is goalie-minded also, but in the old-fashioned way —one at game. Coach Schmidt said he will use Long John Henderson tonight instead of Sugar Jim Henry. The switch is "no reflection on Jim's work—he generally rest will do him a lot of good."

Schmidt said he feels sure his boys will be less apprehensive now. They thought something might happen to them in the Forum in the first game because of "all the commotion that has been going on recently."

EDGY FOR 2 PERIODS

Schmidt said his players were edgy for two periods, then outplayed Canadiens in the third.

The injury problem now has beset the Bruin coach. Lorne Ferguson is out for the series with a groin injury. Warren Godfrey hurt his wrist in the second period and expects to play tonight.

Murray Balfour will sit out tonight's game and two farmhands from the Hershey club of the American Hockey League will see a chance to show their stuff. They are forwards Gordon Wilson and Norm Corcoran.

Hounds Nip Dutchies 1-0 In Opener

GUELPH (CP)—Harry Taylor, a former National Hockey League player, scored early in the first period Wednesday night to give Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds a 1-0 victory over Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen in the first game of their all-Ontario senior A championship finals.

Taylor, once with the NHL Toronto Maple Leafs, registered the only goal of the game by firing the puck past goaltender Keith Woodall at 3:38 of the opening session.

It sent Greyhounds, who finished atop the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A southern division, into a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven final series. Second game is scheduled here tonight.

BAD NIGHT

Woodall had a bad night for both clubs, particularly the Dutchmen. They took the play in the last two periods but were unable to beat netminder Ed Chadwick.

Taylor scored things up on a throughway play with Mat Meelch and Steve Wochy. He stepped past Kitchener defencemen Clare Martin and slapped the puck behind Woodall.

Both goaltenders turned in a creditable performance. Chadwick, in notching his shutout, stopped 28 shots, 11 in the third period. Woodall kicked out 19 Greyhound drives, eight in the first period.

MISSED CHANCES

Both clubs missed good scoring chances. Dutchmen Don Hurst broke through the Kitchener defence in the second period but hit the goalpost with his shot.

Woodall made a great stop in the third period by blocking a shot by Jim McBurney, who went in on a breakaway.

Dutchmen yanked Woodall in the dying minutes in favor of a sixth attacker but Greyhounds failed to get the empty goal.

Steak, Beer for Oxford Crew Favored to Win 'The Boat Race'

Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)— Oxford and Cambridge universities Saturday for the 101st time in the classic rowing event known to millions of Britons as "The Boat Race."

Eight oarsmen and a coxswain from each university will propel a 280-pound shell over 4¼ winding miles of the Thames river to perpetuate a challenge laid down in 1829.

The race is beloved as a Saturday afternoon springtime classic. If the weather is right, thousands crowd the towpaths between Mortlake and Putney to view for nothing a show that costs each varsity club nearly £2,000.

BATTLE OF BLUES

In London, it's traditional to support either Oxford or Cambridge—regardless of whether one has attended either—and to sport dark blue Oxford or light blue Cambridge colors on the day.

This year the experts look to Oxford to win—although boat race prophecies are famed for being caught out. Last year Cambridge was strongly favored but lost miserably.

Of 100 races so far, Cambridge leads with 54 victories to Oxford's 45. There was a dead heat in 1877. Oxford has won only six of the last 29 races.

Both crews have new boats this time. It's normal to have a tailored job for each new race although the 60-foot shells cost between £300 and £350.

Strict training for both tends to curb the gaiety of college life. Dances, theatre visits and parties are frowned on. It's the old story of early to bed and early to rise for the six-week training period.

Diets that make for muscles and stamina are meats and the Oxford crew is reported to be getting a pint of extra-strong university beer a day to wash each spicy every three days.

"We can't afford them more often," said an Oxford official.

Every day during the training period the Oxford men sport a fresh bunch of violets in their boat-blankets—donated anonymously.

"It was being done 30 years ago when I was rowing," says Oxford coach Group Capt. H. R. M. Edwards who has rowed three boat races. "The violets still arrive every year but we aren't sure who sends them."

SQUARE SERIES

HUMBOLDT, Sask. (CP)—Regina Pats squared their best-of-seven Western Canada Junior hockey semi-finals playoffs Wednesday night when they defeated Humboldt Indians 3-1.

Harvey Flaman, Jim Hay and Bill Kuntz scored for the Pats. Don Chipuka counted the only Humboldt goal.

Goodyears Within Game Of Group Title, Defeat Memos 5-3 For 3rd Wi

Package Win in 2nd Period With Johnson in Hero Role; Over 4,000 See Rugged Fray

By GEORGE M. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The Kingston Goodyears are one game away from the senior "B" group title, the Belleville Memos face the herculean task of winning four straight games, and Kingston's Mayor George Wright has one foot in the stirrup of the saddle of the "victory horse."

Over 4,000 fans saw the Memos hockey "bats rock" one Ken Johnson, pipe guardian of the Goodyears, come up with another sensational effort in Kingston's Community Centre last night while his mates racked up a 5-3 victory in another sizzling playoff combat.

The Memos had a dozen close-in chances to score at various times of the rugged, hard-checking battle but they shot the puck into the Johnson pads or had the stocky custodian outgrown them. Meanwhile the Goodyears, playing strong, two-way hockey, were dangerous at all times with four of their goals being hard-earned, and the fifth a cross-goal pass that was deflected into the net off Parisi's pads.

The teams split a pair of goals in the first period when the Memos, but for Johnson, should have had at least three or four. The Goodyears took the lead in a flashing second period to outscore the Memos 2-1, while in the third period, by far the most rugged of the series, the teams divided a brace of markers.

The Memos were without the services of John Wade already after the second period started, but a big defenceman being forced to retire with an injured ankle. They lost the services of Peter Lee midway through the third heat when the sorrel-top was given a match misconduct for arguing strenuously with one of the officials over what looked like a borderline penalty.

The game was a repetition of its two predecessors in its blustering tempo with both teams travelling at top speed throughout. The Goodyears defence plus Johnson was the best yet as it kept the swarming Memos off the scoresheet on two occasions when the Belleville crew had a two-man advantage.

It was the most rugged battle of three played thus far with Referees Andy Bellemer and Ted Topping handing out 14 penalties in eight, one a match misconduct, going to the Memos. Seven of the total were handed out in the third period, the most boisterous of the series thus far. Tempers started to flare and a few shoving matches started with no damage done.

Myke, Belleville, McKeown, Toppazzini and White were the Goodyears snipers with Toppazzini's goal being a sensational solo effort that swept him through the entire Memos team. Defencemen Keith MacDonald and Red Doran were the Memos spearheaders. The Dunkins and Ted DeGray formed the hardest working line on the ice and deserved at least four goals. The trio missed a dozen from close in.

The Goodyears blasted Parisi from the opening whistle but the Memos' goalie kicked out the flurry of shots. The Memos' Duncans, DeGray line tore in and tested Johnson from close in.

The Goodyears drew first blood on a more or less freakish goal at 3.30, Myke lugging the right boards whistling a shot across the Memos' goalmouth. Parisi misstruck Parisi who was well out of his net and deflected into the net.

A minute later Davy Jones got the goals for tripping but the Memos' defence held off the swarming Goodyears. Jones had just returned to the ice when he picked up a pass from brother Peter, weaved through the Goodies' defence and flipped the puck to Dorsm whose low hard shot beat Johnson.

Goyer boarded Goodfellow at 11.56 and got the-ugts and again the tight Memos' defence held although Goodfellow's blazer hit the posts with Parisi beaten.

It was fast, furious hockey with play surging from end to end. The Memos swarmed over Johnson [illegible] a sustained offensive that netted them three goals before the Memos struck pay dirt.

Bellmer scored on a power play with Douglas and Nicholson assisting at 9.30 to give the Goodies a 2-1 lead. McKeown led a powering drive 8 minutes later with Toppazzini a grand-daddy to make the score 3-1.

Myke was penalized and Nicholson followed him a minute later to give Memos a two-man advantage.

They swarmed around the Goodie net but again were impotent from a scoring viewpoint. The Goodyears were still full strength after a grand job of penalty-killing.

Wilson and Nicholson went off within seconds of each other and were hardly seated before Toppazzini scored a beautiful solo goal. He weaved through the entire Memos team to beat Parisi cleanly for the 4-1 lead.

Davy Jones went off for holding at 17.43 and a minute later on a neat two-way passing effort Red Doran, Wilson blasted a 30-foot drive high in the rigging to cut the margin to 4-3.

The Goodyears missed the issue opening the third period and Parisi and Toppazzini nearly combined to blown. At 3.30 Ted DeGray got the gate for slashing and the Goodyears outmanned the Memos next.

On a return offensive Johnson kicked out a drive Dugan's goalmouth drive then with Ted DeGray and sis feet away coolly warded off the winger's shot. Red Doran tried his luck from outside the crease and he too was beaten.

Red Doran drew a slashing penalty at 12.46 and the Goodyears drove to the attack. A minute later Gabby White put them three goals up on a three-way foray with Irvine and McGregor. Wilson drew a charging penalty and the Memos hotly protested the sentence. They argued the point until Peter Lee was given the heave-ho.

White and Goodfellow drew sentences within seconds of each other and the surging Memos again failed to hit the hemp with a two-man advantage. They did everything but poke the puck in the net.

With a minute to go Watts got the gate with Loudry serving the sentence and 45 seconds later Keith MacDonald who has averaged a goal a game got his marker on a power drive with Goyer and Mackler.

near the period end and the goalie threw back everything they fired at him.

A whistle was being blown in the crowd and Referee Andy Bellemer warned if the blowing persisted he would award the game to Belleville.

Davy Jones and Goodfellow flared for a minute but no damage was done.

How Johnson kept the Memos from scoring in the first two minutes of the second period will never be known. The Duncans and DeGray swarmed around the net with Johnson kicking out three in a row from outside the crease, Later Ed. Duncan went in alone and Johnson beat him.

Canada's First Gold Medal Won by Vancouver Swimmer

MEXICO CITY (CP)—"The biggest thrill of my life," says slender Helen Stewart, Vancouver, was winning Canada's first gold medal of the Pan-American Games.

The attractive 16-year-old high school junior captured the women's 100-metre free style swimming championship Wednesday in a breath-taking finish with Wanda Lee Werner of the United States.

Her performance headlined Canada's best day at the games as swimmers picked up a total of 21 points—second only to the U.S. which won three championships.

Miss Stewart has her heart set on the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne but her job here is far from finished. The Canadian youngster just entered in three more events, two of them today. Along with Lenore Fisher, the backstroke star from Vancouver, and George Park of Hamilton, Miss Stewart was expected to add to Canada's growing total.

BRANTFORD DARK HORSE

Miss Fisher, who set a games record in qualifying, was the favorite in the 100-metre backstroke today and 14-year-old Sarah Barber of Brantford, Ont., was a dark-horse in the race.

Park was the lone Canadian in the men's 100-metre free style final.

The 100-metre women's swim Wednesday was a tight race all the way and it ended in a virtual dead heat. The Canadian backstroker Miss Werner, a 14-year-old sixth-grader from De-Pere, Wis., were so close that the timers caught them exactly even in one minute, 12 seconds.

At first the name of the American girl was announced as the winner, but apparently this was not official. The judges went into a huddle and several tense minutes later ruled that Miss Stewart had touched first. Virginia Grant of Toronto was third in 1:08.2.

Helen, a sharply five-foot-seven, 140-pounder, was so happy that she was almost speechless for five minutes. "It's marvelous, just wonderful," she said in a voice hardly audible after the race was over.

The Canadian girl has been swimming in competition eight or nine years. She was a member of the relay team that finished second at the British Empire Games last summer. She holds the Canadian senior women's 100 - yard breast stroke record for a 25-yard pool of 1:38.4, set in Vancouver last May. Before that she set four Canadian records in the junior women's division.

FIRST DOUBLE

Jimmy McClane of the U.S. Army, the Olympic champion, became the first U.S. double gold medal winner when he captured the 400-metre free style Wednesday, breaking the games record.

McClane travelled the distance in 4:51.3, beating the 4:52.4 set by Tetsuo Okamoto of Brazil in 1951.

Frank E. McKinny, Jr., 16-year-old Indianapolis high school star, upset Pedro Galvao of Argentina to win the 100-metre backstroke in the games-equalling time of 1:07.1. Ted Simpson of Vancouver was fifth in 1:08.9.

The U.S. also won the pairs event in synchronized swimming. The winning American team of Ellen G. Richard and Connie Todhoreff had 81.85 points to 81.14 for Mexico's Rebecca Garcia Alvarez and Gloria Botella Medina. Diane Baker and Beverley McKnight of Toronto took third place with 80.95 points and the Montreal pair of Ella Lindell and Louise Genereux was sixth.

BAN BULL FIGHT

DETROIT (AP)—Bull fights are taboo in Detroit even if they are tamed down as exhibitions without bloodshed, police ruled Wednesday in denying a request for a licence to stage a bloodless bull fight. A promoter had planned to bring some of Mexico's top bull fighters and toughest bulls to Detroit for a genteel version of Mexico's national sport.

A collector's item over three hundred years old, this German wheellock was so called because of its firing mechanism. A rotating wheel rubbed on pyrites threw sparks into and through a hole in the breech mechanism, or threw sparks on a flash pan, which in turn ignited the powder charge.

Radio Program Telephone Hour Withstands TV Competition

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—A radio program that has withstood television competition better than most, the Telephone Hour, begins its 16th year next month with no signs of its ringing down.

TV has cut into the audience of the Monday night NBC show, as has far all night network radio. But surveys indicate the telephone hour has held a larger share of its audience than any other major radio program. What's the answer? A growing public demand for good music, says Donald Voorhees, maestro conducting the show. Nine Hour since its first broadcast in April, 1940.

"As nearly as I can gather from sources, serious music is gaining very rapidly," says the white-haired veteran of the music world. "The interest goes beyond mere listening, he adds, with many more young people studying music and becoming accomplished musicians.

Development of a new television picture tube said to have three to four times the brightness of those current sets was reported today by the Institute of Radio Engineers. Engineers for the Rauland Corp. said the new tube has been built two sizes, 19-inch round and 21-inch rectangular.

Big-league baseball returns to radio and TV if a little more than two weeks. Besides local broadcasts in each city, Mutual again will have its "Game of the Day" radio broadcasts and CBS will have a "Game of the Week" on television each Saturday. Both will be restricted as not to conflict in any city with home games. The season opens April 11.

The tide of filmed TV shows will be rolled back a little when two give way to live shows next month. The filmed "Father Knows Best" will be replaced on CBS by the live "Appointment with Adventure" April 24, and the filmed Sto Erwin show on ABC will be succeeded by the live show "Mr. Citizen" April 20. The filmed shows were made in Hollywood and the live successors will come from New York.

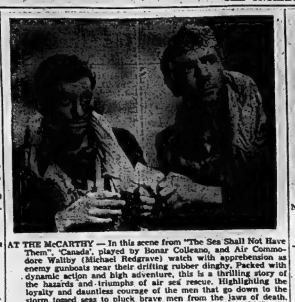
Hopes to Win With 'Thinking'

EASTBOURNE (AP)—England's Don Cockell hopes to wrest the heavyweight championship from Rocky Marciano with "positive thinking."

This was disclosed Wednesday by Cockell's manager, John Simpson, who says the pudgy British heavy is mixing "psychology and nature healing" with his gym work for the May 16 fight in San Francisco.

"It is thought treatment," Simpson said. "Good thoughts bring good acts. Confidence brings success. If you think like a hoodlum you act like a hoodlum. If you think success you help your chance for success."

Cockell's manager said Don was studying psychology and nature healing under well-eminent London nature healer, Sydney Miller.



The idea, he said, is for Cockell to lift his mind to such a state of confidence that—almost simply by thinking—he can erase the 5 to 1 odds now being quoted against him.

Toronto Marlies Favored for Title, Trounce Teepees 6-2 for Third Win

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Marlboros were odds-on favorite today to claim their 3rd Ontario Hockey Association junior A crown since 1932.

They vaulted into the position of heavy favorites Wednesday night with a 6-2 victory over St. Catharines TeePees, defending Memorial Cup champions, before 8,467 fans. It gave Marlboros a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series and they can wind their up the finals at St. Catharines Friday night.

The line of Bill Harris, Ken Girard and Bob Pulford supplied most of the power by collecting a total of 12 points. Harris scored only one goal but assisted on the other five. Girard produced two goals and Pulford and Gary Collins added singles.

Chex Wright and Ed Hoekstra were the TeePee scorers.

QUIETEST GAME

The game was the most subdued of the series. Referee Jim Boddy of Owen Sound called only six penalties, four to TeePees.

TeePees took a 1-0 lead late in the first period but they couldn't do much after that. The margin stood up until 18:39 when Pulford tied the engagement at 1-1. From then on, Marlies were in command.

Marlies led 4-2 at the end of the second and scored two goals in the third. Two of the Toronto goals came a TeePee player was in the penalty box.

Ab McDonald set up Warchol for the opening goal at 13:31 of the first period, his pass putting the rightwinger in position to connect with a 10-footer. Pulford tied it with 61 seconds remaining in the period when he batted Girard's rebound past Teeps' netminder, Dennis Riggin.

Warchol was sitting out an eltbowing sentence when Harris put Marlboros in front at 1:45 of the second. He took a pass from Ron Casey in the centre zone, outskated defenceman Elmer Vasko and fooled Riggin with a 20-foot blast.

Hoekstra made it 2-2 at 4:30 but Marlboros fired thepsieves into the lead. Girard scored twice before the middle session ended. He and Collins added the finishing touches in the third period.

Joe Primeau, former coach of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, made his final appearance as pinch - hit coach of Marlboros. He took over after Turk Broda and TeePee coach Rudy Pilous were suspended for two games because their teams got into a brawl here Sunday. Primeau handed Broda two straight victories.

Dublinski Signs With Argos

TORONTO (CP)—Deputy sheriff Tom Dublinski slipped from the sheriff in football's latest cloak-and-dagger episode.

He arrived here Tuesday night from his home in Salt Lake City, Utah, and at the same time Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Union announced they had signed him as quarterback.

Dublinski, understudy to Bobby Lane of the National Football League Detroit Lions last season, was one jump ahead of injunction papers the Lions tried to serve on him. A deputy sheriff at Salt Lake City in the off-season, Dublinski was under option to Lions for 1955.

He was met at Malton airport by Argo team manager Harry Sonsini, trainer George Stockwell and Gil Mains, another former Lion who also got out of the United States before Detroit could slap an injunction on him.

Another Argonaut arrival Wednesday night was Ike Jones, a speedy 24-year-old end from the University of California at Los Angeles, who will be Dublinski's main target this season.

Dublinski ranked fourth in the NFL last season, completing 77 of 138 passes for 1,073 yards. He takes over from quarterback Vobby Wirkowski, who, along with othep Argo imports, was dropped after the 1954 season.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

In my bridge book is a rule that reads: A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round if the chain of new suit takeouts has not been broken. The full rule applies; not half of it.

Take the north hand shown here:

♠ A Q 4
♥ 10 7 2
♦ J 5 3
♣ K 9 6 2

South	North
1 Diamond	1 No-trump
2 Hearts	?

What do you see in the south hand held by your partner? What is he expecting you to do about it? What should you do about it with the hand you hold? Rule will tell you.

Unless a jump bid is made, neither partner is forced to bid, if either has assisted, rebid the same suit, or said no-trump. Only when they have bid nothing Partner must take it from there, but new suits does a force exist.

Your response of one no-trump broke the chain of new suit takeouts. Therefore, your south partner was not forced to bid again. Nor were you forced to bid again by this new takeout. You broke the chain.

Having bid diamonds before hearts his diamonds are longer. So, he shows five diamonds and four hearts. Since his opening promised four high cards he could have no less than six tricks. He has no support for hearts as you did for diamonds. The chain of new suit takeouts having been broken you are not forced to bid. With nothing more to show you may pass.

Suppose your first response had been a suit bid in spades or clubs. The second round bid of hearts by south would continue the chain of new suit takeouts. You would you be forced to bid again.

Rebid then? Lacking takeouts or assists you must bid no-trump, but remember that make it from there,

AT THE CAPITOL — Ann Miller sings and dances to "I've Gotta Hear That Beat", one of the flock of songs featured in MGM's lilting Technicolor musical, "Small Town Girl", new attraction now showing at the Capitol Theatre. Brainwashed Prisoner Sings Praises of Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — Malcolm Bersohn Wednesday was dragged away by his guards from a press conference where he praised the Chinese Communists who jailed him for 2½ years.

"I am guilty of military espionage," he told reporters as he stepped off a plane in New York's Idlewild airport.

"If I were willing to lie about the people's republic, I would be paid a high price by the warmongers and capitalists who are building a new world war," Bersohn shouted from a prepared statement.

The 29 - year - old New Yorker never finished the five pages he had spent. A sister and other relatives, who were not identified, pulled him away and pushed him into a car.

LED AWAY

"I want to tell the truth," cried Bersohn as his family led him away.

"He is obviously a sick boy," Bersohn's sister told reporters.

After his release from Red China Feb. 27, Bersohn, a former student at Peiping Union Medical College, described how Hong Kong observers as thoroughly "brainwashed."

Gouzenko, who has been in hiding for 10 years since he left the Russian embassy where he worked to tell Canadian authorities of a Russian spy ring in Canada, last year wrote the book "The Fall of the Titan," depicting life in the Soviet Union.

The award will be made when the Canadian Authors' Association meets in Kingston, Ont., June 26-

North Bay Man Remanded On Murder Charge

NORTH BAY (CP) — Joseph P. Roy, 28, was remanded to Monday when charged Wednesday with murder in the strangulation slaying of his wife.

Mrs. Gertrude Roy, 34, and the couple's year-old son, Joseph, Jr., were found dead March 21 in their home in suburban Widdifield township. Police said they had apparently been strangled with a nylon stocking.

Another child, Perlette, 3, was found unharmed in her crib in an adjoining room.

The deaths were discovered after Roy telephoned for an ambulance. He was found bleeding from a number of slashes on his arms and wrists.

West Germany's President Signs Paris Treaties

BONN, Germany (AP) — President Theodor Heuss today signed the Paris treaties calling for West German rearmament in the Atlantic alliance.

The president acted despite a suit filed by the opposition Socialists in the federal constitutional court challenging one of the treaties, the French-German Saar agreement.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop said hello to ma fix the kitchin when he came home saying. It smells good back here, how do you find my dear?

I feel like sending myself to Shirvin for being so stupid, ma said. If there's one thing I hate to do it's bern myself while I'm cooking, and I'll there's not a big blister on my arm, there soon will be. It was nothing but sheer carelessness on my part and there's no excuse for it and I'm in no mood to forgive myself.

I'm sorry, it was all my fabit, pop said, and ma said, Now how is that remotely possible, when you weren't even at home at the time?

Neither one of us was home, the time it actually started, pop said. We were dining at that new place on the Avenue and the dum chick of a waitress made us wait half an hour and then got back a couple all wrong and brought everything stone cold, do you remember? he said. and ma said, yes I do I remember, and I remember you left her a big tip and paid everything.

That's right, and you told me the only reason I did it was because she happened to be pretty, pop said, and ma said, Yes and I still say so, and it made me quite angry. But what has that remotely got to do with my burning myself?

Everything my dear, pop said. You happened to think of it just as you were going into the oven, and you got mad all over again, and that's what made you bern your arm, so don't say to me dear, it was all my fault, he said, and ma said, That's the most outrageous nonsense I ever heard, but just the same I won't say it's impossible, and that's not a nice thing fumy about it. William, so you can just stop laffing, she said.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW

Watermain and Sewer Construction

TO ALL PROSPECTIVE SUBDIVIDERS OF LANDS IN THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW WHO MAY BE REQUIRED TO USE WATER AND/OR SEWER SERVICE.

Please be advised that Council have decided, after due consideration, to require all Petitions for Watermain and/or Sewer Construction to be filed at the Township Office not later than April 15th, 1955, if it is the wish of the Petitioners that the work be done in 1955.

The reason the above decision has been made is that the preparation of plans and profiles, the securing of the necessary approvals from various government departments and local authorities, and the passing of By-Laws takes about two months, and, all this, of course, must be done before the actual work can start. It has been found that where the commencement of the work is delayed beyond July 1st, construction sometimes runs into the winter season, with the result that front action on the new fill in the trenches causes considerable settlement in subsequent years and makes the maintenance of the roadway almost impossible.

The co-operation of all those concerned is hereby requested.

E. M. DAFOE,
Clerk-Treasurer.

Ice 55 Feet High Threatens Bridge Across Niagara

Cottages, Docks Crushed; Fear Million Dollar Loss

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The spring ice jam which Thursday piled into the Niagara river from Lake Erie showed no sign of release today.

The ice jammed down the lake and into the river by high winds, did extensive damage on both Canadian and American sides.

The Lewiston bridge, located part way down the escarpment near Queenston, was in imminent danger as ice piled up. Cold, sunny weather today kept the jam solid.

Thursday night, after pavers, appeared with stories of the jam, thousands of persons crowded the river banks. One man, unidentified, crossed half way to the American side on the ice bridge opposite the Ontario Hydro plant at Queenston.

The mayor of Youngstown, N. Y., which was badly hit, was reported to have issued a statement that anyone wishing to blast the ice with dynamite to go ahead. The mayor was quoted as saying army engineers refused the job.

ICE BACKS UP

The ice plugged the lower mouth of the river like a cork in a bottle, backing ice water over Queenston. Officials said if a major jam above the falls breaks before the one in the lower river, the resulting glacier would wreck the bridge.

Gigantic pans of ice, some as high as 35 feet, have demolished wooden buildings below the falls, caused flood waks to spill into low lying areas and now threaten the suspension bridge at Lewiston, N.Y. In its nine-mile stretch between entering Lake Ontario the river is jammed with ice, ripping like a mammoth cork on the rising waters.

Veteran rivermen say it's the worst ice jam on the lower Niagara river in nearly 30 years. The area of destruction was centred in the final nine-mile stretch of the river before it empties into the lake.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Local residents, army engineers and coast guardsmen watched helplessly from the American side today as the ice-filled Niagara river continued on its home-and dock-wrecking rampage.

Summer homes and boat docks along the shoreline below the falls were reduced to rubble as the ice went up over the river banks. Property estimated at nearly $1,000,000 is threatened as the huge wall of ice continues to mount.

Ice piled up against several boat storage buildings during the night, endangering boat and buildings unofficially valued at more than $300,000. Ice in a cottager were crushed by the ice at Lewiston. One of them, the home of Douglas Thompson, was valued at more than $25,000.

LAKE HIGHER

Army engineers reported Lake Ontario 30 feet above the normal level at Rochester. They said the water level would be 247-foot mark, six inches higher than they had predicted for this time.

The engineers also said that if the smaller ice jam above the American falls should break the mass in the gorge below moved into Lake Ontario, serious consequences could follow. The addition of the ice and water from above the falls would add considerably to the piled-up ice in the gorge.

The level of the ice in the gorge, which now is about 40 feet, would be raised until it might endanger the three bridges across the gorge. These are not in any immediate danger, however.

CHURCHILL'S WIT HEIGHTENS SENSE OF COMING LOSS

If Retirement Is Near Commons to Be Poorer

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—If Prime Minister Churchill is finally bent on retiring in the next two weeks—and that's still the confident prediction—nobody will miss him more than the House of Commons.

Next Monday Sir Winston will make what may well be his last set speech in the Commons—as address about a memorial to the famous Liberal Prime Minister David Lloyd George. Normally members of the Commons are restless and pace through such a debate. But not when Churchill speaks. Since he first entered parliament 60 years ago he has never been more sparkling than he is now.

The House may be full of British politicians who are worried about his impending retirement.

"Well," replied Sir Winston, "it has nothing to do with the empty chair."

This was a reference to the fact that Wyatt has just lost his seat in the House, leaving a contribution of constituency boundaries.

U.S., Russia Formulating Rival Peace Campaigns

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Russia are developing rival peace campaigns that may spur the move toward a Big Four foreign ministers' conference a few months hence.

While Soviet behavior in such a situation may be designed primarily or even solely for propaganda purposes, a skeptical U.S. state department is nevertheless keeping its eyes open to discover whether the Russians really may want to come to some agreements.

The U.S. government is not conserving being set in motion could turn out to be the cold war battle of the year unless the Chinese Communists set off a hot war in the Formosa area.

President Eisenhower has given new impetus to talk of an eventual meeting with the heads of state of Russia, Britain and France by calling a bipartisan group of congressional leaders for lunch next week.

The announced purpose is to talk about foreign policy, and the White House says there can hardly help but be discussion of the call by Senator Knowland (Rep., Cal.) for a top-level Big Four meeting, perhaps this year. Secretary Dulles upon the possibility of such a session at his press conference Wednesday, while sticking to a demand for prior evidence of Soviet good faith.

On the Russian side, Foreign Minister Molotov Thursday night invited Austrian Chancellor Julius Raab to Moscow to negotiate on remaining provisions of an Austrian peace treaty.

The Soviet government also disclosed that it had introduced, at private talks in London with representatives of Britain, the U.S., Canada and France, disarmament proposals calling for the stationing of troops in border areas and that the countries involved did not.

Developments on the American side are in accordance with basic British and French policies for talks with the Russians once agreements for rearming West Germany have been ratified.

Most Washington officials, however, see the possibility of an improvement in Russian-American relations as only a slight possibility.

They consider it more likely that propaganda is the Soviet motive: To offset the line taken by the Eisenhower administration in advocating peaceful use of atomic energy, practical steps for U.S. armaments, and exploratory east-west talks when practicable.

CANADA READY TO PRODUCE ELECTRIC POWER FROM ATOM

Ont. Hydro, CGE And Govt. to Combine

OTTAWA (CP)—The final stage has been set for Canada's attack on problems blocking construction of atomic power plants which will produce electricity economically.

The federal and Ontario governments announced jointly Thursday that agreement has been reached on construction in Ontario of an experimental power station. It will cost between $13,000,000 and $15,000,000 and will be financed by the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission of Canada Ltd., the Ontario hydro-electric power commission and Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd.

The plant, expected to produce 20,000 kilowatts of electric power, will be at a site to be decided jointly by Ontario Hydro and AECL, which operates the Chalk River, Ont., atomic plant. It probably will be on the Bruce miles of Chalk River to place it within easy reach of this centre of nuclear information.

The plant is not expected to produce electricity economically. However, its construction and operation will provide information required for construction of an economic plant producing power at around seven mills a kilowatt hour.

The problems expected to be solved through construction of the experimental plant mainly are related to the design, construction necessary metals, equipment and fuels. Solution of such problems is essential to reduce the capital costs of atomic power stations.

Trade Minister Howe told the Commons that Ontario Hydro's share of the project will be between $2,000,000 and $3,500,000. Canadian General Electric would absorb a "sizable" portion of the cost and the remainder would be paid by AECL.

Detailed design of the reactor will start immediately. Acquisition of a site and construction and construction work may start this year but the plant is not expected to be completed until mid-1958.

The three-way agreement provides that Ontario Hydro will be responsible for the specifications and design of the reactor. Canadian GE will pay for the site and the conventional part of the plant, including the building to house the reactor.

Mr. Howe said Canadian General Electric was awarded the contract for construction of the reactor because the company has the design, engineering and manufacturing resources required for an undertaking of this kind.

H. M. Turner, president of the company, said in Toronto that it is a "challenging assignment" for his firm.

Mr. Howe said Ontario Hydro will operate the plant as part of its existing power system. It would purchase steam from AECL at a price established by a CGE-Hydro team produced in the emergency plutonium-producing reactor at Sarnia. Mr. Howe said the Ontario government would be consulted on the location of the plant.

Ontario Hydro was one of a number of power companies and commissions invited to submit proposals to AECL for construction of a power plant.

Mr. Howe said Ontario Hydro has selected because it is large enough to cope with any power interruptions or low-load operation by the plant.

Pearson Fears U.S. Intervention Could Lead To 'Last War'

If Localized Canada Would Not Be Involved Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson says he feels United States defence intervention in any battle for Chinese offshore islands might lead to world war—the last war.

But if any fight between the Chinese Nationalists and Communists for Quemoy and the Matsus could be kept localized, Canada would not become involved, Mr. Pearson told the Commons Thursday.

He said there had been some misunderstanding of his statement in a previous speech that "we could not stand aloof from a major war which threatened the very existence of the people of the United States."

He did not mean "that whenever the U.S. is engaged in any kind of war we are at war."

"It certainly does not mean that we must participate in limited or peripheral wars."

CLARIFIES STAND

Canada would not consider any conflict involving the Chinese governments over Nationalist - held Quemoy and the Matsus as involving Canada or as affecting the country's intervention in support of the United Nations.

Mr. Pearson added, however:

"What I fear most in this matter is that there could be intervention, defensive in purpose, by the United States might have the effect of localizing such a conflict."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Coldwell was strongly critical of U.S. policy, which he based on a decision to defend Quemoy and the Matsus if a Communist attack on them appeared to be a prelude to attack on Formosa.

He ridiculed talk of Quemoy being a potential jumping-off point for attack on Formosan and said the government and Parliament should be speakout against a "drift to war" in the Far East.

Mr. Coldwell said Chiang Kai-shek and his "subsidiary warlords" should be exiled from Formosa and that Canada should back which he described details of a Soviet plan supposedly aimed at bringing about world disarmament in both nuclear and conventional weapons.

Mirage Turns Delaware Town Upside Down

CAPE MAY, N. J. (AP)—Residents of Cape May looked across Delaware bay to Lewes, Del., 13 miles in the distance, and did a double take Thursday. Lewes appeared upside down.

The phenomenon failed to create a panic, however, because the folk of Cape May recalled that on Feb. 16 their own town appeared topsy-turvy to the residents of Lewes.

The situation in each case was caused by a mirage. Thursday's lasted 15 minutes. After that Lewes righted itself to viewers in Cape May.

Britain Accuses Gromyko of Gross Breach of Secrecy

LONDON (AP) — British today angrily accused Russia's deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, of a "gross breach of secrecy rules" governing the current five-power disarmament conference.

The foreign office issued in an unusually strong statement, condemning Gromyko for leaking details of the conference to a Soviet news agency correspondent in London before his departure Thursday for Stockholm.

The foreign office accused the Russians of "grossly distorting" what actually happened at the conference and said the delegations are considering a possible move to get rest of world.

Represented at the closed-door conference were Russia, Britain, United States, Canada and France, the major atomic powers.

Earlier Moscow radio carried a Tass interview with Gromyko in which he described details of a Soviet plan supposedly aimed at bringing about world disarmament in both nuclear and conventional weapons.

Italy Favors Disarmament Conference Says Scelba

By JOE MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Mario Scelba said today Italy is in favor of a disarmament conference to which Russia, China and India would be invited to participate."

The visiting Italian premier told a press conference here an agreement for banning atomic weapons under international control is "the only guarantee that . . . problems which now divide the world in two sides can be solved."

Speaking in Italian, Mr. Scelba who arrived here Thursday night to begin a two-week North American tour—to recuperate, not to rest—said conference he proposed should not come before the Paris accords for West Europe are defence were ratified by all the governments involved.

Mr. Scelba said a conference with Soviet Russia would have "possibilities of bringing some very useful results" provided the countries of the West Europe Union ratified and unanimously ratified the mutual defence system.

"The West must not refused to negotiate with Russia although frustrating experience of the last 10 years could "well have discouraged us."

He added:

"However we will need some guarantee that it would come to a conference, and Italy thinks that an international agreement on the limitation of armaments could be such a guarantee."

The press conference was conducted in French and Italian, with an interpreter giving the premier's replies in French.

Case Solved

MANILA (AP)—A typewriter stolen last October from the Philippines-American Life Insurance Co. was found Thursday in use in the Quezon city police department.

Toronto Willing To Loan Village 100 Policemen

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips said today the city will loan 100 police officers to the Forest Hill village police force "if they are needed" to help catch what he described as a "major criminal" operating in the Toronto district.

Inspector Joseph Thurston of the police force is adjacent Forest Hill said Thursday night one of the biggest receivers of stolen property in Canada is operating successfully in the Toronto area because police forces in the district haven't collected enough to catch him in the act.

Speaking to the metropolitan police unification committee, Insp. Thurston said the man is known to police forces. But detectives should go after him but the evidence is not there to prove it.

Metro chairman Fred Gardiner said the receiver is operating in a half-million dollar home like a little field for housebreakers. He said it field centred in north-central Toronto.

"Every criminal from Halifax to Vancouver knows that district of metropolitan Toronto is a choice training ground," he said.

Socialist Party Will Endorse German Arming

PARIS (AP)—France's powerful Socialist party today gave a new endorsement to German rearming in the face of opposition from the Paris treaties.

But the ratification debate went into its final day, Socialist Senator Henri Barre told the upper house, the Council of the Republic, that he will vote for the accords to put the West German troops into the West European army without any ifs, buts or bows."

"There is nothing to choose between but these treaties and a void," Barre said, adding that they have been submitted to speak for his party.

The three party threats of expulsion for anyone disregarding the endorsement, it is expected that about 10 of the 36 Socialist senators will oppose them on the ratification vote. Nevertheless, the servers still believe the 320-member party will approve the treaties without amendments, completing France's parliamentary action on them.

Blood Pumped Through Dog's Lung Keeps Boy Alive During Operation

By JOE F. KANE
MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A boy's blood was pumped for seven minutes during a heart operation through a lung which had been removed from a dog, it was disclosed about the size of a football.

Some details of the bizarre operation on Calvin Richmond, 13, were revealed Thursday night by doctors at the University hospitals.

The boy was reported in satisfactory condition after three holes were closed in his heart chamber last week.

A short time before the three-hour operation, the lung was being removed from the dog and suspended in a plastic cylinder six inches from the patient.

When the operation reached the point where surgeons were to graft actual repair work on the heart, the boy's blood flow was diverted by tubes attached through the plastic tubes into the dog's lung. The isolated, sterile lung was ventilated with 100 per cent oxygen to purify the blood. A second pump then carried the blood back into the boy's veins, first passing it through heated water to warm it.

Although the boy lost blood from the heart, surgeons were able to close the holes in the heart before other two were somewhat smaller.

Mrs. Richmond said her son "was crippled" since he was injured in a truck accident last year. The boy's father said the boy was supplanted to the boy's mother and has gone to Sunday school.

The technique differed drastically from the cross-circulation operations which have been performed on about 40 patients at the university hospitals during the last year.

In that system, the blood flow of the patient and a human donor are linked, with the donor's lungs serving as purification chambers.

Pearson Fears U.S. Intervention Could Lead To 'Last War'

If Localized Canada Would Not Be Involved Claim

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson says he feels United States defence intervention in any battle for Chinese offshore islands might lead to world war—the last war.

But if any fight between the Chinese Nationalists and Communists for Quemoy and the Matsus could be kept localized, Canada would not become involved, Mr. Pearson told the Commons Thursday.

He said there had been some misunderstanding of his statement in a previous speech that "we could not stand aloof from a major war which threatened the very existence of the people of the United States."

He did not mean "that whenever the U.S. is engaged in any kind of war we are at war."

"It certainly does not mean that we must participate in limited or peripheral wars."

CLARIFIES STAND

Canada would not consider any conflict involving the Chinese governments over Nationalist - held Quemoy and the Matsus as involving Canada or as affecting the country's intervention in support of the United Nations.

Mr. Pearson added, however:

"What I fear most in this matter is that there could be intervention, defensive in purpose, by the United States might have the effect of localizing such a conflict."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Coldwell was strongly critical of U.S. policy, which he based on a decision to defend Quemoy and the Matsus if a Communist attack on them appeared to be a prelude to attack on Formosa.

He ridiculed talk of Quemoy being a potential jumping-off point for attack on Formosan and said the government and Parliament should speakout against a "drift to war" in the Far East.

Mr. Coldwell said Chiang Kai-shek and his "subsidiary warlords" should be exiled from Formosa and that Canada should back which he described details of a Soviet plan supposedly aimed at bringing about world disarmament in both nuclear and conventional weapons.

'The Heller' Is Canada's New Tank-Killing Weapon

OTTAWA — A new anti-tank weapon with superior qualities of accuracy and penetration has been developed in Canda, it was announced today at National Defence headquarters.

The weapon is of special interest to the Canadian Army since it is the first complete weapon, ammunition and fire control system that has been designed, developed and manufactured in Canada.

In the above picture two armorers from the Army's Directorate of Armament Development, which helped design the weapon, prepare to fire it. Sighted on target is Sgt. P. Decarie of Ottawa, and Pte. T. W. Wesley, also of Ottawa, prepares to load the projectile.

The "Heller," first as the new weapon is known, results from extensive research, design and development undertaken by the Defence Research Board at its Canadian Armament Research and Development establishment at Valcartier, Que. The concept of the weapon and its special characteristics originated with the Canadian Army, was the responsibility of the Directorate of Armament Development, Canadian Army, was the responsible design authority which closely monitored the work and provided detailed collaboration at all stages of development. Canadian army technical officers, working at CARDE, contributed jointly with the scientists to the project's success.

A combination recoilless rifle and rocket launcher, the "Heller" is primarily an infantry weapon which allows the foot-soldier to destroy enemy armor more accurately and more effectively than was possible with similar weapons used during the Second World War.

The "Heller" fires a projectile which burns through heavy armour and generates such intense heat that a hit almost anywhere on a tank will ensure its destruction.

Development of the shaped projectile fired by the PIAT (Projector Infantry Anti-Tank) and the US Bazooka, gave the Second World War infantryman weapons which could be carried into battle and used with effect against enemy armour. Both, however, relied on very short ranges for accuracy.

The "Heller", easily carried by a soldier, can be fired from the shoulder while standing, kneeling or sitting. A permanently attached tripod also allows ground level firing from a lying position.

An adjustable range on the barrels is the absence of "back blast" after the rocket has left the launcher tube. No fire, smoke or jets/gases masks for crewmen are necessary when firing the "Heller".

The weapon's unusual name was derived during a display before government officials at the testing grounds of the Canadian Armament Research and Development Establishment at Valcartier, Que. Following tests one spectator remarked to the staff, "I'm sure is one hell of a weapon!" Hence, the "Heller."

Safe Crackers Secure $27 At Oil Co. Office

Cutting the chain fastening the gates to the property, safe crackers forced their way into the office of the Imperial Oil Company Ltd., on South Front Street some time Thursday night and prying the door off the small wall safe made off with the contents of the petty cash box.

Police said that petty cash, amounting to about $27 was taken, while company cheques in the safe were not touched. The door of the small wall safe was carried away by the thieves.

A pair of bolt clippers were believed by police to have been used to cut the chain fastening the main gate to the oil company property. The thieves then made their way to the office, where bars were used to pry the door off the safe.

Night police patrolmen Sgt. R. Milligan and Constable Hall discovered the break-in shortly after four o'clock this morning. Investigations are being carried out by Inspector J. C. Hayes and Detective Harold Reid.

Young Concert Violinist, Michael Rabin, Well Received

(By EUGENE LANG)

The 1954-55 Community Concert series of programs came to its conclusion in a night as practically all subscribers were on hand in the Collegiate auditorium to hear the accomplished young violinist, Michael Rabin, in his initial appearance here.

It is seldom that the concert goer can claim as mature an artist in so young a performer as it can in Mr. Rabin's example. Not yet out of his teens, this extremely accomplished artist has been playing and studying music since six years of age. Music is naturally inherent in him, as his father has been a violinist with the New York Philharmonic for thirty years and his mother has been on the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music for many years. He has made very successful tours of Australia, Hawaii, Europe and the North American Continent and where ever he has played, whether in solo recitals or in concerted numbers with orchestra he has left an indelible mark on the mind of his hearers of lasting impression as to his amazing skill, glowing performance and definitive interpretation of the works he visits that he has also conscientiously yet so effortlessly on his $25,000 genuine Guarnerius violin.

FULL SCOPE FOR ARTIST

The choice of selections for last evening's recital was one that gave the artist full scope to delight his audience in bravura technical display and also to charm the listeners with the wealth of melodic beauty that one bow gliding over four strings can coax from a musical instrument. Neither was there any 'schmalz' in Mr. Rabin's playing, which is a very fine tribute to the control on the part of the artist to be exhibitionist even in moments. Whether it be the elegance of purity in detail as so splendidly depicted in the Sonata in G Minor of the 18th century Italian Tartini or the lighthearted brilliant fluency as shown in the two short numbers of the two 19th century Violinists, Wieniawski and Hubay, Mr. Rabin accounted for each in a style of polished precocity. In the three transcriptions from keyboard originals of Chopin, Debussy and Rachmaninoff (the latter two used as encores) Mr. Rabin elicited from the violin a heady tone of sensuousness and individuality of embellishment that seemed to enrapture the listeners to a state of tranquility of these familiar melodies from the romantic and impressionistic pens of their respective composers.

TWO MAJOR WORKS

Two major works of the standard violin repertoire were included on the recital, both of paramount importance in the evolution of the violin during the past six decades. The Concerto in A Minor of the Russian Glazounoff was a highly melodic, yet soundly constructed and written for the violin in such a manner as to give the soloist every opportunity to explore its innermost difficulties and portray them vividly with all the facets of his talents in full use. This was also exceptional in his performance of this Concerto as well as in his soulful rendition of the Poeme of Chausson, a composition in which he fused a blend of oriental poetry touched by a feeling of religious contemplation in his perception of this melancholy work.

A woman of kindly nature and friendly disposition she had the ability to make all who knew her and a wide circle will sincerely regret her death.

Chicken Breeders' Association Shows Expansion Meeting Told

The Quinte District Cattle Breeders' Association continued to expand during 1954, members were told at their annual meeting held Thursday afternoon at Kinawa's Centre.

Dr. J. D. McLean, V.S., Association manager told members that last year saw both an increase in membership and also an increase in the number of cows bred. Both considerable gains were made and cattle bred were up 11 per cent over that of a year ago. The number of cows bred last year totalled 31,922 or 3,120 more than a year ago.

Dr. McLean noted that 1954 was an especially good year for the Association from the standpoint of conception with a percentage of 73.4 for 60-90 day nons breeds. The 1953 60-90 day conception rate since the association was formed back in 1948. Improved facilities at the Association's new barn was given as the main factor for increases.

The addition of dual purpose shorthorn sires already had resulted in increased conception, services being given to this breed with results that have already been noted in this breed triples last year.

Referring to the use of frozen semen, Dr. McLean said he was feeling was that the Association should go slow in adopting its use. Frozen semen is first going to be certain of its efficiency as only satisfactory results will result in a marked decrease in conception would not offset the advantages. He warned that frozen semen would not be more wisely used for selected bulls, that are proven as being better than average.

MIGHT OVERCOME HANDICAPS

He noted that frozen semen had been under discussion by Association directors but that the Quinte Belleville was 180 miles from the Ontario Veterinary College, Guelph, where the semen is now make-its use more practical or effective. He was of the opinion that this handicap would be overcome.

Although the Belleville Association had shown steady growth since the inauguration, Dr. McLean said there was still room for great expansion in the Quinte district. The total number of cows bred of this year indicated continued expansion and it was estimated that at least 34,000 cows would be bred this year. An agricultural population figure of about 174,000 cows of breeding age in the six counties in which the breeding association operates.

"With this potential we still have room to expand," he said.

The association's financial report read by Ross Stevens of Bowmanville, chairman of the financial committee, showed receipts of the association last year were $116,139.49, expenditures were $108,142.81, or a net profit of $2,-996.18. Salaries, wages and contributions to headquarters' staff and the 20 technicians, amounted to $118,239; laboratory and barn expenses, $20,895, and miscellaneous, $14,420.

Assets of the association now total $113,202.07, it was stated.

Guest speaker for the annual meeting was Professor George Salibby, head of the Department of Animal Husbandry at the OAC at Guelph, who outlined the results of pre-analysis studies being made through his department.

ADVOCATES SURVEY

He noted that the survey, typical of artificial breeders' associations, would do much to pick out the best bulls and to eliminate those who production and type were not up to standard. The best sires would be used, he said, while also the poor type of bulls.

Dr. Salibby stressed that regardless of the quality of bulls used, the basis of successful dairying was feed and feeding.

"There was no substitute for good feed and good feeding of milking herds," he said.

Directors of the breeding association for 1955 include the president and vice president of the 12 district units. Directors for the year are: Kingston—Wartman Wallace and Kenneth McLean; Napanee—Harold Hough, Ralph Aylesworth; Picton—Fred Bird and Reginald Simmons; Consecon — James Hoard and Frank Townsend; Belleville — Percy Ray and Robert Reynolds; Stirling— Robert Phillips and Gerald Bateman; Campbellford—Max Burnside and Stanley Bateman; Campbellford, Aylmer Petherick and Alex Merrill; Bowmanville—Earl Dropp and James Webb; Orono—Donald Jones and Douglas Fox; Bowmanville—Wesley Werry and Russell Hoskins; Newcastle — Ira Mauldin and D. Compulsory Vote Plan Rejected By Nova Scotia

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Nova Scotia legislature has turned down a resolution calling for compulsory voting as a safeguard to democratic government.

The resolution was proposed Thursday by C. D. Haliburton (PC —Kings) and defeated 21-19 after running into opposition from both sides of the House.

Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield and two others of the party joined with the Liberal government to defeat it.

Support of the resolution was voiced by Russell Cunningham (CCF—Cape Breton East), who asked: "Can we preserve democracy if the people are not going to take advantage of their right to vote?"

"There is a certain amount of complacency everywhere," he said. "... So why shouldn't legislation be so worded that people who do not make an honest effort to vote receive a minor penalty."

In other legislative news:

Alberta: A Bill introduced in the Alberta legislature would empower the minister of highways to rule off the roads any person who constitutes a "road hazard."

A road hazard was defined as any person who, by reason of physical handicap, age or defect or a processes to accidents or general irresponsibility, is considered by the minister not fit to drive.

Newfoundland: W. J. Browne (PC—St. John's West), said in the Newfoundland legislature that Canada's Criminal Code is "cruel and barbaric."

His reference to the code came during the second reading of a bill to amend the Summary Jurisdiction Act. Under the amendment, witnesses in magisterial trials must answer all questions but the evidence cannot be used against him. Under the present system, witnesses can refuse to answer any question.

ICE 55 FEET HIGH

The ice under the Lewiston bridge has piled to a height of about 55 feet. It was rising at the rate of 1½ feet an hour. The bridge was reported to be about 75 feet. If the main ice jam above the bridge breaks loose first it could cause serious damage.

BUILDING DAMAGED

A dock and office building occupied by the Cayuga Steamship Company and customs and excise at Niagara-on-the-Lake was badly damaged by ice pressure Thursday. The Cayuga dock at Queenston was submerged by ice.

Families were moved hurriedly from the three small houses on the river side. Two of the houses were later wrecked. The third was severely damaged. A giant steam shovel was moved into the river and covered by the ice.

High water threatened the Ontario hydro-electric power commission's Queenston plant. One of the five generators was shut off when it was feared that flood waters would cause a short circuit. However, the plant was in no immediate danger.

River residents described the ice as the worst in the area to have swept away the Rainbow bridge in 1938 and as bad as the mighty jam of 1909.

United States engineers have made unsuccessful attempts to clear the American falls of ice by blasting with dynamite. At Niagara-on-the-Lake, police chief Leo Warner blocked off the river front area Thursday night when the ice began crunching over the banks.

The number of destroyed cottages and boats was not known. In the six-mile-long gorge immediately below the falls, the only open water in the rapids was a short stretch near the whirlpool. The whirlpool itself was choked with ice.

Officials say nothing can be done to battle the jams and that they will have to break up under their own pressure. Although there was some reduction in the Hydro output, officials at plants in the area do not regard it as serious.

The Maids of the Mist, vessels which take tourists around the base of the falls, were in no apparent danger. They were on high ground in drydock.

Niagara Falls Folk Oppose Open Canal

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—The city of Niagara Falls mustered overwhelming support from its citizens Thursday in opposition to any plan for redevelopment of Niagara river hydro-electric power involving an open-cut feeder canal leading to generating stations.

"Our people are speaking with one voice," said Mayor Ernest W. Mirrington Jr.

Resolutions from dozens of civic and social organizations, carrying the names of nearly a third of the city's 100,000 persons, supported his view.

The association was a public hearing on a U. S. Army Corps of Engineers survey report of possible power redevelopment at Niagara Falls under terms of a 1950 water diversion treaty between the U. S. and Canada.

THE TEACHER SHORTAGE

The resolution of the Belleville Public School Board, passed Monday night of this week, which urged the provision of increased facilities for training teachers and a program of financial assistance to these attending teachers' colleges is deserving of the most careful consideration by the provincial government.

By a coincidence, The Toronto Telegram's leading editorial on Tuesday dealt with the same problem which prompted the Belleville Board's resolution.

"Statements by Education Minister Dunlop suggest that the teacher shortage in Ontario, if not over, is at least in the process of being met by increased enrolment of teachers in training, and by emergency summer training programs," says the Telegram. "It is not a matter, however, of meeting the shortage. Of greater importance is the question—how is it being met? There is, in fact, cause for concern that the measures adopted by the Department of Education may flood the province with inadequately trained teachers. In that event Ontario would be moving from a shortage to an insoluble crisis."

The Telegram proceeds to point out that the very nature of the emergency training program gives rise to legitimate fear that it will produce inadequately trained teachers.

The Belleville Board's suggestion that facilities for training teachers be increased would appear to be the only possible method of eliminating this danger.

Already we must avoid a situation where a shortage of teachers results in educational pressure to curtail the length of time today's pupils are subjected in an effort to instruct those who either are unable or unwilling to benefit, it is also true that it is frequently extremely difficult to determine accurately whether or not a student is acquiring an education.

Any teacher will admit that pupils for whom he held bright hopes have not in later years justified these expectations. Any teacher will also admit that other pupils, who appeared to lack both ability and ambition, have in later life exhibited both to a high degree. In the latter cases the teacher may ascribe the unexpectedly fine performance to a change for the better in outlook. But it is not possible that this changed outlook had its birth in the classroom, that the teacher did a better job than he knew? And if this be true, how greater dividend could be asked from the expenditure of money and time?

TV PEEKS AT PARLIAMENT

Hon. J. W. Pickersgill, the minister responsible for the operations of the National Film Board, says that the Board itself made the decision to shelve a television film showing Parliament at work.

He was answering a question by Gordon E. Fraser, Progressive Conservative member for Peterborough West, regarding a press report that the Film Board had been forced to shelve the film after criticisms by Mr. Pickersgill and other officials.

As far as we can discover, Mr. Pickersgill did not deny the suggestion that he had been critical of the film and there will be time enough to argue that point when the boards have a habit of suggesting that those things ought to be done which the boss wants done. Nevertheless, we feel inclined to think that Mr. Pickersgill's original statement that the Board thought the film was not a satisfactory one. It showed neither Prime Minister St. Laurent nor Opposition Leader George Drew at work and the person who peruses newspaper reports of proceedings in the Commons knows that both these gentlemen take a very prominent part in the debates in the House. No film which failed to show both of them could hope to give a faithful impression of the Commons at work.

At the same time one cannot help but hope that, if and when the Film Board does get around to making a film of Parliament at work which it regards as satisfactory, this film will not be subjected to censorship by ministers or private members.

The public has long had a suspicion that not all of the members it elects to look after the nation's business attend to that business in a conscientious manner. A film of the Commons in action would be intensely interesting to many Canadians. And don't tell us we have no right to a peek at the members through the eye of the television camera. We are the ones who are paying their salaries, we are their employers, and we have a right to look in at them on their jobs. Television could become the greatest little efficiency expert the people could hire to keep tab on their representatives at Ottawa.

SEVEN-YEAR MEMORY

Seven years old today is he,
Boy whom I was first to see.
I, proudest of the throng
Ventured carry him to ask.
"No," they snapped. "That's not allowed
Without cap and gown and mask.
Join your family in the hall.
You should not be here at all."

"I'm his grandpa," I replied.
Said the nurse: "Please disappear!
On your way! Just step outside!
Grandpas aren't allowed in here."

Adding this, in stronger terms:
"You old fogies carry germs."

Just a glimpse of him I got.
Then she rushed me through the door.
Saying: "Welcome you are not.
I won't tell you that once more.
Out of there I fled to stay . . .
Seven years ago today.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MASTER DESIGNER

I have sat for hours, under the sun in this semi-tropic southland, meditating on the beauty and intricacy of the leaves of coconut trees. Every moment there is change—gentle whispers, and a soft and graceful movement as though each strand of leaf were in the hand of a master musical leader—as perhaps it is!

All my life I have marvelled over the exquisite designs of tree leaves, shrubs, flowers, and snowflakes. All these designs are complex. Each leaf is as entity in itself, as each snowflake has a personality of its own, and the work of a master workman could create such a thing of beauty.

A friend of mine in South Carolina was responsible for the building of a beautiful hotel. He ordered the wall paper for each room. He went to a big New York store with a suitcase of Autumn leaves and told them to show him wall papers to match these beautiful natural leaf designs. I later visited that hotel and wondered if anyone ever suspected that a sincere agent of God had been responsible for making that hotel a thing of beauty.

All through nature are scattered these designs. Take the star sapphire with its six-pointed star. Why six instead of five? Does anyone know? And why the star, anyway? Thousands of years have come and gone and still secrets are all about us, and many, oh how many, secrets still sleep in the good earth upon which we walk each day of our lives. How that line from William Knox's great poem that I quoted so loved, "Oh, why should the Spirit of Mortal be Proud!" comes to us over and over again. Each day we look into the face of God without realizing it!

Flee Wolves, Hit by Trains

(New York Herald Tribune)

To fix sorrow and embarrassment, the Alaska Railroad has run over and killed 180 moose this winter.

The show has been unusually deep between Fairbanks and Anchorage — sometimes piled as high as a moose's head. The moose fear the deep snow because it makes them easy prey for wolves. When the cleared areas where they can run or wield and fight with feet and hoofs.

The only cleared area is the railroad track, so the moose congregate there, not realizing that the locomotive can be deadlier than the wolf.

Car Before Horse

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

The horse population of Canada has dropped 2,500,000 in the past 20 years. Obviously, people have been putting the car before the horse.

Old Report Cards

(New York Times)

Parents like to think—rightly or wrongly—that it is desirable to have children of school age regard their elders as having been good scholars; if not, they can cite only several notable shows averages. And whether or not there were good scholars during their tender years, they may without difficulty persuade themselves that they were, as time passes and their duffing of it is forgotten, ey's sharp edges. If the lady of the house—viewing a monolonous succession of "C's" on the report card—set upon offhinging report cards days when enough that there was an excellent student when he went to school, it is possible that father in time will come to believe that he was and a model of deportment before.

The head of the house, being gallant, in turn will assert that there was "C" children's report card also an excellent student; the memory of woman knows better than that—but the lady of the house may know this to be flattery, but she will feel obliged to indicate to children thrashing desperately about in Latin or algebra that there is no reason for acquiring "C's" or worse when brilliant results are even standing behind them expecting far better grades—the lady of the house will not be above tampering with truth, if that it be, and in fact may encourage it.

Of course the fact—or assertion —that the head of the house was an excellent scholar may move the young to greater pitch. It may reply that all this parental admonition may exist or have existed, but that Father was a "C" student, or like Miss X, who is stars and bestows high praise upon the same frugality she displays when distributing the school's pencils and paper. But it is not always necessary to set standards, the higher the better, for the young. However, to hold up good marks of yesteryear to shoot at.

At this season, however, when the lady of the house is rummaging about throwing out this and that, it is obvious immediately that he who has been complacently about "C's" and even "D" grades obtained by his own offspring fail somewhat short of virtue in the days of 1890-91. That year, the report card of Nicholas was divided into eight terms with a mark being given for each. On this card appears just one in Latin or algebra (the first term of English (final average: "D"). The final average in Latin and geometry was a weak "B," and for Latin a very feeble "C." The lady will not be above pointing out that as the student whose report card this is had a "very commendable attitude in English and history classes, he was on record as having failed in those of the first rank. Presumably the head of the household would not be good. Presumably he would be mentally, agrees. If it occurs to the head of the house that it is strange that his own old report cards are turns up, he will be too polite to mention it.

Reporting this dismal record the head of the house proposes that the report card had better be destroyed. Likewise, if it had certain hands the result would not be good. Presumably the lady, agrees. If it occurs to the head of the house that it is strange that the latter old report cards are turns up, he will be too polite to mention it.

Soviet Russia 38 Years Later

(New York Times)

It was thirty-eight years ago this week that the last Romanov Czar of Russia abdicated. It past practice it followed there will be no observances of the event marked in the Soviet press. History records that the democratic beginnings of March, 1917, were speedily barely eight months later. But the Czarist regime had forgotten were made and that there were powerful democratic forces in the Russia of 1917 still has significance for us today.

A new ruler—Nicholas Khrushchev, Secretary of the Communist party —now works his will. Yet, despite the Communist dictatorship through which the suffering Soviet people have gone these past thirty-eight years, the striking fact is that in many respects the problems facing Nikita S. Khrushchev today resemble strongly those which Nicholas II could no solve.

Peasants were restive, pre-occupied with land reform. There were goals which moved men to revolution in 1917. There is bread today, but after so many years the Communists have not been able to feed adequately their own people. Russia is overpopulated in relation to its resources. To get wheat for bread Khrushchev has now ordered an agricultural revolution whose outcome is most doubtful. Soviet plans for cultivating virgin stagnant now for three years, during which the population has risen by 10,000,000. If Mr. Khrushchev is betrayed by the weather, his fate may be the same as that of his czar as it did in those of his predecessors.

Russia was engaged in bloody war in 1917, but the Soviet Union of 1958 is at war, in a "peace." The cost of war preparation bears heavily upon every Soviet family. While Khrushchev talks of "peaceful coexistence," he gives the military marshals influence such as they never enjoyed before. Remembering 1917 and 1941, dare he gamble his regime on a "peace" which is not war for the advancement of world communism? Such is the choice that confronts, in the humility with which Pravda now woos the "reactionary" West.

The peasant dreamed of having his land in 1917, by 1921 in the collective farm there has been a return to feudalism. Yet the Soviet Union has had to fall back on collectives as one wishes is still the dream. Will the great upheaval in last week's Soviet order change nothing much of the old planning and the old propaganda slogans, lip instead a naked program of agricultural reform?

There are important differences between 1917 and 1958. Yet it would be a mistake to think that the thirty-eight years which have passed have solved Russia's real problems or lessened many of the great tensions which exploded so dramatically in 1917. The Bolshevik leaders may well fear that their own repeated failures may prove them too late the dustbin of history.

It's a little early in the season to start doing unusual things such as discovering a new keyword as there is one. Niagara Falls in a barrel, which is what makes the recent rocking chair contest at Roberval, Mons and Continuously distinctive weather. Indeed, most of us felt the hectic pace was enough when it wasn't.

His great weakness was what might be called his second glance. At first glance, he was overwhelmed by the beauty or charm or loveliness of a new girl. He would rush her furiously. But then, very soon, he would discover on second glance that she was hardly perfect. Soon after that discovery, he would find not two or three, but up to ten or twelve more faults in her imperfections. It seemed to me his love affairs were in keeping with the modern trend. He and I were like these highly scientific and experimental automobile and gadget ads decort. There would be a violent flash, a great mushroom cloud and a terrific bang. Then all would drift away in empty space.

What we, his friends, forgot was what they call the "fall-out" from atomic blasts. That fallout, unseen and more than the atomic power of love generates.

His successor was he breath-taking beauty. She was just about the nicest girl you ever met, trim, stylish and a terrific bang. Then all would drift away in empty space.

The very idea of degeneration, even physical degeneration, is clearly distinguished from moral or intellectual degeneration, a unpleasant, particularly to question is that it can happen to you.

After all, young'me. It's not possible to prevent degeneration. It's a matter of day.

Still further, I believe physical degeneration is the chief cause of cardiovascular disease — heart and artery troubles that come on insidiously or gradually after one has passed the pinnacle. For that matter, hardening of the arteries, coronary conditions, angina pectoris and heart muscle conditions, apoplexy and paralysis and chronic asphyxia (Grigsby disease) are generally accepted as cardiovascular degeneration.

Eventually I suppose everyone, who lives long enough will show some degeneration if he or she escapes execution or the fatal neck-breaker. Degeneration will be speeded or retarded in a particular person by heredity. Mainly, I believe, on nutrition. All the manifestations of degeneration noted above in this piece are due to nutritional deficiency through years, childhood included through breakfast this morning. Tell me, you dope, did you have a glass of orange juice for breakfast morning or did you cheat yourself as usual?

As I have been trying to tell you in many pieces, a fair part of which were, printed; I hope, it is my belief, reached from long study of the subject, that chronic rheumatic (not arthritis) is the manifestation of physical degeneration in the joint tissues.

Further I believe the condition usually called pyorrhea is the manifestation of physical degeneration in the gums and under jaw muscles and bones. I'll talk about so-called pyorrhea another day.

Sometimes you glance at a girl whose beauty makes your heart stand still: but on second glance, all the beauty has vanished.

Then there is the girl you have looked at a thousand times, maybe all your life: and suddenly, to your astonishment, she is beautiful — and remains beautiful.

A handsome head of mine had gallivanted far into his thirties before the atomic blast of love got him. He was one of the last victims of feminine beauty for whom, ever since his sixteenth year, a new beauty would outlet the old one in about thirty days, on the average. I think he had one affair which only lasted from May to October, six months: but that was in his late twenties, and it was a particularly beautiful summer, filled with hot moons and continuously distinctive weather. Indeed, most of us felt the hectic pace was enough when it wasn't.

His great weakness was what might be called his second glance. At first glance, he was overwhelmed by the beauty or charm or loveliness of a new girl. He would rush her furiously. TOLERANCE AND CONVICTION

We read in the Book of Revelation that the Holy City which descended out of heaven from God had twelve gates—three on the East, three on the North, three on the South and three on the West.

Of course these twelve gates represent the twelve tribes of Israel, but they represent also the truth that there are different roads leading to heaven. To say this is not to intimate that one religion is as good as another. The distinctions between religions are important. I am quite sure that the door bearing the name of the particular type of religion to which I subscribe is the best door of all, and the path way leading to it the best pathway. But I expect everyone to feel that the same about his religion. All we should require is that we let one another alone in the matter of religious choice. Let us believe as confidently as we have a right to in the complete sufficiency of our own faith, but let us remember that others feel the same away about their faith.

Twelve gates leading to heaven, and twelve pathways. And we are all singing "Glory to God in the highest Love." And we all worship the same God.

Religious tolerance is thrilling when it is linked to strong religious convictions.

Research Work at Queen's Proves Dextran Effective Blood Substitute

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Secretary W. M. Nickle said Thursday that research work at Queen's University has provided further confirmation that the synthetic substance dextran can be effective as an emergency substitute for blood plasma.

Research workers at Queen's have been working for some time on the body's tolerance for dextran —how it is absorbed and whether it is harmful in any way.

Mr. Nickle said the Queen's scientists have reported that they have found no ill effects in the administering of dextran.

Mr. Nickle made the statement in the Ontario legislature during consideration of estimates of his department. He suggested that the back-log of dextran be established in the province for civil defence purposes.

EXPANDS PLASMA

Dextran is a product manufactured from glucose and acts as a "plasma volume expander" when given to a person in shock. It returns the volume of blood to normal and enables the body to continue normal functions.

Dextran is a convenient food for blood transfusions and supplies neither blood protein nor blood cells. It is used strictly as an emergency measure in shock cases and is often given in conjunction with blood if the patient has lost a lot of blood.

Mr. Nickle said because dextran could be readily available in either powder or liquid form it can be stored for several years without deterioration, the development constitutes a great advance in the measures the Western world is taking to guard against effects of nuclear weapons.

Blood plasma, a component of blood, is not readily kept on hand and carries the risk of infection. Dextran is superior because of its storing qualities and the fact that it does not transmit infection.

Mr. Nickle (PC—Kingston) said that the research at Queen's University has been headed by Dr. C. Howard Ettinger, dean of medicine, assisted by Robert Semple of the department of physiology.

Dextran was originated in Sweden in 1940 and has been available in Canada for the last five years. It was adopted by the United States army as a replacement for plasma in 1953 and was used extensively in Korea.

GM Workers First to Seek Annual Wage

OSHAWA (CP)—Employees at the General Motors plant here will be the first union in Canada to press for a guaranteed annual wage.

Local 238 of the United Automobile workers (CIO-CCL) voted Thursday to include the guaranteed-wage demand when they begin contract talks next month, said local president Russell McNeil. The present contract expires June 12.

The recommendation to seek the demand was approved by the UAW's last annual convention, but had not been negotiated in other locals' demands in Canada yet.

The contract will call only for workers with two full years seniority would be eligible for the yearly annual wage. Employee with less service would be guaranteed wages on a sliding scale, on the basis of one week's guaranteed pay for two week's service.

Besides the guaranteed annual wage, the union will seek a one-year contract with higher pay, increased seniority and vacation pay benefits and a complete social security program, Mr. McNeil said.

Lightning Bolt Strikes Woman Talking on Phone

CAMPBELLFORD— A resident of Seymour township, Mrs. Carman MacAlpine was injured on Tuesday morning, during a fresh electric storm which struck this district, when she was struck by a bolt of lightning as she talked on the telephone at her farm home.

The MacAlpine farm is located about a half mile north-west of Stanwood on the 13th concession of Seymour.

Mrs. MacAlpine was talking to a neighbor on the telephone about 10.30 a.m. when the lightning apparently struck the telephone wire leading to the house. She was flung violently across the room and over a table. Her husband, who was also in the room, managed to grab at his wife and knocked her fully unconscious for several minutes.

A brother, Kenneth MacAlpine, who occupies the east half of the house, summoned the aid of a doctor by using a neighbor's telephone. Dr. W. J. Blake of Campbellford responded and attended the injured woman. She was then removed to Campbellford Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

KNOCKED FROM CHAIR

Ralph MacAlpine, son of Kenneth, and nephew of the injured woman, was sitting in a chair near the telephone, when the bolt struck. He was knocked from the chair but suffered no injury other than having his breath knocked out. A vase on the table by the side of the room was smashed, and a comic book, which young Ralph had been reading was ripped to shreds.

Mrs. MacAlpine's arm was severely burned and her dress was blackened. The hospital now reports the condition as satisfactory.

The 300 feet of telephone wire which ran from the road to the house, was completely destroyed, with only small bits of the insulation completely burned from them, scattered on the ground. A corner of the house near the telephone was damaged and curtains and plaster were torn off.

Several district farmers reported cows being knocked down, but none was injured.

Take-Home Pay of Farmers Shrinking Legislature Told

TORONTO (CP) Agriculture Minister Thomas Kelly told Ontario legislature Thursday that while the purchasing power of an hour of labor has greatly increased during the last 30 years, the take-home pay of farmers is shrinking.

Speaking during consideration of his department's estimates, Mr. Thomas said the average net return of mixed livestock farms of less than 84 acres in Middlesex and Oxford counties was $604 in 1953. Farms of 131 acres yielded a return of $1,146.

He said farmers are taking an increasing interest in the economics of farm operation. The department was taking steps to broaden its extension and information service to deal with increasing demands.

Premier Frost said the government does not intend to appoint a select committee to study farm marketing until a court case involving the province's hog marketing scheme is settled.

SERIOUS IMPLICATIONS

He said the court action has serious and long-reaching implications for the province's marketing plans were it decided that the government had adopted a well-laid policy.

Hon. George Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario hydro-electric commission, said the provincial program of converting to 60-cycle electricity from 25 cycle has reached the half-way mark.

TOLL ROADS

Premier Frost gave notice of motion that a select committee is to be set up to study the question of toll roads. The committee would report back to the next session of the legislature.

Mr. Frost said the chairman would be John Roberts (PC—London), He did not identify the other members.

The committee will have full powers to study the toll-roads question, the premier said. The committee would have authority to subpoena witnesses, hear evidence and report on whatever jurisdictions they feel necessary is order to obtain the fullest information.

Speaking in the throne speech debate, T. D. Thomas (CCF—Oshawa) said that the present government at Ottawa will be happy if the present Progressive Conservative government is re-elected at the next provincial general election. He said they're playing a very good game of back-pazzing." He was referring to unemployment relief.

Mr. Frost said the federal-provincial conferences of 1950-1951 were more concerned with financial and constitutional questions than with aid to the unemployed.

AGREES WITH LIBERAL

Mr. Thomas said he agreed with a statement by Harry Nixon (Liberal-Brant) that the budget was badly lacking in providing for human welfare.

Many of the great needs of our people today is decent housing. The cost of house construction prohibits any question of ownership for these in the low-income groups."

The government last year spent $100,000,000 on highway construction but only $5,000,000 on home construction, Mr. Thomas said.

Ray M. Spence (PC—Waterloo South) said holders of licences to transport goods on Ontario highways should be combined in one trust, the Automotive Transport Board of Ontario. The purposes is to oppose the granting of any more licences under the Public Vehicles Act.

Mr. Myers said as far as he knew all applications for new licences were vigorously opposed by representatives of the association who appeared at every hearing.

He suggested the government could save time if hearings should continue or licences should be granted to all applicants possessing safe equipment and able to prove financial responsibility.

TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW

Watermain and Sewer Construction

TO ALL PROSPECTIVE SUBDIVIDERS OF LANDS IN THE TOWNSHIP OF THURLOW WHO MAY BE REQUIRING WATER AND/OR SEWER SERVICE.

Please be advised that Council have decided, after due considerations, to request all Petitions for Watermain and/or Sewer Construction to be filed at the Township Office not later than April 15th, 1955, if it is the wish of the Petitioners that the work be done in 1955.

The reason the above decision has been made is that the preparation of plans and profiles, the securing of the necessary approvals from various government departments and local authorities, and the passing of By-Laws takes about two months, and, all this, of course, must be done before the actual work can start. It has been found that where the commencement of the work is delayed beyond July 1st, construction continues into the winter season, with the result that frost action on the new fill in the trenches causes undue settlement in spring breakup and makes the maintenance of the roadway almost impossible.

The co-operation of all those concerned is hereby requested.

E. M. DAFOE,
Clerk-Treasurer.

"Direct worship of God should be made often, always and continuously we should show our love for Him. We should not neglect to attend His House of divine worship on the Sabbath Day".

A short business session followed. The offering was presented by Jimmy Haggerty.

Wives of Canadian Soldiers Loath to Leave German Homes

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SOEST, Western Germany (CP) The 1st Canadian Infantry Brigade group gives the lie to the old British army maxim that only women and dogs cause trouble in a garrison.

Few of the 1,500 wives with the 5,800-man NATO force can claim ever to have had it better in army life. Even the dogs look happy.

"I just wish I could wrap it up and take it home with me," said one spouse with 12 years' army experience and loath to leave the new married quarters next autumn when the brigade is exchanged after its two-year stay in Germany.

The quarters—all but a handful of the 1,402 units are completed—are the big winners. Contributing factors are dirt-cheap house help, one Canadian-style groceteria-department store with two more to follow and a school system that manages to cope with grades of education from across Canada amid a space shortage. And community life, with many Will of Pension Canadian community and the surrounding German population, is burgeoning.

Families started moving in last November behind the unpacked furniture, vacating cramped quarters with German families, British army families and Canadian families in Britain and other European countries.

The white stucco, $18,500,000 quarters—at Soest, Werl and Hemer in the brigade's area—range from fully detached homes to duplexes and apartment-style units of from one to four bedrooms for officers and privates alike.

Three wives giving full marks to the dwellings, described by Germans as "comfortable but not luxurious," are Mrs. Mary Wall of Montreal, mother of two, Mrs. Joyce Kosarski of Vancouver, one child, and Mrs. Emerson MacLeod of Sydney Mines, N.S., four children.

Some pet likes: Serving hatch between kitchen and dining nook or dining room; non - slip teakwood drainboard; small but powerful three - burner German electric stove; plenty of roomy cupboards and a revolving kitchen shelf; bright Canadian - planned interior decorating varying from dwelling to dwelling; lots of hot water in the centrally-heated rooms.

Some dislikes: The battleship linoleum that tends to show every mark, involving constant polishing; sinks a shade on the low side for tall women; and drains on the soaking tubs in the basement washing rooms — communal and otherwise—that dump waste water on unwary feet.

Refrigerators, washing machines and vacuum cleaners are provided.

Wives are busily filling what-not and cabinets with Dresden China, German pottery and metalwork and music-box beer steins. Easy Canadian door-to-door informality is expanding into parent-teacher socials, church groups and the like.

There is no word other than that families living in quarters relinquish their living-out allowance. Some families intend to stay in their German homes.

FIRST AID CLINICS

Each of the three housing communities has a first aid clinic. Births and other major medical necessities are handled by German hospitals or at the British army hospital at Iserlohn. Medical and dental fees are low by Canadian standards.

Army trucks deliver pasteurized Danish milk. Some German shops are within the open nearby while the main Soest shopping centre is within walking distance. Play space for the youngsters children, an estimated 2,600—is available in many yards front and back. Landscaping will follow in the spring.

Although marriage quarters have the big morale boosters, the Salvation Army centre in downtown Soest is still a main calling-point for morning coffee or for troops relaxing to write home.

Some sixty teachers of the Hastings South Inspectorate assembled in Queen Elizabeth school, Trenton, for a workshop on primary problems Wednesday evening.

The group was welcomed by Mr. V. P. Carswell, supervising principal of the Trenton Public schools, who served as chairman.

Mr. R. H. Macadam, Inspector of Schools for Hastings South, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Phyllis Moore, M.A., of the Teachers' College, Peterborough.

GROUP DISCUSSIONS

The first half of the evening was devoted to group discussions of problems relating to teaching at the primary level. These discussions were followed by reports of recorders. Reports were given by Miss L. Harrison, Miss M. MacIntosh, Miss I. Heffernan, Miss E. Fowler, Miss E. Walt, Mrs. D. Clare, Miss P. Stubbs and Miss P. McIntosh. Mr. A. Cummins served as chairman for this period.

Following the reports of the recorders, Miss Moore answered questions relating to the teaching of reading, spelling, English, numberwork, printing, social studies and science. Miss Moore emphasized the place of phonics and grouping in the teaching of reading and the need to relate new concepts with previously established ones. Miss Moore illustrated her comments by blackboard examples, references to text books, and samples of work by primary pupils.

Mr. A. Robson expressed the thanks of the group to Miss Moore.

Following the discussion period, tea was served by the staff of Queen Elizabeth school, with the assistance of other Trenton teachers.

CORRECT FORM OF NAME FOR MARRIED DAUGHTER

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When an obituary notice is sent to a newspaper, what is the correct form of name of a married daughter of the deceased? I have noticed several forms used, and I would like to know which is correct. — E.W.

There are two correct forms for the name of a married daughter of the deceased:

(1) The formal name may be used: for example . . . "mother (or 'father') of Mrs. Arthur Kane."

(2) Or this form of name may be given: Elizabeth Robertson Kane.

The latter form (2) is very often given, as helpful identification to those who may be more familiar with the maiden name (Elizabeth Robertson) than with the married name (Mrs. Arthur Kane).

Incorrect: It is incorrect to use "Mrs." with the informal name, a form we often see printed in an obituary notice. For example: "Mrs. Elizabeth Robertson Kane" is not correct.

WHO GOES FIRST WHEN ALIGHTING FROM BUS?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When a man and a woman are together and they are leaving a bus, who should get off the bus first?

— Marilyn A.

The man should go first as they are leaving the bus . . . so that he will be in position to assist the woman to alight.

BRIDEGROOM'S PARENTS . . . DUTIES MAINLY SOCIAL

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Please tell me what are the official obligations of the bridegroom's parents. (As to flowers, and so forth.) Also, does the bridegroom's mother entertain for the bride-to-be? — R.I.

The bridegroom's parents are the guests of honor at the wedding. Therefore their duties are mainly social, and they have no responsibility as to providing flowers or any other item of the wedding or reception. They supply their proper attire for the wedding. They give the bride-to-be a wedding present. They may, if they wish, give a party in honor of the couple, or the bride's mother may give a party for the bride-to-be. And quite often (and this is a good idea) the bridegroom's parents give the Rehearsal Party, perhaps the dinner before the rehearsal of the supper (often buffet service) after the rehearsal.

WHEN BRIDE'S MOTHER GOES UP THE AISLE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My mother would like to have you tell her exactly when she is supposed to be escorted up the aisle at my wedding. — Bride-to-be

At the perfectly-planned wedding, the bride's mother is escorted to her place in the first pew on the left of the aisle one minute before the profession starts up the aisle.

SPECIAL QUESTION ABOUT NAME-FORM

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

When a woman marries, is it proper for her to drop her middle name and use her maiden surname in its place? For example: Mary Jane Smith is her maiden name. She marries John Brown. Should her name then be Mary Jane Brown or Mary Smith Brown?

— W. McK.

Today the usual form, the accepted from, is: Mary Smith Brown. That is, when Mary Jane Smith marries John Brown, she usually drops her middle name (Jane) and uses her first name, her maiden surname, and her husband's surname.

However, it is just as correct for her to use the traditional form of yesterday . . . and she may, if she wishes, use her baptismal names and not use her maiden surname: Mary Jane Brown. However, today this second form is very seldom used that, when it is used, it is apt to be confusing, for nowadays we expect to see not the woman's middle name but her maiden surname.

CHILDREN'S cooks have a comforting way of looking all the same also when they're mixed up in the laundry basket. Sorting will be easier if you have a "cook." Try one dot of nail polish or colored thread on your oldest child's socks, and add one more dot as the socks are handed down.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

DIET TIPS FOR THE BEAUTY SEEKER

Most women enjoy doing their beauty chores. It gives them an opportunity to relax and commune with their souls. Creaming the complexion gives a woman a feeling of righteousness and, besides, the cream smells nice. She frames with her hairdo, seeing that every silky tendril is in place. She enjoys putting polish on her finger nails. But she finds no inspiration or pleasure in washing the toothbrush. Maybe it is because she can't talk when she's doing it.

Dentists deplore the casual manner of grooming the teeth. They say they should be brushed until they shine. Surface treatment isn't enough. The bristles should pass over the inner portions, along the sides and on the biting areas where caries appear so frequently than elsewhere.

The brush should be fairly small or medium size as it will touch all portions of the dental arch. The bristle should not be so harsh as to injure the gums so soft that they weaken when undressed. Two brushes are necessary so one will be dry when it is to be used. They should be renewed frequently, be rinsed carefully, and be kept in closed containers.

Placing the bristles close to the gums, sweep to the bases of the teeth, using a shimmying movement. Starting at the left side of the mouth, work briskly to the right side. Don't fail to follow the brushing with a rousing swishing and rinsing with an antiseptic lotion. This p a r t of the ritual is necessary for the removal of foreign particles that the brush has dislodged.

Don't sidestep the semi-yearly appointment w i t h the dentist. Trouble may be brewing of which you are not aware. Frequently he finds it necessary to remove tartar, a hard substance that forms under the gums and upon which the brush will have no effect.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BETTER FORGET ABOUT MARRIAGE WITH THIS MAN

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There is a man I was once in love with who promised we would be married after he got out of debt. Then he had an operation, and after that he never mentioned marriage any more, so I thought it best to stop seeing him.

He got very angry because I stopped calling him and refused to come and see me. I wanted him to come, so that I could explain the way I felt, but he wouldn't. He is a business man who wants things to go pretty much his own way, and he expected me to do most of the chasing.

He still wants me back, so what would you advise me to do? T.

Dear T.:

What makes you think this man wants you back, if he hasn't been willing to come and see you and make an opportunity to talk over all your differences? Don't you think you are doing a good deal of wishful thinking?

As I see it, you would be well advised to think no more about marrying this man, unless he shows a decided change of attitude. If he really wanted you, he would let nothing stand in his way to prevent him from making that very specific clear to you.

HE'S SHY—SHOULD SHE SPEAK FIRST?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I would like to know if it is proper for a girl to invite a boy to a picnic when she has not been properly introduced to him? He is very shy with girls.

I would like to get acquainted with this boy, but do not know how to go about it. — B.E.

Dear B.E.:

Your letter is not very clear, and I can only guess at what you mean when you say you have "not been properly introduced" to this boy.

If what I assume is true—that you have seen this boy around, possibly in school, but have never been formally introduced to him (I can't see why any formal introduction is necessary. Most boys and girls who are each other of ten, become friends without any such formality.

Of course if you and this boy have never even spoken to each other in any way, not even so much as to say hello when you have met, then it would seem to me that he, rather than you, might make the first move toward getting acquainted. However, if he is as shy as you say, then I would think it unimportant who speaks first.

So go ahead and invite him to the picnic, if you want to, and see what happens. If he accepts your invitation, it may be the beginning of a pleasant friendship. But if he declines, then you'd better not make any more overtures.

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

What do you do during a sleepless night? . . . some people count sheep which is not very profitable, while I plan my next dinner-party from soup to nuts . . . and usually drop off to sleep with a sigh of contentment. . . . You were very kind to send me the special method of cooking ham some weeks ago, but I've flattened that out, published my "Scotch Eggs". Your column is such fun, but I wish you would have an occasional completely "Foreign" column now and then. I shall start you off with an Indian Curry, which I got straight from the horse's mouth, in the form of an Indian wartime friend, who occasionally and nostalgically came to cook it at our house. I used to feel most flattered if being allowed to cook the rice, without him looking over my shoulder.

This Curry serves four—3 medium onions minced, 3 tablespoons fat or oil, 4 tsp. (or more) best curry powder, 2 tablespoons flour, 2 cups stock, 2 cups diced (cooked

"Hospitality" Room Provides Real Welcome for Winter-Time Party Guest

Did you ever arrive at a party covered with melting snow, water on your oh,-so-carefully-set hair and dripping from the end of your nose and generally feeling as "frowsty" as Cinderella's step-sisters? With a climate such as we "enjoy" in Canada, it's liable to happen to you at any time—and it can happen to your guests on your party night, too.

That is why, according to the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating, "hospitality rooms" which many people are installing on the ground floor of their homes are gaining so much in popularity. These little rooms, which combine the facilities of cloakroom, powder room and lavatory, make guests welcome in a very practical way, by giving them privacy in which to "freshen." They can then make their entrance to the party feeling, and looking, their best.

Apart from the convenience to guests, of course, the powder cloakroom is an everyday boon to the family as well. A room of this kind which she can use at any time of the day saves the housewife from a good deal of stair climbing. It's also a very useful place for the young fry to wash up in when they come in from play, and saves the trail of dirt upstairs to the bathroom which is the bane of every mother's existence.

Space for the powder room can be provided in many ways. Perhaps the house has a large cloak closet in the hall. Or the empty space under the stairway, which is usually wasted as an odd storage cupboard, can be put to better use. A 9'x6' powder room. Again, some older houses are equipped with butler's pantries, which the modern kitchen has made obsolete, and these are ideal for conversion to half-bathrooms, particularly as they are usually conveniently located for hooking up with the water system in the kitchen.

As to size, while, of course, the larger the room is the more conveniences can be included in it, a powder room of this kind can be built into a surprisingly small space. For instance, if provision for hanging coats can be made elsewhere, a wash-basin and toilet can be put into a space no bigger than 5 feet by 30 inches. These two fittings, plus a cabinet for cosmetic and adequate towel rails, comprise all the essentials.

If space is more ample, the ideal fitting is, of course, one of the counter-top wash-basins, which is really a wash-basin built into a vanity. Together with a small stool, a wall mirror and adequate side lighting, it is the answer to a party guest's prayer.

Sometimes it is possible to find two adjacent cupboards, and then, of course, the ideal of a cloak-room and powder room combined can be achieved. But in any case, be sure that the essentials are there—facilities for washing, a toilet, space on counter top or cabinet for cosmetics, and ample light both overhead

FIR PLYWOOD UNIT PROVIDES OUTDOOR STORAGE SPACE

The carport in literally thousands of small homes is replacing the garage. Attractive and economical, the carport, many agree, is just the thing.

But owners of new Canadian homes have no basement as well as no garage and a problem arises—where to stow your garden hose, your spades, your rakes? And where does your youngster put his tricycle and wagon when it rains?

You can solve the problem neatly by building an outdoor storage unit at the end of the carport, along one side, or by joining a storage wall to the house. Some home-owner addicts of outdoor living have made the storage wall part of a screen fence.

No matter where you place it, outdoor storage is practical and economical when these convenient units are built with fir plywood by the home handyman.

The fir plywood you use to made built-ins throughout your home readily moves outdoors because all fir plywood produced in Canada is made with completely waterproof glue.

Other than edge sealing of panels with a heavy mixture of white lead and oil and priming with a high grade exterior primer paint as you would in preparing to paint other forms of wood, outdoor use of fir plywood requires no special precautions.

and for make-up purposes.

While the cost of installation of a powder room varies according to the type of fittings used and the amount of work necessary to hook up fittings with the existing plumbing system, the entire job can usually be completed for a much lower figure than most people think. In this respect, it is wise to plan the powder room with an experienced plumbing and heating contractor at your elbow, so to speak. His advice will probably save a lot of money in advance.

Don't Go Short on Storage; Find Built-in Space Yourself

Most Canadian housewives know how to get along without that extra storage space they've been wanting. They may not like getting along without it, but may even mean a real inconvenience, especially after month, year in and out that storage closet under the stairs, that linen cabinet in the bathroom and those needed cupboards in the kitchen just don't get built.

The space is there, the need is there, the only thing that's missing in the cabinet. And it needn't be, not when a simple framework of lumber and a few sheets of fir plywood are all that are needed for the job.

Most everyone is aware that it is easy to put off building extra storage spaces. Things can always be put away in boxes in the basement or even more conveniently in the attic. The lack of convenient storage room is irksome day to day but it really never becomes a major issue . . . not until the housewife takes the matter in hand.

VALUE RECEIVED

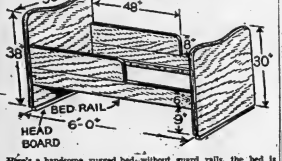
Budget minded wives and husbands alike tend to believe the cost of having a carpenter or cabinet-maker come in and build cabinets to size is more than the resulting convenience. Nevertheless, many do just that and are pleased with the value received.

More and more homeowners are tempted these days, however, to tackle the job themselves. Fir plywood makes it possible for an amateur to do a professional looking job if his work is just a matter of getting started.

One way to get started is to measure up that unused space where a cabinet is needed and order the materials. Your local lumber dealer can be of great assistance as you have the measurements. He can tell you what fir plywood thicknesses are best for the job, what hardware will be needed and he'll give you how-to-do-it pamphlets on joining and finishing. Once started you'll be surprised at how easily the job can be done and you'll wonder why you waited all these years.

A handy hint to prevent splitting when sawing an exposed face of a fir plywood panel is to strip cellulose tape or masking tape along the line about to be sawed.

Fir plywood cupboards finished with the natural grain showing can be easily cleaned with warm water to which a little household ammonia has been added. A cloth wrung from ammonia water should remove dirt readily and should not hasten darkening of the beautiful wood finish.



Concrete surfaces smooth enough to be painted directly without further finishing are usually produced by forms made with waterproof glue fir plywood. Large, smooth surfaces of sanded fir plywood leave concrete without a mark and are 100 per cent reusable for further concrete pouring or for other construction.

Child's Home-built Plywood Bed Will Last Through Many Years

Here's a handsome, rugged bed for a growing child that can readily be made from fir plywood. A full six feet long, it will make for sleeping comfort through many years.

This heavy-duty bed will take a standard single spring and mattress. Optional eight-inch guard rails will give extra protection when you boy or girl is small yet the full length and 38-inch width provides roominess thru' into the teens.

Head and foot boards, 30 x 38 inches, cut from ¾ inch sanded fir plywood panels, are not easily scuffed or marked. They are ideal for the occasional rough-and-tumble of a child's room. Bed rails, 6 inches wide, and 6 feet long, are cut from the same material.

Guard rails are optional and can be cut in one piece with the bed rails if desired. With or without guard rails, the bed is an attractive addition to any child's bedroom.

The rails can be attached to head and foot boards by means of standard bed-rail fittings or with metal angle brackets.

To support the spring and mattress a 1 x 1 inch cleat should be screwed to the bed rails. Gluing of this cleat will provide additional strength where it is needed most.

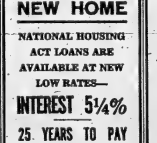
DESIGN - OF - THE - MONTH — Although this three-bedroom bungalow falls within the classification of a "small house", careful planning has given it an air of spaciousness.

The full-length windows in the front and at the rear corners are an architectural feature which enhances the exterior appearance and provides sufficient natural light for the main living section of the house.

Plenty of sunshine and fresh air reach the front bedrooms which have three windows each and the third bedroom, at the rear, has a double window.



Designed by the architectural firm of Wilson and Newton, Toronto, the house is of brick veneer construction with wood siding on the gable ends of the roof. The floor area is 782 square feet and the cubic measure is 18,435 cubic feet. The exterior dimensions are 30 feet 2¼ feet and seven inches.

Working drawings for this plan, known as design 214, are available from HOUSTON'S.

BED GUARD RAIL OF FIR PLYWOOD PROTECTS CHILD

Falling out of bed is an experience most children manage at some time—usually when the switcheroo comes from crib to regular bed. A resounding thump often frightens the parents more than it hurts the child but there is always the danger a sharp corner will cause injury.

To protect your child against falls a guard rail can be simply and neatly made of plywood. These fir plywood shields can be about 30 inches long and one to two feet wide so that they are about 10 inches higher than the top of the mattress.

The edges should be sanded down and rounded and both sides can be painted to match the bed. Any convenient thickness of fir plywood can be used.

Most beds have a box-spring mattress or combination mattress and springs on bed slats. The guard rail, when slipped down between the bed rail and the mattress and springs so that it is resting on the spring slats, can not be dislodged by tossing and turning.

The handy rails can be placed under the pillows when the bed is made up for the day.

Edge-sealing is by far the most important step in getting a good paint finish on exterior applications of plywood. In applying fir plywood finish on gable ends, for example, edges of the panels should be sealed with a mixture of white lead and oil paint. This should be followed with waterproof glue qualities of the plywood. Even with lumber, edge-sealing prevents moisture from creeping in behind the paint coat and also reduces checking to an absolute minimum.

Keeping Your Home Up to Date

Colorful Stains on Built-ins Give Kitchens 'Warm' Look

A real wood kitchen with cupboard doors and doors tinted as the natural grain of the wood shows through is the latest preference in Canadian home decorating.

This natural warm wood look is the result of a new stain color from cold hospital-white kitchens of a few years ago. It is achieved by extenders use of clear finishes on wood and use of cheerful colors.

You can get wood stain colors in more than 150 shades, each preserving the natural grain patterns of the wood. They offer wide possibilities in yellows, reds, blues and greens to enhance cabinets in floors, curtains and accessories.

With growing do-it-yourself building around the kitchen the preference for wood cupboards, counters and built-ins is also growing. Some manufacturers in fir plywood which not only makes cabinet work of the home handyman easier but also permits a wide selection of beautiful finishes.

NATURAL FINISH

Today many persons prefer to give kitchen woodwork a natural finish which brings out the full charm of grain and pattern. Stain tints impart a warm, homey feeling to the entire room.

Kitchen cabinets should be durable and easy to clean. Fir plywood cabinets score high on both counts when finished with stain and wax. Easily maintained, they require only occasional wiping with a wax cloth to protect the finish.

The bare grain of the plywood should be given a sealer coat of shellac thinned half and half with denatured alcohol or transparent past wood filler cut with equal parts of turpentine or mineral spirits.

LIGHT SANDING

The filler coat should be rubbed across the grain with a burlap-type of cloth. When thoroughly dry the primary coat should be given a light sanding with sandpaper.

The surface is next given a wipe down finish with a color and shade of stain of your own choosing. The stain should then be protected with a coat of varnish or wax.

Many homeowners are making their own kitchen cabinets and built-ins using fir plywood which is available at their local lumber dealer. Others buy mill-made kitchen cabinets but many woodworking specialists build custom cabinets to order.

WASHING MACHINE WORK SHELF MADE OF FIR PLYWOOD

Top of that gleaming new automatic washer can be turned into a work counter-top by adding about marring of the expensive finish.

The idea is to get away from waste space in your compact kitchen when the washing machine is not in use. It can be achieved by making a swing-down shelf that covers the washer surface.

Measure the width of the washer and the distance from front to the wall, then cut a fir plywood panel to these dimensions. The plywood shelf can be covered with linoleum or other surfacing material.

The shelf should be hinged at the wall at a height slightly above the top of the washer. Rubber bumpers of a type similar to bolt ends should be attached on the underside of the shelf. A leather button-down fastener can be used to fasten the shelf to the wall when the washer is in use.

FEEDING PLATFORM FOR HUNGRY BIRDS CUT FROM PLYWOOD

With winter coming on, now's the time to get a feeding station ready for the hardy birds that choose to spend the cold season in our northern climate.

This easily made feeding platform is "strictly for the birds" and no derogatory implication intended. It is easily attached to a tree branch or pole out of the way of marauding cats.

Cut from two pieces of fir plywood it provides cover as well as a platform on which to eat. Placed in the garden the station will give birds a space clear of snow when the ground and other food sources are covered.

The feeding station can be attached with a length of wire or rope and let down for easy refilling of the food holder. This holder can be made by loosely attaching hardware cloth or coarse wire mesh around the centre post. The fir plywood bottom and top should be screwed to a piece of 2 x 3 inch lumber 16 inches long.

Industry Mobilizes Aid With Easier Financing

By DAVID G. BARRUTHER

Keeping your home up to date is becoming easier every year. New materials, new tools, new methods, more liberal financing and a big mobilization of industry to encourage home modernization of industry to encourage home modernization are among factors now helping every householder and home handyman.

The Census Bureau has discovered that the home fix-up market is billions of dollars bigger than previously estimated. A sample survey showed the census takers that within five months home owners had spent three billion dollars on repairs, improvements, alterations and additions.

"A rough estimate for the year," observed a leading economist, "probably will be that the neighborhood of a eight billion dollars. The census figures apply only to owner-occupied residential buildings. Expenditures on tenant-occupied buildings would probably raise it 50 per cent."

THIS IS BIG BUSINESS

Commenting on the census results, an authoritative trade publication said: "Even bigger news was that this revealed the first real statistical basis supporting the growing belief that the home repair business is as big as—or bigger than — the new housing industry."

The first evidence of how this knowledge is helping the individual home owner came from the lumber dealers. Launching a nationwide campaign to drive over what they call "suede shoe" fly-by-nighters and "dynamite" artists, lumbermen drew up plans to go after modernization business.

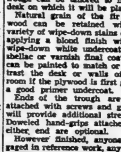
Their idea is to provide a customer with architectural service, financing guidance, all materials needed and to do all the work for him—all in one package.

FIXING UP IS CONTAGIOUS

"The market potential is so great," say H. R. Northup, of the National Retail Lumber Dealers Association, "that a lumber dealer need not worry about cutting out his contractor; the more modernization business he gets, the more he creates. The fix-up market is catching."

Many home improvements will now be easier to pay for. Under the Housing Act of 1954, various payments of this type can be financed with long-term mortgage credit under open-end mortgages. This is an arrangement whereby the home owner can re-borrow money he has paid back on a mortgage, extending payments over the remaining term of the mortgage. Such payments are much smaller than under short term loans.

"Title I loans (short term financing) cannot do the job on big modernization because repayments are too stiff," says a Kansas city lumberman. "But unfortunately, the mortgage lenders I know won't permit open-end loans because they do not know about them or haven't yet had time to catch up with the new legislation."



IT'S A 55-TO-1 VOTE

However, with nearly 50 old homes existing as for every new house built each year, it may not take long for all branches of industry and commerce to realize that people who lack the ready cash for major home improvements should be given assistance in borrowing it.

The do-it-yourself fan finds it comparatively simple to buy and apply new siding, floor coverings, wood panels, some masonry, and install new equipment. But few have the time, skill or funds for rebuilding or adding on.

That is where constructive help is needed.

HANDY BOOK STAND OF FIR PLYWOOD MADE IN EVENING

Just the thing for students is this neat book trough to keep reference volumes within easy reach and easy to locate.

Beauty of this homemade book holder is that it can be quickly assembled in an evening with parts cut from a panel of ¾ inch fir plywood. Dimensions of the trough can be altered to fit the desk on which it will be placed.

Natural grain of the fir plywood can be retained with a varnish or wax-finish, and smooth, Doweled hand-grips attached to either end are optional.

However you elect, anyone engaged in reference work, any university or high school student or any businessman, will find the book trough a convenient aid as well as an attractive addition in den, study or office.

UNIQUE SCARECROW EASILY CUT FROM FIR PLYWOOD PANEL

A man-sized scarecrow that will realistically wave its arms in the breeze can be cut from a fir plywood panel. An attractive garden ornament, it could be effective in frightening birds.

Shape and coloring of the man are up to individual preference and artistic ability, but here's a design that's, to say he least, a little out of the ordinary.

The form is easy to draw on a plywood panel that has been squared off as shown. Half-inch fir plywood is recommended, both for sturdiness and because fir plywood is bonded with water-proof glue and will stand up to weathering. Given a good primer undercoat it can readily be painted in realistic colors.

Method of attaching the arms so that they will swing freely in the wind is detailed. The hands can be cut from a piece of ¼ inch plywood and the arms from ¾ inch stock. The arm is slotted at the wrist so that the hand is turned at an angle to catch the wind. It can be attached with screws and glue.

If the scarecrow were mounted as a weathervane free on a pivot so that it would swing continually into wind the motion effect of the arms would be increased. Attaching the arms so that they pivot close to the elbow will also increase the swing.

Saskatchewan's Compulsory Car Insurance Scheme Main Asset of CCF Government

By WILF CHESLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan's compulsory car insurance scheme is attracting interest of groups in other provinces after surviving eight years of political opposition and splotches of red ink.

Once denounced as "the greatest hoax ever perpetrated on the people of any province," the plan today is regarded as a main asset of the CCF government. Government spokesmen say the administration considers it can defeat the Liberal party at the next election on the Liberals' car-insurance platform alone.

The scheme provides what government spokesmen describe as the best car insurance on the continent at the cheapest possible rates—less than one-third of the cost of comparable insurance in the some other provinces.

ANSWER MANY QUERIES

Almost daily the government Insurance office which administers the scheme receives letters, asking for information, from labor organizations, city councils and church groups, and from motorists in other provinces who say they want to buy Saskatchewan government car insurance and find they can't.

The Nova Scotia government appointed a royal commission to study the entire insurance field after receiving requests for adoption of a car-insurance plan similar to the one in Saskatchewan. Some Maritime car insurance rates jumped 30 per cent this year.

Government premiums in Saskatchewan, after a steady climb in line with higher accident totals, went down an average of 25 per cent.

Motorists who bought their insurance with licence plates this year paid $5 to $30, depending on the age and wheelbase of the car. Most car owners, those with vehicles built from 1949 to 1952, and a wheelbase of 100 inches or more, paid $20. In addition, each driver when he buys his operating permit pays $2 more into the insurance fund.

WIDE COVERAGE

Coverage under the compulsory scheme is $10,000 public liability for each person injured, with a maximum of $20,000 for one accident and $2,000 in property loss. The policies are $100 deductible. The motorist must pay that much of repair bills if he is in an accident.

The government also pays death benefits to any Saskatchewan resident, up to $5,000 for parents and up to $1,000 for each secondary dependent, including children; $25 a week in unemployment benefits with a $3,000 maximum; dismemberment benefits to $4,000; supplementary payments to $600 and $175 for funeral expenses.

Motorists also can buy for $25 what the government calls a "package policy," an optional increase of coverage to $50,000 in public liability with a $100,000 maximum and $5,000 for property loss. The deductible amount is $50. Premium for the same package policy with a $25-deductible clause is $38. Car owners who have had no claims against a package policy in three years receive a 20-per-cent reduction in premium.

MORE REDUCTIONS

Provincial Treasurer C. M. Fines, minister in charge of the insurance office, says rates will be reduced again next year.

The plan had a surplus in the first three years of operation, then started to lose money as the number and cost of accidents increased. Premiums were raised a year ago when the deficit reached more than $1,800,000. Higher premiums and a substantial decline in the number of accidents and claims on the insurance fund have turned the deficit into a surplus, expected to be more than $1,000,000 by the end of the fiscal year March 31.

One main objection to the plan has been that it is compulsory. The Liberal party, which tried to kill the original insurance bill when it was introduced in the legislature, now has accepted the principle of compulsory car insurance, but in its platform resolutions would permit the car owner to buy his insurance from private firms.

The government is said to believe it can defeat the Liberals on that one point. Lower cost of car insurance is made possible only because of the compulsory feature, government spokesmen say.

LOW COMMISSIONS

Where private companies pay sales commissions amounting to 20 per cent of premium, commission charges to the government insurance office are only .01 per cent. The insurance office also claims to be business at one-third the cost of private firms, exclusive of commission.

Liberal party sources say a Liberal government will keep the insurance office in operation to protect motorists from exorbitant rates if the party is return to power in Saskatchewan.

100,000-Mile Tire Predicted By U.S. Scientist

OTTAWA (CP)—A United States scientist predicts that within five years you may be able to buy a tire that will last 100,000 miles, a cloth fibre that can stand a temperature of 350 degrees centigrade and a plastic that will remain intact in boiling water.

Dr. R. F. Mark, director of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, told the National Research Council Science Association here that the cloth, made from synthetic material that do not melt, could be boiled in an acid without changing texture.

It could also be pressed with an iron registered 350 degrees—eliminating the scorching and shriveling that results from pressing present synthetics with too hot an iron.

A tire made of synthetic polyster rubber has been run for 50,000 miles, Dr. Mark said, and probably could reach the 100,000 mark. It is highly skid-resistant and now is used on some jet aircraft.

Atomic radiation would produce the non-melt plastic. The irradiation process, either by atomic pile or by x-ray, would produce a plastic with a melting point 35 degrees higher than normal, he said.

Royal Assent Given 168 Acts In Senate

OTTAWA (CP)—In a ceremony lasting less than five minutes, Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, acting for Governor-General Massey, Thursday gave royal assent in the Senate to 168 acts—161 of them bills of divorce.

Only 28 senators were present along with a small number of Commons members who answered the summons to witness the ceremony in the upper chamber.

Main act given royal assent was an amendment to Canada's new Criminal Code inserting in the act itself th e date on which it shall come into force—April 1.

The new code represents a consolidation of the present criminal law but no changes in principle. The effective date was inserted to avoid the necessity of proving this date in cases involving the act.

N.B. Children Go to School In Tool House

FREDERICTON (CP) — The legislature has heard of New Brunswick children who go to school in a tool house and a railway freight shed. There isn't any other place for them to attend classes, said Education Minister Claude D. Taylor.

He mentioned the situation, without specifying place names, to illustrate the necessity for more schools in the province. There are 44 classrooms in premises other than school buildings.

Among the 44 are a tool house of the N.B. forest service and a Canadian National Railways freight shed, Mr. Taylor said. Other children attend classes in church basements, private homes and church and community halls.

"It is absolutely necessary" that the school building program be continued, he said. This was one reason why estimates of the education department would continue to rise.

Peace Rests On Balance Of Terror

OTTAWA (CP)—Peace rests not on a balance of power put on a balance of terror, External Affairs Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday.

This, he said, is the meaning of the hydrogen bomb in world affairs.

He added that the world's best safeguard against all-out war may be the threat of equal and opposite nuclear retaliation.

Mr. Pearson described as "distorted" an account by Pravda, Moscow mouthpiece of the Communist party, on the London meetings of a United Nations disarmament sub - committee comprising Canada, Britain, the United States, France and Russia.

The London meetings, he said, are being held in confidence and the Pravda article was a breach of that confidence.

To Take Holiday

OTTAWA (CP)—The Senate will take a 27-day Easter holiday from April 6 to May 3, it was learned Thursday night. The Commons will take 12 days, from April 6 to April 18.

Govt. Legislation Increasing Veterans' Allowances Passed

OTTAWA (CP) — The veterans affairs committee of the Commons Thursday night approved government legislation increasing war veterans allowance payments after putting down an opposition attempt to jack up the benefits still further.

The committee decided to sit overtime in camera to draft its reports to the Commons. Indications were that opposition members would make a new attempt to attach recommendations to the report for payments higher than those specified in the bill.

Completion of the committee study means the bill will go back for final Commons approval today and then to the Senate.

The measure increases payments to Canada's 42,000 WVA recipients from $20 from $30 a month for single veterans and to $105 from $90 a month for married veterans or their widows. It comes into force on the first day of the next month following royal assent — which means that if it is pushed through Parliament before the end of March recipients will get the increased payments in April.

The move to hike the benefits was made by G. S. White (PC—Hastings - Peterborough) and was supported by members of the opposition groups.

Mr. White moved the qualification ceilings on annual income be raised to $1,200 for single veterans and to $2,000 for married veterans and that monthly payments to married recipients be set at $120.

The bill raises these figures to $840 from $720, to $1,440 from $1,200 and to $108 from $80, respectively. Both in the bill and in Mr. White's motion WVA payments would form part of the permissible annual income.

Committee Chairman Walter Tucker (L—Rosthern) said that if the motion was accepted it could kill the bill. If the schedule of new rates was not accepted the government might not act on the amendment.

Mr. Tucker said proper procedure would be for the committee to attach recommendations for rate changes in its report to the Commons approving the legislation.

Col. A. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) said the amendment would not kill the bill. LL-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East) said the chairman's remarks were "a complete red herring." There was a precedent for such procedure.

The motion finally was defeated by a vote of 15 to 9.

DROWNS IN CESSPOOL

PICKERING Ont. (CP) — Billy Callagher, 4, was drowned Wednesday when he fell into an open cesspool 10 feet from his home. The pool had been dug a few days earlier by the boy's father and heavy rains had filled it with three feet of water. Pickering is seven miles east of Oshawa.

Canada Insists Indochina Vote Terms Be Defined

OTTAWA (CP) — Responsibilities and procedures for holding an election in Viet Nam must be satisfactorily and clearly defined before Canada will help in its supervision, External Affairs Minister Pearson told the Commons Thursday.

He said he expects Canada, as a member of the international truce supervisory commission in Indochina, will be asked to supervise an election scheduled for July, 1956, along with India and Poland, the other members of the three-nation commission.

Viet Nam was temporarily divided by the July 20, 1954, armistice agreement into Communist North Viet Nam and non-Communist South Viet Nam. The agreement envisaged an election in two years to choose one government for the combined states but it did not lay down the terms of conducting an election.

NO INVITATION

Mr. Pearson said the three nations represented on the truce commission have not received any invitation or directive from the Geneva conference powers, who thrashed out the Indochina armistice, concerning supervision of the election.

Speaking on the work of the commission so far, Mr. Pearson said:

"We intend to keep our representatives there (Indochina) as long as they can make a useful contribution to the implementation of the armistice agreement reached at Geneva, and therefore to the peace of that part of the world."

Main provisions of the truce for withdrawal of French forces from North Viet Nam and the Communists from South Viet Nam had been carried out reasonably well and without serious incident.

The commission can only mediate and has no power to enforce the armistice terms.

Red Wings, Canadiens Strong Favorites To Meet In Stanley Cup Finals

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

THIS IS IT!

It will be a grimly determined Maroon hockey club that skates out on Memorial Arena ice tonight in search of their first victory in this senior "E" group finals. They will be without the services of Jake Wade, stellar defenceman, who suffered an ankle injury two games ago, and aggravated it in Kingston Wednesday night. The rest of the club is said to be in fine shape and "turin" to show fandom that they can defeat the high-flying Kingston Goodyears. It should be a rousing battle with the Goodies anxious to wrap up the series in four straight games and the Maroons equally anxious to halt the Kingston crew in its tracks. Game at nine o'clock.

Remember, there are 300 rush seats going on sale at the arena box office at eight o'clock tonight. The prices are general admission and if you want one or more, better be around when the box office opens. The first there will be the first to get 'em.

STANLEY CUP PLAYOFF NOTES

The current Stanley Cup playoffs mark the 17th time in succession that Detroit Red Wings have taken part in these post-schedule series. It is the seventh straight appearance for Montreal Canadiens and the fifth in a row for Boston Bruins. Toronto Maple Leafs, seven-time Stanley Cup champions, are the only team in the history of the NHL to win the Cup this season in a row. The Leafs did this in 1947, 1948 and 1949. The Leafs also won the Cup in 1932, 1942, 1945 and 1951—four-of-a-kind for the only trophy in hockey six times. They were winners in 1936, 1937, 1942, 1945, 1947, 1948 and 1949—the second first was the Stanley Cup in 1918, prior to the formation of the National Hockey League in 1917, and were also winners in 1924, 1932, 1942, 1945, 1947, 1948 and 1951. The retired Stoker city to join the NHL, the Boston Bruins, were Stanley Cup champs in 1929, 1939 and 1941.

Jimmy Skinner of Detroit and Milt Schmidt of Boston, are coaching their first teams in the playoff play. It is the second time for Toronto's King Clancy. Dick Irvin, 61-year-old coach of Canadiens, piloted four Cup champions. He coached Toronto in 1932 and Canadiens in 1944, 1946 and 1956. Conn Smythe of Toronto has managed seven Stanley Cup champions. Detroit's Jack Adams managed six Cup champions and Frank Selke of Canadiens one.

It is Lynn Patrick's first playoff as a manager. It will be the first playoffs for John Henderson and Don McKenney of Boston; Leroy Cahan, Brian Cullen and Parker MacDonald of Toronto; Leroy Hillman of Detroit; and Jackie Leclair and Don Marshall of Montreal. It is the 11th playoff series in a row for Ted Lindsay, Detroit captain—Butch Bouchard, captain of Canadiens, has taken part in more playoff games than any player active today. He has played in an even 100 games up to the 1950 series. Toronto's captain, Ted Kennedy, has played on more Stanley Cup teams than any other player in modern hockey. Ted has been a member of five Stanley Cup champions.

Longest overtime game in Stanley Cup play took place in Montreal on March 24, 1936. The game lasted 176 minutes and 50 seconds, including 116 minutes and 30 seconds of supplementary period. Mud Bruneteau scored for Detroit to give the Red Wings a 1-0 win over Montreal Maroons. Shortest overtime game on record lasted 85 seconds. Syd Howe's second of that time to give Detroit a 2-1 win over New York Americans on March 19, 1940, at Detroit. Gordie Howe of Detroit fired the fastest goal in Stanley Cup play on April 1, 1945, at Detroit. He scored after nine seconds of the first period. United States cities have won the Stanley Cup 16 times since the NHL was formed. First U.S. city to win the cup was Seattle in 1917. Last all-United States final was between New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings in 1940. Last all-Canadian final was between Toronto and Montreal in 1951.

Only once has a team swept to the Stanley Cup in eight straight games. Detroit did this in 1936, downing Toronto and Canadiens along the way. Most one-sided victory in the playoffs took place on March 30, 1946, at Montreal, when Canadiens trounced Toronto, 11-0. Boston Bruins have taken part in 34 playoff series in the 31 years they have been members of the NHL. Last season's playoffs went 16 games. That is the average each year. Two records were set on March 26, 1944, at Montreal. Maurice Richard scored most goals in a playoff game—5; and Toe Blake had most assists in a playoff game, 6. Dickie Moore of Canadiens set a new record for most points in a playoff game on March 25, 1954, at Montreal. He scored twice and had four assists for six points, as Canadiens defeated Boston, 5-1. Maurice Richard holds records for most goals in a playoff series, 13, scored in nine games in 1944-45, against Toronto and Chicago. Elmer Lach of Canadiens, holds record for most assists in a playoff series, 18, against Chicago and Boston, in nine games in 1944-45 and 1946. Most penalties in one game, 31, consisting of 16 minors, four majors and one misconduct, were handed out by Toronto and Toronto, on March 31, 1935. Most penalties in one period, 14. Referee Bill Chadwick handed out 12 minors, two majors and two misconducts in first period at Toronto-Boston game at Boston, on April 3, 1941.

Curry Stars in Habs' 3-1 Win Over Battling Beantowners; Detroit Squeezes Leafs 2-1

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — The same brand of precision-like checking and tireless skating that halted Boston Bruins in the opening game of the Stanley Cup semi-final stopped the Bostonians again Thursday night and Montreal Canadiens won a deserved 3-1 victory.

The sharper edge the Montreal ers had on the offensive was most effective in the second period when they ran in all three goals. The Bruins' single tally came at 16:42 of the same period, marked a stretch of one hour, 36 minutes and 43 seconds in which they had been held scoreless in two games. Montreal won the opener Tuesday 5-0.

Floyd Curry, Montreal's dogged, hard-working right-winger, was the starring figure for the second time and contributed the first goal. Calum Mackay, Bruin centre, and Jean Beliveau scored the others for Montreal and Real Chevrefils counted Boston's.

CANADIENS FAVORITES

With the first two games tucked away, Canadiens are heavy favorites to take the best-of-seven series and meet either Detroit Red Wings or Toronto Maple Leafs in the final. The series shifts to Boston for the next two games, Saturday and Tuesday.

The only serious worry in the Montreal camp today was the injury suffered by Beliveau. The big centre-ice star pulled up lame in the second period Thursday night with a severe charleyhorse in the muscle above his right knee. He finished out the game.

Coach Dick Irvin worked his two goalie system again and Jacques Plante and Gerry McNeil alternated between the workmanlike job both spectacular at times. A one-handed stab by McNeil, on a shot by Fern Flaman in the second period was termed by Irvin the turning point of the game.

AGAINST PLANTE

The Bruins' goal was scored against Plante. The puck, fired by Bill Quackenbush, struck Montreal defenceman Doug Harvey and bounced off his feet. Before he could clear, Chevrefils swatted it past Plante from close range.

Tempers flared at times, and when the final whistle sounded, captain Butch Bouchard of Canadiens and rugged Fern Flaman of the Bruins squared off for a couple of short punches. Flaman went down when Bouchard connected with a jarring right uppercut.

The officials finally separated the battlers. Flaman had blood on his face and as he left the ice he shook his fist and said he was going to sock a photographer who had hopped on the ice. The photographer escaped the wrath sold.

Curry put Montreal into the lead at 1:31 of the second period, lifting a shot into the upper corner of the net past goalie John Henderson after taking a give-and-go pass from Mackay.

BACKHAND SHOT

MacKay himself counted at 11:06, snaring a 15-foot pass bobbed over to him by Ken Mosdell and scoring on a backhand shot. Beliveau ended the Montreal scoring. The puck flew over to him when Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion knocked it off the stick of defenceman Leo Boivin.

As in the opening game of the series and the last game of the regular league schedule, no standing room was sold. The attendance was 13,500.

Among the spectators was Maurice (Rocket) Richard, whose rampage in Boston two weeks ago brought him a suspension by president Clarence Campbell of the NHL.

Campbell himself was again present, as on Tuesday. There were only mild choruses of boos when he took his seat.

Law Could Have Prevented Riot Says Campbell

MONTREAL (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said Thursday night he believes the March 17 riot at the Montreal Forum could have been prevented by law - enforcement authorities.

The riot stemmed from his decision to suspend Montreal's Maurice (Rocket) Richard for carving a Boston player with his stick and a linesman with his fists in a game in Boston March 13.

Campbell said that in the riot elements that have no association with hockey set out to redress what they considered to be a wrong in an ideal.

"They had made known well in advance what they planned to do," he said. "There was no excuse for allowing them to do so."

Campbell made the statements on "Press Conference," a weekly CBC television program featuring interviews of prominent personalities by Canadian newspaper men.

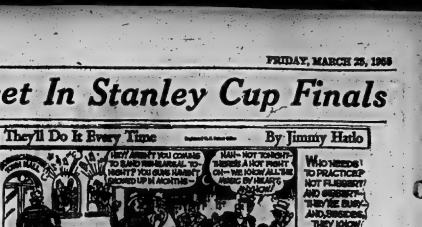
What Canada Did

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Swimming

Woman's 100-metre backstroke—Lenore Fisher, Ocean Falls, B.C., won gold medal with record-breaking victory; Joan Barber, Brantford, Ont., was fifth.



Men's 100-metre free style—George Park, Hamilton, was second.

Women's 400-metre relay—Canada took second.

Women's 200-metre breast stroke —Helen Stewart of Vancouver was eighth and last.

Basketball

Canada lost to the United States 61-39.

Canada's Second Gold Medal Won by Young BC Swimmer

MEXICO CITY (CP) — Ocean Falls, B.C., a small community whose children are rumored to swim before they can walk, has produced Canada's second Pan-American Games gold medalist—a girl who couldn't swim a stroke until she emigrated from Prince Rupert as the age of 12.

Mrs 19-year-old Lenore Fisher caught up fast with the Ocean Falls youngsters, who consistently outscore Canada's largest communities in national and international swim meets. Thursday the 138-pound blonde youngster set a games record in winning the 100-metre backstroke title.

That put Lenore in the gold-medal class along with 18-year-old Helen Stewart of Vancouver, just six years after she left her birthplace of Dryden, Sask., and three years after she started competing in national championships.

EXCELLENT CHANCE

The swimmers, Canada's most successful entries in the games, had a few shots at additional medals today in the six remaining events in the swimming schedule and stood an excellent chance to finish second behind the United States in the unofficial standings for swimming and diving.

The U.S. has built up an unofficial point total of 215 in swimming and diving. Mexico is second with 66 points, Canada third with 58 points, ahead of Argentina which has 51.

In the over-all team standing, Canada ranked eighth with 77 points.

Canada's chances for a third gold medal were bright today. Beth Whittall, 18-year-old swimmer who won the U.S. junior butterfly championship in 1954, was the big gun for Canada in two events and the 13-member women's team from Peterborough, Ont., was a solid bet to win the team synchronized swimming.

BAD BEST TIME

Miss Whittall, a member of the Purdue University swimming team, was favored in the women's 400-metre free style finals after she won her qualifying heat Wednesday and was locked in the best time of the eight finalists. She also was entered in the 100-metre butterfly finals.

Miss Fisher's spectacular backstroke victory was Canada's top achievement Thursday but there were other Canadian point-winners.

George Park of Hamilton finished second in the men's 100-metre free style behind Clark Scholes of the U.S., who had to set a games record to beat him, and the women's 400-metre relay team also was second behind the U.S. entry.

Thursday six swimming and diving championships were decided, with the U.S. winning four of them and making a total of 13 of the 17 run so far.

NEVER IN DOUBT

Miss Fisher, the Canadian backstroke champion, broke the heart of her competition with a fast pace and the outcome was never in doubt. She won the 100-metre backstroke event in the games record time of one minute, 18.7 seconds.

She clipped 1-10th of a second off her own mark, set in Wednesday's qualifying heat. Miss Stewart was clocked in 1:18.8 in winning her trial. Miss Fisher beat out two American girls, Cora O'Connor and Phyllis Gill, who took second and third in 1:17.8 and 1:17.9 respectively.

Little Sarah Barber of Brantford, Ont., who never took part in any international competition before she went to the games, was fifth in 1:18.8. The 14-year-old Canadian finished a bare 6-10ths of a second behind the U.S. champion, Shelly Mann.

Canada's luckless Vancouver Eights closed out their schedule in the women's basketball tournament without a victory when they lost 61-39 to the unbeaten United States squad Thursday night.

So many people have trouble carving a turkey that a Manitoulin farmer sent his son to agricultural college to work out an idea for simplifying the job. Just lately the son has hit upon what looks like a promising solution. He has taken a picture from a cookery book showing a roast turkey with those dotted lines that indicates where to cut. And he has tattooed the same pattern of dotted lines on to a turkey egg. When the bird is eventually killed and plucked the dotted lines will show up clearly on the carcass.

Grid Unions at Loggerheads Over American Import Quota

By KEN MITCHELL

VANCOUVER (CP)—An unsurprising result in Western Canada in favor of 12 United States imports is being sought here by eastern football officials.

Delegates attending a joint meeting of the country's two major football circuits—the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the Big Four Football Conference—are expected to reach agreement on the question of how many imports each club will be allowed to carry.

The import question is expected to be thrashed out at the annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union today with the final decision announced at the annual general meeting of the CRU Saturday.

To other business Thursday, western delegates were reported making a heavy drive in order to win eastern support for Vancouver's bid to stage the 53rd Grey Cup final.

Sessions lasting through yesterday afternoon and well into the evening, eastern delegates ran into a stone wall in their attempts to reflect a compromise between the WIFU's recommendation that there would allow each club to carry 12 imports and the Big Four's stand in favor of only three imports and ten ex-imports.

Football spokesmen for the two leagues would say only that the import question was "still under discussion" and that no decision made. It was reliably learned that the Big Four, short of reaching any success, a compromise recommendation that would eliminate the exImport classification and allow 15 imports.

Excluded, known generally as Canadian - Americans, are United States players who have played four or more years of football in Canada. Aside from the import question, the two circuits have conferred around Vancouver's bid for the right to stage the Grey Cup final in Empire Stadium on December 3.

Ironically, it may be the Ontario Rugby Football Union, threatened with elimination from the cup playoffs, which may decide the deciding vote on the Grey Cup venue.

Both the WIFU and the Big Four have informed the parent CRU they are unwilling to meet the ORFU champion in the Big Four semi-final this year.

Should the WIFU and Big Four fail to reach agreement on the Grey Cup venue, it is believed the ORFU will throw its weight behind whichever league will agree to play them in a semi-final per-iod.

The WIFU and Big Four, with three votes each, command six of the 10 CRU votes. The ORFU has two votes with one each vote pledged to the Quebec Rugby Football Union and the western Intercollegiate Conference.

Hat Tricks Spark Hornets, Barons To Victories

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A pair of hat tricks sparked Pittsburgh Hornets and Cleveland Barons to victories in the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoffs Thursday night.

Gerry Foley scored three times to lead Pittsburgh to a 5-3 triumph over Springfield Indians. Hornets now lead 3-0 in their best-of-five semi-final series.

Fred Glover's trio of goals enabled Barons to turn back Buffalo Bisons 6-3 and move into a 2-1 best-of-five semi-finals at 3-1.

Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Quebec and Rochester are the four clubs left in the league championship, took a 3-1 lead in the first period and then sewed up the game with a pair of goals in the second games.

Quebec Aces became a 3-0 first period deficit with a four-goal barrages in the second stanza.

'Geordies' Meet York United In Semi-Final

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Three first division soccer clubs and one giant killer from the third division will meet Saturday in the semi-finals of the Football Association Cup.

The winners will play the final at Wembley Stadium May 7.

Newcastle United, winner of the F.A. Cup in 1951 and 1952, plays York City, 10-to-7 longshot to become the first third-division team to reach the finals. Their game is at Sheffield.

Sunderland, fifth in the English League first - division standings, meets fourth - place Manchester City in the other half of the semi-finals, at Birmingham.

York secretary Bill Sherrington said he's a greenhorn with the local odds against his team making the finals.

EVEN CHANCE

"We have at worst an even chance of being Wembley's first third-division finalists," he said.

Two other third-division teams, Port Vale last year and Millwall in 1937—reached the semi-finals but lost.

York City this year has stamped itself as a powerful collection of part-time players who have beaten such giants as Blackpool and Tottenham. The team figures, however, that luck has been on its side and it isn't going to risk anything which it feels might break the spell.

The club stayed Thursday night at its "lucky" hotel at Matlock, Derbyshire. The players stayed before coming off a hot shower and basin in their last cup victory. Goalie Tommy Forgan will have his punch of white vinegar, his pair of red boots and his black ivy cat behind the net Saturday as usual.

Kitchener Dutchmen Square Series With Sault St. Marie Greyhounds

GUELPH (CP) — With their lineup back at full strength, Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen again jumped into contention for the all-Ontario senior A hockey championship Thursday night, shutting out Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 3-0, and squared the best-of-seven final 2-2. The next game of the series is at Sault Ste. Marie Saturday night. The winner will advance into the eastern Canada Allan Cup finals against either Moncton Hawks or Ottawa RCAF Flyers. Moncton leads that best-of-seven series 3-2.

Apparently Sault Ste. Marie coach Johnny O'Flaherty was on the wrong track when he said before the series started that he was discounting Kitchener injuries as a the normal routine.

With forward Charlie Brooker and defencemen Jon Rokosh and coach Bob Bauer unavailable for the game, Kitchener defencemen Dutchmen lost 1-0 Thursday night, back at full strength, they tied the series at 2-2 and left off the 4,500 fans who saw the game.

Two second - period goals by George Scholes and Jerry Tuberose six minutes apart gave the Dutchmen the margin they needed. Rookie Ed Chadwick in the goal for Kitchener-Waterloo was the best man on the ice.

Chadwick, property of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League who started with Toronto St. Michael's College and 1965 in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A two seasons ago, showed the whole Sault Ste. Marie club in the outer nets had only 14 shots in total.

Scholes' goal at 6:32 of the second period was scored while Harry Taylor was off for tripping. He ended a goal famine for Kitchener of almost 87 minutes. Ken Lemman got the drew on a faceoff to Chadwick's left and passed back to Scholes.

Lemman was also in on the second goal which was scored at 12:30. Tuberose, parked on Chadwick's doorstep, tipped in a relay from Lemman and defenceman Dan Kemp.

James Rated Best Player In Four Years

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 188-pound package of football dynamite named Edwin Fitzgerald (Gerry) James is the top Canadian-born player to join the Canadian gridiron in the last four years.

That was the consensus of top Canadian football officials here Thursday night as the Canadian Rugby Union met in executive session prior to Saturday's annual general meeting.

"There are a lot of fine young Canadian players in the game today but James is just about in a class by himself," said Annis Stukus, coach of British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union and once a great football player himself. Toronto Argonauts.

James moved up to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in 1963 after standout high school seasons in Winnipeg and Toronto Runnymede high in 1961.

Thirty Horses Expected to Start In Grand National Steeplechase

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Thirty horses are expected to go to the post in Saturday's Grand National Steeplechase. The result will determine the destination of about £2,000,000 prize money in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes.

Holders of tickets on the winning horse will collect £158,730 apiece, £31,746 respectively, and of others who draw a horse, which is scratched or unplaced, get £300.

Anything can win the National. Here's a brief description of the 30 most favored candidates:

Early Mist—10-year-old chestnut gelding by Bucsweet out of Sudden Dawn. Won the National in 1953 and ran fourth two weeks ago. Probably the best horse, but carries the high weight of 11 stone over the four miles and 856 yards.

Team Spirit—10-year-old chestnut gelding by King Hal out of Miss Gilford. Crossy says he has never had a horse in better shape than Grasscot out of Cuckoo Queen.

Quare Times — The name is Latin, meaning "wherefore dost thou hasten." Schooled over the line by Artist's Son out of Lavenco. Recently second to Limber Hill in a good-class race at Cheltenham. Some experts doubt whether Quare Times can last the distance.

Cosy—11-year-old bay gelding by Finasteel out of Cosy Friend. Won recently but his jumping is considered unreliable.

Limber Hill—13-year-old bay gelding by Irish Trout-Kiki. Owned by Lord Sefton and National 'be a most popular winner, having been third in the last two seasons. Always drops behind his field and then the Liverpool fences to his liking.

Near-Riot In Western Game

WINNIPEG (CP) — City police had to quell a near-riot Thursday night as Winnipeg Maroons edged Fort William Canadiens 5-4 in a rugged game to even their western Canada junior best-of-seven semi-final series at two wins each.

As players filed into their dressing rooms from the ice after completion of the particular rough third period, tempers flared into the open and players bottled in a narrow corridor with team officials and fans.

Three burly Winnipeg policemen answered a hurried call and restored order. They remained on the scene until the players had dressed and left the arena.

A crowd of 1,500 saw 17 penalties, 10 to Monarchs including a misconduct.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Everybody seems to be arguing about whether Eddie Stanky is a good baseball manager and has got all he should have out of St. Louis Cardinals in the three seasons he has been directing them.

The detractors of the little man say that by "over-managing" a set of fine athletes and antagonizing the rest of the National League, Stanky has converted the Cards from a third-place club and a supposed flag contender into the sixth-place team they now are. There is a widespread belief that numerous members of the club dislike Stanky to the extent that they do not give him their best.

In an effort to find out how much, if any, there is to all this, we asked a great many questions of a man who has followed the situation closely from the day Stanky first reported here four springs ago. He has no stake in the Cards whatever, and wants to be fair about it.

NO MORE POSSIBLE

"In my opinion the said Stanky has got as much out of the Cards as many manager could have. If over-managing means that he has fought for every point and has expected his players to do the same, then I suppose he's guilty of that. But all he's asked his players to do is what they draw big salaries for.

"As for the charge that his men do not like him and have been scrapping among themselves, I have seen no more evidence of it than on any other club I've been close to. There's never been one that didn't have a few knot-heads who didn't like the manager.

"There's nothing much wrong either with Eddie or the Cards that some good pitching wouldn't cure. If they should get it, look out!"

Pete Kelly's Blues to Have Jack Webb as Star, Director

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—After four years as the laconic cop of "Dragnet," Jack Webb will be making the jump into an entirely new character, a rugged cornet player of the roaring '20s.

He will star in and direct "Pete Kelly's Blues," a big-screen movie for theatres. He is also producing, but he won't take the credit on the screen. He thinks the multiple credits are too ostentatious.

I caught up with the fast-moving Webb on a music stage at Warners, where he was recording one of the 18 numbers in the film. Peggy Lee was singing a dramatic song in a torch-singer's den. Webb was all over the place, giving directions until he got the record just as he wanted it.

THE FACTS

Later I asked Webb about Pete Kelly. Who is he—Joe Friday with a cornet?

"No, not at all," he said. "It will be a complete change. I'm not the world's greatest actor: I'm not even one of the 1,000 greatest actors. But I think the characterization will come out differently. I play naturally. But that doesn't mean Jack Webb is Pete Kelly, any more than I'm Joe Friday. I've always tried to learn the character behind when I walk out of the studio at night.

"There'll be some violence, because you can't attempt to picture that era without violence. But I've always been careful with the amount of violence I have shown, because of the young following that 'Dragnet' has. I'm not going to endanger that."

"Pete Kelly's Blues" is much the ambitious project than the "Dragnet" feature which Webb made last year. The new film is in Cinemascope and color and required a week's shooting in New Orleans. The cast includes Janet Leigh, Edmond O'Brien, Andy Devine, Peggy Lee and Ella Fitzgerald.

AT THE McCARTHY — Flying Officer Frederick (Anthony Steel), skipper of an air-sea rescue launch, searching for survivors of an aircraft, learns that he has become a father. This is one of the many human highlights vividly portrayed in "The Sea Shall Not Have Them," the stirring story of fortitude and relentless devotion to duty, combines the talents of a brilliant cast of actors including Michael Redgrave, Dirk Bogarde, Nigel Patrick and Bonar Colleano. The film opens Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday at the McCarthy Theatre. Also feature is "The Cowboy" in color.

AT THE CAPITOL — Jane Powell and Farley Granger appear together for the first time as the romancers of "Small Town Girl," M.G.M.'s new technicolor musical showing today and Saturday at the Capitol theatre. Others in the cast are Ann Miller, Bobby Van, S. Z. Sakall, Scott Keith, Fay Bainter, Una Merkel, Billie Burke and Bob Fosse. On the same program is Technicolor "The Lawless Breed" starring Rock Hudson and Julia Adams. Continuous show Saturday from 1.30 p.m.

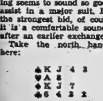
Note Book

Today is school Miss Kitty told us about public speaking and being able to get up in front of people and talk about any old subject they ask you to, just because you're a public speaker, and she said, Now for example I'll name a subject, and I want somebody to volunteer to address the class on that subject for a few minutes. I'll name a subject that you all should be very much interested in, because my all that's what you are here for. I'll name the Value of Education. Now who will volunteer to get up and address the class on The Value of Education? she said.

Me waving my hand, meaning I would, and Miss Kitty said, Ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Benny Pott will now address a few remarks to you on The Value of Education.

Which I stood up and started to do, saying, One big value of education is, what schools are for, so you have to exercise, no matter what you think of them personally. Another big value is, education teaches you how words, so if anybody asks you something and you don't know the answer, all you have to do is make them dizzy by rattling off a lot of long words, and they'll be too embarrised to ask you what they mean, so you don't even have to know yourself. And if you're educated enough and 2 people are speeking in a foriin language and thinking nobody ein knows what they are talking about, you can look interested every word whether it's any of your bizness or not.



Being the end of my thoughts, but Miss Kitty said it was quite enough and quick started the spelling lesson.

first bid was not a number raise that used up your third.

With only these tricks you could raise to only three spades. With four, tricks you see ten in your pair enough for game, and you would prompt you to go to four spades. You have only two.

There is nothing mysterious about this if you can count tricks. Why? The trouble is that some players all with only two tricks. And your make it too tricky.

Bridge

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To a bridge bidding pair, nothing seems to sound so good as an assist in a major suit. It is not the strongest bid, of course. But it is a comfortable sounding bid after an earlier exchange.

Take the north hand shown here:

♠K J 4 3
♥A 8
♦K J 7
♣6 5 3 2

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
1 Diamond	1 Spade
2 Spades	?

What is your partner showing? What is he expecting you to do about it? What should you do with the hand you hold? Stick to the rules and you will learn a lot about each other.

Besides showing 3 biddable spade suit your response shows more than two tricks inclusive of two high cards, being it takeout to a new suit it is a signal that forces partner to bid again.

If he lacked an additional trick his only second bid would be one no-trump. So, his new spade suit shows a sixth trick and, of course, adequate support for a suit, big only one by five.

You thus learn he has six tricks and no more. How do you know he does not have more than six trick? Because with seven tricks he could have seen ten in the pair; enough to go to four spades.

His assist does not force you to bid again. But he knows you can. Why? You could not have bid at all with only two tricks. And your make it too tricky.

Your Horoscope

FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 26, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Today's vibrations are such that it will be well to be extra careful, sensible, accurate about following prearranged plans, business ventures. A word to the wise is sufficient.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Most familiar matters, activities of immediate urgency should move along efficiently, if you are functioning according to best characteristics. Allow room for improvements, we know.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — If we forget fact or act hastily and without proper preview and preparation, you'll be decidedly regretful. You are equipped by nature to handle tricky matters, use this gift rightly, now.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — We have to use every manner of tact, most of today, over the rough spots today. Develop a friendly atmosphere among associates, friends, without being overjealous, insistent.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — A misfortune may involve your plans or confuse important issues if you allow. Have a calm, stable front and use good humor to help bridge obstacles. P.M. offers less tension, personal advantages.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — The many gifts with which nature has endowed Virgo natives, such as fine memory and knowing how to deal delicately with others in business can bring new benefits now.

September 24 to October 22 (Libra)—A typical and on whole good home and professional day. In matters of the heart and home be particularly adroit, with consideration foremost. News may be highly interesting, check.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Warm impelling aspects for worthy efforts, co-ordinating lofty desires. Genial friendliness will overcome more than matter-of-factness. Accept some responsive assistance if needed during p.m.

November 22 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Unusual outlook for vital interests that have personal affairs involved. Attempt the unusual if it would be feasible, helpful. New ideas, materials offer greater fields for achievement.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Activities into new ventures, branching out for new ideas, production highly rated now. You are lucidly practical, ambitious, and seldom discouraged. That should carry you far.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—A fertile period but you must go back in specific manner, knowing well what you are about to attain laurels. Plan, seek advice if needed; requisites that spell true success.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Be organized early to avoid rushing later, which could cause less accurate results. Show natural initiative, unction and you will reap a just reward. Time out to relax, pray.

You born today: Many types of talents and qualities of character here. You are alert, vivid, versatile also restless. This latter can or cannot help you in leadership where you could qualify ably. Seldom do you follow the crowd. You usually say and do what you believe right. You can succeed in any field you choose if rightly educated and guided: your Management, skilled worker, teacher, doctor, all you could carry on creditably. Such sindeed restlessness and any aversion to taking orders. Birthdate of: Maxim Gorki, Russian novelist; Edward Bellamy, author.

Sunday School Lesson:

I Saw the Church This Week

By ROY L. SMITH

The church, or the synagogue, is not a building; neither is it a membership roll, a congregation, or a convention. It is an incarnation—a man imbued with the spirit of an inspired institution, and active in behalf of its holy purpose.

According to that definition we will have an interesting experience if we will watch for the appearance of the church in some unexpected places.

IN A FACTORY

In a Bogs factory in a certain Indiana city a young Christian was employed in a highly technical profession, he being the only person in his department who was known to be associated with any religious organization of any kind. There were times when he took considerable ribbing because of his frank avowal of his religious interests, but there was a common saying in the department, "If you get into a jam, go to him. He will have something to say that will help pull you through." That was the church. In fact, that young man was all of the church there was in that department of the factory.

IN A LUNCH CLUB

A rather rowdy lunch club organized in a western city numbered in its membership a quiet mannered individual who was known to be an active and devoted Christian. Because of his sterling character he enjoyed the respect of all his fellow club members, even though he did not join them in some of their rowdy escapades. Then there came a day when, under the impassioned plea of a few hot heads, the club was about to take a stand upon a public issue which was sure to involve them in no little shame in the months ahead. At that moment, the churchman, quiet and solemn of manner, arose and called them back to sanity. The motion which seemed at the point of being crowded through was defeated. A club was saved from a disastrous mistake and at the close of the meeting the Christian was surrounded by those who wanted to say, "Your speech gave me the courage to stand up for my convictions and think clearly." The church was in that situation also.

THRUSTING CHRISTIANS OUT

In a certain southern city there stand two powerful churches. One of them takes pride in the large number of its members who serve with the Community chest, the Boy Scouts, the Y.M.C.A. social agencies, and similar institutions. The other, composed of people of about the same social and economic importance, never so much as commends the community chest. Yet, it makes loud claims for its "orthodoxy." Which of these two, thinkest thou, deserves the name Christian? The church is most a church which thrusts the largest percentage of its membership out into the community, there to serve as the saving salt of society.

ON A FOOTBALL FIELD

The coach of the football team from a small church-related college sat on the sidelines watching his team play for the most coveted victory of the year. Toward the closing minutes of the game, with the score a tie, one of his ends took the ball, and in a spectacular run, crossed the goal line while the crowd went mad with delight. Instantly, however, the coach was on his feet, running in the direction of the officials. "Southwestern refuses the goal," he said. "My man stepped out of bounds." And a careful examination of the tracks of the runner revealed the accuracy of the coach's eye-sight. That day that college won its greatest victory. The church was on the football field.

Weatherman Sees No Speedy End To Surprise Gale

TORONTO (CP) — March winds blew in a surprise snowstorm to most of southern Ontario this morning. The weatherman gives little hope of let-up in the driving, drifting snow all day.

The storm which hovered over the Texas Panhandle Friday blew into southern Ontario late Friday night, covering Toronto and Windsor with four inches, London and Niagara Falls with only one inch and Hamilton with up to five inches.

Roads in the Niagara and Kingston districts are reported heavy and icy. Three inches of snow was reported in the Kingston area. Snow had ceased falling by 8 a.m. at Niagara Falls.

Meanwhile the storm had reached as far northward as Ottawa, Muskoka, Wiarton and Killaloe.

In eastern Ontario the fall was spotty but driving winds made measurement difficult. Trenton and Belleville reported six inches early today while Smiths Falls to five miles north only had two inches.

6-Inch Snowfall Blankets District

An estimated six inches of snow fell over Belleville and district at 11 a.m. today.

The heavy blanket was the result of a sudden snowfall during the night that held true to the unpredictable weather conditions prevailing since March came roaring in.

A heavy curtain of snow continued to flake down on the city and district through the day slowing traffic to a crawl in the downtown section. The snowfall picture, however, was not as mean as the weather with the mercury registering 36 degrees above zero here.

Ten miles to the west at Trenton, six inches of snow also were reported to have fallen. Fifteen miles north at Stirling only two inches were reported.

About three inches had fallen at Tweed up to 11.30 a.m.

Motorists are warned to drive carefully as the roads are slushy. Snow plows this morning were busy clearing thoroughfares.

Forecast for the week-end predicts the fall diminishing to snowflurries this afternoon. Sunday's seen as cloudy with occasional mainly light snow and flurries. Temperatures will continue cold.

GOLF STAR MARRIES

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—Bobby Locke, 37, South Africa's open golf champion, was married here today at Johannesburg magistrate's court to Mrs. Sheila Sandford, 34, of Johannesburg. The three times British open champion, has a daughter by a previous marriage.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: A weak low pressure area which had been moving due east through Texas reached Friday, began to move in a northeasterly direction and is today near the Great Lakes. Saturday morning it was heading straight north towards lower lakes. As a result of the change in direction, snow which had been expected to remain south of the lakes pushed up into southern Ontario. As the low continues slowly northward, it will carry the snow with it into central Ontario today and northern regions tonight. Following the passage of this disturbance the continuous snow will diminish to occasional flurries except in the lee of the lakes where heavier falls and snowsqualls will persist through Sunday.

HOUSE RECEIVES REQUEST FOR MORE AID TO MINERS

Parliament Discusses Final Set of Estimates

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament has received requests for more federal aid towards easing the crop troubles of prairie farmers and the hard-pressed coal miners in the East and the West.

Commons members urged the government to lay out more money for both sets of primary producers Friday as the House discussed the final set of estimates—government spending figures—for the financial year which ends March 31.

Members from the main coal-digging provinces of Nova Scotia and Alberta wanted increased expenditures for federal measures that help the fuel to central markets and for development of a coal-burning gas turbine engine that would provide an economical outlet for coal.

Prairie spokesmen urged boosts now to double the amount now paid—in reimbursement to grain growers under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act.

ADVANCES MONEY

Meanwhile, the Commons voted to advance the government $317,-674,000 for the first two allotments for the 1955-56 fiscal year. This is the customary annual procedure. The amount represents part of main expenditures of $4,-360,360,000 for the year.

On the supplementary estimates, the amounts were also rising with $33,994,000 that represents a cleanup of estimated spending totalling $178,4000 for the present fiscal year.

The big item in the supplementaries, $28,758,000 to cover the 1954 deficit of the publicly-owned CNR, failed to get past the House Friday night. Progressive Conservatives delayed passage until the CNR report can be considered next week by the usual House committee on the railways.

The government's coal and prairie farm assistance items went through unchanged, but only after members had urged boosts in the coming year's appropriations.

ASKS INCREASE

On coal, C. E. Johnston, Social Credit constituency Alberta Bow River constituency, said subventions should be increased to encourage Canadian coal to compete more favorably in Ontario and Quebec with United States fuels. Subventions are treasury payments towards the freight costs on Canadian coal.

He spoke on a final item of $1,000,000 in the supplementaries to bring coal subventions for the year up to about $9,000,000.

Mr. Johnston also said coal-burning gas turbine experiments at Saskatchewan University financed by federal treasury should be speeded up.

The House voted an additional $30,000 for the turbine tests, bringing the total to $485,000 over five years. Finance Minister Harris said he should know how long the program will run.

Approved municipal capital expenditures were $240,203,000 in 1954 and municipal revenues $448,098,-000. Provincial provincial subsidies of $148,698,250.

Estimates of the departments of the attorney-general and the provincial treasurer are to be considered next week and the budget debate is to continue.

Professor Says U.S. Foreign Policy Leaves War Decision to Mao, Chiang

TORONTO (CP)—A professor of international relations at Columbia University said Friday night the United States policy in Formosa is, in effect, leaving the decision whether a third world war will be fought to Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tse-tung.

Nathaniel Peffer, speaking during a panel discussion on "China, Formosa and the United States," said he believes the Communists intend to take Formosa and coastal islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

This would lead to a slow Communist Chinese advance through Asia which would eventually have to be resisted by the United States. Formosa is not worth a major war, he added.

He said the United States had so committed herself to the defence of Formosa and its territories, the decision concerning the next war could be up to the two Chinese leaders.

The panel was sponsored by the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs which also sponsors the summer Couchiching conferences.

Eleven Ontario Residents Die in Accidents on Friday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One little boy was drowned Friday when he tried to retrieve his ball from a creek, another was killed as he crossed a street and a young girl was crushed beneath the wheels of a truck.

They were among 11 persons who died violently in Ontario Friday.

Bryan Mackinnon, 4, became Toronto's 17th fatality of the year when he slipped on to Queen street and was hit by a stake truck.

Jane Gilbert, 3, was believed to have crawled beneath a milk truck while it was parked near her home in suburban York Township. The driver said he felt a bump as he pulled away.

Sidney Merchant, 3, of Markham was drowned when he tumbled down a 15-foot slope to retrieve his ball. He was only a few feet from the ball when the ice on the creek broke.

Ross Young, 33, of Bath, was drowned in Lake Ontario when eight miles east of Kingston when his boat foundered. Fred Kellar, 30, also in the boat, managed to swim to shore.

Sgt. William Haynox, 32, was killed when his car crashed into a tree as he was returning to his London, Ont. home after visiting Kitchener.

Frederick Cleary, 66, died in hospital at Cornwall of injuries received in an automobile collision last week.

Seven-week-old Shawn McMahon was accidentally smothered in his bed when struck by a car while walking along the highway two miles west of Sudbury.

Two men were killed when their car struck the side of a bridge near Chatham. They were identified as Harris Poisard and John de Cada.

John Israelis, 16, of Chatham, was killed in a car accident five miles west of Ridgetown.

Mervin Bell, 20, of trapper Stewart Matthews, 37, was found near St. Thomas. He had been 30, also in the boat, managed to missing since last Tuesday's storm.

U.S. Army Taking Over Job Of Trying to Break Ice Jam

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States Army planned today to take over the job of trying to break up the glacier-like wall of ice which has roughly shouldered its way down the lower Niagara River almost nearly everything in its path.

Col. Leroy Olmstead, U.S. Army reconcement after a meeting Friday night of engineer officers and mayors of Niagara Falls, Ont., Youngstown, the two towns on the American side hardest hit by the ice.

Mayors Ashlon McEvoy of Lewiston and Henry Yale of Youngstown had appealed to the engineers to do something about the ice mass which has been in the lower river since wind storm Tuesday swept Lake Erie free from the upper end and then over the falls.

The ice has reached the 40- to 50-foot mark in places, and has spilled over the river banks, crushing summer-permanent docks as well as docks and boat sheds.

No overall estimate of the damage is yet available, but in Lewiston alone it has reached almost $200,000.

Army engineers said a helicopter would be flown out over the middle of the ice about 1,000 feet from the mouth of the river, scheduled for this week-end.

A demolitions expert would be lowered in a special harness to the surface of the ice. It's hoped that there would be holes in the ice deep enough to allow the planting of the dynamite well under the surface crust.

Should the first attempt at jarring loose the wall of ice fail, another try would be made further upstream.

The engineers had previously maintained that dynamite would have no effect on the ice, since the depth underneath would only act as a cushion. An attempt to dynamite the pack failed Wednesday, and engineers said at that time that nature would have to take its course before doing in the ice for of a slow thaw.

A top-rapid thaw might result in worse flood threats, however, said authorities.

Aside from smashing river-front homes and other structures, the ice has hampered power plants on both sides of the river but engineers say the three bridges spanning the gorge, and the Lewiston suspension bridge, are in no danger.

Cambridge Defeats Oxford By 16 Lengths

LONDON (Reuters) — The Cambridge University crew won the annual race with Oxford on the River Thames today.

Cambridge led from the start and pulled away strongly in the last ha. half of the 4¼-mile race to win the 101st Oxford - Cambridge race by a wide margin.

The underdog Cambridge crew finished 16 lengths ahead of favored Oxford rowers.

Cambridge's official time was 19:10. The record is 17:50 set by Cambridge in 1949.

Oxford were 7-to-3 favorites to win the race.

Autopsy Ordered In Death Of Goalkeeper

TORONTO (CP) — An autopsy has been ordered in the death in hospital Thursday night of Dale Rutherford, 21-year-old goalkeeper with the Port Hope Panthers juvenile hockey club.

Doctors said Rutton died of natural causes but are checking a possibility that hockey injuries may have been a factor. He was knocked unconscious in a third-period scramble around the nets in a game against Gananoque two days ago.

Teammates said Rutton continued in the net after regaining consciousness. Coach Irv Downey said Dale "shrugged it off as nothing."

Trenton Man, Vic Wilson, Wins $280 in Sweeps

TRENTON, (Special.) — Vic Wilson, 23, of York Rd., Trenton, a welder at the General Motors plant, Oshawa, is $280 richer in his Irish sweepstakes.

He held ticket 82234, under the name of Jerome, "Lucky You" The ticket was held on Martindale, Ont., by Mrs. Jerome, in today's Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, England.

Mrs. Jerome, her holdings a ticket, he will receive 100 pounds sterling.

He bought his ticket from his future mother-in-law, who lives in Campbellford.

Wilson, who is to be married in June, has his winnings earmarked for wedding expenses.

Education Cost Rising Rapidly

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. J. G. Althouse, chief director of education for Ontario, said today that by 1963 about $1,000,000,000 in school debentures will be outstanding in the province.

He told the Toronto Rotary Club this means school board will have to pay $80,000,000 a year to retire the capital debt charges before spending a cent on salaries or school upkeep.

Dr. Althouse said that within 10 years both secondary and university enrolment will rise 50 per cent.

FEDERAL BUDGET SURPLUS SHOWS SLIGHT DECREASE

Just Third of Level Shown Last Year

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal treasury entered March, the last month of its current fiscal year, with a budgetary surplus one-third of its level a year earlier. The situation gave added weight to reports that Finance Minister Harris will announce a deficit for 1954-55 when he presents his first budget April 5.

Mr. Harris reported Friday that February's budgetary accounts ran into an $19,319,000 deficit which sliced the surplus for the first 11 months of the year to $103,211,000.

The year-end rush of bills to be paid is expected to turn that corner into a deficit unofficially forecast at possibly $100,000,000 by the end of March.

A year ago all 11-month surplus of $310,914,000 was cut to $46,000,-000 by year's end.

LOWER SPENDING

Expenditures in February were lower by $2,500,000 than a year earlier due mainly to lower spending on defence and public debt charges. The 11-month total expenditures of $3,656,800,000 was unchanged from a year ago.

Revenues continued to lag. They totalled $305,132,000 in February, compared with $351,277,000 a year earlier. The 11-month total stood at $3,660,000,000 as against $3,-878,000,000.

Major drop was in collections of corporation income taxes, down to $80,082,000 in February from $94,-241,000 a year ago, making an 11-month total of $286,798,000 as against $1,068,147,000.

Personal income tax collections continued strong in February at $128,129,000, up from $78,084,000 last year. The 11-month total, $1,102,-932,000, was virtually unchanged from a year ago.

FUND HAS DEFICIT

The lower trend of tax collections has left the unemployment in the Old Age Security Fund which in February had a deficit of $9,-500,000 — largest monthly deficit since July, 1952. Payments of the $40 monthly pension to all persons over 70 are financed by allotments of two per cent of personal and corporation income taxes and a special two-per-cent sales tax.

Pension payments in the first 11 months of the year were $60,-000,000 more than the $1,000,000,000 compared with an 11-month deficit of $48,100,000 a year earlier. Shortages in the fund are covered by temporary loans from the finance minister.

CHARGE TWO SPIES

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Two more persons in Sweden's new spy case were formally charged Friday with espionage. Similarly charged in the ring has resulted in the expulsion of four Soviet satellite diplomats and the arrest of 12 persons. Agreed with complicity were a 40-year-old former Czech woman, now living in Stockholm, and a Swedish mechanic.

1,000 Arrested as Belgians Riot In Protest at Cut in Subsidies

BRUSSELS (CP)—Mounted federal police charged in the Belgian coal fields crowds throwing stones during anti-cut government demonstrations here today.

At least 1,000 persons were arrested as police attacked them at the crowds protesting the Belgian government's cut in subsidies to Roman Catholic schools.

Police lining the main boulevards subjected the demonstrators to identity checks and searches, and many were arrested with knives ,empty bottles and clubs.

Those arrested were taken to a Hilary barracks and held on charges of endangering the peace.

The Belgian government had banned today's planned demonstration and ringed the city with heavily armed police to keep the demonstrators out. But they managed to march in small groups this morning walking the streets wearing red triangular buttons saying is bitterly dividing the country.

Quare Times Wins Grand National; Tudor Line Second

Torontonian Gets $137,500, 6 Hold Second Place Horse

AINTREE, England (AP)—Quare Times won the 109th Grand National steeplechase today in the mud and rain at Aintree before a large crowd including the Queen and other members of the Royal Family.

Ridden by Pat Taaffe, the nine-year-old bay gelding, carrying 154 pounds, finished ahead of Tudor Line with Carey's Cottage third in the field of 30 starters in the world's toughest horse race, a gruelling four-mile and 985-yard grind over 30 jumps.

Quare Times' victory gave Irish trainer Vincent O'Brien his third straight success in the Grand National—a record.

Cope, the post-time favorite at 7 to 1, fell the first time around.

Quare Times, at 100 to 9, finished 12 lengths ahead of Tudor Line and collected £3,950. Tudor Line earned £1,000 and Carey's Cottage, which finished four lengths out of second, received £53.

Gigolo was fourth and won £271 and Devon Fields fifth and £135.

The winner, owned by Mrs. E. W. H. Petch, is by Artist's Son out of Lavenco.

O'Brien, the jovial Irishman, scored his second consecutive triple with three different horses. His trained Early Mist, the 1953 winner, and Royal Tan who won last year. The two horses ran out of the money this time.

The start of today's race, on which 1,000 hospital sweepstakes is decided, was delayed six minutes by fractious horses.

The field finally started, and the Queen arrived draped in a long rain coat early in the afternoon. The course was very heavy, and officials decided to eliminate the water jump in front of the stands. This cut the number of jumps in the race to 29.

TORONTONIAN WINS

Mrs. Camilla de Torontonian, held a ticket on Quare Times, which won the Grand National steeplechase today at Aintree, England. Six held tickets on Tudor Line, the second place horse. The first ticket was worth $137,500 while the second-horse tickets are each worth $53,500.

Standing Committee Chairmen Tell of Progress During Year

Standing committees of the Belleville General Hospital's Board of Governors presented their activities for 1954 at the Board's annual meeting held Friday afternoon in the recreation room of the nurses' residence.

Extended reports of certain committees are published elsewhere in this edition.

Following are synopses of committee reports.

ACCOUNTS RECEIVABLE

As of Dec. 31st, 1954, accounts receivable totalled $143,572.29 from all sources; patients in hospital, private pay, out-patients, Blue Cross, Workmen's Compensation Board, Indigents from Belleville, Hastings County, and other municipalities, the Dept. of Indian Affairs, the Dept. of Veterans' Affairs, and Credit Associates.

Of the total, patients in hospital owed $56,019.69; personal pay amounted to $63,697.31 and out-patients owed $2,945.22. The remainder was payment from insurance plans, government agencies and municipalities.

Of the total accounts receivable $101,522.93, or 70.7 per cent, were less than 90 days old; $17,056.52, or 11.9 per cent, had been owing from 91 to 180 days; $15,041.18, or 10.5 per cent, owing for 6-12 months and only $9,952.69, or 6.9 per cent, owing for more than one year.

Of total revenue collected during the year only $331,092.42, or 34.1 per cent, was collected from payments by individuals. Insurance plans, municipalities, governments, services and provincial grants provided the remainder of the hospital's 1954 revenues.

SUPPLIES COMMITTEE

The supplies committee reported purchase of $7,686.11 during 1954 for a variety of items ranging from gravel for the parking lot to a Coleman spectrophotometer. The committee met seven times during the year. It was the committee's opinion that if adequate storage facilities were available further savings could be realized by buying in larger quantities.

PUBLIC RELATIONS

The public relations committee was subdivided into a public relations and personnel committee during 1954. Sub-committees of the public relations committee later were formed for (1) press and for the radio; (2) special events; (3) collection of pledges.

The public relations committee during 1954 included publication of three "Hospital Reviews"; broadcasting of a 10-program series entitled "Hospital Radio Forum"; commencement of production of a film about the hospital to be used for public relations work; press and radio reporting of special events, such as Hospital Day, nurses' graduations, and-luncheon ceremonies for the new wing, the annual board meeting and so on.

The committee also established a speakers' panel of department heads and supervisors who are available to service clubs and organizations to explain certain phases of hospital activity.

A. M. Francis and E. F. Bernstein headed the pledge collection committee which is continuing the work of maintaining pledge payments on schedule.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE

Three prime considerations of the property committee in 1954 were: (1) maintenance of existing buildings and services; 2) renovation and modernization, and the building of new, facilities and equipment, and (3) the new hospital addition.

General maintenance included painting of all rooms in the isolation wing, the nursery, isolation nursery and premature nursery, utility room on the second floor, south, all rooms in the medical area on the third floor south and various rooms in the nurses' residence and the kitchen.

Plumbing done during 1954 included complete overhaul in the boiler house, new sinkers and water pipes to the dishwasher, new soil pipe from the isolation wing to the sewer, new sinks in the kitchen and in the morgue.

Considerable plumbing, electrical and plastering repair work was done in the nurses' residence.

Roof on the main section was repaired and on the south wing completely re-shingled following extensive damage by Hurricane Hazel last August.

A considerable amount of new equipment was built for the hospital by the maintenance department in the hospital's new workshop.

The property committee was extremely busy during the year working with the architects and later with the contractor on plans for and the construction of the new wing. In addition to securing final approval of plans during the year the committee awarded tenders and construction was commenced.

NURSING SERVICE

Miss Margaret E. Peart, Reg. N. director of the School of Nursing, presented an outstanding report of the nursing service for 1954. Her report, presented in detail, reflected the high quality and excellence of the nursing service provided in the Belleville General Hospital.

The report of the School of Nursing, also presented by Miss Peart, revealed that 35 student nurses are training in the nursing school's three-year course. Six classroom instructors and eight clinical instructors provide teaching in the nursing school.

The educational program of classroom and clinical instruction was presented in detail, while reports were also given on the instructors' conferences, post graduate students and the hospital's facilities for field experience, methods employed by the school for recruiting student nurses, refresher course programs for instructors, student nurse association activities, social activities of nurses, and projects undertaken during the year.

Miss Peart recommended that thought be given to increasing classroom and clinical teaching facilities in the future; that a suitable kitchenette and laundry room be provided in the Ritchie Memorial Residence and that furniture in the lounge of the Ritchie Memorial Residence be replaced.

Miss Margaret K. Barrett, Reg.N., health services of the school nursing presented her annual report on the hospital's health program for nurses.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

A report of the outstanding work of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was presented by Mrs. Ruth W. Kennedy, recording secretary.

The report included a summary of the activities of the Auxiliary's 11 standing committees and listed work of nine special committees.

During 1954 the auxiliary added the founding and operation of "The Coffee Shoppe" to its list of major projects.

Fund raising activities included the operation of the Opportunity Shop, the Coffee Snack, the Fashion Show, the annual tea, Donations of equipment to the hospital, payment of bursaries to nurses in training, indigent patient treats, and donations from the various committees, featured the Auxiliary's program of service.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel pointed out that since the Auxiliary was formed in 1938 it has donated $80,000 worth of equipment to the hospital as well as providing the hospital with thousands of hours of volunteer service.

H. F. M. Cane stated that the thousands of hours of volunteer service donated to Auxiliary projects during the year represent a great contribution to the hospital. He paid tribute to the spirit in which this effort is given cannot be measured in dollars but that the value of the service to the hospital was worth thousands.

Fire Damages Boiler Room At Halloran Garage

Damage amounting to an estimated $300 resulting this morning when the boiler room at the rear of the Halloran Garage on Canniffton Road caught fire from the furnace.

An employee at the garage found the blaze when he reported for work and immediately turned in the alarm. The fire truck went to the scene under Fire Chief Gerald Vance and firemen were successful in confining the blaze to the boiler room. The ceiling and roof of the room were fire damaged.

The blaze is believed to have started from the boiler, which apparently became over-heated during the night.

Woman Thrown Out of Car In Collision

Thrown out of the car, when the auto in which she was riding went out of control and struck a highway transport, Mrs. Rachel Mathews, Canniff, suffered a cut eye and facial lacerations early this morning. Mrs. Mathews was treated at Belleville General Hospital and then allowed to go home.

Mrs. Matthews was passenger in a car driven by Marjorie Cannons of R.R. 1, Consecon, the two women being on their way to attend a dance when their car went out of control on a curve west of Canniff. The car skidded into the side of the approaching transport and ended up in the ditch. Mrs. Mathews was thrown out of the vehicle onto the highway.

Ontario Provincial Police Cpl. Harry Barker and Constable Robertson investigated.

Miss N. Clarke, Cannifton, Marks 107th Birthday Sunday

Believed to be the oldest woman in Ontario, a little old lady at the Cairn Nursing home at Cannifton, three miles south of here, will celebrate her 107th birthday Sunday, March 27th.

She is Miss Nellie Clarke who was born in Leeds county of English parents the year before Confederation, 1866, gold rush.

But despite her advanced age Miss Clarke still remarkably active and according to her doctor "has the heart of a young woman. She peels the potatoes and does other minor household chores and walks unaided up and down stairs.

Although there is no official record of Miss Clarke's birth, her age is vouched for by Sid. Hagerman, Kingston garage operator with whose family she lived as a young woman. Miss Clarke lived as a hired girl with Mr. Hagerman's grandfather and grandmother and spent most of her life in Addington county. She went to school at Lake's Mills, about 12 miles southeast of Napanee.

NEARLY DROWNED

It was while going to school as a young girl that Miss Clarke suffered an accident which has had a lasting effect on her life. She nearly drowned, completely deaf and bears only with a hearing aid.

It was while living with the Hagermans that all record of Miss Clarke's age was lost. The Hagerman home was burned 75 years ago and the family Bible in which Miss Clarke's birth was noted, was lost in the fire.

She has been receiving the old age pension since she was 84 when her age was vouched for by friends.

But as far as Miss Clarke is concerned her age is unimportant. She still enjoys a good chat with an old friend and is always glad to see callers. She doesn't know exactly how old she is but at times she claims she feels "about 72."

REMEMBERS FIRST RAILWAY

But she does remember when the auto industries of South Addington county burned the forest to clear the land and establish farms. She remembers when the first railways went through and that the first locomotives burned wood instead of coal. She also remembers carding wool and weaving it into cloth to make clothing and how settlers made their own candles to light their homes.

She is just a bit skeptical of modern comforts. She terms the oil burning range at the Cairn household "a lazy man's fire" with no ashes to carry out.

Despite her age Miss Clarke doesn't believe in dieting. She eats with the chickens. She is up almost every morning until ten or eleven o'clock and then is up again at the crack of dawn. Until the last three years, when she health began to fail, she had not had a doctor for 45 years. She still has a wonderful appetite.

She has no known relatives but a large number of friends are expected to call for a visit on her birthday. Two week ago Miss Clarke received a letter from Prime Minister St. Laurent offering congratulations on her 107th birthday.

Legion Holds Crib Tourney

On Wednesday evening last a euchre crib tourney was successfully held in the Legion Club Rooms with 13 tables in play and players from Tweed, Madoc, Marmora, Consecon, Bancroft and Belleville competing.

When the final count was tallied Tweed branch had won by 26 points, followed by Belleville with 24, Madoc 19, Marmora 16 and Bancroft 15. Comrades C. Cassidy and R. Langole of the Tweed team had a perfect score winning all the games they played and were awarded with suitable trophies for their efforts, donated by Comrade Gunn of Madoc.

Refreshments were served by the host branch after the games to climax a very successful and entertaining evening.

QUARE TIMES

The feel of so much cold cash will be recognized by Mrs. Lapp, who worked as a teller in a branch of the Imperial Bank in Vancouver until her marriage last June. That unique thrill of personally handling money, however, will be something entirely new.

Winning $35,000 is the second success at prize pools for Mrs. Lapp. Her first was a $5.00 prize in a Belleville draw.

Mrs. Lapp's husband, Garth, is an instructor mechanician at the Trenton Air Station. He joined the RCAF in 1952.

When the telegram from the sweepstakes committee arrived from Dublin early this week, LAC and Mrs. Lapp made modest plans for their possible winnings.

They expressed a hope that some day they might buy a ranch on Vancouver Island and that a major prize would make it possible to realize this dream. This morning, with a $35,000 assured, Mrs. Lapp said she and her husband would have to consider what their future plans would be.

LAC Lapp has a month's leave coming up and he and Mrs. Lapp have decided they will use that month to plan their future.

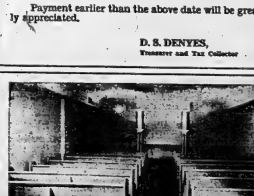
Garth's father, owner of a barber shop in Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, has been anxious to have his son join him in the business. Garth had planned to take a barbering course following his discharge from the air force and then take a partnership in his father's business.

"We will have to think all this out," they chorused this morning.

Fire-race predictions had Tudor Line the favorite at 7 to 1. Possibility of a first place finish worth $140,000 was literally exciting LAC and Mrs. Lapp, but the only outward evidence of their excitement was the installation of a short wave radio in their apartment so that they could hear a broadcast of the race direct from Aintree.

Despite the fact that the Lapps had a ticket in the sweepstakes, one offered to buy the ticket from them prior to the race.

"We had a conference when we heard we had a horse and decided that since we'd come this far on a chance we would go all the way," said Mrs. Lapp.



How do the Lapps plan to celebrate their windfall?

"I guess we might have dinner out tonight," said Mrs. Lapp.

Stories of Famous Hymns

SHOMACE B. POWELL

AS WITH GLADNESS MEN OF OLD

As with gladness men of old
Did the guiding star behold;
As with joy they hailed its light,
Leading onward, beaming bright;
So, most gracious Lord, may we
Evermore be led to Thee.

As with joyful steps they sped
To that lowly manger bed,
There to bend the knee before
Him whom heaven and earth adore;
So may we with willing feet
Ever seek thy mercy seat.

Holy Jesus, every day
Keep us in the narrow way;
And, when earthly things are past,
Bring our ransomed souls at last
Where they need no star to guide,
Where no clouds thy glory hide.

The Christian Church has had some great and gifted lay poets and, when they are being counted, the name of William Chatterton Dix must always be remembered.

Mr. Dix, a native of Bristol, England, was only 23 years old when, one day in 1859, he finished his beautiful Epiphany hymn, "As With Gladness Men Of Old." The famous song became even more precious and interesting to those who know that it was written while its author was recovering from a critical illness.

At first, the new song appeared in a small private collection entitled "Hymns Of Love And Joy" but not long afterward it was given a place of honor in the "Hymns Ancient And Modern", the Church of England hymnal. Today it is found in hymn lists throughout our Christian world.

Mr. Dix was of a marine insurance firm in Glasgow, Scotland but in his leisure hours he found time to write poems, some of the hymns most precious to Christians of his own day and of ours. "Come Unto Me, When Shadows Are Deep", "Sweet songs, "Hallelujah! Sing To Jesus" and "Sweetest And The Fairest Of Earth" also are from his pen.

In all, he wrote 30 or 30 hymns, some of which he published in his hymns Of Love And Joy" collection, and some in a later volume of "Altar Songs".

A Lift For Living

Beyond Ease of Mind

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

If I were to ask you, "Do you want peace?" a mighty chorus would answer "Yes!" But when we say peace, what do we have in mind?

Most of us, no doubt, would think of peace between nations. All godly people pray fervently for international peace in this hydrogen age.

But suppose we were able to receive the present tensions and to organize the family of nations under world law. Would we have peace? No. Peace between nations does not guarantee peace within nations.

And suppose we could organize our national economy to do away with industrial and racial conflict. Some of us would remain at strife within our social circles, even our families.

A lot of people are so concerned about the frictions in their own lives, that they give little thought to large social and world problems. Many of us recall the letter reported to have been written during the last war by a soldier to his wife back home, asking her to stop nagging him so that he could "fight the war in peace."

LIST OF DESIRES

And suppose we were domestically serene and economically secure. We might be anxious about our health and torn by temptations. The late Rabbi Joshua Liebman began his best-selling book, "Peace of Mind," with the statement that in his youth he had made a list of earthly desirables—wealth, love, riches, beauty, talent, power, fame and a few others.

He showed his list to a wise old friend, who told him that he had left out one ingredient without which each other possession become a hideous torment. That one thing is peace of mind. When the world around us is in such disarray, let us find what peace we can within us.

But, like all good programs, the search for peace of mind can become selfish and soft. We must not seek the peace of personal comfort undisturbed by the realities around us. We must seek the true peace which God gives.

EARNLY SWAYED

First of all, it is peace within ourselves. If a person is not at peace within himself, he is pretty sure to be at odds with other people. The man whose own life is not orderly is like a ship whose ballast has become loose. A ship with loosened ballast rolls unmanageably, a menace to itself and to other craft in the convoy. The person who feels frustrated or unjustly victimized easily becomes the tool of the agitator and the warmonger.

To those persons who receive Him as the ruler of their lives, God brings the peace of ordered life. When God takes command of a life, He forbids even the hint of strife, He clears the decks, He organizes the crew of interests which keep the person going. In short, He makes a life shipshape.

God shows us what things should have priority, what are ends and what are means. He gives us a singleness of purpose so that we are not diverted by side issues.

SEES ESSENTIALS

A godly friend of mine on his 80th birthday received a letter from his seventy in these words: "As I get older, life becomes simpler because I see the essentials more clearly in the evening light."

Moreover, God lends our peace of mind against many a loss. Yonder is a family at Sunday dinner. All members are there and their ruin and prosperous. The father leans back and says, "I am at peace with the world." But what if tomorrow death invaded that home, or the bottom dropped out of the father's business.

Contrast that family scene with one the Christian world is about to observe. On the last night of His life Jesus sat at table with His disciples. He knew that death awaited Him on the morrow. Yet He could say to His friends: "Peace I leave with you. My peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you." He was at peace with God.

And that is more than to be "at peace with the world."

Who Was This?

By A. A. M.

What was the name of the apostle who replied to a lame beggar, "Silver and gold have I none; but I give you what I have. In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, walk!"

This apostle, in the company of 4 friends, was on his way to the temple to pray. They had just reached the Gate named Beautiful, when they were asked for alms. The unfortunate man, who had been lame all his life, was told to look at them.

After the cripple had been commanded to walk, the apostle took him by the right hand and raised him up. Strength flowed into the man's feet and ankles. Leaping up, he stood erect. Then he walked with the apostles to the temple, praising God.

All the people who saw him were amazed at what had happened, and they praised God.

He should his hearers, "Men of Israel, why do you wonder at this? Why do you stare at us, as though by our own power or piety we have made him well?" Then he explained that it was by faith in the name of Jesus that this man had been made strong in the sight of all of them.

The apostle admitted that, in their ignorance they and their rulers had killed Jesus, the Author of life, whom God raised from the dead. He was with them in him from their wickedness.

The people, numbering about five thousand, were much impressed and many believed. But the priests were very annoyed when the apostle proclaimed Jesus and the resurrection of the dead. These religious rulers arrested the two apostles, as it was evening. Read this apostle's name and this story in Acts Ch. 3, Ch. 4, vs. 1-4.

Birthdays Are Important

By NANCY CLEAVER

"What day was I born on? Can you say the birthday rhyme for me?" How often a child asks for this anonymous little verse which was quoted almost 70 years ago in Harper's Weekly.

"Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is loving and giving,
Thursday's child works hard for a living,
Friday's child is full of woe,
Saturday's child has far to go,
But the child that is born on the Sabbath day
Is brave and bonny, and good and gay."

GREAT FASCINATION

Birthdays have a great fascination for boys and girls. They want to know not only on what day they were born, but they long to be told how much father and mother wanted a little son or daughter. A child will listen eagerly to the story of mother going to the hospital, of mother's and dad's first glimpse of him or what he looked like, when he was tiny.

A birthday party is a great event for a child. It does take extra work and careful planning—but it is well worth all the trouble. This special event gives a child happy memories to look back on when he is grown and away from home. Part of the secret of a successful party is to let the child share in making the plans for it and assist in the preparations. Encourage a child to print his own invitations and if possible, deliver them.

Janey, a fluffy-haired old girl, asked her mother, "Couldn't I have a doll dress-making birthday party?" The month before, her mother had cut out a doll's dress from a pretty remnant piece of cotton broadcloth. With just a little direction and help, Janey had sewn her first doll's dress. Her "feeling of achievement was very great.

HAPPY DAZE

Her mother was willing to follow Janey's suggestion. Each little girl invited to the party was asked to bring a small doll. Two of the other mothers helped with the doll dresses. The happy guests sat around the table and chattered like their grandmothers at a quilting bee 50 years ago. They took home their partly sewn doll dresses instead of the usual party favors. They all considered this one of the best parties they had ever attended—and it started a wave of doll dressmaking!

Billy, who was six, asked his mother if his guests couldn't be Indians at his party. The mother bought light-weight cardboard and cut out headbands with feathers sticking up from them. When they arrived, each guest was given a headband and, instead of the kitchen table with a small box of crayons, they sat on the boys kind coloring their Indian headgear! Then each proudly wore it home with them at the end of the party as "loot".

They had a great time trying to make tepees with rugs and large bath towels and setting up the fancy pins. When they were tired out after an Indian war dance, Billy's mother told them to tell Indian legends. Then they ate their meal, Indian style, out under the trees.

BIRTHDAY CELEBRATIONS

In some families, everyone attends to make a birthday the special day treat, providing there is a suitable show for the younger children. A few families find that entertaining at home is too much for her strength, the guests attending a movie is a substitute for games. In some households, a birthday meal at a good restaurant is the best given mother a pleasant holiday from the kitchen. A family expedition to a local place of interest can be a satisfactory birthday "spree".

Whatever form plans for a birthday, it is the love expressed not only in gifts but in a happy shared experience which makes it a red letter day. Birthday celebrations help to build a family together. Thus they are significant, not only for the child whose natal day is being celebrated, but they also have value for the home as a unit. Birthdays are indeed important! Why not make different plans for the birthdays in your family this year, and not just follow the same pattern of other years?

A QUESTION OF STYLE

In the light of recent "riots" at hockey games in Toronto and Montreal, it is apparent that the Penticton V's, in winning the world hockey championship in Germany, must have been something less than the rowdies we have been led to believe.

Efforts to control the actions of teenage hockey fans in Belleville: 35 cents per week.

Suggestions that the "world hockey tournament" should be held in Canada, "the home of hockey," should be shelved at once, world tensions being what they are. In the meantime it would seem safe to congratulate the V's for winning the hockey championship with a style of play to which Canadians are becoming less and less accustomed.

TEA TIME IN CANADA

The war is on!

The Tea Council of Canada has announced that this is the week to "live big going in an effort to wean more Canadians to the friendly cup of tea."

Artillery and the process of weaning are not customarily crammed into the same sentence in this manner, but major guns are necessary when you wean "to" instead of "from."

There should really be no reason to wield a gun, even one which is merely a figure of speech, in order to get Canadians to drink tea. It is a good drink. Unfortunately, as with many other of the good things of life, if we are to enjoy it to the fullest extent, we need to devote some time to this pleasure. In the home this is no problem. But restaurant tea is a draft of a different flavor. Rarely is it sufficiently steeped. If the tea industry could devise an "instant" tea that would provide a stout-colored, stout-tasting beverage the moment it was introduced to boiling water, tea sales would jump as lustily as a hooked muskie!

NEW THREAT TO GATT

Does the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade violate the US Constitution?

A powerful manufacturing group in the United States believes it does. With strong support from members of the US Senate, this group has initiated court proceedings to test GATT's constitutionality and to challenge the right of Congress to delegate control over tariffs to the President.

This move goes a long way to make the future of GATT even more uncertain than it is at present. It may be months or even years before the case comes before the Supreme Court. Until such time as the Supreme Court has ruled on the matter, whatever Congress or the President may do to give effect to the country's obligations under GATT will be meaningless.

In the face of mounting uncertainty regarding GATT's future, it seems little point in other trading nations pinning their hopes on what may come out of the Geneva trade conference.

PERILS OF ONE-CROP FARMING

Cash income figures for Canadian agriculture in 1954, just released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, show how fortunate it is that farmers in this country don't put all their eggs in one basket—particularly if the contents of that basket have to be sold in the uncertain export market.

The decline of 12 per cent in farm cash income last year, according to DBS, was confined almost exclusively to the wheat producing provinces of the Prairies. Worst hit was Saskatchewan, where cash returns were down $277 million, 37 per cent below the 1953 figure. Manitoba and Alberta were somewhat less severely affected by the poor export market for wheat.

The big question is the fact that in every other province except Prince Edward Island, farm cash income actually increased in 1954. Farmers in other parts of Canada planted mixed crops, fruit and vegetables. Their dependence on export markets was far less than that of farmers in the wheat belt.

Greater diversification of the use of agricultural resources in the three provinces dependent on wheat, would be a stabilizing factor of major importance in the Canadian economy.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright 1954, Edgar A. Guest)

By EDGAR A. GUEST

SPRING GOLFERS

Out they come from the noisy grill
In their leather coats and their checked caps
The cards are left on the window sill
Their clubs are ready for them to use.

In school for weeks must the caddies stay,
For this is the rule: 'til spring has flown,
Though they've the clubs with which men play,
Each golfer will have to carry his own.

They'll argue the handicaps; give and take.
Though it's winter golf with the line self-made
And the course is short of the scores they make,
They'll boast as if regular golf they'd played.

Spring golfers are happy beyond a doubt
Though they win no cups for their mad efforts out
But the worst of it, until school is out
They will have to carry their clubs themselves.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed. Reed

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 26, 1935

Mrs. R. M. Elmer and young son, Richard, of London, Ontario, are visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. O'Flynn, Bridge St. east.

Mr. S. B. Wright, general manager of the Delora Smelting and Refining Company, is leaving this week on a business trip to England. He will be accompanied by his daughter, Betty.

Mrs. Marie Benson spent the week-end at the home of her father, Mrs. J. McC. Potts is the guest of Mrs. McTavish, Catherine Street. Mrs. Potts is enroute to her home in Toronto after spending some time in Montreal.

Mayor Geo. O. Tice of this city has added further laurels to his long record of service to Belleville and the province. At the meeting of mayors of the Dominion of Canada which was held in Montreal this week, Mayor Tice was named a member of the finance committee and is one of twelve men selected from a total of nearly one hundred chief magistrates from the various municipalities throughout Canada.

30 YEARS AGO

March 26, 1925

Mr. J. W. Lill, president of the Belleville Radio Club, presided at a meeting of the club members at the Chamber of Commerce rooms. An interesting address was given on the subject of batteries by Mr. Thomas Wilson of Toronto.

Ald. Treverton, Ald. Button and Ald. Manley were appointed a committee by the city council to investigate and report on caulking and weather stripping the windows of the offices in the City Hall.

The city council has decided to erect a sanitary sewer on Green Street.

It has been decided by the city council to purchase the old burying ground on Dundas St. east and to convert the site into a tourist camp. The purchase will be made through Mr. F. E. Wyman, Toronto, who representing the officials of Bridge Street Church in the transaction.

There was plenty of maple syrup on the market today and sold at 90 cents per gal. to 95 cents per quart or $2. per gallon.

40 YEARS AGO

March 26, 1915

The Minister of Public Works at Ottawa informed Mr. E. Guss Porter, M. C., M. P., by telegram today as follows: "Tenders are called for reinforced concrete warehouse for Belleville dock and new wharf. Tenders will be called for and work proceeded with as soon as possible." It is expected that the dock and warehouse will be ready and in use during this season of navigation.

At the January session of the Hastings County Council, Warden Ketcheson invited all the members of the council and county officials to be his guests on a trip to Toronto to attend the annual convention of the Good Roads Association. The convention was held this week and the following members and officials accepted Warden Ketcheson's invitation: Wallace Hawkins, R. P. Coulter, G. A. Rose, G. Sills, C. Rollins, S. Fox, G. H. Breckon, A. M. Chapman, B. Mallory, H. Wright, A. Reed, H. Ketcheson and Lucius C. Allen. Before returning home the guests presented Mr. Ketcheson with a fine leather cane. The presentation was made by T. Montgomery, reeve of Rawdon, on behalf of the guests.

Two hundred and fifty enlisters from Lindsay arrived here today to join the 39th Battalion which is being mobilized here. A band escorted the men and they created a favorable impression as they marched down Front Street.

March 26, 1905

For the fourth time the water main across the bay has been broken by ice. In the early morning a large body of ice came down the bay, but the only damage done of any consequence was the breaking of the water main. As soon as the break was discovered the water was turned off and the sanitary pipes which are laid across the two bridges and no delay was caused in the supply. The sanitary pipes which are laid across the two bridges and no delay was caused in the supply. The ice in the bay is apparently quite firm. There does not appear to be any trouble in store unless a very large quantity of ice should suddenly come down the river. In West Belleville on Saturday and Sunday there was a large jam of ice on the streets in the vicinity of the river, but it passed off without causing any damage beyond tearing up some wooden sidewalks and fixed there, and fencings. However, there may be trouble yet.

Lydia Beats Superman

(Victoria Daily Times)

The world will little note nor long remember that the backbenchers in British Columbia's legislature say. And more's the pity when Mr. Lydia Aresou makes a speech.

Out of the dull, drab stuff of politics he fashions a rainbow, a gay thing shining more brightly than the hallowing of Yehudah's Pangles, who searched diligently for excellence in his tent of all peoples.

She endows Mr. Bennett's budget with the glow of sunset. She finds in the premier-minister of finance generosity that leaves the opposition disgeared for words of complaint.

The Government is spending more, taxing more and borrowing more in somebody else's name of course! she said, gaily overlook such details.

And in order to imbibe a spirit there is some cause for distress. As the only woman in the House, she finds herself often outside the microscope that she can't even see, and the only real comment in the press. Dear lady, to think that anything she wears could attract the world's eye! she wears inside it!

A mild sense of humor, of men, she finds her obligations onerous. "Everybody," she says, "expects me to be humorous."

No, Mrs. Arezes, the metaphor is overstrung. You are not the comic strips and radio that well-worn exclamation: "It's a bird! It's a plane! It's Superman!" Transcending far such mean comparison is Mr. Speaker, of whom: "It's Lydia!"

Belgium Plans Tallest Tower

(Manchester Guardian)

It is to be hoped that the fate of the people of Brussels will not fall on the Belgians who are proposing to build, in the next three years, what is described as "the loftiest building in the world."

It will be a television tower, varying from a base of 300 – foot diameter to a height of over a thirty of a mile.

As described by its projector, Professor G. Ingy, of Ghent University, the tower will begin as a truncated cone, 1,350 feet high— from top to ground—of concrete—which will be surmounted by a light metallic cap of 150 feet. Above this will rise television antennae extending to a height of 2,100 feet. Around the whole there will be based on nearly 1,500 piles.

The lower will have 15 floors and will contain the Belgian television stations (French and Flemish) with all their equipment and studios. The top floors, to which visitors can hope to be taken in three lifts, will contain a restaurant, a meteorological laboratory, and a geodesic service. There will be, also, accommodation for a new "Science Palace" and for a school for radio-communication.

It is hoped, if the Belgian Government agrees to build it, to have this remarkable landmark ready in three years, in time for the International Exhibition of Brussels of 1958.

It is not only to provide one of the exhibition's more startling attractions but it is hoped that the visitors will help to pay for it. They will have to pay well and often, however, if they are to balance the budget, which is estimated at nearly seventy millions (in sterling).

After the Exhibition it is hoped that the normal run of visitors will help to pay the rather considerable costs of upkeep.

Flowery Language

(London Sunday Times)

On the pavement, not far from my office, a street flower seller has his pitch. Like ourselves, he believes in free enterprise, and, indeed, of attracting his customers' attention with something stacked on a backboard.

These often display a macabre humor such as the gravedigger in "Hamlet" might envy. "(You Don't Like My Flowers? They'll Be Dead Soon Enough, Lady.)" But more recently when the weather was at its rudest and his flowers were battered and bedraggled, he used a more laconic line.

He displayed a handbill which he could bear to write.

Harmless Delusion

(The Petty Gentleman)

A wife went to the doctor to complain about her husband's delusion. "He's terrible doctor," she said. "All the time he thinks he's a refrigerator."

"Well," consoled the medic, "that isn't too bad. Quite a harmless delusion, I'd say."

"The delusion I don't mind, doctor. But when he sleeps with the window open, the little light keeps me awake!"

Ejected Over Tomato Juice

(Brantford Expositor)

Should a patron be ejected from a Toronto cocktail lounge for drinking tomato juice?

Off hand, we would answer that one is hardly justified, but according to our source of information, it did happen, for all that.

It seems that the chap asked for tomato juice as a chaser for one of the bar's usual alcoholic beverages. The management is said to have refused the customer's request, whereupon the man ordered a drink with a can of tomato juice, opened it, poured himself a drink of the reddish fluid — and was promptly thrown out.

Questionable Argument

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

An officer of the Pickering Township Police has been reduced to the rank of constable after conviction by a police commission on one of the unspecified charges. The court refused to reveal the actual nature of the charges on the grounds that public disclosure would weaken public respect for the law. We regard this type of thinking as rather questionable.

It is (a) questionable that an officer can be free to violate the law. Indeed we think the reverse is probably the case.

No Homework For Parents

(Montreal Gazette)

The North American parent, especially the male parent, has been the butt of considerable light fun and of humor. A favorite situation is the one in which he helps Junior with his homework only to find the next evening, that he didn't provide the correct answers.

Dr. C. C. Goldring, director of education for Toronto, has handed some heavy stuff in this parent's defence. He didn't put it quite the way the comic strips and broadcasters do, but he sure helped.

Parents should not help with Junior's homework, Dr. Goldring stated recently. Teaching methods have changed enormously, he explained kindly, and sometimes the use methods that do not agree with current school methods. The result, he warned, is confusion.

So Junior you'll just have to figure out those sums from yourself. At all costs, confusion must be avoided.

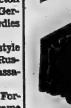
Where Horses Go to College

(Manchester Guardian)

Ask Ralph McCutcheon who are the greatest actors in Hollywood and he'll tell you they're not human. If this sounds prejudiced it's excusable; Ralph runs a college for actors and his pupils include Trigger —at his Van Nuys, Calif., ranch he trains horses for movies with highly-trained performers. When you go to the films and see a horse frightened by a dramatic moment, dancing, suddenly lying down, jerking its head, bowing, rolling up objects, yawning, playing lame, or faking a fight with other horses, chances are you're watching one of Ralph's equine stars. When he isn't training them, the horse it can do almost anything a human being can do except talk and any number of other feats of pantomime is far more difficult than spouting words.

Ralph teaches his horses to act by voice and hand commands. He's strict against the use of whips or similar "persuaders." They learn best from kindness, he says.

When they have their lessons well in hand (or hoof), he rewards them not with an "A", but with a bit of sugar. Ralph says he taught his best pupils exactly what to do in the forthcoming movie version of Oklahoma! The horses handled their roles like professionals. Hammerstein would missed a cue.



Ralph has loved horses from his toddling days on a Colorado ranch. By the time he was five and he had a pinto pony of his own he practically gave up walking. After a boyhood spending mostly in the saddle, he learned everything there is to know about horses, he spent a few years with the Cavalry service. In 1935 he started riding the rodeo circuit with Dice, his trick horse. A Hollywood scout saw him and promptly hired Dice for a Richard Dix movie. Right there Ralph forgot about the rodeos and became full-time horse professor. Ralph says that gentleness is the secret of training horses. He usually follow him around like a dog.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

EAT IT RAW IF YOU LIKE

A correspondent says that for the past five months she has craved and eaten a good deal of raw potato, raw carrot, raw string beans and parsley. She is 28 has one child 2½ she puts it and feels bored being at home so much with nothing to do — she can't afford yet hobbies she likes . . . oh, yes, of course, she wonders what vitamin or minerals she lacks. Some day, I hope, I'll find such a query without this helpful suggestion. (If I'm more sarcastic today than ordinarily let me explain that I just couldn't get up the nerve to do my rolls this morning.)

Come, come, now, madame, the correspondent's physician states that she is not pregnant.

That's unfortunate.

The correspondent seems noncommittal about everything but the food she has been craving.

The "child" she mentions so casually seems unwanted and unloved.

Whether unusual fondness for raw potato, carrot, turnip, celery, cabbage, lettuce, peas, beans, oatmeal, wheat, milk, eggs, oysters or other fish, beef, lamb, pork indicates lack of this or that mineral or vitamin, no one knows.

Provided the food is fresh, clean, uncontaminated, and, in the case of fish, beef or pork, free from the eggs or larvae of parasites. Fish tapeworm (called Diphyllobothrium latum or Dibothrialus in the larval stage) may be present in pike, salmon, perch, trout. If man eats infested fish raw or inadequately cooked the larvae develop into tapeworms in the human intestine.

Beef tapeworm (called Taenia saginata), may be present in the larval stage in beef, and if such meat is eaten raw or very rare the larvae will develop into tapeworms in the human intestine.

Both fish and beef tapeworms are undesirable parasites but their presence rarely if ever causes any serious injury to health.

Raw or uncooked ham, pork or tongue, even though federal inspected, may contain the larvae of Trichinella (coiled in cysts visible only with microscope). When such raw or undercooke ham, bacon, sausage, etc., gets into digestive, the parasites mature to adults and in barely 1 MIn. of an inch long, which get into the lymphatics and travel to all parts of the body. Trichinosis is a painful, sometimes fatal condition.

This is not an argument against meat eating, or against eating fish raw. It is just a reminder to be sure your meat or fish is thoroughly cooked.

PRAISE AND FLATTERY

Everybody likes praise. If at any time you encounter a person who disclaims any interest whatsoever in praise, write that down as one of the most abnormal or unhealthy people you have met, we like to be told about it. Furthermore we like everybody to be supported by the feeling that we will be able to walk among our fellows with our heads up. We know our limitations. We are not deceived into believing that we are geniuses. But we do like to feel that we are not the most stupid people in the community and that our motives are the best.

The person living on flattery is pathetic. Flattery is a narcotic; the more one partakes of it, the more he has to have. Many a household is broken up simply because someone has sought constantly from the ego of somebody else. Nevertheless, husbands and wives should realize that the constant interplay of easonest appreciation and trust should be the very breath and blood of daily home life. And don't forget to build up the kids with the assurance that you have a high opinion of them. Don't forget to believe they possess sterling moral principles and the capacity to make good.

There is a subtle difference between praise and flattery. A famous public figure in this country put it well when he said, "Flattery never hurts you if you don't believe."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

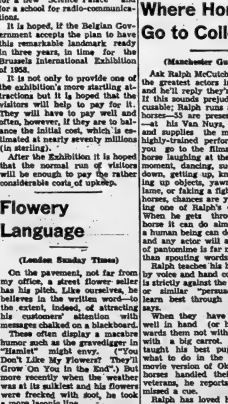
THIS ONE THING I DO

One of the greatest of all qualities is that of concentration, having a purpose and pursuing it without let, without a loss of will or determination, having as a motto: This one thing I do. To do this has been the plan of everyone who has achieved anything notable.

Anyone interested in sports—and who isn't?—should read the late Grantland Rice's book, "The Tumult and the Shouting." For a long and interesting lifetime Rice worked with all the great leaders and performers in sports and the stories he tells are such as will never be forgotten.

In this book is a chapter on George Tunney, whom I knew intimately long before he became Champion. In fact, after seeing and talking with Tunney, I wrote about him and said: "Gene, you will be the next Chapion heavyweight fighter." I wrote a piece about him and predicted that he would be in his six months he was! Rice got the same reaction from Tunney. Once he asked his plans, and Tunney replied: "My plans are all Dempsey knows and he did not have had to beat the other hopefuls on his way up. But that is what he did. And he didn't want any questions as to his meriting it. He won from Dempsey twice! But both were fairly contested.

One reason why Grantland Rice's book, "The Tumult and the Shouting," believe is because it is so full of stories of the great in all sports who have fight things through to finish—who resolved upon one thing—this one thing I do—and who by that purpose will never tire of great sporting events. Life itself is a contest. Let's enter into it with zest that is at least be useful— and perhaps that in itself approaches greatness.



Early Demolition

(Brantford Expositor)

The million-dollar mansion of Marshall Field, Chicago millionaire, which was built as a home to be boasted, to last a thousand years, is to be pulled down—621 years early—in order that the land can be used for business purposes. The late Mr. Field had no idea, we anticipate that his once lush location would so soon become a downtown district. Then there was another yellow by the name of Hitler who created a fetish which he said would endure for a thousand years. Remember him?

$21,886.03 Operating Surplus Shown in Hospital Report

Frank Domenico, chairman of the finance committee of the Belleville General Hospital, reported at the annual meeting Friday afternoon that the hospital showed an operating surplus of $21,886.03 for 1954.

Depreciation charges of $61,967.48 produced a deficit of $40,081.45.

The financial report revealed that the operating surplus was achieved despite a write-off of $39,805.78 for indigent patient care and payment of approximately $32,000 against debenture debt, principal and interest, and an increase in salaries to employees of $79,288.48 over 1953 salary costs.

Mr. Domenico's report also showed a decrease of $11,000 in the cost of supplies despite a rise in the number of patients cared for and an increase in the number of patient-days of care provided.

Gross earnings from patient services in 1954 were $905,042.07. In 1953 gross earnings were $855,577.59. Free services, rebates and provision for doubtful accounts rose to $60,395.58 in 1954 from $53,534.70 in 1953.

Provincial maintenance and other grants increased to $65,702.29 from $53,329.63 giving the hospital net revenues of $907,348.41 as compared with net revenues of $855,372.53 in 1953.

Non-operating revenues of $4,730.83, derived from discounts earned, isolation grants, and miscellaneous sources, compared with $3,306.18 in 1953, brought the hospital's total revenue for 1954 to $912,580.34.

Total expenditures for 1954 were $890,681.60, compared with $863,011.44 in 1953.

WAGES HIGHEST ITEM

Salaries and wages for the year were the biggest single expenditure accounting for $560,483.97 compared with an expenditure of $481,197.43 in 1953.

Departmental expenses were as follows: (1954 expenses are presented first with 1953 expenditures in brackets) administration, $30,642.95 ($33,044.84); medical, surgical, and sterile, $50,040.15 ($49,056.15); drugs and medication, $63,864.02 ($65,006.79); electricity and steam, $26,548.60 ($26,874.48); housing and maintenance, $14,895.03 ($23,511.38); power, light, $17,778.72 ($23,538.41); laundry, bedding and linen, $8,808.42 ($9,171.99); nursing school, $6,772.27 ($6,453.27); radiology, $14,790.98 ($11,537.91); laboratory, $8,143.38 ($8,077.95); physiotherapy and cardiology, $4,125.68 ($3,816.51).

Depreciation on buildings in 1954 was set at $34,234, an increase from $18,810.24 in 1953. Depreciation on equipment and furnishings for 1954 was $27,733.48 compared with $20,145.70 in 1953.

Interest on debenture was $10,944, as against $11,817.85 a year ago, the latter interest and exchange in 1954 was $194.38 as compared with $273.95 in 1953.

Total financial requirements for 1954 were $73,105.76 compared with $61,946.54 in 1953.

The increase of almost $37,000 in the provision for depreciation was brought about because of a reappraisal of the value of buildings and contents during the year for insurance purposes.

A comparative operating statement showed total revenue, including patient revenue and government grants as follows: 1951, $770,174.66; 1952, $777,002.38; 1953, $856,679.70; 1954, $912,580.34.

COMMENTS ON STATEMENT

Comparative operating expenditures for the same period, including depreciation charges, are as follows: 1951, $758,477.57; 1952, $791,823.64; 1953, $863,011.44; 1954, $853,061.60.

Comparative deficits are: 1951, $52,363.12; 1952, $14,821.26; 1953, $5,331.74; 1954, $40,081.45.

J. N. Yanover, chairman of the board, commented on certain portions of the financial statement.

He explained that the increase of $139,502.26 in the total payroll since 1953 has been due chiefly to an increase in salaries. He explained that higher wage scales for nurses in the United States made it impossible to retain nurses unless a more equitable pay scale was established. He also pointed out that two years ago the pay in Belleville was unusually low and that salary adjustments over the past two years have made the local salaries comparable with payment for similar service in Kingston and Peterborough.

"There are three great financial problems facing this hospital" said Mr. Yanover. "They are: 1) the indigent patient rate; 2) the unforeseeable loss of collections from those who are not indigents and 3) $32,000 per year for payment of what, is essentially a mortgage."

Mr. Yanover, quoting from Mr. Domenico's financial statement, said that the hospital loses approximately $5.62 per indigent day's care.

He explained that the cost of taking care of one patient for one 24-hour period is $12.52. The statutory rate for indigent patients is $6.25. A special indigent grant, which the hospital has been receiving from the provincial government for the past three years, amounts to $1.71 per indigent patient day. Therefore, the hospital receives $8.96 per day for each indigent, and in caring for indigents from municipalities, which pay only the statutory rate, the hospital loses $3.56 per day.

In 1954 the hospital admitted 802 indigent patients and provided them with a total of 7,931 patient-days of care.

PAYING PATIENT PAYS

"The hospital must take in the sick whether or not they can pay," said Mr. Yanover. "It collects its accounts if it can. But if it cannot collect, then someone else pays, and in this case it is the paying patient."

In commenting on the payment of $32,000 debenture interest and principal last year, Mr. Yanover said, "this payment is, in effect, a mortgage."

"The transactions that placed this debt on the hospital happened in the past and never should have happened. The hospital is faced with collecting $32,000 annually to meet it. The Board of Governors feels payment should be made by the city, but it is not.

"If the city were paying it this sum could be applied to improving hospital facilities or towards a lowering of the rates. As it is the cost to the hospital is the per diem rate of the paying patient and it amounts to about 70 cents per patient day."

Mr. Domenico's financial report also showed receipt of special provincial government grants of $4,400 in 1953, $41,700 in 1954 and an appropriation of $27,800 for 1955. This money can only be used for transfer of existing buildings, purchase of new equipment, or retirement of capital debt. It cannot be used for operational purposes or to offset deficits.

Mr. Yanover explained that this money had been placed in a special account at the Victoria and Grey Trust at 3 per cent interest per annum, and would be used "to the best possible advantage of the hospital" when the new wing is completed.

Mr. Domenico's report expressed "concern that there will likely be a drop in revenue during 1955 and 1956 as a result of reduced accommodation necessitated by the tying-in of the new wing with the present structure."

57 Doctors, 270 Hospital Personnel Caring for Sick

The outstanding service record of the Belleville General Hospital to the people of Belleville and the Quinte district during 1954, was presented in detail Friday afternoon at the annual meeting of the hospital's Board of Governors in the recreation room of the nurses' residence.

A total of 57 doctors, honorary, consulting, associate, active, and courtesy members of the medical staff, and approximately 270 hospital personnel, were directly associated with care of the sick and the operation of the hospital's facilities.

The medical staff reported professional services were rendered to 6,231 patients admitted to the hospital and that 1,267 babies were delivered and 7,919 operations of all kinds performed.

Four new practitioners joined the hospital staff which now has qualified consultants in psychiatry, orthopaedics, urology, plastic surgery, pediatrics, obstetrics and gynaecology, ophthalmology and oto-laryngology, pathology, radiology, internal medicine and general surgery.

"These men are all qualified by examination and by degree as specified consultants," said Dr. C. H. A. Walters, past president of the medical staff, in making his report.

"It is very unusual for a hospital of this size to have so many men qualified in so many fields on its staff," he said.

The hospital, which is rated at a capacity of 136 beds, had an average daily patient population of 132, including newborn, during 1954, an increase in the average daily population from 123 in 1953.

A total of 86,583 patient-days of care were provided, an increase from 83,145 patient-days in 1953. The average patient stay increased from 7.6 days to 8.8 days.

During the year 6,921 patients were admitted, compared with 6,800 admissions in 1953.

BIRTH-RATE RISING

The number of births rose from 1,238 in 1953 to 1,287 in 1954, while the number of deaths was reduced from 230 in 1953 to 179 in 1954.

The number of out-patients rose from 7,247 in 1953 to 7,585 in 1954.

Of the 6,921 patients admitted, 3,091 were from the city of Belleville; 2,031 from the County of Hastings; 766 from other counties and 32 others.

The number of indigent-days of patient care provided were: 2,861 for indigents from the city of Belleville; 2,632 from the County of Hastings, and 798 from other counties.

Comparative figures on bed-patient days are: 1952, 33,584; 1953, 34,203; 1954, 39,050. The number of meals served: 1953, 325,767; 1953, 263,854; 1954, 255,818.

J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board of Governors, explained that more rigid control over staff meals, including a charge of 35 cents per meal or meal tickets at three for $1.00 was responsible for the reduced number of meals served by the hospital despite an increasing patient population.

Laboratory examinations done by the hospital in the last three years totalled: 1952, 48,181; 1953, 66,378; 1954, 70,600. The number of emergency cases treated: 1953, 2,256; 1953, 2,780; 1954, 3,240. The number of X-rays taken in a three-year period totalled: 1952, 6,959; 1953, 7,049; 1954, 7,782.

STARS FIVE PERSONS

NEW YORK (AP)—A 25-year-old ex-convict, angered when a Bronx delicatessen proprietor refused to give him $5, stabbed five persons Tuesday night with an eight-inch butcher knife. Police identified the man as Alejandro Cabrera, a dishwasher. A patrolman shot the knife wielder, but was slashed in the arm during the struggle.

Business Bogs Down on Market Due to Storm

Heavy snow bogged down business on the local market this morning. Trade was almost non-existent on the outside platforms with only three traders plying their business. Prices were mostly unchanged on the small variety of produce offered.

Maple syrup brought 75 cents a pint, $1.50 a quart and $5.50 a gallon. Cabbage sold from 10-15 cents a head with carrots bringing 40 cents a six-quart basket. Turnips were 15 cents each, 2 for 25 cents. While beans were 20 cents a pint; onions brought 40-50 cents a basket. Potatoes were $3 a 75-lb. bag, 50 cents a basket.

Apple prices were mostly unchanged with the exception of Delicious — up to $4 bushel and 85 cents a basket. Spies were $3.50 a bushel, 75 cents a basket; McIntosh, $3 and 65 cents; Snows, 90 cents a basket.

Eggs brought 47 cents for large, 45 for medium and 37 for pullets. Year-old fowl was 45-50 cents.

Hospital Governors Report Year of Achievement in '54

1954 was a year of achievement for the Belleville General Hospital.

More patients received a wider variety and a higher quality of service last year than ever before without an increase in hospital rates.

This striking accomplishment was reported Friday afternoon, at the annual meeting of the hospital's Board of Governors held in the recreation room of the nurses' residence.

A satisfactory financial year showed an operating surplus of $21,886.03 and a loss of $40,081.45 after deductions of depreciation.

While satisfaction with 1954 operations was expressed, some concern was felt for 1955 when curtailment of facilities will be necessitated by the tying-in of the new wing with the old, with a resulting loss of bed accommodation and revenue.

The 52-page report bound in book form, was presented with pride by hospital governors.

The meeting, open to the general public, was not attended by a single private citizen. Members of city council attending the meeting were His Worship Mayor Jack Bloth, Aldermen Clarence Forrester, Ralph Graham and Claude Nice. City clerk-comptroller Harold Bateman also attended.

J. N. Yanover, chairman of the Board, said that "it is disquieting that more city fathers do not take enough interest in the affairs of the hospital to come to see how we operate."

Mr. Yanover expressed his personal sympathy, and the sympathy of the hospital's board of governors to Mrs. G. V. Faulkner and family on the untimely passing of Dr. G. V. Faulkner in Montreal this week.

"He was a great help to the members of the board with his suggestions and recommendations to improver service to patients," said Mr. Yanover.

"This board wishes to go on record as extending its sympathy to Mrs. Faulkner and the family. The board is taking under consideration ways and means to remember in a tangible form Dr. Faulkner's name and work in this hospital."

STAFF COMMENDED

Mr. Yanover, commended "the staff as a whole for their loyal and efficient co-operation during the year," and expressed his personal appreciation to members of the board, to K. E. Box, administrator, and to members of city and county councils for their co-operation and assistance.

He reported that the construction program of the new wing was going forward at a satisfactory pace and expressed the hope that by the end of the year the building will be a reality. He hoped that final completion of the new wing could be announced early next year.

Members of the Board of Governors attending the meeting were: J. N. Yanover, K. E. Box, F. M. Creen, Arthur White, head, Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. Lennox Smith, J. K. Buchan, J. H. Ketcheson, reeve of Thurlow township; A. Sprackett, warden of Hastings county, and A. M. Hale.

Mrs. J. K. Buchan, an observer from the Women's Hospital Auxiliary, heads of some of the hospital's departments, and representatives of the press and radio were the only other persons at the meeting.

Reports of the various committees appear elsewhere in this edition.

Stopover in Manila

To most of us the Philippines spells Manila. That suggests hemp, Manila envelopes, and Admiral Dewey's defeat of the Spaniards in Manila Bay and that is about all.

The Manilla (musa textilis) hemp is a different product from the sisalgrin one meets in New York shops. One of them had several times been looking at some gold beads I was wearing and, like myself, loved to handle beautiful objects.

"Oh Madam, may I touch your beads?"

She had never seen that kind of carving so I took off the necklace for them to examine at their ease. It was very pretty to see their youthful enthusiasm.

In such shopping experiences there is only one flaw. Folding money does not stretch.

BAMBOO ORGAN

The last interval I went to view the Bamboo organ in Las Pinas church, built in 1792, about 10 miles from Manila. The cases of bamboo are manifold.

The organist was of a pleasant tone and was played by a nun from New Brunswick. One seems never to be out of touch with Canada, even if it had a pleasant visit.

The organ was begun by an Augustinian Recolleto Friar in 1818; a man learned in the ways of bamboo. The 890 bamboo pipes were selected for six months with sand to prevent splitting, after the slicing of bamboo bugs. It took four years to complete.

Twenty years later it was damaged by an earthquake, and 30 years later by rain that came through the damaged roof of the church. It was only in 1917 that a Belgian, aided by Filipinos, put it in place, but it is good working order. In 1932 an earthquake damaged it again, and further repairs were made in 1945.

I enjoyed the games of the children of the district, attached to the quaint old church. In the basement of the church were things for sale. Among them were carriings, the undamaged Santaclaus, and a cup of silver filigree attached to a saucer with a spoon fastened along side.

All were done in incredibly fine filigree work and not quite three quarters of an inch across. The offerings and purchases of these quaint Filipino novelties are used to keep the organ and church in good condition and for the poor school.

VISITS UNIVERSITY

One day I went to the Roman Catholic University of St. Thomas, with its thousands and thousands of students. The priest professor to whom I was introduced was on sabbatical leave and was on the usual round of classroom inspection.

One wondered what would be the fate of these young girls and boys given a scholastic training that many of them were unfitted for. There was time, plenty of it, for a discussion about education with the priest who deeply deplored the effect the American Mesa on that subject—its superficial tendencies, its lack of thoroughness, its indifference to the cultural and to the material needs of these young people. It would leave the school unfitted both for their former manner of living and the new life ahead.

I asked him what he was doing about it, and he lifted his dark hands in the half-despairing gesture of the foreigner who tries to reform, for a time, in control of good. These young people, with dark faces, keen, alert eyes, the dainty figures, took well in the various colorful native costumes.

One color of their uniforms is for those studying botany, mathematics, or the many clogies taught. They came and went in groups laden with textbooks but all of them had time to smile.

UNMARKED GRAVES

It was pointed out to me as we drove from the college that underneath the lovely surface of the lawns were buried hundreds of men who had died in prison camps. This graveyard was level with no stone to mark the individual graves.

It was hot on the ship, 38 degrees in the room, 94 on deck. 39d degrees in the room, 94 on deck. 39d degrees in the room, 94 on deck. 39d

DOES SHE REALLY WANT TO MARRY HIMSELF?

"Is it wrong to want to remain single instead of marrying? a young woman of 34 wants to know. She goes on to explain that the reason she finds she would prefer not to marry is because she saw so much friction between her mother and father all through her life.

"My childhood was anything but pleasant," she writes, "because my mother and father were always fighting. My father would work only by when he felt like it, and there were often times when we never had enough to eat. Until I quit school and started work, I never had any decent clothes, and never any money even to go to the movies once in awhile.

"My three sisters all married very young in order to get away from home, and as a result two of them have had marriages.

"Isn't that enough to make a girl prefer a life of single blessedness? Is one that is full of unhappiness, as I have come to believe most marriages are?"

What I am wondering is, whether this young woman is really trying afraid she has married, she seems to believe she is, or is merely to reconcile herself to being unmarried by drawing on the unhappiness she has observed around her.

I wish she had given me some idea of her present situation in regard to associating with young men. Does she actually have men friends, and has she ever had a definite suitors? For it has been my experience that it is not at all uncommon for girls or women to be so sensitive about the fact that their fears have never involved a proposal that they do what the psychiatrists call "rationalize" the question; or, to put it into everyday language, they think up a lot of good reasons why they remained single so that it will seem to have been their own choice.

So I think the first thing this girl should do is to make sure she's not kidding herself about the reasons for being still unmarried. For, in my opinion, the reasons she does give do not hold water.

Because her mother and her sisters were unfortunate enough to choose the wrong husbands, there is no reason in the world why she should follow their example. In fact, one would think she would be far more likely to be doubly careful to choose a worthwhile man for a husband, just because she has seen the sad ends of not doing so.

So let me answer her question, posed at the beginning of this column, by saying that, while one could hardly state that it is wrong to remain single, it is very foolish for anyone to poll the wool over his eyes in regard to the reasons for doing so.

If, after examining her own attitudes in the light of what I have just said, this young woman discovers that she has, actually, been deceiving herself, and that her basic reason for not having married is because she has never asked her to be his wife, then there is much she can do herself to remedy the situation. I should like to hear from her again, after she has thought all this over and then, if she wishes me to do so, I will point out some of the things she might do to make herself a more attractive and interesting person in the eyes of men here at home.

SHE'S HEARD "ODD THINGS" ABOUT DATING

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few weeks ago, a boy I like very much said that he would like to take me out some time.

Then I asked my mother how old I should be to go on dates, and first she said I should be 18, then 16, and at last 15, or even earlier if it was a double-date. I am now 14 and a half, and more than half of my friends go on dates. How old do you think girls should be?

Would you tell me what a person really does on a date? I have heard so many odd things.

—E. J.

Dear J.L.:

It sounds to me as though your mother is a very reasonable woman, an who would be willing to let you go out right now on any date that was appropriate. In fact, you yourself seem to be more doubtful than your mother does, about the age at which you should start dating.

My own feeling is that girls of your age should be allowed to go out on afternoon and early evening dates at reasonable intervals, but that dates which would run into late hours should be held off until the later teens.

I am wondering if what you have in mind in writing your last paragraph is the question of "necking" and kissing on dates, and if the "odd things" you have heard have to do with these.

If that is what you mean, then I can only tell you that, no matter how many of your friends tell you this is the sort of thing that goes with a date, you should pay no attention to them. It is cheap, and in very bad taste, for boys and girls to indulge in such things, and I hope you will have goodsense to refuse to have any part of them, right from the beginning. If you refuse in the right way, and are a friendly, attractive girl in all other ways, the right boys will respect you and enjoy your company just as much without the kissing.

BEACHES QUOTA

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario division of the Red Cross Aporated Wednesday it ...as met its set quota of $2,144,600 for 1954. In an address to the annual meeting, president Frank F. Whether you are a real lady of leisure, a busy career girl, or a hard working housewife, there are moments when you'd love to relax. It's fun to have breakfast in bed one day a week, or for no reason at all matter to tuck yourself in with a book and linger long. And there is nothing like a feminine, frilly bed jacket to add a frilly to these rare occasions.

This dainty little jacket is perfect for such times and is made of nylon tricot with ruffled trimmed sleeves. Dainty roses grace the nylon tracery of the Alencon lace shoulder yoke which has a one button closing at the neck.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

FACIAL RADIANCE IS A BEAUTY ASSET

Your facial features are your inheritance from your parents and grandparents. If you selected good looking ones, you have a wonderful advantage since beauty is a sort of passport.

If your portrait is not precisely what you would have ordered if you had anything to say about it, however, there still may be hidden beauty possibilities that you haven't discovered, and these can be developed.

The color of your hair can be changed. The complexion can be kept line of texture and the items in the make-up kit will contribute glamour. Even eyebrows can be remodeled. So why worry?

Better than physical pulchritude, however, is facial radiance. When the eyes have sparkle and animation it doesn't matter much about their shape or color. A friendly smile makes the mouth pretty. It isn't what you put on your face, but what you put into it that counts.

To have charm, to be loved, something more is necessary than good looks. A woman may have drab hair, a sallow complexion, a figure that would never qualify in a beauty contest, but if she is gentle, sweet, thoughtful and gracious, she has qualities that are eloquent and priceless.

Affability oils the wheels of life. It also goes wonders for the lady in the looking glass. The woman who is always cheerful and good natured seldom gets wrinkles. And she usually has better health than the illnatured one whose emotional binges put her nervous system in knots.

Because old sourpuss never smiles, the muscles of her face show tension and strain. Lips are tightly compressed in an expression of disapproval of other people and the world in general. She is always the party of the opposition and in the family circle she is a pest of the first water.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAR

BOTH A MAID AND MATRON OF HONOR

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been asked to be matron of honor at a wedding. There is also to be a maid of honor. Please tell me what my duties would be during the ceremony and also at the reception. — R.P.

When there are to be two honor attendants, the bride-to-be must decide which one is to have the responsibility of straightening out the bridal train and the veil just before the processional is to start, and just before the recessional is to start. Also which one is to hold the bride's bouquet during the ceremony. I will mention one in each way the groom's ring if it is to be a double-ring ceremony. The bride-to-be instructs the honor attendants about these duties, and the rehearsal follows the planned procedure. At the reception you stand in the receiving line with the bride, either directly at the bride's right, or to the right of the maid of honor, as the bride and her mother decide. And your duty at the reception is to be as graceful and charming and gracious!

INFORMAL EVENING WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) We are planning to be married in May. I am divorced, and have three small children. We are both under thirty. We would like to have a simple ceremony, church wedding, and we have talked it over with my minister, who has agreed to perform the ceremony. I am from California, and have lived here in New Jersey for only a very short time. In California, evening weddings are quite popular, and can be informal or very formal. However here it appears that evening weddings are usually formal affairs. So how about our having an informal wedding in the evening.

(2) I am to have only one attendant. Would it be proper for us both to wear informal cocktail dresses?

(3) Would street-length lace dresses and appropriate hats be suitable for the mothers to wear? — R.

(1) Your wedding, and under the circumstances, must be informal . . . and it is entirely correct to have an informal wedding in the evening.

(2) Yes.

(3) Yes. But of course the dresses should be simple in design, and they should not be too light in color.

BRIDE'S MOTHER MUST TRIUMPH OVER HURT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter has suddenly decided to be married early next month. She had planned to be married late in June, and that would have given her father and me more time to save up to give her a very nice wedding, and would have given her time to be able to contribute to the expenses. My husband and I have not found it too easy to keep up the payments on our new home, so we have some money set aside and we will use this to give her as nice a wedding as possible at this earlier date she has decided on. We so very much want her to be happy, and to have a happy, memorable wedding.

But, Mrs. Beeckman, I am deeply disappointed that now, when she is choosing her wedding dress, she has asked the girls who are to be in her bridal party to go with her to help her select it, and hasn't asked me. Before she has always asked me to go with her when she bought a coat or dress, and now, when she is buying the most important dress, I feel left out. I always had thought how wonderful it was going to be to go with her to see the lovely wedding things and to be part of it all. Am I wrong in feeling hurt about being left out? If you think I am wrong and foolish, please tell me, for I always read your columns and find your column and your point of view very helpful. Thank you. — H.B.

I wish I did have the healing words that would comfort you, you dear, loving mother. Your question touched me deeply, and I realize how hurt and disappointed you are. How I wish you had been willing to hint to her how much you would enjoy doing this for her, and how understand your hesitation to do this. However, to try to be fair to her, I am sure that the accelerated date undoubtedly meant such a rush that she had to concentrate wherever possible, perhaps had her heart and dress and the attendants' dresses at the same time, and in her haste, became thoughtless. But, perhaps, dear lady don't let any clouds overcast the radiance which will be on your daughter's wedding, and which you want to have there. To make your wedding as perfect, as "memorable," as you say you want it to be, your thoughts must be happy, shining, abidingly radiant.

DAUGHTERS SHOULDN'T GIVE BRIDAL SHOWER FOR MOTHER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My father died six years ago, and now my mother is planning to marry again, in about two months. My sister and I are pleased about this, for her fiance is a wonderful man, and we like him very, very friendly. We would like to show our devotion and approval by giving a bridal shower for Mother. How would you feel about this? — A.H.

I feel that it would definitely not be in good taste for daughters to give a shower for their mother. However, I am sure that your warm approval more suitably, and with a much finer grace, when you give it to, say, for your mother, at a Sunday buffet luncheon or late-afternoon party or supper for your mother and her prospective bridegroom. Perhaps this would be the question of present-bringing, and also you could invite many more guests.

NO GIFT TO RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About two months ago the daughter of a neighbor of ours was married. She had a beautiful informal wedding in the city where she has been working for the past few years. Today my husband and I received an invitation from her parents to a reception they are giving at their home in honor of the bride and groom. Should we give a present to a reception of this kind? — C.E.

You wouldn't take a present to this reception. If you wish to give her some kind of present you could send it to her and her bridegroom at their home address.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

. . .really do enjoy your column. . . having open house for my parents. . . had planned to serve fancy sandwiches, small cookies, tea, coffee and wedding cake. We are not sure how many we well serve—but estimate between 150 and 200. How many loaves of bread would I need to make up in sandwiches. I plan to make rolled and ribbon . . . could you give me any other sandwich filling besides deviled ham, egg salad, cream cheese?— MRS. J. E. R.

ANSWER:

I made up 8 regular-size sandwich loaves to serve 200 for a big Press Club bridge party and there were a few left over. Other popular fillings are lobster-celery-mayonnaise; cream cheese with chopped almonds; sliced or minced chicken; cream cheese with ripe olives. Make a few pinwheels with pimiento in centre for slicing and some open face type and use them to decorate the plates.

QUESTION:

. . .I usually read your column after I get the wires home and gone to bed and all is peace and quiet for a while . . . two years ago I made your Perfect Moist White Fruit Cake which turned out fantastic. I had kept carefully . . .this year we tried Supreme White Fruit Cake and we both had the same results as "D.M.W." —mold . . . along the edges . . . I would like to have a recipe for a low calorie salad dressing . . . also some of your luncheon menus for children and myself . . . soup and salad becomes monotonous after a time.—Marilyn W.

ANSWER:

I'm puzzled about the cake because I still have some of mine made from same recipe and it is not moldy. I have kept it in the refrigerator in a tightly covered tin box. The temperature is about 35 deg. C. Could your storage place have been warmer than this? I have mailed low-calorie dressing recipes and calorie chart.

LUNCHES WITH SMALL CHILDREN

1) Individual casseroles of macaroni and cheese and tomato jellies on lettuce; 2) Poached egg in toast cup shaped by buttering fresh bread, pressing it into an individual baking dish, weighting down and baking until golden—do this some time when the oven is hot for something else; serve this with celery stuffed with white cheese and chopped nuts. 3) Half 'n Half whole wheat and white flour pancakes with butter and maple syrup served with generous block of process cheese and finely shredded cabbage and carrot salad; 4) Medium-thick Split Pea Soup homemade with ham bone, with croutons floating on top or homemade beef and vegetable soup with fine cheese sprinkled over; finely chopped Waldorf salad; 5) Tossed lettuce salad, open-faced sandwiches with sliced tomatoes and lettuce.

QUESTION:

. . . we are a family of four, with two little girls. . . budget on a low-cost basis. . . my husband just loves desserts—I am trying to keep my calorie count down—so that makes it rather difficult. . . I heard honey was not fattening. . . I was under the impression it was . . .what is the calorie count of it and molasses . . . could you send recipes for low-calorie count. . . cakes, cookies, desserts. . . have new stove with oven timer . . . and too good at thinking up new dishes . . . would you have recipes for oven meals (that require no attention) ahead of time?—Mrs. J. E. F.

ANSWER:

Honey and molasses are packed with calories. Honey—1 tablespoon 65; molasses—1 tablespoon 70. I have mailed you a calorie chart. I am having low-calorie desserts and one with low-calorie menus—also February 17 release on Oven Meals. Let me know if you need more help than these give you.

ERASE ROOSEVELT ROAD

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Letters are pouring into newspaper offices here suggesting that Roosevelt road, one of the main thoroughfares of this Chinese Nationalist capital, be given another name. The letters are a result of the publication in the United States of the Yalta papers and the general feeling that the late President Roosevelt made concessions to Russia at Nationalist China's expense.

SPRING FRIENDS

According to the calendar, spring has just returned, heralded by a few of our hardy friends. One of the first migrants to put in an appearance is the yellow-headed blackbird, so named because of wearing black feather tufts which stand out from the head somewhat behind the eyes. Being no intention of waiting for the last snow to melt, it may have been in Canada for several week-indeed some record marks wintered in southern Ontario.

Among the other yesterday early arrivals is the meadowlark, whose sweet vocalic scrawl is a happy way, from fields-in which patches of snow still stand. Travelling by train, bus, or private car, we have a good chance of seeing this bird, even though the vehicle that transports us is too noisy for us to hear the song.

Generally the white outer feathers of the broad tail identify the meadowlark while in flight, as it rises from the thoroughfare. But a front view furnishes equally good evidence, for the yellow breast has a distinct black V on a very yellow breast.

Hawks usually journey in large flocks. Red-shouldered and Broad-winged hawks have doubtless already come north, the roughlegged hawk may be here any day now.

MANY MIGRANTS

The marsh hawk is differentiated fairly readily by being marked at large white blotch which shows in flight just where back and tail meet.

Ducks passing through now include black, scaup, ruddy, and even baldpate, though these last may have come from as far south as Panama (and, by the way, may continue right up to Alaska). We consider ourselves fortunate indeed if we see a flock of Canada geese travelling as a family group, flying in V formation; and if privileged to hear their impressive honking we get a special thrill.

The red-winged blackbird, his brilliant red epaulettes showing conspicuously as his shiny black f e a t h e r s, is already shouting "conk-a-ree" over Canadian marshes. It is good to hear his spring song, even though his harsh "rack" must be given with a flicking of his tail, is far from pretty.

The most cheerful of our early spring migrants is the song sparrow. How we delight in listening to the bright, tuneful song! This, however, is hard to describe, because though every true birdwatcher easily recognizes the voice of a song sparrow, each individual bird has its own, particular tune.

Old timers sigh for the days when a flock of blackbirds on a snowy country road was a fairly common sight. As the startling increase, our delightful bluebirds become more and more scarce.

EVENING STORIES

When the shades of night are falling
And the evening lamps are lit,
When the winter winds are calling
It is then the children sit
Round the fireside's cozy circle,
Watching flame and shadows flit.

Now they're listening to a story
Of the days of long ago,
Fancy in the coals they're seeing
Daring deeds of Ivanhoe,
And in her tale the story
Eyes are bright and hearts aglow.

But when mother tells the story
Of Charles Dickens' "Little Nell",
Eyes with tears are brimming over
Though they love the story well.
For the pathos of the story
Enters in their hearts to dwell.

We again as little children
Sit beside the glowing grate,
Hear in dreams the evening stories
Though life's hour is growing late,
Hear again the voice of loved ones,
Who beyond the sunset wait.

—Helen B. Anderson.

WELLINGTON. — With the modern accessories of radio, television and radio, I have no doubt that the evenings around the home fireside are not the picturesque scene as portrayed in the above poem. The evenings that I recall in my childhood home were spent in reading the stories in the school readers in listening to the music as a brother played the violin with organ accompaniment by a sister, and maybe we young-er ones attempting to waltz to the music. Then there were music lessons to be practised—in fact it seemed that we made our own entertainment. Now we have the ready-made program, and we sit idly by and enjoy television or radio with no effort on our part.

Korean Youth Writes Book About His Family, Home

TORONTO (CP) — Pak Jong-yong, a Korean youth who got a gift in Canada with farmer defence minister Brooke Claxton, has written a book about his family's experiences in the Korean war.

"Korean Boy," to be published next month by the Macmillan company of Canada, tells the tale of three months in the life of Jong-yong's family—the family name is Pak—after they fled their home in Chong-ju during the Communist invasion of South Korea.

Jong-yong (pronounced Chong-yung) arrived in Canada three years ago through the efforts of a group of Canadian reporters.

In 1951, when 18, he took a job as houseboy for Agence France-Presse in the correspondents' billet at 8th army headquarters in Taegu, where his intelligence and industry impressed Canadian reporters.

He used to look out what school books he had and study English, mathematics, biology—any subject related to scientific farming. The Canadian reporters decided to see if he could study in Canada.

Before he arrived many had pitched in to cut the red tape involved. Mr. Claxton snipped the last piece at Pizza airfield by offering the slight brown - haired youth—by this time wearing a Canadian uniform—a lift in his airplane when he returned from visiting Canadian troops in Korea.

Now a third-year agricultural student at McGill's Macdonald College, Jong-yong plans to return to Korea to help instruct farmers there in scientific farming.

The book, 80,000 words, was written in Korean, translated into English by Jong-yong, then edited by Jack Carroll, a Toronto newspaper man.

Pak wrote his book—the story of any Korean family under war conditions—to help others understand what led to war in Korea.

One chapter, a tale of Pak and his dog, has been bought by a United States sports magazine. "Korean Boy" also is being published by Lothrop, Lee and Shepard in the United States.

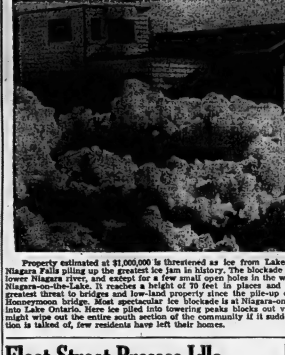
BRIDGE ENDANGERED



The Lewiston bridge, located part way down the Niagara escarpment near Queenston—Ont., is threatened as ice rises. The spring ice jam whisked down from Lake Erie and into the Niagara river causing extensive damage on both Canadian and United States sides. This view of the Lewiston Bridge is taken from the Canadian side. (CP Photo)

MASSIVE ICE BRIDGE

Gigantic piles of ice form at the base of the Horseshoe Falls in one of the worst ice jams on the Niagara river in 20 years. The ice, whisked down the winding river from Lake Erie, has done extensive damage on both Canadian and American sides. The pileup, as high as 35 feet, demolished wooden buildings along the way and forced three families to evacuate from their homes. (CP Photo)

GREATEST ICE JAM IN HISTORY THREATENS NIAGARA RESIDENTS

Property estimated at $1,000,000 is threatened as ice from Lake Erie continues to thunder over Niagara Falls piling up the greatest ice jam in history. The blockade is already 15 miles long, along the lower Niagara river, and except for a few small open holes in the whirlpool extends from the Falls to Niagara-on-the-Lake. It reaches a height of 70 feet in places and is described by residents as the greatest threat to bridges and low-land property since the pile-up of 1938 carried away the historic Honneymoon bridge. Most spectacular ice blockade is at Niagara-on-the-Lake where the river empties into Lake Ontario. Here ice piled into towering peaks blocks out view of U.S. Authorities say jam might well cut the entire south section of the community if it suddenly lets go, but although evacuation is talked of, few residents have left their homes.

Diplomats Say Russians Turned Down Disarmament Proposals of West Powers

LONDON (AP) —The Soviet Union turned down a Western proposal to cut the United States, Russian and Red Chinese armed forces to between 1,000,000 and 1,500,000 each, Western representatives at the London disarmament conference say.

This was one of the points made Friday night by American and French delegates who outlined their versions of the month-long talks. They pledged to continue the negotiations to "cast aside the horrible threat of H-bomb warfare."

The Western views were presented after London, Paris and Washington accused Russia's deputy foreign minister, Andrei Gromyko, of violating conference secrecy rules by leaking to Tass, the Soviet news agency, a plan presented by him at the talks.

The three Western powers also charged that Gromyko's interview misrepresented their position and attempted to give the impression that only Russia was ready to reach a disarmament agreement.

FALSE IMPRESSION

The Russian blueprint of the Western-proposed cut in armed forces was reported by Tass Moscow chief French delegate. Under the plan, French forces would be trimmed to 650,000 men. In an interview, Moch said the Russians countered by suggesting a one-third reduction all around, an idea Russia has presented many times before.

Moch described it as "unacceptable." U.S. Ambassador James Wadsworth said in a statement that such a cut "would merely perpetuate the present Soviet superiority in mass armies."

Describing the Gromyko interview as "dishonest," Wadsworth declared:

"Mr. Gromyko gives the impression that it is only the Soviet Union which has put forward proposals in this conference.

"The facts: The Western delegations jointly introduced a detailed proposal covering every part of a disarmament program. These proposals describe how we can actually get both the use and the manufacture of nuclear weapons, reduce armed forces and conventional weapons, and set up the kind of control machinery which would bring it that a disarmament program would be honored in fact and not in fancy."

DEMAND GUARANTEES

In the Tass account, Gromyko accused the West of wanting to "guarantee the armaments race" and of blocking agreement on the stopping of thermonuclear weapons. He also detailed a Russian plan for a step-by-step reduction of conventional weapons, leading to eventual abolition of nuclear arms.

Western diplomats say the plan was similar to allied disarmament proposals but that Russia has included no willingness to agree on the practical details of armament control by the international commission. The West wants iron-clad guarantees against violation.

Moch said the Russian plan "held out prospects of eventual agreement." A Western delegation statement said the U.S. "is prepared to continue the discussions while any progress can be served by them, even though it seems clear to the Soviet Union it used the conference for propaganda purposes."

Ten Electrical Firms Guilty In Combine Case

TORONTO (CP)—Ten electrical wire and cable manufacturers, convicted Friday of operating a price-fixing combine, will be sentenced May 16.

Crown counsel P. A. Hess, acting in the absence of special prosecutor John D. Arnup, announced his intention of asking for the maximum $10,000 fine on each company, four costs and expenses.

The crown would also seek an order prohibiting the corporations from continuing to operate a combine, he said.

The companies convicted were: Northern Electric Co. Ltd.; Canada Wire and Cable Co. Ltd.; Fircrest Co. Ltd. (formerly Phillips Electrical Works Ltd.); Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd.; Automatic Electric (Can.) Ltd.; Canada Conduits and Fittings Ltd.; Federal Wire and Cable Co. Ltd.; Triangle Conduit and Cable (Canada) Ltd.; Industrial Wire and Cable Ltd.; and Boston Insulated Wire and Cable Co. Ltd.

LENGTHY DECISION

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court handed down a decision that took 3¼ hours to read.

He said:

"The irresistible conclusion from the evidence is that whenever there was a suggestion of competition existing its head, the combine solution of all the accused was brought to bear (not only for the purpose of) wrecking it but also for extinguish it."

He dispensed with the defence contention that it should be proved there was intention to gain a monopoly in the trade. The act merely required that it be proved the agreement was to hinder competition.

The agreement was not set out in any formal way, he said. Great care was taken to conceal it. But firms could be found guilty for their attempt to camouflage.

There was as little written record as possible, said Mr. Justice McCruer. For circulating letters and telephone lists were used. Memoranda was circulated on plain onion-skin with no letterhead. They were passed by plain envelopes and mailed with ordinary postage stamps, although some participating firms had postage meters. Envelopes were marked personal.

Meetings were held not only to fix prices but to arrive at other agreements, he said. Visits were used to police the agreement and to call meetings. At meetings no minutes were kept. Although price decisions were reached.

HYDRO CONFLABBED

Mr. Justice McCruer said little evidence that prices were based on costs or that costs of companies were considered. Considerable drops in prices were set, he said. A careful eye was kept on developments. Accused firms put the price as high as they could having regard to the competition.

When the tariff was reduced, prices were lowered to meet the new situation, he said. If prices abroad went up, they were advanced here without regard to the need of the company.

The decision to prosecute came from an 18 - months inquiry launched in 1952 when the Dominion government received complaints from Ottawa and Winnipeg hydro commissions that firms were making identical bids on tenders for electrical equipment.

Fleet Street Presses Idle, Strike Deprives Londoners Of All Their Daily Papers

LONDON (AP) — Fleet street, London's bustling newspaper row, was stilled today as a wage strike by electricians and maintenance men forced suspension of the city's nine main dailies.

The Manchester Guardian was the only national daily on sale in the capital as a result of the stoppage, which also shut the financial and sporting papers and the Communist Daily Worker.

One union official said after a mass meeting that the stoppage probably would last into next week.

Sports enthusiasts were without late word from their favorite columnists on two of Britain's biggest sporting events, the Grand National and the Oxford - Cambridge boat race, both scheduled for today.

RUN ON MAGAZINES

London's 8,000,000 inhabitants depended on the British Broadcasting Corp. for news. There was a run on the news stands for magazines.

Some 300 provincial papers published outside London were not affected by the strike, but none were being distributed in the capital.

Labor and management met in government conciliation officials Friday night. Union strikers' mass meetings were called.

The unions want new pay raises to meet the increased cost of living, but they have not made public what they are asking.

However, a management representative said: "A wage increase identical to that made to all other unions in the London newspaper printing industry—and accepted by a majority of them—has been refused by the Amalgamated Engineering Union and the Electrical Trades Union."

SIMILAR RAISES

The two unions are not affiliated with the printing and kindred trade federations, but their members have usually received increases similar to those obtained by the printers.

The new proposals would give skilled members of the two unions flat minimum hourly rates of 2s 6d, for night work and £11 1s 6d, for day work. Night workers have been getting £12 3s and day workers £10 9s 6d.

The cities of Milan, Venice and Turin in Italy were without newspapers today as unions and publishers failed to reach agreement on wage demands. The papers' mechanical staffs were pulled out on a 24-hour strike.

Govt. Takes $27,500 Beating In Robbery

OTTAWA (CP)—After 86 years the federal government admitted Friday that it took a $27,500 beating in a St. Catharines bank robbery.

This came to light in the Commons when Finance Minister Harris asked the House to write off the money as uncollectable.

He said bandits stole $46,000 in federal funds from the bank Jan. 11, 1909. Since that time $18,500 had been recovered but the remainder had disappeared into thin air.

The bank notes had not been traced to the public at the time of the robbery and were stored in the bank pending issue. As a result, the receiver-general of Canada decided that the liability rested with the federal government.

Member Charges Govt. Denies Information

OTTAWA (CP) — Davie Fulton, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Kamloops, charged Friday night the government is denying information to the Opposition because it has something to hide.

Speaking on the CBC program "The Nation's Business," he said the record of recent proceedings in Parliament and its committees establishes beyond any doubt that the government refuses to allow the elected representatives of the people to ascertain how the people's money is being spent and wasted.

"We do not believe, as the St. Laurent government does, that the people are entitled to only what facts the government finds it politically convenient to give," he said.

RECENT REQUESTS

Mr. Fulton said the two most recent opposition requests for information dealt with the decision of the CNR to have the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel in Montreal managed by an American - directed hotel chain and with the disclosure of profits at the 11 world-scale Royal Canadian Engineers, at Vancouver. The government has "refused" to provide the information sought.

These are just two examples of a disturbing but consistent pattern of refusal by this government to give facts as to how your national business is being run," he said.

His statements were included in the text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Duesseldorf Now Being Called 'Paris of Western Germany'

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DUESSELDORF, Western Germany, (CP)—Building cranes dip and turn on the bomb-scarred skyline of this fast-rising city.

Massive new buildings of stone and plate glass stand amid bombare patches, gutted masonry or heaps of bulldozed rubble piled high nearly 10 years after fighting ended in Germany.

Times are good in this city of 650,000, the "Paris of Western Germany." Banking house for the booming Ruhr and the upper Rhine valley, Duesseldorf vies with Frankfurt as the country's financial centre.

MODERN METROPOLIS

Business men of the western world stroll daily through the modern downtown commercial area of almost equal neon. Luxury hotels are second to none in Europe or Britain. New banks line one side of Koenigsallee, the main stem with its treed lagoon. On the other, and spreading through the downtown area, are capacious department stores, shops, cafes and offices.

Commodities — foods, couture, jewelry, leather goods, candy, cameras and cosmetics—run high into the luxury class. Traffic is heavy on city streets, some of which are being widened.

At night, in new and old sectors, Germans are enjoying themselves in brassy night spots, crowding middle-class wine parlors and less pretentious taverns beyond the glitter.

How deep does prosperity go? "There is plenty of work here," says a British civil servant stationed in the city for four years. "The German army will soak up any surplus labor in the country—ending the economic advantage that Germany has enjoyed over countries like Britain with full employment. Already there is talk of importing Italian labor."

Wages for hard-working German as—ca reconstruction jobs at 8 a.m. or earlier at a North American cana tcmpo—seem adequate. But the pinch is on fixed incomes in the white - collar brackets, and pensioners are in bad shape financially.

Housing is tight. Duesseldorf lost an estimated 85 per cent of its buildings, and rebuilding—about 60 per cent complete or under way—still has a way to go.

To people here, predominantly Catholic and pro-Adenauer, rearmament seems to have posed a problem as painfully resolved individually as elsewhere.

WARY OF ARMY

Wolfgang Pohlmann, raised under the Nazis and now a reporter, voices what appears to be the common opinion when he says:

"No German can forget what happened under the last army. But we feel that there is no alternative with the Russians. We must have strength. We must negotiate and hope for reunification."

Says another German: "Reunification is not a burning issue. For one thing, people here are said that the 18,000,000-person eastern zones, which has always been the poorer part of the country, would siphon off our good times."

Then there is the office secretary who says: "The young men need army training—they have no manners these days."

NYLONS DESINTEGRATE

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Nebulous nylons annoyed Albany again Tuesday. A dozen women employed in an office building reported that their hose had begun to disintegrate. A similar complaint was voiced here last April, and a theory expressed then was that high sulphur content in the air had weakened the nylon.

Scelba Sees Limit on Arms Only Road to World Peace

OTTAWA (CP)—Italy's Premier Mario Scelba, in Canada for a three-day visit, meets today with Canadian government officials for talks discussions on the divided state of the world.

The 53-year-old statesman arrived in Ottawa Friday night after telling a press conference in Montreal earlier in the day that he favors a disarmament conference to which Russia would be invited.

He added that an agreement for limitation of armaments under international control is "the only guarantee that . . . problems for which now divide the world in two sides can be settled."

Today he meets the press again and undoubtedly will be asked to amplify his Montreal statement. It is understood he will discuss it further, too, when he calls for a talk with External Affairs Minister Pearson and later when he attends a luncheon given by Prime Minister St. Laurent at the latter's official residence.

On his arrival in Ottawa, Premier Scelba gave no press interview at the station but, speaking into radio microphones, said the principal aim of his visit is to develop collaboration between Canada and Italy inside the Atlantic community. He will leave Sunday for Washington.

After his press conference today Premier Scelba calls formally on Mr. Pearson in his east block office. Then he will lunch with Mr. St. Laurent, meet members of the NATO parliamentary committee in the afternoon and be guest of honor at a reception at the Italian embassy, in the evening he will be tendered a dinner by Governor-General Massey at Government House.

Premier Scelba will attend mass at St. Anthony's church and later, at a meeting of the Italian community in a hall adjoining the church, he will unveil a plaque in memory of his predecessor, Alcide de Gasperi.

No Conservative Seat Is Safe Oliver Declares

KITCHENER (CP) — Farquhar Oliver, Ontario Liberal leader, said Friday night no Progressive Conservative seat will be safe in the next Ontario general election.

He said the great upswing evident in the Liberal party gives every indication that the next election will be no pleasure jaunt for the Conservatives.

He spoke at a nominating meeting at which John J. Winterreyer, Kitchener lawyer, was chosen to represent Waterloo North riding in the next election.

N. S. Bill Extends Right Of Local Option in Province

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW GLASGOW, N.S. (CP)—Around the tie, long ago, that Pictou county's per capita liquor intake fell five gallons in 1954, Georgie McDonald figured it was high time for a celebration.

So McDonald, a private citizen, signed up Rev. Duncan Rogs and Donnie and Davie MacLeod and prepared to do battle with the "wets" who were most of the other people in the county.

That was 128 years ago in the pioneering days when people bought their salt and rum by the barrel, and the county's 14,000 inhabitants downed 70,000 gallons of spirits a year, ostensibly for the same reason that people today invest in grape harvests.

The passage of time has brought about "wetness" values in this steel-coal region where the incentive of rum once was as much a part of the county industry as nails.

That is why a provincial government bill to permit local voting for an added liquor store hasn't unduly excited Pictou county. The bill is currently before the Nova Scotia legislature and it extends the right of local option for the first tie in 25 years.

There now are government liquor stores at Stellarton, Westville, New Glasgow and Pictou. They appear to be handling the demand with ease, although they probably would have been hard-pressed in the days of Georgie McDonald and the MacLeods, Donnie and Davie.

The temperance movement got up steam at a time when it was customary, for instance, to lay in a supply of rum for the men hired to fit a pig requiring a lot of muscle-power such as raising the roof on a new building. In fact, men who were considered slow at work without advance assurance they had rum were known as scarcer than temperance workers before the arrival of Georgie McDonald.

There is the authenticated story of the group of McDonald adherents who vowed to show that spirits were not a necessity by showing up in a bunch at a barn-raising project.

The only hitch was that, strain as they might, they couldn't get the timbers off the ground. The jeers and catcalls of the regular crew standing nearby didn't improve their spirits.

The rum-seekers turned to when their "dry" colleagues were along and the wall was vertical before you could bat an eye.

Nonetheless, the moderation prevailed. A local newspaper dated Sept. 17, 1828, released Friday, said:

"On Friday last, the frame of a large dwelling house, the property of Georgie McDonald, was raised without the use of rum. In lieu of ale and beer were used no that the work was completed in a superior manner while neither abusive language nor profane swearing was heard, no black eyes nor drunken men seen, but peace and friendship pervading the conducurse."

The same paper was "pleased to note two years later that a ship had finally been launched from the John Gordon shipyards "without the use of ardent spirits."

Prison Repair Costs $200,000 Says Minister

OTTAWA (CP)—Repair of damage to Kingston penitentiary caused in a prisoner riot there last May may amount to $200,000, Finance Minister Harris said Friday night.

He explained to questioners in the Commons that a $200,000 item in the government's 1954-55 supplementary estimates is earmarked for repair of the big federal penitentiary.

He said $170,000 of the money will definitely be spent and there probably will be need for an additional $30,000.

The penitentiary was severely damaged by rioting prisoners who set fire to some of the big cell blocks in the east corridors. The riot was quelled only after armed troops were called in.

TWISTER HITS

WHITE PINE, Tenn. (AP)—A two-coned twister struck this area from a black cloud late Friday and left a wake of wrecked buildings, uprooted trees and power damage estimated at $100,000. No deaths or injuries were reported.

Board Deficit On Import Of Butter Passed

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons Friday voted $278,000 for the dairy agricultural products board deficit on purchase of New Zealand butter in 1951, the year of a Canadian butter shortage.

Finance Minister Harris said the importation was not continued as actual loss to the federal treasury since it collected $1,118,000 in import duties on the butter. That would make a profit of about $838,000.

He said 13,500,000 pounds of butter were imported at a purchase price of $6,438,000. Reason for the late clearance of the account, he said, is that the last of the butter was disposed of only during the last year.

Dismisses Libel Suit Against Vancouver Man

VANCOUVER (CP) — A libel suit brought against the Vancouver Province and columnist Eric Nicol by eight members of an Anglican Church jury was dismissed in Supreme Court here Thursday by Mr. Justice H. W. McInnes.

The jurors were members of a 12-man panel which convicted 18 year-old William Wakefield Gash of murder a year ago.

The action arose from an article on capital punishment written by Mr. Nicol on March 24, 1954.

The jurors claimed the article reflected on them and that they suffered as a result. They sought unstated damages.

Dismissing the suit, Mr. Justice McInnes said the article was clearly meant in a figurative and not a literal sense, and did not suggest that the jury acted other than in accordance with their oath of office as jurors.

There was no mention of costs.

Hastings Farm Forum

FRANKFORD — Four forums reported recent meetings: Brookdale (10), Foxboro (13), Melrose (12), and Rural Valley (12).

The topic was: "The 40-Hour Week in Agriculture," and the question: "How can the farmer offset industry's higher wages and shorter hours in order to secure farm labor?"

Answers:

More stress and importance put on accommodation such as board, lodging, transportation, salary incidentals, plus the salary. Assurance of year round work — not just through the summer months.

One remark was: If you do work longer hours while haying or harvesting, there is some more slack days to compensate such as when it rains or you are waiting for hay or grain to be ready.

40-HOUR WEEK HOPELESS

Melrose says: "Our forum thinks it is hopeless for farmers to try and compete with other industries for labor. A 40-hour week would be out of the question in agriculture.

In the first place farm labor must prefer working on the land, or raising livestock, or being in the open air to working in a factory, or living in a city.

Mechanization on farms has helped to cut down on long working hours and also on the need of hired help.

The average farmer does not need help the year round, only for the busy season. A farmer who lives near the city and has sale for whole milk can give year round employment and as he has a larger income, can pay higher wages.

With reasonable hours, good food and living conditions, good wages and co-operation between farmer and laborer everything should run quite smoothly.

Wildlife Service Baffled Over Love Life of Whooping Crane

By JOHN VAN DUSEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian wildlife service is baffled over the love life of the rare whooping crane.

Their evasiveness and small numbers—there are only 31 known to be in existence—make it hard for wildlife experts to track them down to their summer nesting grounds.

Wildlife people know the big cranes spend the winter in Texas and the summer somewhere in Canada's Northwest Territories. That's about all.

They don't know why the bird is becoming so rare—why it isn't reproducing—because they can't get near its nesting grounds.

NUMEROUS CENTURY AGO

About 100 or 150 years ago, the whooping crane was a common sight in Canada and the United States. Hunters probably accounted for most of the decline in the population, but since the early 1900s the whoopers have been protected by the migratory bird regulations. Hunters may have shot a few by mistake since then, but officials feel there should be more than 31 survivors.

The population was cut to 21 last winter. Three of the big red-crowned cranes failed to return to the wintering grounds at Aransas national wildlife refuge in Texas. No one knows what happened to the missing birds, although hunters are suspected.

The Aransas refuge, 47,000-acre sanctuary, is the only known home of the birds. There they are watched from platforms atop 30 foot poles. But only one of the summer mating grounds is known.

Most of the whoopers were located nesting near Wood Buffalo park in the Northwest Territories. The site will be investigated further this spring.

Other traces have been found in the Territories. However, one wildlife spokesman said the most likely spots are bog - infested swamp lands "just about impossible to investigate."

"Sometimes we hear of a place where they have been seen," he added. "But when our crews get there to investigate the birds have gone."

SPRING EXPEDITION

He said regular department teams in the Territories have been alerted to watch for the birds and an expedition is being planned for this spring.

The spokesman said that if a nesting ground is found it likely will be turned into a sanctuary.

Officials feel that little will be known about the bird until its mating grounds are found and investigations are carried out to see what is preventing the population from increasing.

Origin of the big bird with the six-foot, black-tipped wings travelled from the Arctic coast to central Mexico and from Utah to South Carolina. The flight pattern in recent years goes across Texas, central Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota and northwesterly across Saskatchewan into the Territories. There the trail disappears.

Garden Notes

Start Some Annuals Now

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Many of our most popular annuals are slow starters. If you wait to plant them in the open ground after all danger of frost is past they will come into flower very late. Fill some pots, milk cartons, berry boxes, or flats with soil and plant the slow starters now.

A good starter mixture is equal parts of sand, garden soil and peat moss. As you may wish to use equal parts sand and garden soil and half, to one inch of vermiculite on the top. You could also use the peat, sand and a top layer of vermiculite and sow the seeds in the vermiculite.

Moss acts as a sponge to hold moisture and prevents soil from drying out too quickly. A top layer of peat moss is used by some growers. It has a fungicidal action.

Vermiculite, expanded mica, is sterile and will not support bacteria so it too is very much in favor with those who fear damping off. Vermiculite also retains moisture and provides an ideal medium for seedlings.

You can sterilize soil by baking it in the oven at 180 degrees for 30 minutes. I would advise against this. The odor is most unpleasant.

A solution of formalin will also sterilize soil. Directions are on the bottle. Formalin may be purchased at any drug or seed store.

Soil for seedlings must be kept from drying out. A few hours in a sunny window can dry out soil and kill all new seedlings. Keep soil moist but not wet.

After the second pair of leaves have formed it is time to "prick out", as the florist says. This means a transplanting to more roomy pots or flats. To this second potting soil add a tablespoon of complete plant food to each quart of soil, or use a weak solution of liquid plant food when watering the plants. Do this once a week. Fast soft growth is not desirable. Short sturdy plants that are gradually hardened off before planting outdoors are far healthier.

The 10 most popular annuals are petunias, salvia, marigolds, (both the French and African) calendula, or Scotch marigold, aster, zinnia, snapdragons, portulaca, ageratum and sweet alyssum. All of these may be planted now and be ready to transplant outdoors in May.

For fine seeds such as petunias prepare the seed pan, soak the soil and allow it to drain for several hours before sowing. Sprinkle seed sparingly over the surface and press in gently with a block of wood or any smooth flat surface. Lay a piece of glass or several layers of damp newspaper over the top until the seeds have germinated.

You can use vermiculite both in place with a rubber band. This will keep soil from drying out too quickly. Turn off the covering once or twice a day for ventilation. When the first leaves come through remove the covering, place in a sunny south window if possible, but do remember to keep the soil from drying out.

Water the surface of the soil with a fine spray or set the flat in tub of tepid water until moist spots form on the surface.

Outpost Service In Hospitals Now Adequate

TORONTO (CP)—For the first time in several years Red Cross outpost hospitals are operating with adequate staffs, Nettie D. Fidler, chairman of the nursing committee said Thursday.

She was addressing 600 delegates at the annual meeting of the Ontario division of the Red Cross.

Miss Fidler said she hoped outpost service in small centres would continue to grow and announced that a public health service would soon be established at Temagami.

"We expect to begin the Temagami hospital in 1955 and also open an eight-bed hospital in Minden," she said.

Some 7,000 patients were admitted to outpost hospitals in Ontario last year. During 1954, 77 nurses each gave a month's service without remuneration.

Twenty-Five Cornwall Indians Make World's Lacrosse Sticks

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP)—Twenty-five Indians on Cornwall Island, just outside this city on the St. Lawrence river, make the world's supply of lacrosse sticks. It takes a year to produce a stick.

In a small factory and in private homes within a mile radius of the shop, skilled natives of the St. Regis Mohawk tribe make 18,000 lacrosse sticks a year. About 8,400 go to the United States, 4,000 to Britain and the rest stay in Canada.

Canada could send up to 3,000 sticks a year to Australia but current restrictions of that sterling area prevent the sale of this unique Canadian product in order. As a result many Aussie lacrosse sticks, resting as long as the wood is in them lasts, are as old as the players.

The sticks are fashioned by men and women whose care could have been handed down from generation to generation. The men make the sticks and the women lace them.

Lacrosse is the Indians' and Eskimos' game, growing from bagga-tawaye or baggatiway to Canadian "ball game." Considered Canada's national game, it was once a mass exercise for the Indian warriors.

As many as 500 would take part on a field about half a mile long. They chased a rawhide-covered ball, with the hooped, webbed stick and its pocket of crossed thongs.

In the 1840s the white man adopted a different version of this Indian exercise and called it lacrosse, in Montreal; rules were set up in 1867, the year of Confederation, and the game took root in Toronto, too.

Soon it had spread over all the English-speaking world. It now is an optional sport in U.S. universities, colleges and military academies.

Lacrosse began in Canada with 12 men a side and continued until about 1890 when, to trim travelling expenses, teams were cut to six men each, the field was shortened to hockey rink size, smaller sticks were used and the game's name was amended to "box lacrosse."

In England and Australia they play with 12-man teams and in the U.S., it's 10 men to a team. There the game is called "field lacrosse."

School teacher Colin Chisholm runs the Cornwall Island factory with his partner Frank Rourke point, councillor of the St. Regis tribe.

Roundpoint supervises the factory work and Chisholm handles the sales and management end.

Experienced splitters cut seven-foot hickory logs into pieces which are trimmed, gouged and shaped into a sharp curve at one end. They are wired in that position and left outside to dry for five months.

The dried billets are given to stick-makers who shave the stick into its familiar shape.

The stick then is hung up to dry for another five months. Holes are drilled for the laces, it is sanded smooth and one end is dipped in a pot of grease. The sticks go next to homes where Indian women lace them with rawhide, leather, cross-lacing and pocket and nylon, according to choice.

Start Early For Cup Day

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hotel reservations already are being snapped up in Vancouver for Grey Cup Day Nov. 26.

It was learned Friday that a number of football executives from both eastern and western Canada have made reservations at Vancouver's Hotel Vancouver for Nov. 26.

The Canadian football final traditionally is played on the last Saturday in November, which this year falls on Nov. 26.

The reservation clerk at the hotel said about 100 reservations already have been made.

Majority of delegates attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union here appear to feel that Vancouver's bid to host the 1955 cup final was odds-on choice over the bids of Toronto and Montreal.

Galt Will Play In Intercounty

GALT (CP)—Galt Terriers will remain in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League, it was announced Friday.

Walter J. Reid, president of the Galt Baseball Association, said Bill Lindsay and Bert Pancras, both of Detroit, will operate the franchise here this season.

Both men are in close contact with baseball in Detroit and are confident they can obtain several outstanding players for professional players for the Terriers.

With Galt in, the league will operate with six teams. The others are London, St. Thomas, Brantford, Oshawa and Kitchener.

Training Camp Notes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The only way the Pittsburgh Pirates have sat in on a world series of late has been by television.

Which is another way of saying they haven't won a National League pennant since 1927. They've been out of the cellar just once in the past 10 years—a seventh-place seventh in 1951.

Now Fred Haney's youngsters seem to be on the move.

Pittsburgh had a so-so 7-6 record in the exhibitions, but the Pirates haven't been any pushovers. Friday day they knocked off the Boston Red Sox 3-2. Ben Wade, an old-timer picked from St. Louis, set down the Sox on two hits and had a 5-0 lead when he retired after four innings.

The New York Yankees may have another keeper in Johnny Kucks. The tall New Jersey right-hander baffled Brooklyn for seven innings, giving up three singles, as the Yanks won 5-1.

The St. Louis Cardinals had a repeat of their 1954 pitching misfortunes, blowing a 6-3 lead in the ninth for a 7-6 decision by Philadelphia.

Veteran Virgil Trucks rallied the Chicago White Sox' sagging offence with a pair of homers and gave up just three hits in five innings in a 14-5 victory over Detroit. Chico Carrasquel grand-slammed for the Sox. And Al Kaline got one for Detroit.

Wes Westrum and Bob Lennon clubbed home runs as the New York Giants mapped the Chicago Cubs' six-game streak 6-3.

Baltimore and Kansas City split a pair. The Orioles won the opener 10-3 and the Athletics took the nightcap 7-4.

Music to Help Strait Swimmer

VICTORIA (CP)—Strains of popular songs will float across the water when Janice White, 18-year-old Toronto swimmer, attempts next Wednesday to conquer the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Her course will be over a treacherous 19-mile stretch from Victoria to Port Angeles, Wash. No one has ever made it.

Miss White will have music—blared from a rowboat loudspeaker —to keep her strokes rhythmic.

A burly logger, Bert Thomas of Tacoma, Wash., is also anxious to conquer the defiant channel. The 275-pound former United States marine will announce his goals and date April 1.

Miss White is confident her ability and her secret jumping-off spot will help her succeed where distance champion Florence Chadwick failed last August. The battle with rip-tides beat the California swimmer.

SANTEE GETS CLOSE

CLEVELAND (AP)—Wes Santee of Kansas thrilled a Knights of Columbus track meet crowd here Friday night by netting a meet mile record of four minutes 4.6 seconds—just a second more than the world indoor mark. Santee's fine performance was a second slower than that of Gunnar Nielsen of Denmark in New York last Feb. 5 when Nielsen's time of four minutes 3.6 seconds clipped two-tenths of a second off a world mark Santee had set at Boston the week before.

Parson Bob Richards regained his meet championship with a 15-foot pole vault.

Forts, Pegs Play 5-5 Tie

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons and Fort William Beavers battled to a 5-5 draw in overtime here Friday night, thus forcing a fifth game in their best-of-seven western Allan Cup semi-final.

Beavers won the first three encounters 4-2, 4-3 and 5-4. A crowd of more than 3,300 was on hand. Next contest is scheduled for Sunday afternoon here.

Forward Ian Mackintosh, who scored two goals and an assist, led the Winnipeg attack. Lou Joyal, Malcolm Davidson and Larry Wilder added single tallies for the Maroons.

Alex (Moe) Irving, Peter Geegan, Tom Kompon, Buck Furslund and Alex Bruskow shared in the Fort William scoring.

Uncle Miltie Berle Remains Among Elite in World of TV

BY WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Milton Berle may have lost his lease on first place in television popularity ratings, but for a guy who's been around as long as he has, he stays right up there.

The first created by Jackie Gleason's big contract starting next season with $6,000,000 behind him has tended to obscure the fact that Uncle Miltie remains among TV's elite.

In the latest Nielsen audience popularity ratings "I Love Lucy" brought in an estimated 54 per cent of the sets tuned in, Disney land 52.3, Gleason 52.2, Comedy Hour 50.1, Dragnet 48.4, Groucho Marx 46.2 and Berle 46.4. But for the season as a whole Gleason has an edge of only a little over two percentage points.

FORMAT CHANGED

Berle himself makes capital of his rivalry with Gleason. At his show this week, for example, he displayed his new start hour with a big photograph of Gleason as the target.

Although he has revised the format of the show considerably from his early days as Mr. Television Berle remains basically a standup comedian while Gleason has moved more and more to production concepts.

You never have to reach for Berle's jokes. They're delivered with about the same finesse as a blow with a blackjack.

Magician Milbourne Christopher, frequently a featured guest on network TV shows, has found a new demand for his prestidigitation. Christopher now is doing filmed commercials, using his magical tricks to gain attention for the sponsor's sales message.

"Meet The Press" has booked industrialist Louis Wolfson for its NBC telecast April 10. Wolfson's campaign to gain control of Montgomery Ward and oust Sewell Avery as chairman has touched off one of the most bitter battles of the century. Jack Perlis, spokesman for the program, says Avery was offered equal time on the blacklist but declined.

Canadian Girl Swimmers Win Four Games Championships

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canada is definitely on the way up in the swimming world and should do well in the 1956 Olympics, says coach Trevor Tyler of Toronto, still beaming today over the four gold medals his women's swimming team won at the second Pan-American Games.

The young, strong Canadian girls, led by tireless Beth Whitall of Montreal, upset the best from the United States in four of the six individual women's swimming championships and took second place behind the Americans in the two relay races.

"This is going to do a lot to stimulate the sport in Canada," commented Walker shortly after 15-year-old Beth swept to two championships 15 minutes apart. "And it means we should do well in the Olympics at Melbourne. We're definitely on the way up."

It was a powerful display of all-round ability that won for Canada. In particular, the remarkable young girl performance of Miss Whitall, a second-year student of pharmacy at Purdue University in Evanston, Ill., still had the swimming crowd buzzing.

ASTONISHING SHOW

The pretty blonde co-ed won the 100-metre butterfly, the 400-metre free style and swam the butterfly third leg in the 400-metre medley relay race—all within a half-hour.

The Canadian girls were so happy that they tossed coach Walker into the pool, Panama hat and all.

Canada also finished third in the gruelling men's 800 - metre free style relay and captured second place in the team synchronized swimming.

In grabbing most of the laurels on the final program Friday, Canadian swimmers earned 35 points in the unofficial scoring. Canada wound up a surprising third in the team standing for swimming and diving with 93 points, close behind runner-up Mexico which had 96.

U.S. ON TOP

The U.S. was the big winner with 176 points and 15 first-place gold medals out of a possible 23. Besides Canada the gold medalists in swimming and diving were Mexico three and Argentina one.

The games came to a formal end today with Olympic-like ceremonies in the huge National University Stadium. Only the classic Prix de Nations, or equestrian obstacle race—more slow than anything else as far as the general public is concerned—was on the bill as feature of the grand finale at the stadium.

Most of the 2,000 or more athletes from 22 countries and territories who performed in the two weeks of competition had gone home. Canada sent about 60 athletes to the games for the first time and finished eighth in the unofficial team standing.

POINT STANDING

The United States finished first with 1,434½ points, Argentina had 569½, Mexico 460, Venezuela 183, Chile 150, Brazil 138½, Cuba 131 and Canada 112.

The U.S. sent 350 men and women to the games and Mexico had the largest squad, more than 400. Canada entered only half a dozen sports. In track and field the Canadians had few entries and were able to pick up but 17-points. Two more came in horsemanship and the rest from swimming.

Poile Draws Fine, Suspension

SEATTLE (CP) — Bud Poile, playing-coach of the Edmonton Flyers, has been fined $100 and suspended for the third game of the best-of-seven playoff semi-final with Vancouver Canucks.

Poile was ejected from the second game of the Western Hockey League series in Edmonton Thursday night for protesting a penalty to Hugh Coflin, Flyer defenceman.

Memos Ward Off Series Shutout With Brilliant 2-0 Win Over Goodyears

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"THEY DOOD IT"

With tongue in cheek we asked Manager Art Casterton of the Kingston Goodyears in the dressing room prior to last night's game, "How about it, bud. We hear you're going to let the Memos win this one?"

The Casterton bloke bristled. "Listen you short, stout and not so handsome so-and-so, we're out to take this series in four straight games—and if you don't believe me watch what happens. We have no time to mosher around with the Memos. We are out to win the Ontario title and the quicker we do it the better we will like it. Lay down? Hell, the only time this club lays down is when they go to bed, or are knocked down. We'll take you fellows tonight like Grant took Richmond. Ask the team."

We did. We invaded the sanctity of the Goodyears' dressing room where we found a cheerful bunch of so-arid-so's, beaming, happy, confident that this was the night they would send their arch-foemen into oblivion.

But they hadn't reckoned with the potential of Frank Boucher's backcarcss. Sixty minutes later they knew it. They battled their hearts out to make good the promise to their little summer and this was it—and so to Memos and to give Mayor George Wright a Hopalong Cassidy rule with our chief magistrate hanging on to the halter. How wrong can some guys be?

The Memos were full value for their victory. They flashed the brilliant two-way hockey that swept them to a 5-3 series victory over the Cornwall Colts. From Tony Parisi, who played another brilliant game in the nets, from semi-stripped Hub Macey, donning a pulled leg muscle to up front in the attacking division of the Memos played sensational two-way hockey to pull out with the victory and give them a lease-of-life on the series. Nothing could be sweeter in the memories of Hub Macey than a victory tonight in Kingston—and then let the Limestone fans, including St. Michael - Max, start worrying. And if the Memos come up with the type of hockey tonight that they played last night they should start worry-warts down Kingston way.

But don't forget, the Memos had to go all-out to win. The Goodyears were not fooling. They had every intention of wiping out our side in the fourth fell swoop and they did everything in their power to accomplish the feat. They battled furiously in an all-out effort to cop the win, but last night they were not good enough.

That Kingston cheering section with its banners, signs and flags of, 'Go-Goodyears-Go", must have had its work backfire. The Belleville clan came up with a similar stunt and the players on the ice were treated to "Go-Goo", not knowing whence the chorus.

However, tonight, is the acid test for the Memos. A victory will put a decidedly different aspect on the series outcome and if they can pull off a win to give the series a 3-3 edge for Kingston that sixth game on home ice here next Tuesday may be the turning point. However, that is wishful thinking—but stranger things have happened.

This might start an argument among hunters of the city and district, who specialize in the chase of foxes and wolves.

Tour Bear Fax, Mr. Hunter, story-booked and newspapered to death, with a mouthful of cotton and an aching brains pa, cannot equal his brother-in-fur, Brer Wolf... No sirree. And Department of Lands and Forests officers can prove it. At least, they say so. Listen to this:

Experts on wolf tactics are Inspector J. S. (Sandy) Ellis, of the Lake Nipissing District, and Conservation Officer Forest Richardson, of Perth. Richardson handles a government pack of running hounds.

Investigating reports of wolves in Simcoe County recently, Ellis invited Richardson to bring along the dogs. An area from the south end of Lake Simcoe to Barrie here in the spring was known to have survived without difficulty. The wolves' foraging range had been established as from Pine River, where a 300-acre forestry plantation made perfect wolf cover, north over three miles of brush country to a 100-acre swamp where another large reforested section offered excellent cover.

Forty Simcoe district hunters were invited to participate in the wolf hunt, with six committee officers. In three days of hunting, three wolves were killed and another was presumed to have died of wounds.

The hunt taught the hunters a few things about wolves, among them: The brush wolf stays on its own range and invariably follows a trail from one hunting area to another until they're established by habit.

Wolves, insisted on coming through the lines of their habitual crossing places, although a dozen hunters had been placed on stands. Unlike a fast which, when chased by a dog, runs the entire outside circle or leaves the area entirely, the wolves ran a small, thick area of 30 acres for an hour or more before breaking into the open to repeat the performance in new ground possibly a mile or more away. Then they reversed themselves and headed back for the starting area.

Shotguns with #2B or Triple A were found to be best suited to wolves. Rifle, however, got one with a .35-gauge gun that No. 3 Rifle Express shot. He estimated that a wolf running ahead of hounds travels at about 20 miles an hour and that only a hunter who can swing and estimate his lead can get in a killing shot.

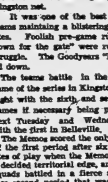
Hang Horse Collar on Foemen In First Victory of Finals; 2,700 Watch Sizzling Battle

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Inspired by determination with their backs to the wall, the Belleville Memos flashed the brilliant hockey that won them the Cornwall series here last night, defeating the Kingston Goodyears 2-0 in a blazing thrill-packed fourth game that saved them the ignominy of a "four-straight" senior "B" final shutout.

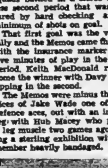
Nearly 2700 howling fans, including a large contingent from Kingston, saw the Memos bring out their fullest potential to not only defeat the Goodyears but blank them for the first shutout of the best-of-seven series.

The Memos defence, sparked by another brilliant exhibition by goalie Tony Parisi, was forced to come up with its best effort of the series to keep the series-hungry Goodyears off the scoresheet. They outshot the Casterton crew 35-34 and drove back a six forward attack in the last two minutes when Goalie Johnson of the Goodyears was taken out of the nets. At that they narrowly missed two empty counters when rink-length passes missed the yawning, unoccupied Kingston net.



It was one of the best games of this red-hot series with the teams maintaining a blistering speed throughout the entire sixty minutes. Foolish pre-game rumors that the Goodyears would "lay down for the gate" were rudely dispelled by the closeness of the struggle. The Goodyears "laid down" only when they were knocked down.

The teams battle in the fifth game of the series in Kingston tonight with Belleville holding seventh games if necessary being played next Tuesday and Wednesday, with the first in Belleville.



The Memos scored the only goal of the first period after six minutes of play when the Memos had a decided territorial edge, and the squads battled in a fierce scoreless second period. The latter featured by hard checking and a minimum of shots on the net.

That first goal was the victory tally and the Memos came through with the insurance marker after five minutes of play in the third period. Keith MacDonald rapped home the winner with Davey Jones tipping in the second.

The Memos were minus the services of Lindy Wall one of their defence aces, out with an injured leg with Hub Macey who pulled a leg muscle two games ago, giving a sterling exhibition with the member heavily bandaged.

TONY PARISI

HUB MACEY
. . .One-legged Wonder

The game opened at the conventional sizzling pace with the Memos having a decided edge in territorial play. It was end-to-end play with both goalies having plenty to do. Goodyears' Johnson started at a terrific clip with Nicholson bouncing a blazer off the Memos' goalie.

Keith MacDonald maintained his goal-a-game average after six minutes on a power passing-play with Macey and Goyer, slashing home the puck on a pulmouth pass. The Memos sparked by the goal, drove to the attack and Delroy and the Duncans boomed pucks off Johnson's pads.

Goodfellow drew the first penalty of the game at 10.56 and the Goodyears's defence successfully held the fort. Johnny Myke was helped off the ice at this point apparently with a leg injury.

The Memos again surged to the attack, then the Goodyears drove close in with Tony Parisi kicking out three staccato shots in a row.

Keith MacDonald went off for charging at 18.27 but the Memos held the fort until the siren tooted.

Fierce close checking featured the second period as the seven shots on goal by Goodyears and four for Memos indicates. Both teams were indulging in long passing with the goalies keeping their citadels intact, warding off lone attackers on occasions.

The Duncans and Ted DeGray with Goyer and Dugan slashed savage shots at Johnson while Toppazzini, Pawchuk and Myke blasted shots at Parisi.

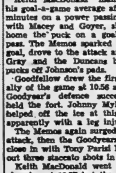
A fan hurled a bottle on the ice and play was suspended. In the meantime a fight broke out in the crowd.

Referee Maurice Welsh ejected the bottle-thrower and had him removed from the area.

Bob Wilson drew an elbowing penalty at 8.04 but Muckler, P. Jones, Duncan and Macey came up with some brilliant penalty killing.

Wilson had just got on the ice when McGregor got the puck and tripping. The Memos surged in but Goodfellow broke away and Parisi kicked out the close-in shot. Irvine had the crowd in a roar on his drive but his shot hit the outside of the net.

While went off for elbowing at 17.19 and again the Memos repped on in desperate effort to increase their goal lead. The Toppazzinis and Hub Macey narrowly missed. Toppazzini broke into the clear but was ahead of near the Memos' goal and his shot went wide.



Dugan and Davy Jones raced in on Johnson to open the third period but the puck slipped off Jones' stick. On the return rush Irvine caught Parisi in an open site corner and his drive for the open net missed by inches. Both teams opened wridely in their race for goals and four Memos spurted across the line-station goalmouth missed a slithering pass.

Again the Memos drove back and this time they had paydirt. Davy Jones parked just outside the crease, thrust out his stick as Wilson passed from the corner and the puck ripped into the net for the Memos' second goal.

The Goodyears were driving desperately in an effort to pull the game and series out of the fire and play became a bit rugged. Goyer and Myke went off after a pushing duel and Erwin Duncan broke into the clear, his shot hitting the goalpost.

Red Dunn got the gate with nine minutes and the Goodyears staged a terrific offensive with a momentary two-man advantage. Muckler, Peter Jones, MacDonald and Wilson did a terrific job of penalty-killing to hold the driving Goodies off the scoresheet.

Goodfellow got an interference penalty at 15.06 and the Memos drove in on power plays with Johnson kicking out successive drives from the Duncan and Dugan clan.

KEITH MACDONALD

Toppazzini was robbed of a sure goal when he broke into the clear and his shot rebounded off and kicked out by Parisi. The Goodyears closed in and hounded the Memos in their own zone with the desperate Belleville defence thwarting back all their efforts. Parisi stabbed Bellringer's terrific short drive that brought the crowd to its feet. On the Memos' return Red Dorran and Peter Jones raced into the clear with Jones' short drive missing the net.

With 73 seconds to go, Coach Les Douglas of the Goodyears pulled Johnson out of the game. The Memos packed their defence and Hub Macey and Erwin Dugan missed the open Goodyears' net by rink-length drives. Before the siren sounded Dugan again broke into the clear but his hurried shot missed. The Goodies' supporters were driving hard as time ran out.

Wins Two Titles In 30 Minutes; Not Even Tired

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Herb Whittall of Montreal swam off with two championships and was second in the relay in the space of 30 minutes at the Pan-American meet Friday and said she wasn't even tired.

A small Canadian delegation, including her mother and father, in the packed swimming stadium, gave the 18-year-old Purdue University co-ed from Montreal a tremendous ovation after her four-stint stunt.

Swimming in the rain, the 5-7 143-pound teen-ager captured the 100-metre butterfly event in the record time of 1:16.3 and followed up 15 minutes later by annexing the 400-metre freestyle in 5:32.4, and again 15 minutes later, held her own in the butterfly third leg of the medley relay.

"No, I wasn't tired," she said after Friday was over. "I'm not tired now. I never hoped to do so well and this is wonderful. Mr. Meyer is a wonderful coach.

"She's the hardest working swimmer I've ever seen," said Meyer as he manages a pool in Toronto. "She tires out her coaches. We map out a schedule and she follows it out—and more. She never gets enough."

Teepees Trounce Toronto Marlies 7-2, Trail by Game in Junior Playoffs

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A 7-2 lacing of Toronto Marlboros by St. Catharines TeePees Friday night probably brought back nostalgic memories of another series to fans in this city.

The victory kept the Teeps in the race for the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A championship. Marlboros lead the best-of-seven final 3-2.

The thoughts of the 3,921 fans who saw Friday night's game must have flashed back to this time last year when their TeePees had their backs to the wall in the semi-finals against Toronto St. Michael's College Majors. St. Catharines, however, fought back to win the best-of-seven series, bounced back to win the set in eight games before going on to take the Memorial Cup.

Can they do it again?

ANSWER SUNDAY

Part of the answer will be provided when the TeePees meet Marlboros in Toronto Sunday. If they win that one, the series goes back to St. Catharines for the final game Tuesday and anything can happen.

The crowd went wild in the third period Friday night when TeePees scored four times to break open the close game. St. Catharines, never behind, was held to a 2-2 tie in the first period and went into the last one on top 3-2.

Barry Cullen led the rout by scoring the last two goals and assisting on two previous tallies. Bob Butler, Coc Hoekstra, Ab McDonald, defenceman Elmer Vasko and Ed Hoekstra notched singles.

Bob Pulford and Gary Collins were the big guns for scorers. Both Toronto goals came in the first period. Pulford, St. Catharines was playing short handed, in their desperate bid to stay "alive" TeePees peppered Toronto goalie John Albani with 41 shots. Marlboros could only direct 22 at Dennis Riggio.

Before the game St. Catharines captain Hank Cleslo, the league's most valuable player this season, received the Eddie Powers Memorial Trophy which goes to the top scorer in the OHA Junior A series.

Leafs Not Likely To Mark Ted Kennedy's Retirement With Stanley Cup

Leafs' Captain Pessimistic About Club's Cup Chances; Clancy Says Wings Overrated

By JIM BANTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Kennedy, the centre Toronto Maple Leafs thought so much of that he could call his own contract terms, probably will ride out of hockey with a losing team. This is his final big-league campaign.

"I'm finished after this season," Kennedy said Friday night. "I'm not coming back."

He reiterated his retirement plans on the eve of the third game of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-finals between Leafs and Detroit Red Wings. Detroit leads the set 2-0. Even Kennedy is pessimistic about Leaf chances.

"This club has yet to prove itself," he commented after returning home from Detroit where Wings defeated the Toronto club 7-4 last Tuesday and 3-1 Thursday.

USED TO CHAMPIONSHIPS

There isn't anything Kennedy would like better than to captain Leafs to a Stanley Cup this time. The 29-year-old workhorse, variously termed the most underrated player in the National Hockey League, the heart of the Leafs or just plain a good guy, is used to being on championship teams.

He joined the Leafs in 1943-43, playing only two games that season. Since then he has been on five world championship winners and out of the playoffs only twice.

Although Kennedy, a player who saw the first two games in Detroit but the wrestling is on the wall for Leafs, Kennedy won't announce anything.

"It will go more than four games," he said. "But we will have to improve a lot to take them."

NO SURPRISE

Kennedy's intention to give up hockey isn't surprising. He retired after the 1953-54 season but was persuaded by Conn Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens Ltd., to return for another fling.

Money didn't enter into the decision. Although Smythe handed Ted a contract and told him to fill in his own salary figure, Kennedy is reported to be making around $25,000 a season and is probably the only Leaf player ever offered such a call-your-own deal.

Ted, a native of Summerside, Que., who scored 16 goals and 42 assists in the regular 70-game schedule this season, intends to go into full-time work with a Toronto building material company. He works with the firm during the off-season.

Trainer of the Detroit-Toronto set-to takes on either Montreal Canadiens or Boston Bruins in the best-4-seven final. Canadiens are ahead 3-0 in their set against the Bruins.

Toron ; coach King Clancy thinks it is all over but the shouting.

"We sh uld have won that second game," he said. "Those Wings can't keep on being so lucky. We're due to start getting a few breaks. If we do, I'm sure every body thinks those guys are so good. We can beat them and we will."

Detroit coach Jimmy Skinner didn't get himself up over the Toronto optimism. Arriving in Hamilton Friday with the Red Wings, Skinner, making his maiden crack at a Stanley Cup, said Detroit will play more defensive hockey in remaining games of the series.

"The Leafs played a terrific game Thursday, I was surprised. They were the offensive team and we were defensive. I thought that one might have gone either way."

MONTREAL (CP) — The same Montreal lineup that turned back Boston Bruins in the first two games of their Stanley Cup semi-final will leave tonight for Boston where the series will be resumed Sunday.

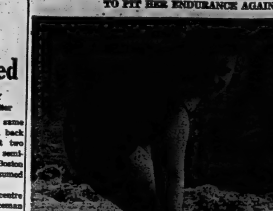
Two charleyhorse victims, centre Jean Beliveau and defenseman Butch Bouchard, underwent treatment Friday but are expected to be ready for the third game. Beliveau's injury, suffered early in the first period Thursday night, was believed the more serious.

Dr. Hans Hess, physiotherapist in charge of the Montreal Forum clinic, said he felt the big centre will be in playable shape.

Bouchard, busy addition to the squad will be George McAvoy, defenceman with Penticton Vs who won the world hockey tournament a few years ago in Germany. He will be signed to a professional contract and will be dressed for the Sunday game but is not likely to be pressed into use of the other four defencemen is injured.

SAME PLAYER

Coach Dick Irvin said he will rely on the same players who allowed the Bruins only one goal in two games. Boston defeated 3-1 in a record, winning 3-0 and 3-1.



The same checking system, used by Irvin in this series with something of a dramatic flourish, will go on view before Boston fans when Dave Plante and Charlie Hodge will both be in the Canadiens' goal.

Irvin was reluctant to say what prompted him to this innovation have to improve a lot to take but there was no doubt Irvin badly them."

If it hadn't been Paul Bondy, acquired late in the season from New York Rangers, may see more action than he has so far. Irvin indicated he thought the blonde centre has shown improvement when shot into Thursday night's game. Bondy may spell off Ken Mosdell, currently victim of a cold for longer rests.

Coach Milt Schmidt is confident that Bruins will snap back into winning form on home ice.

Latest challenger of the unconquered and hazardous Straits of Juan de Fuca, 18-year-old Janice White tests the chilly ocean water at Victoria, where she is training. With her pilot, Charles Goodwin of Victoria, Janice plans her route across the straits between Victoria and the State of Washington. U. S. swimmer Florence Chadwick visited the area last year but failed. If Janice conquers the course, she stands to win $22,000 as a bet with a wealthy Victoria sportsman, sponsored. Bruins Will Sponsor Barrie; Galt May Be Out

TORONTO (CP)—Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series, who have been without a sponsor for two years, may be affiliated with Boston Bruins next year.

Leighton (Hap) Emms, owner-coach of the Flyers, said details of the sponsorship had been "on the fire" since February but were completed only Friday.

The National Hockey League Bruins will then again assume sponsorship of the team that sent up to Boston such stars as Leo Labine, Real Chevrefils and Don McKenzy.

Boston sponsored the Flyers until two years ago when they were forced by Ontario Hockey Association to carry on the affiliation by Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs, who had authority to refuse the permission because Barrie was in their NHL protected area, wouldn't allow the Flyers a sponsor because they wouldn't play Sunday junior hockey in Toronto.

OPERATED INDEPENDENTLY

Emms has operated his team independently during the last two years, finishing out of the playoffs each time. Under Boston sponsorship the Flyers won two Memorial Cups.

"We finally had to compromise," Emms said Friday night. "It is impossible to operate a junior team successfully."

The new agreement with Boston means that Barrie will play Sunday in the future if it is deemed necessary. But it is hoped to do away with that by having permit the Flyers to play most of their games against the two Toronto Maple Leaf teams and St. Michael's College Majors — on week nights.

But if there are open Sunday dates in Toronto that can not be filled by other teams the Flyers will be expected to play on those dates. The Flyers will also play Sundays in the playoffs if the playoffs are scheduled that way.

SPONSOR COACH

Emms, however, said he would not coach the team whenever it is played Sundays. A substitute coach will be appointed for such games.

Boston, who sponsored the junior Galt Black Hawks jointly with Chicago Black Hawks this season, will withdraw its affiliation with the Galt team.

The developments leave the junior hockey question in Galt in a hazy position. Chicago Black Hawks this season had the Catharines TeePees of the OHA junior A when they bought the American League Buffalo Bisons a few months ago. TeePees are expected to be Chicago's farm team next season and such a situation might leave Galt out in the cold.

May Withdraw From Playdowns

WINNIPEG (CP) — The executive of the Fort William Canadiens junior hockey club will decide today whether the team should withdraw from the western Canada junior A-B-C playdowns, Bruins president and manager, said Friday night.

The meeting was called Friday night, but Assaff said officials want to sleep on it and a decision will be made in the morning.

The meeting was called following the Canadiens' 5-4 loss to Kenora Bisons in the second game of their finishing game in which the Monarchs lost 5-4 to tie up the best-of-seven series at 3-2.

Assaff said as far as he was concerned he was "not anxious to carry on the series under the circumstances where one man was being blamed."

Grid Union Will Drop ORFU; Vancouver to Get Grey Cup

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's oldest football league, the Ontario Rugby Football Union, is not expected to take part in the 1955 Grey Cup playoffs.

Formation of a final decision will not be made until today's general meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union, it was learned reliably Friday night that the 13-year-old ORFU will be dropped this year as a cup contender.

A veteran official attending the CRU meeting here said the ORFU had agreed to drop out of the playoff picture this year after being assured of financial compensation and the right to challenge for the coveted trophy in 1956.

DECLINES COMMENT

ORFU president Don Downey of Hamilton declined comment on the report but indicated he will make a statement sometime Saturday.

The official, who would not permit use of his name, would disclose no details of the financial deal worked out for the ORFU, but it was believed the Ontario circuit, five times winner of the cup, will be voted a percentage of the Grey Cup proceeds to compensate them for loss of revenue from a semi-final series.

If ORFU does not play this year it will mean the first time in the 45-year history of the cup that there will be no semi-final.

FARM SYSTEM

The financially, harassed ORFU, once a power in Canadian football and long considered the status of a farm system for the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the Big Four, depends on the semi-final to replenish depleted club funds.

The move to drop the ORFU was instigated by the two major leagues which earlier this year informed the CRU they were not prepared to play a semi-final game against the ORFU champions.

The Big Four gave lack of fan interest and the danger of injuries to key players on the eve of the Grey Cup final as reasons for the move. The WIFU, which hosted the Ontario circuit in Winnipeg in 1954, and Edmonton in 1954, said it is the Big Four's turn to play in the east.

SQUARES FRO BADMINTON

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Cutts of Montreal, defending his world professional badminton title, Friday slight defeated Poul Holm of Denmark 18-15, 15-8, 15-9 to square their best-of-five series for the championship at one game apiece.

The deciding match will be played here later.

Urge Greater Effort For Junior Gridders

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's senior football clubs were urged today to make a greater effort into development of the country's young players.

"Senior football cannot operate without Canadian players," the junior committee of the Canadian Rugby Union said in a report prepared for presentation at the CRU annual general meeting under way here.

"We strongly suggest to the senior unions of the CRU that greater efforts be made to assist in the expansion and development of junior football."

To back up its argument that Canada's 36 junior clubs stretching from Vancouver Island to the Maritimes already are a top source of football material the committee pointed out that 27 per cent of the players dressed for the Edmonton Eskimos-Grey Cup final in Toronto last November were graduates of Canada's junior ranks.

In a review of 1954 activity, A.W. Leveridge of Toronto, committee chairman, and Jack B. Pilton, secretary-registrar, also of Toronto, said about 850 players were registered with junior clubs.

The junior football championship series was run last year by Windsor AKO, "is a very necessary part in the development of Canadian football," said the report. The committee recommended that the 1955 Canadian junior final be played in Nov. 19, one week before the Grey Cup final. No venue was suggested.

The committee also recommended that a uniform CRU certificate be submitted to junior players and that all intermediate and senior clubs be compelled to recognize its release clause.

The committee agreed with a suggestion from the senior leagues that in cases where junior teams are sponsored by a senior club, that club would have first call on any player with that team.

But the committee came out firmly against any outright ownership of players by senior clubs in hockey, with a stipulation that a sponsoring club have exclusive rights to a junior player only until April 30 of the season following the player's graduation from junior ranks. After April 30, the player

Spinning's Place in Angling

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(Noted Sportsman, author and Conservation of Fish Tables.)

It has been interesting, during the past ten years, to watch spinning develop. As you recall, spinning in the early days was a novelty. The non-backlash feature was a great selling point and ease of casting appealed to the novice. Spinning rigs sold like hot cakes.

But as the years passed the fisherman had acquired a spinning outfit, pride of ownership prompted him to use it and use it he did, for everything. Our trout streams were combed, day after day, with spinning lures of every description. Most of these things caught fish but only a few of them caught fish consistently.

On the bass lakes and rivers the same thing was taking place. Spinning was the order of the day. In the manner of spinning lures were invented at the startled bass and again, fish were caught in moderate quantities. The boys used their spinning rigs and paid no regard to of what the fish happened to be doing at the time. Often that was a mistake.

RESENT SPINNERS

Naturally the confirmed fly-rod been resented the use of spinning lures in trout waters. Since then many times I have seen a school of trout rising to the fly and then feeding actively to a drifting batch scattered to the four points of the compass by the cast of a casting or spinning lure that was lobbed into their midst by an overzealous spin fisherman whose knowledge of trout fishing fell far short of his enthusiasm.

For a while the spinning rig was the favorite on our trout streams hereabouts. Gradually the boys found themselves faced with a problem. They learned that not as often as not a spinning lure would scare trout instead of catching them. Meanwhile, the fly-rod boys continued to do all right for themselves.

The spin-fans learned that most spinning lures, the great majority of which are sinking lures, could not be fished economically in the comparatively shallow waters of trout streams. After all, these things cost around a buck per cent and several lures lost on the bottom during the course of a day puts a serious dent in the budget.

HEAVE-AND-HOPE

They found to their dismay that, while they could cast light lures with spinning gear, it was a large order to cast these lures accurately. So long as they were content to stay in the open, unobstructed echoe they were all right. Trouble it, brave-souls casting down-stream catch many fish, and to learn accuracy casting with a spinning rig is a challenging fascination that requires hours upon hours of practice.

While this transitional process in spinning-place it was pleasing to note the gradual disappearance of spinning rigs from our trout streams and the reappearance of the orthodox fly-rod equipment. The boys were finding out about things slowly but surely—the hard way.

One of the best barometers to keep you abreast of trends in outdoor sports is the sales records of the sporting goods store. A visit to the tackle dealer and you can tell you much—and more than things.

Moreover, the sales of spinning rods, reels, lines and lures underwent a definite slump. No longer it possible to sell a new spinning rig or spinning lures. Time was when a big buck into number-one pounds at least so far as trout are concerned. The 1954 season showed no sales of trout flies than any season for several years.

LIGHTER LINES PREFERRED

The use of light spinning lines and smaller, lighter lures is rapidly itself in bait casting. No longer are 12-pound and 20-pound lines the big sellers. Now anything that ranges from 12 down to eight pounds test breaking strain. The weights have gone down also, the heavy lures being the leader.

Strangely enough, the use of the fly rod has not yet shown signs of a let-down and the fly-rod is the exceedingly popular lures, as now is the case. The only thing I can see to do that the bass boys can do is to learn how to cast fly-rod lures more accurately. Ever invested particularly if o

Trout fishing will always be with us, but there will be a complete change in the novice's program. Everyone can learn to cast with a spinning rig in a very short time—much more quickly than he can with a fly-rod. In bait-casting outfit. In this new short-cut still there is hope in the bass-and-hope class.

As I said earlier in bandie a spinning rig efficiently and accurately requires a great deal of practice and until angler learns to do this he is in no better position in fishing fish caught with a fly-rod than he was with the fly rod or the casting rod and reel. He wants to get the most sport from angling, he must learn to fish. So far as I know there is no short-cut.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's oldest football league, the Ontario Rugby Football Union, is not ex-pected to take part in the 1955 Grey Cup playoffs.

Although a final decision will not be made until today's general meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union, it was learned reliably Fri-day night that the 73-year-old ORFU will be dropped this year as a cup contender.

A veteran official attending the CRU meeting here said the ORFU had agreed to drop out of the play-off picture this year after being assured of financial compensation and the right to challenge for the coveted trophy in 1956.

DECLINES COMMENT

ORFU president Don Downey of Toronto declined to comment on the report but indicated he will make a statement sometime Satur-day.

The official, who would not per-mit use of his name, would dis-close no details of the financial deal worked out for the ORFU, but it was believed the Ontario circuit, five times winner of the cup, will be voted a percentage of the Grey Cup proceeds to compen-sate them for loss of revenue from a semi-final series.

If the ORFU does not play this year it will mark the first time in the 43-year history of the cup that there will be no semi-final.

FARM SYSTEM

The financially harassed ORFU, once a power in Canadian football but now regarded as a mere farm sys-tem for the Western Interprovincial Football Union and the Big Four, depends on the semi-final to replenish depleted club funds.

The move to drop the ORFU was finalized a day the two major leagues which earlier this year informed the CRU they were not willing to play a semi-final game against the ORFU champions.

The Big Four gave lack of fan interest and the danger of injuries to key players on the eve of the Grey Cup final as reasons for their move. The WIFU, which hosted the Ontario circuit in Winnipeg in 1951 and Edmonton in 1954, said it is the Big Four's turn to play in the semi-final.

SQUARES FRO BADMINTON

MONTREAL (CP)—Stan Cutts of Montreal, defending his world pro-fessional badminton title, Friday night defeated Paul Dent Mon-treal 15-13, 15-9, 15-9 to square their best-of-three series for the championship at one game apiece.

The deciding match will be played here later.

Urge Greater Effort For Junior Gridders

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's senior football clubs were urged to-day to make greater effort into de-velopment of the country's young players.

"Senior football cannot operate without Canadian players," the junior committee of the Canadian Rugby Union said in a report pre-pared for presentation at the CRU annual general meeting which opens here.

"We strongly suggest to the senior unions of the CRU that greater efforts be made to assist in the expansion and development of junior football."

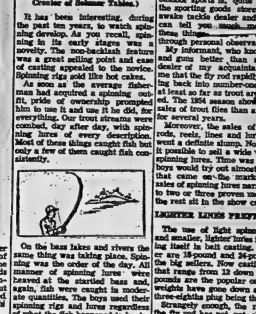
To back up its argument that Canada's 26 junior clubs stretch-ing from Vancouver island to the Maritimes already are a top source of football material, the committee pointed out that 80 per cent of the players dressed for the Eas-tern-Montreal Grey Cup final in Toronto last November were grad-uates of Canadian junior ranks.

In a review of 1954 activity, A.W. Leveridge of Toronto, committee chairman, and Basil B. Pillon, sec-retary-registrar, also of Toronto, said about 900 players were regis-tered with junior clubs.

The junior football championship in Ontario, won last year by Windsor AKO, "is a very necessary part in the development of Canadian foot-ball," said the report. The com-mittee recommended that the 1955 Canadian junior final be played Nov. 19, one week before the Grey Cup final. No venue was suggested.

The committee also recommend-ded that a uniform CRU certifi-cate be issued for all junior play-ers and that all intermediate and senior clubs be compelled to recog-nize its release clause.

The committee agreed with a suggestion that the senior leagues that in cases where junior leaders are graduating a team club, that club would have first call on any player with that team.



The CRU executive came out firmly against any outright owner-ship of a player's contract, as in hockey, with a stipulation that a sponsoring club have exclusive rights to a junior for only until April 30 of the season following the player's graduation from junior ranks. After April 30, the player

Spinning's Place in Angling

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT,
(World Sportsman, author and Creator of Sodbuster Tables.)

It has been interesting, during the past ten years, to watch spin-ning develop. As you recall, spin-ning in its early stages was a novelty. The non-backlash feature was a great selling point and ease of casting appealed to the novice. Spinning rigs sold like hot cakes.

As soon as the average fisher-man had acquired a spinning out-fit, pride of ownership prompted him to use it and use it he did, for everything. Our trout streams were combed, day after day, with spin-ning lures of every description. Most of these things caught fish but only a few of them caught fish con-sistently.

On the bass lakes and rivers the same thing was taking place. Spin-ning lures were cast over the side, in a manner of spinning lures were weeded at the same time. And again, fish were caught in moder-ate quantities. The boys used their spinning rigs and bass regardless of what the fish happened to be do-ing at the time. Often that was a mistake.

RECENT SPINNERS

Naturally the confirmed fly-rod men resented the use of spinning lures in trout waters and there are many times I have seen a school of rising trout, which had been feeding actively to a drifting hatch, scattered to the four points of the compass by the cast of a wobbling spinning lure that was lobbed into their midst by an overzealous spin-fisherman who had no control or trout fishing fell far short of his enthusiasm.

For a while the spinning rig was the favorite rig on our trout streams (remember?) and finally the boys found themselves faced with a choice. They could catch fish as often as not a spinning lure would scare trout instead of catch-ing them. Meanwhile, the fly-rod boys continued to do all right for themselves.

The spin-fans learned that most spinning lures, the great majority of which are stinking, basically are not be fished economically in the comparatively shallow waters of trout streams. After all, these things are designed to cast a throw and several lures lost on the bot-tom during the course of a day puts a serious dent in the budget.

HEAVE-AND-HOPE

They found to their dismay that, while they could cast light lures with spinning rigs, it was a large order to cast these lures accurately. So long as they were content to fish by the heave-and-hope school they were all right. Trouble is, heave-and-hope casting doesn't catch many fish, and to learn ac-curacy casting with a spinning rig is a painstaking business and that requires hours upon hours of practice.

While this transitional process was taking place it was pleasing to see the gradual disappearance of spinning rigs from our trout streams and the reappearance of the orthodox fly-rod equipment. The boys were finding out about things slowly but surely—the hard way.

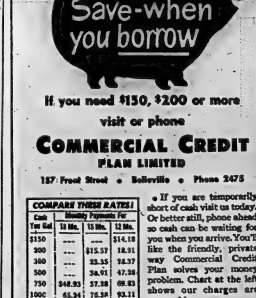
One of the best barometers to keep you abreast of trends in outdoor sports is to visit one of the sporting goods stores. A wi snake tackle dealer and gun st can tell you, months ahead, ab these things.

Moreover, the sales of spinni rods, reels, lines and lures und went a definite slump. No longer a desire of any real consequence is me that the fly rod rapidly is co ing back into number-one positio at least so far as trout are conce ed. The 1954 season showed mo than two or three times models a the rest sit in the show case.

LIGHTER LINES PREFERRED

The use of light spinning lin and accompanying lighter lures is ceasing itself in bait casting. No lon er are 36-pound and 24-pound lin the vogue. Lines of a diameter th that range from 12 down to eig pound test are the popular ones. Fl weights have gone down also, th three-eighths plug being the leade Strangely enough, the return t the fly rod has not yet shown it self in the sales of rods on the va water fields. Bass bugs, at on time exceedingly popular lures, ar now a drug on the market. Fishing as I do that the bass bug i back about the deadliest bass lu ever invented particularly if e largemouth, I feel sure that thi condition will not exist for lo ones once again, but the time is no yet here. Spinning still seems to be the leader on bass waters—spin ning and light-line plug casting.

Another interesting trend is show itself in the ranks of orthodox fresh water anglers who are now to some where between fly fishing and bait casting. For some things, such as fishing for bass in deep water, the spinning rig is the best and most effective tool with down near the bottom but generally does a better job than the other two methods.



REQUIRES PRACTICE

The fact remains, however that the rig is not the complete answer to the trout angler. Anyone can learn to cast with a spinning rig in a very short time—some more quickly than he can with a fly rod or bait-casting outfit. Be-cause of this there is a tendency to fish with it in the heave-and-hope class.

As I said earlier it handle a spin-ning rig efficiently and accurately requires a great deal of practice and the trout angler knows it. To do this he is in no better position to fishing fish scientifically than he was with the fly rod or the casting rod in short, if he wants to get the most sport from his rig he must learn to fish. So far as I know there is no short-cut.

Holden Suggests International Film Festival in Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — One of Hollywood's most noted citizens, William Holden, today suggested an international film festival in Hollywood.

For years, members of the film industry have sounded the need for film celebrations like those held in foreign countries, Holden, the incumbent Oscar winner, agrees.

"We send representatives to Uruguay, Venice, Cannes and other film festivals all over the world," he remarked on the set of "A Many Splendored Thing." "The logical thing would be to have an international festival here, at the centre of the film industry.

"And I mean to make it really international. Not just invite the Western countries. We should be big enough to invite the countries behind the Iron Curtain too. I think our films can certainly compete with theirs . . ."

Holden admitted that the festival would cost a lot of money. But he feels that the resulting goodwill would be worth it. He cited the advantage of Hollywood's press corps, which he said is the second largest group of correspondents in the United States (first: Washington is the first.)

The lean, handsome actor is one of Hollywood's most internationally minded stars. During the last year he has travelled 165,000 miles to all parts of the world to help spread good feeling toward Hollywood.

"You don't realize the tremendous interest in our pictures until you get out and see it," he said. "Movies are more or less 'the silent ambassador' to other countries. That's why trips like the one Jimmy Stewart just took to Asia are so important to good relations with other countries. I think the Motion Picture Association would be wise to have a regular schedule of its stars to all parts of the world."

Terrific Drama in Air-Sea Rescue Epic.

A top RAF officer is flying to England with vital information regarding a successor to the notorious V-2. Hit by a hostile fighter, his machine crashes into the sea and it is at this point that the famous Air-Sea Rescue Service springs into action. This is the gripping, opening sequence of the brilliant new British film, "The Sea Shall Not Have Them," which closes tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

The stars of the picture are Michael Redgrave, Dirk Bogarde, Anthony Steel, Nigel Patrick and Bonar Colleano. The heroic Air-Sea Rescue service was brought into being during the last war having to bear scenes of shot down aircraft over the sea. It was directly responsible for saving 7,000 airmen's lives. Based on the best selling book by John Harris, the action shows with a wealth of realistic detail how the Air-Sea Rescue Service operated during the thrilling days of the last war.

The fascinating and stirring drama of this great service has been brought to the screen in "The Sea Shall Not Have Them" —an outstanding real life chapter in the annals of heroism.

HUGE CONSUMPTION

TORONTO (CP)—Television sets in Ontario consume as much electricity as all the cities of London, Ont. and Windsor, George H. Challies, Ontario Hydro vice-chairman told the Ontario legislature Thursday. He said there were approximately 873,000 TV sets in the province.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bridge bids speak for themselves. Tell them your partner shows you what he's head contains. Thus do you get a picture of his holding.

Sit north with the hand shown here:

♠ 8 7 3
♥ Q 7 4 2
♦ J 9 3 2
♣ A 9

Suppose the bidding starts off like this:

South	North
1 Heart	2 Hearts
3 Spades	?

What is your partner saying with his jump shift to a new suit? What is he asking you to do about it? What should you do with what you have? Take stock of what you know.

Your assist promised three tricks. Inclusive of two high cards and support for hearts. His second round jump guarantees enough for game in the pair. You do not pass short of game.

Since partner says he sees enough for game he could have bid a game in the sanister heart suit. So why is he showing you a new suit? He is asking for information that may help make a slam.

If you can show any value in addition to what your first bid has revealed he will probe for slam. That is, if you show a fourth trick by another heart raise or a raise in spades.

Lacking either, your second bid should be three no-trump. This is not showing desire to play at no-trump. It is simply a denial of any additional value, having already said you liked hearts.

With his second bid you can picture him with five hearts and four spades in a total of eight tricks. He is evidently short in one or both of the minor suits. This much you are sure of.

The fact that you first showed only a simple major does not say your hand has nothing else. He is giving you a chance to show something else in case you have it. And you say no.

Your Horoscope

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR MONDAY, MARCH 28, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Stick to the facts and sound principles. Be logical and reasonable to hit your mark at the right time. Be duly careful in money, legal and domestic matters. Courtesy an important asset.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—You are among the most favored by star configurations today. Seek directness, and new points of interest. Be harder in early hours; be straightforward, reasonably energetic.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Outcome of day's efforts will depend largely upon your acceptance of tasks, added responsibilities, how thoroughly and efficiently you handle them. YOU can make today pay.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—There are many significant indications now that could lead to prosperous future days. Grasp and manage smartly your advantages. Eliminate petty items, useless discussions and friction.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—You will have better, quicker returns if you hold emotions and opinions in safe restraint. Let others speak up—listen, gather information (including what NOT to do.) Forward with faith.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Don't commit self to more matters than you can wisely manage at one time. Overcrowding causes worry, unwise strain. Promising aspects on whole for familiar activities, interests of value.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Whole batch of friendly aspects which should encourage; give fresh incentive to further your prospects many ways, with new methods and along advanced (where sound) lines. Faith!

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—A few precautions, which if followed will not only simplify day's schedule but return more for endeavors. Don't lose patience, become disturbed, nor promise or undertake what you can't fulfill.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your innate cheerfulness and willingness to co-operate for benefit of all are proffi-making aids to point up today. At same time, watch your interests carefully and don't be imposed upon.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—No dark "clouds" to hinder you seeing things in true light. Just be patient, willing to heed sound suggestions and do take orders graciously as well as give them firmly, kindly when needed.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Scan preceding paragraphs, find suggestions, advice helpful to your specific situation now. We can always improve our status, conditions in our sphere if we try and don't worry.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Notations to Sagittarius pertinent to your program now. No need to worry nor hold back initiative. Follow wisely planned schedule and add new tasks where you feel you can do them.

YOU BORN TODAY have great mental energy, progressiveness and much capability but have to curtail tendency to fear as sometimes reverse that cou cause you to be misunderstood. Learn (if you haven't already) to pass by trivialities and concen rate brains and brawn on the really essential. Regular periods for he ithful relaxation, good reading an study will be beneficial every way. Never should we think we k now it all." Precious morsels of in rmation, knowledge and hints th can aid us immensely are often available and free. Pray da e. Birthdate: Pierre Simon, Marqu. de Laplace, famed French astronomer; Paul Whiteman, band leader; Freddie Bartholomew, actor.

Trent Valley Hockey

MARMORA — The largest crowd to show up at a home game at Marmora this season saw Marmora on Friday evening take the 6th game of the Trent Valley Northern Section play-off series by 6-2. The fray, which gives Marmora 3 wins as against the two obtained by their opponents, attracted over 700 fans who again and again made the rafters ring as a goal was scored or a penalty awarded.

One feature of the game which was evenly waged was the smart goalkeeping of Killian in the Marmora net, and Nelson at the other end. Marmora evenly divided their sure sins between the three periods while Campbellford got their two counters in the second half to the third.

First to be scored was Darrah's goal, Brown getting the assist. In the last half minute of the first, Paranuik got the second as he received a pass from Jones. Paranuik scored again in the second. Blute assisting him. Blute made the score 4-0 for the homesters as he scored on Jones' assist. The latter got the fifth goal for his team unassisted shortly after the opening of the third session.

Halfway through that period Campbellford got their two goals, Wilson playing his usual good game outwitting Killian on Herrington's pass and then assisting Blake to get his deserved goal. Penalties issued in the first and second periods amounted to 8 for Campbellford and 7 for Marmora.

The next game, the crucial one for both teams, will be at Marmora on Monday evening.

Teams:

Campbellford — goal, Nelson; defence, Pace, Louth; centre, Blake; wings, Wilson, Herrington; alternates, Payne, Stevenson, Booker, Kemp, Ray, Collins, Fields.

Marmora — goal, Killian; defence, Leonard, Darrah; centre, Brown; wings, Lavender, K. Trumbley; alternates, Jones, Blute, Paranuik, Mantle, Smith, C. Trumble, Doyle, Naylor.

Referees — M. Carson and G. McFaul.

The $10,000,000 structure will permit Halifax metropolitan area to expand eastward behind the town of Dartmouth visible in background. The 4,010 foot bridge is similar, though smaller, than Vancouver's Lions Gate bridge, also built by the Dominion Bridge Company and the largest of its kind in the Commonwealth. (CP Photo)

Recovers From Horrors of Storm on Lake Erie

Recovering in hospital in Tillsonburg, Ont., from horrors of 35-hour battering by the worst storm on Lake Erie in 25 years, Capt. Harold (Buck) Young of Port Dover, Ont., is cheered up by nurses Wanda Karn. Three other men were rescued beside the captain of the fishing boat Cicero. A fifth was washed aboard during the height of the storm. The 52-foot Cicero was out on the lake when storm overtook it. After a dramatic fight for survival, it was swept on a sandbar 75 feet off shore at Clear Creek. After numerous attempts to rescue men, a lifeboat finally managed to reach tug's crew. It carried a line to the foundering Cicero after fighting the waves, then hauled a heavy rope and it was by means of this rope that the life-boat worked its way back to shore.

Still Pleads Guilty To Red Spy Charges

Malcolm Bershom, the New York medical student recently released by Communist China, regrets from a prepared statement following his arrival at International Airport, Idlewild, N.Y. The victim of 3½ years of Red brain washing declared himself guilty of "military espionage against the Chinese people and the cause of peace and democracy every-where." Disregarding his protesting relatives, who tried to hustle him home, the 28-year-old student told newsmen he had spied on the Reds for the U.S. office of strategic services.

Former President Seeks Re-Entry Into Union

James Kidd, former president of 18,000 member Sudbury local of the Independent Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers' union, is protesting the refusal by current Mine-Mill leaders to allow him re-entry to the union. Mr. Kidd, seen above, who joined the miners' union at its inception in Sudbury, Ont., and ruled for two years until toppled in 1947 by the current Canadian head of the union, Nels Thibault, lost his standing in the union when he became a shift boss underground. With curtailment of production he was reduced from managerial position back into the collective bargaining unit. Three dollars monthly dues have been deducted from his pay since September but his attempts to get reinstated have been turned down. He claims the refusal was motivated by the fear that his presence in the union was a threat to the left-wing domination of the international union that represents workers in nickel and uranium mines across Canada.

A PRAYER FOR PEACE

A street scene in London, England, shows Albert Roche, 60-year-old Londoner, kneeling on the sidewalk across the street from No. 10 Downing St. (official residence of Britain's Prime Minister Winston Churchill) praying for a "Christian Democratic Government and the peace of the world." The hobby on guard outside No. 10 seems oblivious of the supplicant.

JAILED IN RIOT CASE

MONTREAL (CP)—Roland Valois, 22, was convicted Thursday on a charge of theft arising out of last Thursday's riot at the Montreal Forum. Criminal court judge Gerald Almond sentenced Valois to three months in jail after he pleaded guilty to stealing $100 worth of bracelets, watches and necklaces from a St. Catherine street west jewelry store.

REDS TRAIN YOUTHS

VIENNA (AP) — Communist Czechoslovakia has already given pre-military training in the use of firearms to—more than 700,000 youths, the Communist party newspaper Rude Pravo says. Some receive such a specialized training as parachute jumping. The paper also discloses the 18,000 more youths are to start the courses soon.

WANTS TO STAY IN THE WEST

The son of a Russian air force lieutenant-colonel has been granted asylum by American authorities in Berlin after fleeing from the Soviet zone of Germany. Valery Lyukov, 17, told newsmen that he fled to the West because he was persecuted by his family and school for his Western sentiments. He made his escape by merely walking across from Potsdam down a side road. His father is stationed at Schoenfeld airport in Berlin.

BANCROFT

Red Cross Drive Nets $866 to Date

BANCROFT.—With a total, to date, of $866, Bancroft and district Red Cross campaign fund returns show a considerable drop on last year's figures at a comparable date. A blitz collection in Bancroft on Tuesday night, when 29 canvassers worked in, atrocious weather conditions, netted $215. This amount was $175 less than the 1954 total.

Campaign manager, R. G. Thomas, said on Thursday that he was confident that when all the district returns are available, the target figure of $1,000 will be exceeded. Canvassers in the rural communities have been greatly hindered by prevailing storms and the campaign period, due to end on Saturday, March 26, has been extended.

Fish Spawn To Be Planted From Air

COLLINGWOOD, Ont. (CP)—Late this spring boat planes will leave here to fly over rivers across the province, planting fish spawn from the air.

This is part of an extensive fish conservation scheme by the Ontario department of fisheries, involving whitefish, pickerel and trout in nearly 30 hatcheries.

Whitefish were caught by pound nets—gill nets would drown them and spoil the eggs—and spawned during the fall in the French river district near northern Georgian bay. The eggs are shipped in ice to hatcheries here and at Picton-ville, Sarnia, Port Arthur and elsewhere.

The eggs were placed in five-gallon glass tanks filled with fresh-lake water, and when daily lake temperatures reach 40 degrees they will be sown in shoals near the French river to take their chances with the natural spawn. It has been estimated that three to 10 per cent of natural spawn hatches, while Collingwood hatcheries do to 70 per cent.

Give Red China Even Chance To Take Isles

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—Communist China now has massed sufficient forces opposite Quemoy and the Matsus to launch an immediate invasion with about a 50-50 chance of success, according to official estimate of the U. S. defence department.

These estimates, it was learned authoritatively today, reflect the views of the majority of the joint chiefs of staff, including Admiral Arthur Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs.

China's poised invasion forces are reported to include an armada of trooo-powered junks, sampans and in creek mouths and tiny bays opposite the Nationalist-held Formosa Islands, new Soviet-made heavy artillery, and escort torpedo boats.

FEVERISH

But Washington's weekend bout of "Formosa fever" — brought on by a sudden spate of military intelligence reports saying that the Communist Chinese planned to attack Matsu in mid-April, and Quemoy a month later — has moved some signs of cooling today.

Without belittling the grave concern over the China crisis, diplomats, congressional leaders, and officials of the defence and state departments, generally agreed that China would not launch a full-scale, an aggressive action on the eve of the African-Asian conference to be held in Bandung, Indonesia.

Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem., Montana), a member of the Senate foreign relations committee, told Reuters:

"Frankly, I just don't believe China will attack immediately before or immediately after the Bandung conference.

DELIBERATE LEAK

"It seems to me that the leakage of April 15 as our estimate of the date they could take Matsu is nothing more than a manoeuvre by the people in Formosa, those who want to force President Eisenhower to declare himself over the United States military interest towards the offshore islands.

"These people have tried to force the president to declare himself in the next three weeks."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO — (CP) — Synopsis: The low centre which was over from Texas to give near blizzard conditions to much of Ontario and Quebec over the week-end is presently drifting across eastern Quebec. Behind the storm, winds are still strong over Ontario this morning, but will begin to die down by late today. Mainly easterly, cold weather will prevail in all but eastern and central regions today, with many aides and moderate temperatures throughout the western Provinces.

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario political circles are immersed in rather hot speculation on date of a provincial general election.

The fun-filled game, among members of the Ontario legislature and other observers, centres on month and day. All agree the vote will come before the end of this year.

But Premier Frost keeps saying he hasn't decided, and veteran observers is scheduled for Ottawa April 21 and 22. Some observers expect the election announcement to come after that.

Most guessers think June 6 or 20, both Mondays, are the most likely dates for a vote. Some mention June 13. Some look for a fall vote as in 1951 when it was Nov. 22.

SPRING VOTE

No one expects a summer election because folks will be on holiday and interest will be centred on the harvest. Having doesn't usually start until June 20. By Nov. 1 the farm harvest is usually completed.

Several members from all parties are known to be eager to vote and are preparing for it. A high Progressive Conservative party official says: "It's a matter of choice "but only the premier will decide."

Delegation Will Seek Additional Education Grants

WINDSOR (CP)—Mayor Michael Patrick said Saturday he will ask provincial authorities for an additional grant to help Windsor with increasing increased provincial education costs.

Mayor Patrick and Mayor Allan Rush of London have been trying to form a delegation of Ontario mayors and reeves to present the resolution to provincial authorities.

Mayor Patrick said others who have stated their interest in the delegation are Mayor Hubert Saskatoon, Fort William; Mayor L. A. Jardine, Sault Ste. Marie; Mayor McCrae, Welland; Mayor W. P. Gregory, Stratford; Mayor W. C. Nelson, Barrie; and Mayor C. Laing, St. Thomas.

The resolution suggests the province should pay one half the costs of education.

Is Jane Unclad? What Geegees Run? London Sad; Paperless Life No Fun

By HAL COOPER

LONDON (CP)—Did Jane get down to her bra and panties when she had to take off her bulky tub days? (And what good would it do just to know?)

The horses are running at Leicester, but which ones? That not one will go and will you miss it?)

Did a certain princess elope with a certain air force hero? (Ask that we know of.)

Did a certain elderly statesman announce his "retirement? (Nah, not yet.)

And above all, confound it, what does a man hold in front of his face while riding to work on the bus or subway? (A palmetto fan would look so funny.)

These are things without newspapers has, obviously, a great void. Illustrations, done by strike by electricians and maintenance men has suspended publication of London's only city-wide daily dailies, the financial and sporting sheets and the Communist Daily Worker. And there's no sign of a settlement in sight although the publishers and the union.

The BBC does the best it can, but what can a BBC newscast do about Jane, for instance?

Jane is the cause of the comic page of the tabloid Mirror. A nearly-nude girl with a figure that is beautiful, giddy, short skirted, and has an easy happy time when she does not seem to realize she's a big girl now.

In full view of a circulation of some 4,500,000 Jane manages once every week or so to appear in nothing but flimsy underwear. Once every two weeks or so she is seen as nature made her.

And she's 22 if she's a day. Do you know what I mean?

A horse player gets a hot tip on a two-year-old which will turn loose when the trainer finds the right spot at a spring meeting. Anyway, he's got the name, the entries and all of a sudden—no newspaper.

So it's a cinch the horse will run somewhere, and he won't get a chance to see it. (Odds may be 33 to 1).

You think they're unhappy?

You should see the people riding in the subway without their portable screens and newspapers.

Britons are shy people.

They do not look at strangers in buses and trains if it can be avoided. Pursuant to this behavior pattern, they hide their faces behind newspapers.

And now, no newspapers.

A desperate few were seen this morning clutching hurried copies of last Friday's morning journals

ONTARIO, QUEBEC HIT BY WORST STORM OF WINTER

Heavy Snow Whipped Into Mountainous Drifts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A snowfall of from five to 12 inches whipped into mountainous drifts by screeching winds; cars abandoned on snow-clogged streets and side roads.

That was the gloomy situation many parts of Ontario and Quebec faced during the weekend. It was the worst winter-weary residents whose thoughts had turned to spring.

March's Sunday punch blew up with little warning as a depression swept from the Texas panhandle across the lower lakes and on into Quebec Saturday. It moved out to the west Montreal of 1955.

QUEBEC HARD HIT

Quebec underwent the full fury of the storm. It paralyzed cities and towns and left many people havoc with transportation throughout the province.

Gusts of wind averaging 40 miles an hour clogged highways and rail lines with drifts from two to six feet. Thirteen inches of snow fell in the province.

The blizzard led to the deaths of at least five persons in Ontario. Many are feared dead by now or better. The 10-inch fall hit Toronto. Driving winds, with gusts to 42 miles an hour, whipped up drifts across highway and suburban streets and brought down a net visibility to a few yards.

A-Anti-Aircraft Weapons Added To Nuclear File

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government Sunday night officially disclosed plans to add atomic anti-aircraft weapons to its already extensive nuclear arsenal.

The joint congressional Atomic Energy Commission and defence department disclosed that the weapons are being added in the Nike anti-aircraft missile system. It raised the possibility that under development, Nike could be given simultaneous use of ground and air-launched atomic weapons to "bracket" enemy bombers with nuclear fire from top and bottom.

Liberal Federation President Criticizes Political Foes

OTTAWA (CP)—The president of the National Liberal Federation accused other political parties today of launching a "smear" campaign to upset the economy of the country.

Duncan K. MacTavish, addressing the opening of a three-day meeting of the federation's advisory council, said opposition politicians want Canadians to believe Canada is faltering. Said the nation is on the downgrade.

By harping on unemployment, he said, "they have undermined confidence" in the hope of improving their chances of capturing the federal government. But these insinuations did not offer a clue as to what would be in store for Canadians "if any one of these parties were to form a government in the future."

The fact was, he said, would try to nationalize financial institutions and industries and "create enormous difficulties with their unsound schemes." The Social Creditors, he said, "would throw away our freedoms as fast as possible and ruin our monetary system and our people."

Mr. MacTavish recounted for the 300-odd delegates attending the Western Powers Have Begun To Arrange Big Four Meet

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Sir Anthony Eden disclosed today Britain, the United States and France have already begun discussions on arrangements for a Four meeting with Russia.

Eden told the House of Commons Britain is ready and eager to discuss the future of Germany and Austria, disarmament problems and a European security system with the Russians. He said that the French parliament has approved the accords to free and rearm West Germany.

Eden, who was answering a Labor questioner in the House of Commons, said Britain proposed the talks should follow a procedure of consultation that will include meetings of officials, then perhaps meetings of foreign ministers and, "if all goes well, meetings probably at a high level also."

He did not elaborate on his reference to meetings "at other levels."

It has long been the assumption here, although it has never been officially stated, that if and when Eden takes over the nation's leadership Prime Minister Winston Churchill he will quickly set out to meet President Eisenhower.

Expect Invasion Of Matsu Islands About April 15

The following interpretative, which raises new and startling possibilities in the Formosa situation, is written by a former Associated Press Correspondent in China.

By JAMES D. WHITE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Chinese Communist invasion of the Matsu islands, which some Washington quarters predict about April 15, would be a bid by the Chinese for leadership of all Asia and Africa.

That would be the opening gambit directly at the 30-nation African-Asian conference beginning in Bandung, Indonesia April 18.

Those on which the Washington speculation that the Chinese Reds would hesitate to put themselves in an aggressive light until after the conference, but would be bound soon to think they would prefer to invade the Matsus before or during the conference rather than be very people they plan to dominate.

SIGNIFICANT CONFERENCE

The destiny of Asia and the world (including the U.S. and the meeting, to which Asian and African nations have been invited to send their prime ministers and-or foreign ministers for a discussion of common problems.

The conference gives Red China a stage on which to show Asian leadership in direct competition with India. The issue is whether Indians and Africans will be able to follow India's course of non-violent, non-aligned policy or China's strategy of violent partisanship.

China will want to show that her strategy is best. This would be a dramatic object lesson such as an invasion of the Matsus."

Jury Refuses To Indict Goalie In Auto Death

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The Dauphin county court reported Saturday that the March grand jury refused to indict Gordon Henry of Owen Sound, Ont., Maple Leafs goalie, on charges of involuntary manslaughter in the auto death of his wife.

William Saye, assistant district-attorney, said the grand jury Wednesday failed to return a true bill against Henry on the criminal charges. Saye said Henry would still be open to civil action in the case.

Henry was charged March 2 shortly after a coroner's jury found that Mrs. Henry died in the fatal traffic accident in which his wife, Lenore, 25, formerly of Hepworth, Ont., was killed.

Mrs. Henry died of injuries suffered in a head-on traffic collision in Hershey.

The 28-year-old American Hockey League star's wife died before he left the charges and was freed pending the inquest.

The husky red - haired goalie spent five weeks in hospital with injuries he received in the crash. Three other passengers in the car were injured.

Largest Sound Stage in N.A. Being Built

TORONTO (CP) — Feature film production in Canada may become big business.

One of the largest sound stages in North America is being built by Canadian Film Industries Ltd. Production of feature length movies, using both Canadian and imported actors, is expected to start this summer.

Construction of a huge sound stage, 100 by 150 feet and 35 feet high, is being carried out by Howell and Sons, a leading studio building company, as part of a $750,000 expansion program undertaken by Canadian Film Industries.

There will also be a 4,000-foot carpentry, machine and plaster shop as well as dressing rooms. New sound equipment, which meets the standards of Hollywood film

FINAL FRENCH APPROVAL GIVEN PARIS TREATIES

Faure Will Now Press For Talks With Russia

PARIS (AP)—Bolstered by final French parliamentary approval of the Paris rearmament, Premier Edgar Faure today laid his efforts today to getting allied agreement for Big Four talks soon with Russia.

As he prodded the apprehensive French Senate towards its crucial, predawn votes on the Paris accords Sunday, Faure gave assurances he already had contacted the United States and Britain on preparatory for a high-level parley with the Kremlin.

He went further by making an East-West conference, covering all problems "from Germany to Asia, inclusive" the final item in a five-point statement of government aims. Faure stressed the need for full cohesion among the Western allies before entering into talks with Russia.

ARRANGE MEETING

France's new pro-Atlantic move is expected to be a conference between French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer sometime in April. Pinay will fly to seek agreement on details of the Saar compromise which nearly split the French cabinet last week. Adenauer was reported jubilant over the Saar settlement, which came after Faure had beaten back every attempt to delay or water down endorsement.

His dogged efforts were rewarded by simple majorities favoring the interlocking treaties. This completed the parliamentary action begun when the French National Assembly grudgingly approved the accords last December. Only the formality of President Rene Coty's signature remained to wind up French ratification.

France was the 10th of the 15 nations involved to complete parliamentary approval of the Paris treaties. Ratification now is expected to come quickly from the remaining five bodies: The U.S. Senate and the parliaments of Denmark, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

May Change System

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says members of the Ontario legislature will be asked by the provincial government this week to modernize the province's four parimutuel setup.

"There is a strong feeling among private government members . . . that the time has come for the government to overhaul the whole distribution system in the light of modern conditions," the newspaper said.

One change which will be suggested is the abolition of the privilege of having customers write out an order before they can purchase a beer.

Husband, 80, Dies in Lap of Wife, One of 4 Victims of Plane Crash

By ELMER VOGEL

SEATTLE (AP) The dry, choked voice of Mrs. Emma Peterson sounded far away as she told of the crash-landing Sunday of a big Pan-American World Airways plane in the Pacific ocean.

"I didn't know it was John," she said in the voice of a person who wants to but can't cry. "I just noticed that someone had been dragged in from the pilot's seat.

"I lifted his head up and laid it in my lap as the plane sank in the water. I was at the bottom of the life raft.

"He opened his eyes and smiled weakly, then said, 'Oh, is that you, Emma?'

"Then he didn't say anymore. He groaned, became silent and died in my arms," Mrs. Peterson said.

John Peterson, 80, died. And so did Lauren Lewis, 28, the crash landing of the Hawaii-bound plane on a quiet sea 25 miles off the Oregon coast. The pilot's wife survived along with 18 other passengers and crew members.

Sunday night the survivors brought back their recollections of the crash and those who perished.

There were swept to their deaths by a relentless current and wind that drove them away from the plane from which the surviving had

The ditching and the rescues were a cruel combination of the good and the bad. Mrs. Peterson, one of the big four-engined Stratocruisers loses the service of one of the pilots and the co-pilot, a power of the other three.

But the two remained forces which wrenched the engine from its mountings and cast it into the sea wrought such structural damage the plane could not return to land. Lewis, the pilot, had no choice but to ditch on the water.

Helped by crew members, the passengers were by one, plopped into the sea, to fight their way to the life rafts which inflated on contact with the water. The Petersons were the last of the passengers to leave. Lewis remained in the cockpit, a member.

Then for 15 minutes later, 30 of them were huddled on the three rafts. The other three didn't make it.

Eighteen miles to the north, the USS Rockbridge picked up a shipload of troops home from army maneuvers on the California coast and rescued the plane disappeared from its radar screen and turned back to search.

Lost in addition to Peterson were Arthur Anderson, 39, Honolulu, co-pilot; Donald R. Fowler, San Francisco, the flight engineer, and David Darrow, 23, an Auburn,

3 U.S. Tourists Dead In Car Buried In Snow

Vehicle Found Stalled On Highway Near Levis

LEVIS, Que. (CP) — A man and woman and a six-year-old girl were found dead today in their snow-bound car on the highway some three miles east of nearby St. Etienne de Lauzon, police reported. Their car bore an Alabama license plate.

Provincial Paul Pouliot of St. Agapit, Que., who went to the scene with police in a snowmobile said the three died of asphyxiation. Police would not immediately release their names.

Laureat Olivier, 18, said he found their bodies in the car around 8 a.m. today while skiing to St. Redempteur, a neighboring village. The car was buried under six feet of snow about 300 feet from his farmhouse.

HARDLY VISIBLE

The man was slumped across the front seat and the woman was sitting in the back seat with her arms around the young girl's lifeless body.

Olivier said the car, found after a howling blizzard, was stalled in the middle of the highway. Snow had drifted over it. Only the roof was visible when the youth found it.

FOUND DEAD IN CAR

SHERBROOKE, Que. (CP)—Antonio Normand, 39-year-old resident of Shawinigan Falls, died in his car on the highway during Sunday's raging storm.

Normand's car stalled at Ulverton, 25 miles north of here, and he was later found dead in the vehicle. Provincial police said he perished with beer and liquor bottles, cigarette ends and empty packs strewn about him.

Police said the heater was turned off, but the motor was running.

Provincial police from Richmond arrived at the car after exhausting two teams of horses in the drive through 18-foot snowdrifts.

Scientists identified the disease as botulism, a type of food poisoning.

They said the whale meat was shipped from the south polar region to a Bantag bag.

North Bay Man Dies in Trailer Drinking Bout

TORONTO (CP)—A North Bay man, his face and clothes covered with shaving lather, was found dead Sunday in the trailer residence of Canadian jockey at nearby Lakeview.

Police said Charles Tessier, 47, died after attending a drinking party in the trailer. The jockey, F. Madeley, 41, was unconscious on a nearby chesterfield.

An autopsy was performed on Tessier today but police have not announced results.

Police said Madeley was found with a solid bowl filled with shaving cream on his head. Around him were remains of broken eggs. He was wrapped in a sheet and had one arm in a sling. A shopping bag was around his feet.

Four waiters from a suburban Long Branch hotel trailer room found the pair and called police. The coroner was made about 2 a.m. Sunday.

Police said Tessier's clothing and shoes were covered in foamy white shaving lather. An open window-breaker was wrapped around him and clothespins were clipped to the coat and to his hair and ears.

Police said the trailer was littered with beer and liquor bottles, cigarette ends and party empty. The men had been drinking all day Saturday in the trailer and at the hotel, police added.

The four waiters, Roy Paris, 27, Rod Hanna, 29, John Prophopoulos, 29, and John White, 27, all of Toronto, said they had served at a Long Branch hotel earlier in the time and paid a visit to the Madeley trailer.

Mrs. Brian Melanson said she was in the trailer about midnight Saturday and Tessier was still alive.

Police said Tessier had been married for about a month. He and his wife were separated.

Coroner Dr. Lorne Madeley said he remembers Tessier drinking water from a tank that has not been used for some years. Police said samples of the water were taken for analysis.

Hockey Wager By Mayors To Be Paid Saturday

KINGSTON (CP) — A hockey wager between mayors will be paid off in the strangest parade ever witnessed in this city next Saturday.

Kingston's Mayor George Clarke Wright will lead a 10-horse-drawn horsedrawn ride down the main streets to Belleville's Mayor John Both on foot.

The parade is a result of Kingston Greenwave's 5-1 win over Belleville Memos Saturday night, making them Ontario Hockey Association Senior B group champions.

If Belleville had won the parade would have been in Belleville and Mayor Both would have been astride instead of atop. To put off the second part of the fiasco, Mayor Both must make a trip to Kingston City Hall, praising the industrial, civic and athletic prowess of the city.

$1,100,000 HOMESTEAD AWAITS RETIRED CLERGY

Come mid-summer, 12 spanking new homes, on a mountainside near Scarsville, Ont., will be occupied by retired United Church clergy. They'll be housed—people of a $1,100,000 homestead for "yesterday's ministers" who, right now, eke out an existence on the church's $900-a-year pension. Victorian church spires started the ball rolling with a $100,000 gift. Then a retired United Church minister furnished the 18 acres, 12 as outright gift. A couple of dozen contractors, painters, carpenters and plumbers are giving their time and services at near cost price. The ministers will pay a rent of about $30 a month.

New Chancel at Holloway Street Church Dedicated

After several weeks' postponement, the congregation of Holloway Street United Church yesterday dedicated the new chancel of its church.

The solemn morning dedication service was followed by a special vesper service of praise in the afternoon.

Pastor of the church, Rev. Sidney E. Larman, still under doctor's orders following a recent illness, presided over the morning service. He was assisted by Rev. Andrew MacKenzie, Albert College, who gave the scripture lesson and also preached the sermon.

The new structure was ready for dedication at the eleventh hour. Late Saturday evening the designer still was putting finishing touches to the chancel.

The new chancel is a graceful and dignified structure. Constructed throughout of oak, it still retains, however, the pulpit of the former chancel as its centrepiece. The front panelling facing the congregation is relieved by the four United Church symbols—the Alpha-Omega and the Burning Bush symbols on the left of the pulpit and the Open Bible and the Dove of Peace to the right.

A large cross, flanked by two candles, dominates the entire chancel from the back of the church. The cross projects from the church wall, giving the impression of its being suspended in space. New electrical installations invisibly illuminate the cross and its attendant candles. The lights can be remotely raised or dimmed for effect.

The new chancel is the work of Ole Jonassen, Sydenham, Ont., architect and builder. With the chancel also went new gowns for the church Intermediate choir, provided by the Women's Association.

The new communion table will be dedicated next Sunday.

Following the scripture lesson, delivered by Mr. MacKenzie, Mr. Larman then presided over the service of dedication. After responses were said by the congregation, Mr. Larman offered a lengthy and beautiful prayer of dedication.

The hymn, "Open Our Eyes," then was sung.

In an address to his parishioners, the minister thanked all who co-operated in the work of erecting the new chancel. He made special mention of the efforts of J. D. Robertson, Clerk of the Session, who presided over a special committee for the installation of the structure.

"The work has been far more work put in this project than most of us realize," said Mr. Larman.

Mrs. J. Scriven followed the announcements with a solo, "Fear Not O Israel."

Mr. MacKenzie based his sermon on his Scripture lesson, in particular laying emphasis on the story of the construction of the Temple of Solomon over a type of spirit of worship.

"Our relationship with God is primarily a spiritual one," he told the congregation.

It should be that when people attend church they should have seen God and taken away with them an imprint of God on their minds.

"We should go forth to serve as persons who have been with God," he said.

Mr. MacKenzie concluded his address by extending congratulations to the community of the church on the installation of the new chancel.

After the recessional hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus Name," the children's service in the service with benediction.

The Vesper service was presided over by Rev. George Mindell, Trenton, chairman of the Presbytery.

Heavy Snowfall Indirect Cause Of Minor Crashes

The late March snowfall, which dumped approximately 11 inches of snow over the Quinte district during the week-end was the indirect cause for a rash of minor motor accidents in the city with police reporting at least 15 such mishaps.

In practically all cases, however, only a minimum of damage was caused and no injures were reported.

The city public works employees were out all week-end with sanders out early Saturday to give grades a safe cover to keep heavy transports moving. Road plows were also brought out to keep both main arteries and side streets cleared, while even the sidewalk plows were duty in most sections of the city.

OPP Report Few Accidents Over Week-end

Despite poor visibility and drifting snow very few highway accidents were reported by provincial police over the week-end.

Saturday noon one car was turned in the ditch south of Foxboro and sent two women to the hospital, while early Sunday morning a car driven by Monte McAuley, Lemoine Street, ended the turn at Sidney and Lewis St. and crashed into a house owned by Mrs. Gordon and Frank Johnston. No report on the amount of damage either to the car or the house was obtained.

Two Toronto cars were in a collision on the Mohawk Curve, near Desoronto, on No. 2 Highway. Police said that cars driven by Frank Cliff, 3635 Bloor St. West, and Robt. Wright, 143 O'Connor Drive, collided, on the

U.S. ARMY PLANS TO BLAST AWAY AT NIAGARA ICE JAM

Under pressure from thousands of tons of ice forming along 15-mile stretch of lower Niagara river, huge sections of the packed ice have been forced 50 feet high under arches of Queenston - Lewiston bridge. Blasting has been decided upon by U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in an attempt to relieve the situation which has done an estimated $1,000,000 damage to many buildings along the river's shorelines. Officials at the Queenston-Lewiston bridge, while concerned over the nearing ice pack, say they don't feel there is cause for any real alarm. The bridge is supported by heavy steel cables anchored on concrete blocks on the shore. Unless the ice gets 20 feet higher it will not hit the bridge.

Sixteen-inch square beams were mapped like toothpicks at Niagara-on-the-Lake wharf as the ice moved downstream. The jam is described as greatest threat to bridges since the Honeymoon bridge was left a twisted wreck in 1938.

Secondary School Key Club Given New Charter

Belleville's second junior service club got official status Friday night when the Secondary School Key Club was given its charter as the Kiwanis Centre.

The event also saw installation of officers for the first junior club in the city, the Key Club of BCIVS.

Key clubs are sponsored by Kiwanis, many members of the parent organization turning out for Friday's event. Also present was Walter Howell, Peterborough, Kiwanis governor for the Ontario, Quebec and Maritime districts and district Key Club lt. governor, John Mackin, Peterborough.

Kiwanian Everett Fairman officiated at the installation of officers for the BCIVS club. Installed were Larry Langlois, president; Fred Harrison, vice-president; Andrew Robb, secretary; John Fuke, treasurer.

Installed for the Quinte club were McLean Haig, president; Dean Kemp, vice-president; Sunny Jacobs, secretary and Bill Burgoyne. Kiwanian Bill Slade presented the new club with its charter.

Speaker was Walter Howell, who emphasized Rivals for giving youth in the schools the opportunity for leadership training and self-improvement.

Chairman for the evening was Kiwanis president Staff McKenzie.

High School Buses Delayed By Drifted Roads

Saturday's sudden blizzard dumped 10.9 inches of snow over Belleville and district, the heaviest snowfall of this time of year recorded in 24 years.

Average temperatures also were at a new low, Saturday the mercury registering 12 degrees and Sunday, 18 degrees. The mean temperature for the past 46 years is 32 degrees at this time of year.

A plethora of minor automobile accidents was reported both by city and provincial police. Only major highway incident occurred at Foxboro, where two women were injured when their car went out of control and ended upside down in a ditch.

This morning high school authorities reported some school buses were delayed, one of them not making the school until after 11 a.m.

Sunday church attendances also were somewhat affected by the storm.

Forecasts predict a few snow flurries today with the weather a little milder Tuesday.

Cruiser Arrival May Have Stopped Safe Robbery

The unexpected appearance of a police cruiser is believed to have thwarted a safe robbery at the Beaver Lumber Company office during the week-end when the thieves were apparently scared away before they could get the safe open, stated Police Chief Walter Probert.

When police checked the premises they found a door leading to the building had been forced and further checking revealed the combination of the small wall safe had been smashed off.

Most Elementary Principles Of Safe Driving Ignored

FREDERICTON (CP) — New Brunswick's top RCMP officer says the province's motorists in this province fail to observe the "most elementary principles" of safe driving.

Supt. D. O. Forrest said in the annual report of the force's "J" division, however, that last year there was a decrease in the number of RCMP investigations arising from the more serious types of highway violations dealt with under the Criminal Code.

The report cites 191 hit-run cases of B.C. roads last year, seven more than in 1953. Supt. Forrest said it had been concluded there were many instances "where the condition of the driver responsible has been such as to render him unfit to drive and thus induced the desire to flee from the scene."

The RCMP traffic report listed nine counts of manslaughter, 372 cases of driving while intoxicated and impaired, and 70 cases of reckless and dangerous driving. Four of the manslaughter charges were dismissed in courts, two were reduced to reckless and dangerous driving, no bill was reported in another instance and two trials were pending.

Supt. Forrest said he believe that the safe-crackers may have been scared away before they could get the safe open, stated Police Chief Walter Probert.

When police checked the premises they found a door leading to the building had been forced and further checking revealed the combination of the small wall safe had been smashed off.

Two Marmora District Women Injured in Crash

Two Marmora district women were injured early Saturday afternoon, when the car in which they were riding went out of control on a slippery stretch or highway south of Foxboro, skewed off the shoulder and overturned in the ditch.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital were Mrs. Mildred Nicholson, 52, who suffered a broken pelvis and Mrs. Mabel Sandham, 47, who complained of chest and head injuries. Mrs. Sandham was treated at the hospital but was not admitted.

Mr. Ben Sandham of Deloro with his wife and Mrs. Nicholson were on their way to Belleville, when about a mile south of Foxboro the car went out of control at the base of a hill and overturned into the ditch.

Passing motorists pulled the occupants from the wrecked car and took the two women to hospital. A third passenger a 13-year-old girl and the driver escaped with a shaking up.

Provr. Constable Al Cockburn investigated.

Army Engineers Will Try Again To Free Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Army engineers today were scheduled to make another attempt to blast free the ice-jammed mouth of the Niagara river on Lake Ontario at Youngstown.

A gale off the lake Sunday prevented attempts to plant dynamite charges in the ice mass by helicopters.

Two 25-pound charges detonated in the ice by an explosives expert Saturday were no more effective than firecrackers.

Blasting operations could be delayed again today by unfavorable weather.

WATER MOVING

There were indications, Sunday, however, that natural forces were already at work to free the river, which is choked with the destructive ice for the full 12 miles from Niagara falls to the lake. Col. Lucius Olmstead, U.S. Army district engineer at Buffalo, who is directing the blasting operations, said water apparently was moving under the floe and may be loosening some of the pressure in the jam by carrying off cracking from the bottom of the ice mass.

The water level at Lewiston dropped to 31 feet above normal Sunday from a peak of more than 40 feet Friday.

An ice bridge elsewhere in the river, however, near the water level at the Maid of the Mist pool in Niagara Falls up 12 feet, sixteen feet above normal. The river is this area is banked by the steep cliffs of the gorge, nearly 200 feet high in places.

DAMAGE EXTENSIVE

Most of the damage from the pulverizing effect of the ice crush was confined to the flatter mile stretch of river between Lewiston and Youngstown with the American shore being the hardest hit.

Homes and cottages and other buildings have been reduced to kindling and in many cases have been sucked into the river itself. There were no accurate damage estimates available.

Snow and Ice Removal Costing Lot of Money

TRENTON (Special) — Snow and ice removal is going to cost the town of lot of money this year. While the exact figure is not known the supply of salt that is mixed with sand and spread on the streets has dwindled to an all-time low. Town engineer Frank Clarke reports that 50 tons of salt have been used to date.

BLAMED ON ROADS

An accident blamed on road conditions resulting from the week-end storm sent John Dean, of Toronto, to the Brighton Medical Centre for treatment on Saturday.

Dean's car was in collision with one of McFarland's sanding trucks three miles west of Brighton on No. 2 Highway. He suffered head injuries. His car was damaged extensively, according to provincial police.

The fog was thick by Wesley Yardley, living in the Picton area.

Labor Party Against Member As Candidate

LIVERPOOL, Eng. (Reuters) — Mrs. Bessie Braddock, weight 224 pounds, plus 30 inches, today found herself in danger of losing the British parliamentary seat she has copiously filled for 10 years.

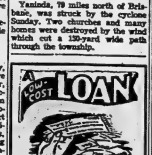
The local Labor party in her constituency in Liverpool Sunday night voted not to let her run as a candidate in the next election poll.

Presumably she will try to find another seat by running for it.

If the outside MP is forced out of office, the House of Commons will lose its biggest single petticoat member, a top foe of both the Conservatives and the Communist party and a major champion of housewives' interests.

Mrs. Braddock's dislike of the Conservatives was highlighted last November when she refused to sign a memorial book to be presented to Prime Minister Winston Churchill on his 80th birthday.

She also has bitterly fought Aneurin Bevan, the left-wing Labor party rebel who last week narrowly escaped expulsion from the party for his defiance of party leader Clement Attlee. The present rift in the Labor constituency was caused by the rapid growth of Bevanites in the local Labor group.



Cyclone Brings Record Floods To Australia

BRISBANE, Australia (Reuters) — A cyclone brought record floods to east-central Australia today.

Winds and rain have battered hundreds of square miles from Gladstone, about 300 miles north of here, to northern New South Wales near the area of disastrous floods last month.

Families have been evacuated from their homes along swollen streams.

Yaraka, 79 miles north of Blackall, was struck by the cyclone Sunday. Two churches and many homes were destroyed by the wind which cut a 130-yard wide path through the township.

Western Powers to Consult As Russia Willing to Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, Britain and France will consult promptly on Russia's favorable attitude toward a high level Big Four meeting.

As a result of France's parliamentary approval of German rearming, the Western powers will take up the problem of an approach to the Russians on a firmer basis of common policy than they have had for several years.

The problem of relations within the Western alliance, however, has its difficulties for President Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles. Britain particularly is disturbed over the prospect of a United States clash with Red China over the Chinese Nationalist-held islands of Matsu and Quemoy.

Pressure has been increasing on Eisenhower to take a more definite line on this issue, and on Formosa, a subject on which the U. S. Senate has so far avoided a decisive commitment.

The president's attitude toward the military situation in the Formosa area, as well as toward a Big Four conference, was certain to come up at conferences he has scheduled with House leaders of both parties this afternoon and with Senate leaders Thursday.

The state department, in a statement Saturday announced that "in general we welcome" the statement by Premier Nikolai Bulganin that the Soviet government takes a "positive attitude" toward Eisenhower's views on arranging big power talks.

The Eisenhower had done in the past, most recently last Wednesday, Bulganin expressed interest in a conference if it would contribute to lessening international tensions.

The Russians have declared on several occasions that if Germany was made a partner in the Western defence system, East-West agreement on major European issues would be impossible.

Officials here considered it significant that Bulganin did not renew this line in his statement Saturday. On the contrary, he noted that the Soviet government had already proposed to hold a great power conference. The main future at which the question of an Austrian peace treaty could be settled."

Bulganin spoke of a "great power conference" rather than a Big Four conference, thus avoiding the issue of including Red China, which Moscow has pressed in the past. The United States has also been opposed to admission of Red China in any general discussion of world problems.

Charge Youths Robbed Dane

TORONTO (CP) — Two youths Sunday were charged with assault and robbery after a man who arrived Saturday from Denmark said that 24 hours after his arrival he was beaten, trussed and robbed in an hotel room.

Robert Sutter, 18, and Bill Hibbert 16, both of Toronto, were arrested by two passing RCMP constables as they were chased from a middle-aged hotel by newcomer, Egon Holdt.

Holdt told police he was impressed by the "hospitality" of two youths he met in the Capitol Hotel bar Ltd. cocktail lounge and the Communist party and a major champion of housewives' interests.

Mrs. Braddock's dislike of the Conservatives was highlighted last November when she refused to sign a memorial book to be presented to Prime Minister Winston Churchill on his 80th birthday.

She also has bitterly fought Aneurin Bevan, the left-wing Labor party rebel who last week narrowly escaped expulsion from the party for his defiance of party leader Clement Attlee. The present rift in the Labor constituency was caused by the rapid growth of Bevanites in the local Labor group.

Man Who Built Steam Buggy Dies at 96

ODDERICH (CP) — John B. Kelly, who thought he built Canada's first automobile bus missed a chance to become rich, died Saturday. He was 96.

He died almost unknown outside this Ontario town and the village of Blyth where he was born, yet he left a record of invention and innovation.

In 1894, when only 25, Mr. Kelly built a steam buggy, forerunner of the automobile. In later years, he often looked back and thought of what might thave happened had he taken out a patent on the "Blyth buggy."

"It may not have been the first horseless carriage," he once said. "But the earliest patent date I ever found was 1896. So it would have been my invention."

"It didn't need a horse," he once said. "Farmers said they'd kill me if I didn't stop scaring their wives and children. That is why I dismantled it."

PIONEER IN POWER

Mr. Kelly was also a pioneer in electric power in Western Ontario. He spent 33 years with the Ontario hydro-electric power commission. The commission said it would not let him retire because he was "indispensable."

Mr. Kelly celebrated his 90th anniversary as manager of the Goderich division of the Public Utilities Commission in 1947. He retired five years ago at the age of 91.

Surviving are a daughter and a son.

Premiers Hold Frank, Friendly Conservations

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Italy agree there must be effective controls to guarantee any general limitation of world armaments.

A joint communique issued Sunday before the departure of Premier Mario Scelba of Italy said that position was agreed on during "frank and friendly conversations" between Mr. Scelba and Prime Minister St. Laurent and foreign ministers Lester B. Pearson and Gaetano Martino and L. B. Pearson.

It said the talks examined the question of peaceful relations both in Europe and the Far East and added:

"As for the problem of armaments, it was agreed that its true solution has to be found in the general limitation of armaments guaranteed by an effective control accepted by all concerned."

Premier Scelba and his party flew on to Washington Sunday after a three-day visit to Canada.

Nine Rebellious Prisoners Holding 2 Guards as Hostages

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Nine rebellious prisoners, one of them from Stratford, Ont., armed with knives and holding two guards as hostages, stretched to 24 today their hold-out in an isolated building at Nebraska penitentiary.

Governor Victor Anderson said the men were not planning escape. "They know they cannot escape, We'll just continue to wait them out."

John Sandford Ward, 30, of Stratford, serving six years for burglary and auto theft, is one of the remaining nine prisoners in the besieged maximum security building, or prison "jail."

Three other convicts originally involved were kicked out of the building during the early morning hours, leaving remaining prisoners considered the three "dead weights."

Anderson said after talking to one of them that the guards were "unharmed."

The 12 prisoners in the penitentiary's "jail" captured two guards early Sunday. They have been without food since that time.

First word from the prisoners since early Sunday evening was a phone call to the warden's office early today. John W. Reed, spokesman for the rebels, told a reporter after agreeing to talk to warden Herbert Hann that the prisoners wanted "to get rid of" three of the inmates.

Dozens of guards and state and penitentiary had the building's in vault thoroughly covered.

The captive guards had reported they were being well treated. Late afternoon when they reported themselves unharmed.

Cries of the rebels recently were declared psychotic and await transfer to a state mental hospital. An insanity hearing is scheduled for another.

The early life history in the group was Joe Beadle, 30, native of Kansas City who was sentenced in 1947 for second degree murder.

The others were in prison for crimes ranging from burglary and larceny on the person, and assault with intent to commit rape to robbery.

The revolt developed about 10:30 a. m. Sunday when the 12 prisoners overpowered Warren E. Miller, 43. A short time later they grabbed guard Eugene Swanson, 34.

All was quiet elsewhere at the prison, house of 747 convicts in the scene of several incidents, including two riots, in recent years.

Anderson said calm and deliberate attention would be given any demands by the prisoners but added: "We cannot compromise."

Nebraska penitentiary operations have been the subject of controversy since last fall when a citizens committee appointed by Governor Robert Crosby released a highly critical report.

IS THIS GRANT SYSTEM FAIR?

Is the provincial government's policy on education grants forcing municipal school boards into competition with each other for teachers?

This answer is not at all clear but certain facts respecting the present educational grant structure place incorporated municipalities such as Belleville at a financial disadvantage with respect to heavily populated suburban areas which are not incorporated as towns or cities.

In 1934 the Ontario government paid $23,248.52 toward a gross expenditure by the Belleville public school board of $453,815.57—or slightly less than 21 per cent. This grant was based on a scale established by the government for cities of this size that allows payment of 23 per cent of approved costs for salaries and debenture payments. It also includes a grant of $16 per pupil on the average daily attendance for the year, and a refund grant for textbooks of $3.00 per pupil on an average daily attendance for divisions 1 through 8. There is no grant given for purchase of property, for construction of auditoria or playrooms, or for books for kindergarten classes.

The scale of grants which urban municipalities is set at 18 per cent of approved salary and debenture costs for cities of 200,000 or more; 17 per cent for cities of 100,000 or more; 20 per cent for cities of 50,000 or more but under 100,000; 21 per cent for cities of 20,000 or more; 22 per cent for cities of 10,000 or more; 23 per cent for cities of 20,000 or more. The smaller the community the greater the percentage grant until the government pays 44 per cent of approved costs for village boards of 400 or less. The 44 per cent grant is the maximum permitted urban municipalities.

Payments to rural communities are based on the assessed value of property per classroom. The minimum provincial grant for rural areas is 40 per cent of approved salary and debenture costs. This minimum applies to areas with assessments of $125,000 per classroom. The grant schedule increases as the assessment per classroom declines. For example: grants of 58 per cent of costs are made for areas assessed at $50,000 per classroom; 67 per cent for assessments of $50,000 per classroom, and so on until, in areas such as North Hastings where assessment is less than $25,000 per classroom, the government grant is increased to 80 per cent.

Even more because of an extended list of approved costs, payments to rural areas are even larger than has been suggested. Rural areas receive grants for boarding, conveyance, janitorial services and so on, provisions not included in grants to urban school boards.

In the heavily populated and industrialized suburban areas around Toronto approved costs include only salaries and debentures. However, the minimum grant for these areas is 40 per cent because they are classed as "rural" areas.

Incorporation of these heavily populated areas into a Metropolitan area further increases the grant to each suburban school board by virtue of consolidation of capital debenture costs.

One strongly suspects that Toronto's reluctance to annex its suburbs, and suburban resistance to annexation, depended to a great extent upon willingness to sacrifice favored position with respect to education grants.

When suburban areas are annexed their grant schedule is reduced annually for five years in such stages as is necessary to bring them under the urban rate applicable to the community according to its size.

This gradual reduction is effected so that communities annexed will not be penalized for annexation.

It is also felt that since suburban areas are populated by new families in the lower income groups, and because younger families with more school age children are more likely to be found in suburbs, that the gradual reduction of education grants will cushion the financial burdens attendant on annexation.

Such annexation is now in theory. In practice, especially in the heavily populated suburbs of Toronto, the extra government grant has tended to produce resistance to annexation. A corresponding resistance on a political level is brought by the suburban township school boards to help maintain reduced taxation. Toronto was reluctant to promote annexation and incur the extra burden of becoming a municipal system in areas which would be subject to diminishing grant schedules.

This imbalance in the grant structure between "urban" and "rural" areas has worked to the advantage of Toronto and its suburbs. It cannot be said that such a system is advantageous to municipalities like Belleville where a population of slightly over 10,000 is limited to a grant of 23 per cent of approved costs. The Belleville school board, operating on a budget that is subsidized by such a schedule, is in fact, at a great disadvantage in securing and retaining teachers when "rural" North York, with more than 100,000 people, has 40 per cent of its education costs met by grants. This disparity, which will no doubt be extended in the future, very definitely puts "rural" school boards in truly urban areas into competition for teachers with smaller municipalities. In this competition "rural" school boards such as those in North York and Scarboro definitely have the whip hand.

Burying Ground to be City Tourist Camp. It is fifty-seven years ago since the last interment took place in the old burying ground on Dundas St. Belleville would be in the year 1867. The reason that burials ceased at that time was lack of room. The ground was filled with graves. The site will now be opened as a tourist auto camp owned by the city; the property was purchased by the city from the officials of Bridge Street Methodist Church through their representative, Mr. E. F. O'Flynn, barrister.

Belleville Y.M.C.A. Men at their recent meeting decided to make application for the charter of the new Y.M.C.A. Mr. Albert Adams presided at the meeting.

An architect from Toronto was in the city this week looking over the sit for the new children's shelter and he consulted with the committee with a view of preparing plans for the building which it is proposed erected near the hospital this coming summer. It is reported that the building will cost close to $15,000.

Lieut.-Col. Herbert D. Hulme, an old Belleville boy, has been appointed officer commanding of the next battalion for overseas active service, which is to be raised in British Columbia and trained in Vancouver.

From our file copy at this time in 1836, the Belleville Bridge Company has accepted the tender of Mr. Richard Arnott of this city for the bridge tolls. His offer is $4,510 over the tenders received by the company last year. This speaks well for the carrying capacity of the bridge.

50 YEARS AGO

Mr. Joseph Powell of Shannonbank, Quebec, an old Belleville boy, is spending a few days in the city.

Mr. W. J. Allen, ex-M.P.P., Madoc township, was a visitor to this city today.

Mrs. James Wathen is visiting friends in Napanee.

From present indications we are to have early summer, the swallows are here and an old resident tells us he never saw the swallows here so early.

We certainly had a hard winter with lots of snow and an early and long summer would be most welcome.

Go Up River to Die

(By Will Barker in American Forests Magazine)

A Chinook salmon matures at sea, weighs from four pounds to five years, feeding on candlefish, herring and other small species as well as some of the larger planktonic crustaceans.

By the time it feels the urge to return to the stream in which it was spawned, the average adult Chinook on the Columbia River weighs from 20 to 22 pounds. It is a beautiful silvery fish with a metallic sheen, and the upper part of the body is dotted by small dark spots.

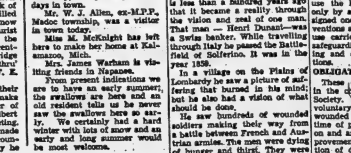
Upon entering fresh water, a Chinook stops feeding, though it may strike at a lure and may be so caught by casting, spinning or trolling. Such a strike is probably motivated more out of annoyance than for any other reason. The sustenance on its long up-river journey, a spring Chinook depends on the nutrients in the body fats and tissue stored during its voracious feeding at sea.

Once a Chinook starts its migration up the Columbia, it travels at a rate of three to 10 miles a day, sometimes even more. In the Columbia River gorge the Chinook may spawn at the extreme head of tide, 140 miles or more from the ocean. Before construction of the Bonneville, The Dalles, Grand Coulee, and Rock Island, on the Columbia, spawning migration of a like distance were common.

Despite the popular belief that an adult salmon can leap vertical distances of 12 feet or more, waterfalls of such height generally block upstream migration of adult salmon. Also, fishers of salmon at dams rarely require fish to leap a vertical distance of more than two feet, and most ladders permit the fish to swim rather than jump a rise of about one foot.

A Chinook salmon that manages to escape all the natural and man made hazards on the journey, arrives at its destination looking like a caricature of the fish that left the ocean, perhaps 100 days before. Its body is long and slim, its jaw hooked and its silvery color is dull and covered with blotchy patches of red and black.

Now on the spawning gravel of a little stream that meanders through a mountain valley, it is tired by clumps of sagebrush and small stands of pines, it selects and repairs close to a bend that is propping a suitable bed of gravel at the upper end of a riffle.



By violent flexions of her tail she "digs" small areas of gravel and larger stones out of a hollow in the stream bed, and these are thrown by the current slightly down stream.

During the preparation of a nest by a male, it make clicking or rattling sounds, a short distance to the side and downstream. Frequently it chases away other males and trout from the area, and often, in turn, is chased away if it approaches the working female too closely. When the nest is completed, the female settles into the hollow, where she begins new flexions to assist in the extrusion of her eggs.

The male moves into a position alongside the female and when eggs issue from the female, expels from his vent a small white cloud of milt. The eggs sink over the redbottom of the nest among the gravel. Each time the female has prepared section of the nest. This procedure is repeated for several days until all the eggs, about 5,000 have been released by the female. Then she and the male are covered with gravel.

After the final spawning, both male and female are greatly emaciated, and they move about with great difficulty. In a week's time they disappear, never seen over and over, and they gradually drift downstream, making no further effort to propel themselves.

A few days later, the lifeless fish lodge among boulders on the bottom of the stream, their mission accomplished. Their bodies will disintegrate and the cycle will start anew.

Origin of the Red Cross

Frank P. Hall, president of the Ontario Red Cross Society, gave an address on March 24, the annual meeting on the origin and work of the Red Cross. A synopsis of the text of his address follows:

What is the Red Cross — How did it happen?

Perhaps a better introduction than to speak for a moment on the origin of the Red Cross be-comes necessary. The Red Cross is an organization to assist mankind is, in a sense, almost of our time. It is less than a hundred years ago that it became a reality through the vision and devotion of a Swiss humanist — Henri Dunant—was a Swiss banker. While travelling through Italy he came to the battlefield of Solferino. It was in the year 1858.

In a village on the Plains of Lombardy he saw a picture of suffering that seemed to him to call for help. He had a vision of what should be done.

He saw hundreds of wounded soldiers making their way from a battle between French and Austrian armies, lying in the agonies of hunger and thirst. They were bleeding and their blood-covered wounds were unattended.

Dunant asked a group of the villagers if they would help care for the wounded, improvised hospitals, and dressed the wounds. As far as he could see, at the end of the war the vision became clearer and he created the original plans for a world-wide organization to aid wounded soldiers.

BOOK SHOCKED WORLD

When Dunant returned to Switzerland he wrote a book "Souvenir de Solferino". That book shocked the civilized world and awakened a thought of human sympathy in a very unkind age. The book was also a call to gather around him only a few people; but as he travelled to other countries he met fellow-workers, the movement grew. In 1864 there was a representative of the many nations gathered together and drafted the First Geneva Convention. After many difficulties by the respective governments, this Convention became the basis of international law. It prescribed that sick and wounded on the field of battle were to be accorded humane treatment whether they were friends or enemies.

And so the work of the Red Cross was a reality. This was the beginning of the movement which was to become an international force for good.

Dunant spent his fortune and health in the work which he did. His disinterment and poverty. But it is good to recall that, as an old man in Heiden, Switzerland, March 30, he was forgotten, he was awarded the First Nobel prize for peace.

Today—March 24—is the symbol of humanitarian endeavor throughout the world. It has 400,000,000 members—men, women and children.

The Red Cross then is not merely a trade mark of one more kind of soap, but rather it is the emblem of a world wide movement. It stands for one of the most international codes—the Geneva Convention. Authority to use the red cross is granted only by a government which has signed one or more of these conventions and the privilege of its use carries the responsibility of maintaining high standards of training and discharging its obligations.

OBLIGATIONS OUTLINED

These obligations are outlined in the charter of the Canadian Red Cross Society. They are: voluntary aid to the sick and wounded, even in time of peace and war to carry on and assist in work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world."

The Canadian Society is a vital part of the International Red Cross. Acknowledgment of its status by the selection of Canada—(Toronto) as the scene of the 18th International Conference in 1934 and again in 1938.

The supreme governing body in the world of Red Cross is the International Red Cross Conference which meets, whenever possible, every four years. Delegates, representatives of all recognized National Societies, the International Committee and the League of Red Cross Societies, as well as diplomatic representatives of the nations signatory to the Geneva Convention.

The International Committee is an autonomous and neutral body composed entirely of Swiss citizens, limited to twenty-five in number. It is the custodian of the Geneva conventions and the Red Cross emblem, and as a body mediates in time of conflict, the International Committee holds a unique and important position in world affairs as well as in Red Cross.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ARTERITIS AND RHEUMATISM?

It is abundantly evident in the letters readers write me that most of them think I'm just fooling when I tell them I don't know. But I must say that if you cling to that notion after you have finished reading this piece, I'm sorry for you.

What is arthritis, anyway? Very likely you harbor a vague fancy that it is some specific, special or particular disease that is more amenable or fashionable than ordinary rheumatism, and no wonder, when so many people do the bokum the medical authorities hand out.

Well, when arthritis means joint inflammation, heat, pain, redness and swelling (calor, dolor, rubor, tumor.)

The term rheumatism or rheumatic has no such connotation today.

If a joint which was perfectly normal yesterday or last week becomes hot, painful, red and swollen, it is probably arthritis and you may say the joint is inflamed or if you are a polished customer you may be content to call it arthritis.

To be sure, there are good many cases of arthritis, pneumococcic arthritis, streptococcic arthritis, gonorrheal arthritis, etc., but when a doctor calls your trouble "arthritis" without specifying what kind he thinks it is, watch out. Don't let any doctor string you along like that.

As a rule the joint disability that comes on insidiously, with no noticeable cause, should, rouse tumor, and persists for a year or longer, is not arthritis at all, but just plain degeneration of joint tissues, which, for want of a better name, we call rheumatic.

Now I have already stipulated that the term rheumatism or rheumatic has no particular significance. Maybe it had some vague significance when Osler was writing his book, Chronic Rheumatism, Dr. Osler opined, was "most common among the poor, particularly washerwomen, day-laborers and those whose occupation exposes them to cold and damp." Whatever the great medical teacher believed about rheumatic, he did describe what he thoroughly confused with "rheumatic pain" and "chronic joint disability Dr. Osler discussed he opined, it was due to "exposure to cold and damp, errors in diet," etc. But all he could find out about it was that for one with this joint disability was "diet the patient will eat the good food she can digest." It seemed too bad, but Dr. Osler had turned out the last word on the medical profession designed to recognize the science of nutrition.

Be it in nutshell I consider rheumatic is physical degeneration of joint tissues, due, in the long, to lifelong nutritional deficiency.

HOPE STILL JUSTIFIED

Do you know any community in your district that has a weekly prayer meeting with an attendance of 2000 goes on continuously?

You may be amazed to learn that although there probably is no such prayer meeting held in the United States or Canada, there is such a prayer meeting held in Moscow, Russia! It is said to be remarkably strong in Russia. Two thousand Baptists assemble every week in that atheistic city for a meeting of prayer, praise, and worship.

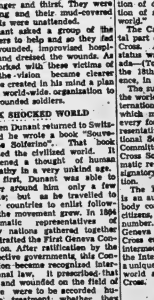
This does not seem at all unusual that Russia is seething with revolution and that the people are opportunity to cast off the yoke of communism. When evil entrenches itself sufficiently it seems to itself mightily. But this does mean that there are still glowing embers of Christian faith at present, despite where the government has done everything possible to stamp it out and kill. In the hearts of these faithful men and women, and in the hearts of millions of others who crowd each week into the Greek Orthodox Church and stand packed in cold churches for two-hour services, the light of Christian truth and ardor is still burning.

Evil is easily exaggerated in our minds. When we are told of one crime, and are liable to conclude that everybody is hypocritical. We are liable to forget the appreciable error or that society is going to pieces.

This is not true. God still manages the world.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



When we read the individual histories of our industries and successful business enterprises, it is astonishing how many of them started with a man, or a small group of men who were more interested in making a thing—whether it be a wagon or a plough or a newspaper or a jar of jam—than in making money. It is true they doubtless were intent upon making a living, and a good living, maybe a better living than they had been accustomed to. But the making of any way, certainly, secondary to their interest in the article they were making. Indeed, as their business grew, so would they get a grip on money and its meaning, that when success came there was always the danger of the thing they made, they usually got into practical difficulties and had to be rescued by, as the saying is, the investor.

Now and again, of course, successful enterprises have been started with cold blood by a group of investors who hadn't the foggiest idea of the thing they were interested, financially, in producing. In former days, they had to steal from other subsectic businesses in the same line, the managers, technicians and foremen they required. Nowadays, the universities are straining at the leash to get students of management and technological research into their service. Some of our biggest industries today are controlled entirely by people who have no more idea of how to run for their grandsons. Money is the thing that has got them and they are proud of it, and so are we, for we buy their marvellous products, because they have the key who made these wonders available to us, couldn't possess a day key.

But suppose, by wild chance, we won an Irish sweepstakes and we had a couple of motorlives, and put our money profitably into one of the things we believed interested and made a million: what would we do? We would at once begin to design new drugs and furniture and go to a small custom furniture maker, and to a hand weaver, and talk with them in the pride of their work. Out would go the old suite, and in would come a custom-built-hi-fi. Private tailors would clothe us, bootmakers would make us old shoe us, nothing but a custom built car would do us back with the marvels of modern industry.

Publicly-Owned Subway Will Be One Year Old on March 30

By TIM DICKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—A birthday celebration without cake or candle is coming up for the Toronto subway, one year old on March 30.

The publicly-owned Toronto Transit Commission says no special festivities are planned to mark the end of the year during which the sleek red trains of Canada's first subway have carried 73,000,000 passengers.

Nor will there be free birthday rides for any of the 220,000 persons who travel on the system's 4½ miles on a normal week day. Officials considered the idea of free rides for opening day last year and turned it down on grounds that possible crowding at the entrances might lead to trouble.

It was probably just as well. Within four days of the official opening, the subway handled its first million riders.

STEADY INCREASE

Since then the volume of traffic on the $58,500,000 north - south Yonge Street line has been rising steadily, TTC officials report. A few days ago the TTC called tenders for 34 new subway cars. These will enable the subway to carry about 40,000 persons an hour at rush hours, compared with the present capacity of 32,000, and eight-car trains will replace six-car trains at the busy periods.

At other times, trains run with four cars.

The TTC says it believes more and more Toronto workers are avoiding traffic congestion by parking their cars on the city's outskirts and travelling most of the way to and from their jobs by bus and subway. It also says the demand for homes and boarding places within easy reach of the subway is rising.

TRAFFIC PATTERN

Changes of this kind have also given rise to complaints.

Only a few days ago, downtown rooming houses found their business is off, apparently because pensioners are reluctant to ride the subway north to quarters away from the central part of the city.

Some Yonge Street merchants contended the subway carried the shopper public passing their premises—and poured shoppers through special exits leading from subway stations into downtown department stores. This objection was overcome, at least in part, by introduction of a bus service on Yonge street.

It is the TTC's proud boast that it has gone through the year without a single accident of any severity—one was killed or injured on the subway. The deaths of two persons who jumped or fell in front of a subway train was put down as suicide. Disembarking in August at a subway car at Union station, southbound, was fatal to one man.

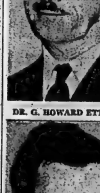
MINOR CHANGES

Few changes have been made in the subway since it replaced the old wooden Yonge streetcars. An extra escalator was added at one downtown subway station and an underpass at another. Ways were found of taking the screech out of subway car brakes and of eliminating minor troubles from signal adjustments.

Fares, originally three tickets or tokens for 25 cents, went to five for 30 cents or 15 cents cash. Cash fare was reduced to 10 cents in November. Passengers may transfer without extra charge to and from connecting buses or streetcars.

Most of the 1,250,000 residents of metropolitan Toronto now have ceased to look upon the subway as a novel experience. But visitors to the city always get a thrill from their first ride on the system which whisks them through 7 brightly-lit stations in 16 to 18 minutes.

"You can always tell the out-of-towners," a TTC man said. "They always make the car at the head of the train, so they can get a clear view right down the track."



2 MORE WITH MUMPS

Discovered Substitute For Blood Transfusions

DR. G. HOWARD ETTINGER

DR. ROBERT E. SEMPLE

Through the use of experimentation with the chemical substance known as "Dextran", two Toronto men at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., are now satisfied that it can be a perfect substitute for blood transfusions. Dr. G. Howard Ettinger, dean of medicine, assisted by Dr. Robert E. Semple of the department of physiology, have come up with a white powder which can be prepared in liquid form and which can be easily shipped and stored. It can be dissolved in sterile water for use as required and will not deteriorate for years. The purpose of the new Dextran is to come to the rescue of the red blood cells when they are endangered by the destruction of vital tissue or other causes.

Violent Deaths Claim 7 Lives

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The fatal besting of a 46-year-old widow, an accidental strangulation, a drowning and three highway accidents contributed to eastern Canada's weekend toll of seven violent deaths.

Three of the deaths, a Canadian Press survey showed, occurred in Nova Scotia, Ontario was the scene for two and New Brunswick and Quebec had one each.

Quebec's violent death was Mrs. Paul Lauthier, 48, who was beaten in Montreal Saturday. Police said they were holding a suspect.

Two of Nova Scotia's deaths were the results of highway accidents. The province's other death was Dominic Deyoung of Arichat, N.S., whose body was found floating in Halifax harbor. He apparently fell into the water while boarding a tug.

In St. John, N. B., six-year-old Betty Daley was found hanging by a scarf on a fence fence near her home. Police said the probably slipped while climbing the fence.

Both of Ontario's fatalities were caused by a highway accident near Hagersville, An infant boy, James Gilbert Forbes, and Ethel Rafael, 14, of Thamesville were the victims of the two-car collision.

30-Hour Week Next Aim After Annual Wage

CLEVELAND (AP)—The 30-hour week is being readied by the CIO United Auto Workers union as the next bargaining target after the present drive for the guaranteed annual wage.

The union's leaders are concentrating on winning a key support among the more than 3,000 delegates at the UAW's annual convention for the year-around pay plan. But they talk of the shorter work week as the next big step.

In fact, Walter Reuther, president of the CIO and the 1,500,000-member CIO-UAW, indicated in his convention keynote address he sees no end in sight to organized labor's demands for more pay and improved working conditions so long as the American economy keeps expanding.

"When we go to the bargaining table," Reuther said, "management must be ready to get used to the idea of asking for more and more and more."

MORE AND MORE

He said unions never will let up so long as they feel their demands are "consistent with what is economically necessary" and while science and technology continue to create more abundance.

"We are going in year after year and each time we get more and more because we are entitled to more and more and more," he said.

The UAW has made the guaranteed wage plan its major demand on the auto industry in bargaining talks due to start in early April. It would bind employers to pay 52 full weeks of pay a year regardless of whether there was that much work for employees.

A cut of the present 40-hour week to 30 hours would result in it would take 25 per cent more individual employers to produce the same amount of work as now, if the cost of overtime penalty pay was to be avoided. That would also mean extending the annual employment guarantee to more employees.

"When we get our basic economic needs satisfied and when we get life-security measures nailed down," Reuther said, "the next decade has to be for a shorter work week so we'll have more time to enjoy the good things of life that we have."

MAY BOOST DUES

Delegates were scheduled to debate Walter Reuther's proposal to boost members' $2.50 monthly dues temporarily to $7.50, effective in May, to increase the union's $7,000,000 strike fund to $25,000,000. The big fund-raising drive, 800 has demanded the UAW borrow enough additional money from other CIO and AFL unions to have a $100,000,000 strike fund ready if a walkout does have to be guaranteed wage bargaining.

Queen Makes Two Words, "Queenly Grace" Live, Fresh, Aptly Applied at Investitures

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth makes those two overworked words—queenly grace—live and fresh aptly applied.

And she does it while working. The Queen performs no more tiring or exacting job than an investiture, the handing out of honors and decorations through which she labors several times a year. But start at the beginning.

The invitation said Buckingham Palace would be open from 10 o'clock.

The first surprise was a huge quadrangle of brown gravel, an acre or so large, once you walk through the inner palace gate.

Then there's an acre or a glass protecting a mammoth front door.

POLYTHENE DIRECTS TRAFFIC

Inside the portals are palace footmen in knee breeches direct foot traffic on the broad stairways.

The ceremony was to take place in the state ballroom which looks out at Buckingham Palace's wide gold leaf, sparkling chandeliers and stately columns.

Red and gold, the colors of royalty, everywhere. Carpets of red and gold, a canopy, two thrones like chairs. A kneeling stool of red and gold. A band of musicians in red and gold.

Five hundred chairs were on the polished floor. Two hundred of the close friends of those who were receiving the honors.

A retired officer walked to the front of the room.

GIVEN INSTRUCTION

"When the Queen comes in," he said, "rise and remain standing until she asks you to be seated. If you must speak to one another, speak quietly. If the lord chamberlain's reading of the honors can't be heard. And—no applause."

A footman entered with a sword and casually leaned it against a marble column.

Sunlight poured in a side window highlighting the gold and red. An walked enough elderly officers to start or stop a small war. A noble came in the far end of a carpeted corridor. It' was the Queen.

The first impression was of a lilt girl walking before a squad of towering men-at-arms. Everything with which she walked! She wore a tight-fitting rose-colored dress.

WORE PEARL JEWELRY

She wore three strands of pearls around her slim neck, tiny pearl ear-rings, a dark red cape as her left shoulder. A sparkling diamond was on the third finger of her left hand.

A rose-colored belt fitted snugly around the trim slim line. Her flared ended midway between her ankles and her knees. She wore stockings and a pair of open-toed, black patent leather high-heeled shoes.

Her neck was also open and her dress cut fairly low.

Her dark brown hair was in a medium-short wavy bob and there was a faint trace of lipstick, but no rouge on her pale, pretty face. The band struck up "God Save the Queen."

"Ladies and gentlemen," she said in a modulated but high-pitched voice, "please be seated."

COOLING TAKE-OFFICE

She was close enough to have ticked the pencil out of this reporter's hand. There was no need to do so, for a retired naval officer walked over from a position to the Queen's right and said beneath a cough, "No note taking. Not allowed."

The lord chamberlain called the names and the honors started. He advanced, bowed, advanced again and knelt on the stool.

A footman had the sword ready. The Queen merely reached behind her right side and he put it in her hand. After touching the officer on both shoulders with the sword, she smiled, asked him a few questions and then shook his hand.

On and on this went for 90 minutes.

SHOWED NO FATIGUE

Toward the end her lovely face showed no sign of fatigue, but she began to massage her right hand with her left hand. It may have been tired, or was hurting, because some of the investitures left her hand rather vigorously.

The most amazing feature of her performance was the charming attention she showed to every person. Sometimes she asked them two or three questions.

Her most frequent comment: "Oh, really?"

Everyone must have asked about the health of the recipient. The Royal Family for she replied: "Very well, thank you."

Even with a Queen every detail can't be perfect and the retired naval reporter if I didn't record that her slip showed. Just a tiny bit on the right side.

Russian Policy Aims Unchanged In Four Decades

TORONTO (CP) — Two journalists and a United States author Saturday agreed that the aim of Soviet Russian foreign policy—and Canadian Communism—has not changed in 40 years.

During a panel discussion on "Soviet aims and Western strategy" at the winter conference of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, Bill Boss of The Canadian Press, Henry Cassidy, former Moscow bureau chief for the United Press and David J. Dallin agreed that only alteration was in the strategy by which the Soviet Union attempts to achieve their goal.

Mr. Boss spent five months of the winter of 1953-54 in Russia as a correspondent and Mr. Dallin was one of the original opposition members of the Soviet before his exile.

MORE CONSERVATIVE

Mr. Dallin and Mr. Shapiro agreed a new set of Soviet leaders, more conservative than "the old type of Communist" is appearing. Mr. Boss said he thought the Russians would proceed more by subversion and insurrection than by force of arms.

In a morning panel on "Germany rearmed: Safeguard or Menace" Dr. Hans J. Morgenthau of the centre for the study of American foreign policy at the University of Chicago said Western policy on the rearmament of Germany puts too much emphasis on military aspects of the problem.

Because the German people want reunification, the problem is also a political one, he said.

Dr. Fraser Wilson of Toronto Sunday, Dr. Percy E. Corbett of Princeton University said the United Nations Charter is also an instrument for curbing power politics.

The UN was badly designed, he said. Its designers had presumed there would be a common purpose among the powers but there was highly impractical wishful concept of power politics.

The weekend discussions were sponsored jointly by the Institute and the CIIC.

465 Donations Of Blood Given Since 1939

MONTREAL (CP) — Clement Dodier, 49-year-old wine steward, ranks high on the Red Cross list of blood donors.

Mr. Dodier, native of France, has donated 465 pints since the Second World War and since then has been astonishing Red Cross officials with his blood-giving ability.

His record includes 330 donations in France, and 135 in Canada—all since 1939—and this record for a month has been five pints. On his next day he gave 1,050 cubic centimetres of blood, or 2½ times more than a regular blood bottle holds.

REGULAR VISITOR

In most cases, the Red Cross transfusion service recommends that donors come only three times a year. Dodier donates once a month. With one exception, although he is checked constantly.

His blood is the "O" or universal type.

Doctors credit his amazing ability to the fact that his body absorbs from much more quickly than normal.

Dr. Cecil Harris, medical supervisor of the transfusion service, explained that the iron from one tent in blood is made up within four to six weeks after a transfusion. Dodier makes it in less than a month.

Dodier, ship steward, father of three, has some ideas of his own on the subject. He gives much credit for his record to his devotion to the 70 ounces of red bordeaux or burgundy he drinks daily.

DIET IS FACTOR

He also credits the fact that he does not smoke, has a happy family life, and eats plenty of fruit and vegetables with a high iron content.

For his services he has been awarded a Medaille Civile Française and the Merite Agricole de Paris, as well as a diploma from the Canadian Red Cross.

"He certainly is a remarkable fellow," says Dr. Harris. "Handy to have around a blood bank."

Link Between Ontario and U.S. Has Been Unbroken for 50 Yrs.

PRESCOTT, Ont. (CP)—Winter and summer, three while ferry boats here daily ply one of the shortest international shipping routes in the world.

They haul trucks, cars and passengers between this Ontario town and Ogdensburg, N.Y. They run the 1¼ mile route 19 hours a day at regular intervals, whatever the season or weather. This link between Ontario and New York state has been unbroken for 50 years.

Since 1901 the service has been maintained by small but fast diesel craft with a 10-car capacity. Even when the temperature slid to 34 below zero one time this winter, they thrust their steel prows bravely through the ice. In summer, they skim swiftly along a route that was followed by steaming sidewheelers in bygone years.

PROUD RECORD

The Prescott and Ogdensburg Ferry Company has run the passenger service in 1909 from the Canadian Pacific Car and Passenger Transfer Company, established in 1888. The CPR still runs a 16-car barge towed by a powerful tug between the two points.

F. and Colonel W. Montreal Dubrule in an interview recalled that one of the earliest ferries was the Gleaner. It carried up to 150 passengers 90 years ago.

"Albert 1870," he said, "the Jean Baptiste, a sidewheeler that carried 600 passengers, was brought up from Montreal and served for a number of years. Shortly after that, the New York was put on the route and for a while both boats continued in service."

FIRST DIESEL

His ancestors, Joseph and Frank Dubrule, founders of the company, started their passenger service with the steamer Henry Thomas. As early as 1909 they bought the Miss Vanderbilt, one of the first of the powered vessels built on this continent.

Built at Wilmington, Del., ex-passenger steamer of the Prescott - Ogdensburg service, the "Miss Van" carried on until 1932.

The last connection with the veldary was severed with the retirement in 1951 of two big doubledecked barges, the Levis and the Louis Phillippe. The Levis, built at Levis, Que., had been in service since 1909.

VETERAN SKIPPERS

Most of the skippers in the service today have served on deep sea naval or merchant ships. Their skill is evident in the fact that, despite heavy freight traffic up and down the river from spring to fall, they never have collisions.

"Never had to throw an anchor on any boat and we never had a passenger fatality," said Mr. Dubrule.

Oldest of the skippers on the 16-minute crossings day after day is Capt. Tom Burns, who has spent 37 of his 67 years with the old U. and O.

The river has never frozen solidly enough here to shove, but whose winds sometimes freeze the Ogdensburg harbor. The sturdy little craft keep going. Last year they logged 21,045 round trips.

TRAIN LATE, REFUND 35¢

TOKYO (AP)—An express train was late in Japan today. This is so unusual that Kyodo news agency carried a story. The Chuo Line express left a station 1 minute late and was delayed two hours and 62 minutes. No one was hurt, but the Japanese railways had to refund about 35¢ in express tickets which guarantee on-time arrival.

Traverse Bay Woman Now 108 Years Old

TRAVERSE BAY, Man. (CP)—For the first time in many years Mrs. George Thomas didn't receive a congratulatory telegram from Buckingham Palace.

She was disappointed but guessed "they just forgot" she was celebrating her 108th birthday this month.

But more than 40 friends and relatives gathered in the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Orvis, at this settlement on the north shore of Lake Winnipeg to celebrate the occasion.

MANY MEMORIES

Mrs. Thomas tapped her foot to the strains of a Red river jig but soon her tired old eyes began to close and the northern Manitoba pioneer quietly went to bed with her memories.

Her memories are many. Born at Ile a la Crosse in the far north of Saskatchewan, she was Adelaide Monet, the daughter of French-speaking parents, Pierre and Genevieve Morand.

Her parents moved to Brochet, in northern Manitoba, and there she met her future husband, George Thomas, who became Hudson's Bay factor at Moose Factory. She recalls her life as the wife of a factor was like being queen of a castle. Her husband's word was law. He was surrounded with dignity. He dressed every day in a suit of black or dark blue and wore a black beaver. Salutes were fired when a factor entered or left a fort.

GOOD EFFECT

The aura of dignity was considered essential at that time. It had a good effect on the Indians.

Mrs. Thomas was married at Brochet in 1864. With the exception of a few trips to Selkirk, she spent her entire life in the North.

Until three years ago she insisted on living alone in a tiny house on the outskirts of her son Peter's home at Pine River. There she trapped muskrat and snared rabbits to sell the skins for provisions. She nettled fish from the water when it was open, and in the winter drilled holes in the ice for her catch. Mrs. Thomas tapped a few sprigs from a maple trees and boiled down the sap for syrup.

She can still recall the taste of pemmican, the northern staff of life. Mrs. Thomas was an expert at making this food that was often the only nutrious fare northern explorers and trappers.

Blind Woman Writes Memories Of Husband

TORONTO (CP)—In the twilight hours of approaching blindness Mrs. H. B. McElheran set down the memories of her husband's life.

The accomplishment of 14 years, her book "That's What I'm Here For" (Ryerson) goes to the book stands shortly.

The minister's widow will not be able to read a word of it. But although Mrs. McElheran now is blind, and most of the book was written after her vision failed in 1947, she knows every word by heart.

It is the story of the years she lived with her minister husband before his death in 1938. He was principal of Wycliffe College here for nine years, and was the last was Archdeacon of Winnipeg.

DEVOTED WORKER

Before her marriage in "the great roaring pioneer city" of Winnipeg, she had studied painting and music in Europe. But after her marriage, church work, which is still her prime interest, took up all her extra time.

After the couple moved to Toronto Mrs. McElheran travelled from coast to coast for the Anglican Church Restoration Fund, speaking in more than 100 churches.

Mrs. McElheran knew before her husband died that she wanted to write the book. She chose for its title "I pray as 'that's what I'm here for," which she heard her husband use 30 times a day to brush aside trifles or apologies.

She knew she was going blind before she began the book. But when it happened she was not prepared. She had heard of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind but never thought of it helping her.

RECORDS HELPED

For a year and a half she sat at home adding trifles and dropping stitches. But one day she heard of "talking books." recorded books for the blind which CNIB provides. A blind teacher arrived from CNIB with her Dictaphone. She told Mrs. McElheran to forget her knitting and turn to something she wanted to do most—the book of course.

Mrs. McElheran began writing with the aid of a writing guide slate for the blind.

"I think the best thing about the book was the kindness of friends who read it back to me," she said. "The most difficult was cutting it down for publication."

Her home in central Toronto is filled with pictures of her son Brock, a choir conductor in the United States, who recently won three $1,000 prizes for his choir work at the Utica, N.Y., Kiwanidtid Festival.

How long can I be?—to repay?—In the table below, there can be seen a new way Niagara will give you some idea of time periods allowed for different amounts . . . from 4 to 24 months. And for all people who have uneven incomes during the year, such as farmers and schoolteachers, special payment schedules may be arranged on loans above $500.

Are all loans alike?—Usually the amount—up to $500 promptly, yes; but remember, at Niagara, you get life insurance at no extra cost.

Above $500, the larger the amount and the longer the time—the lower the rate. . . . and often you'll "buy" more money at less cost at Niagara.

Is Life Insurance on loans worthwhile?—Yes, here it is a real friendly protection. It costs you extra cost to you, loans of $1500 or less, are life-insured; Be sure you get this protection when you borrow.

Does a friend have to "back" my loan?—No, unless do Niagara prefer an endorsed loan. And bankable security, of course is not needed.

How many ways of borrowing are there?—You can use any of these four Niagara loan plans. 1. On cars, trucks, etc.; any owner signs. 2. Husband-and-wife, on furnishings. 3. On business equipment. 4. On farm stock and equipment.

Can I have a private interview?—Yes, your interview at Niagara will be private, courteous, and friendly.

Why do people borrow money?—A few reasons are to consolidate a group of small debts; to reduce large payments for car and truck repairs; to meet emergencies; to repair or modernize homes; to enlarge a business; for seed, stock, fertilizer for farms; and to take advantage of low prices, when cash is paid.

Do many people borrow?—Yes, in Canada, 1 family in 4 borrow each year.

Beauty

BACK EXERCISES

In the matter of preserving her beauty, first things come first with a woman. They are her complexion, hair and hands. She will spend a great deal for cosmetics to keep her skin soft, smooth and fair to see. She will spend even more on her hair, what with trims, permanents, shampoos, tints and rinses. Her nails are manicured regularly and she changes the color of them to match her passing fad. But what about her figure?

She will tell you frankly that she would lie down and die before she would bother with exercises. They bore her. They are a waste of time. But the feminine frame can change—and not for the better—as the birthdays come rolling along.

If her body is of normal weight and measurements, that is just dandy. But does that fill the beauty bill? It doesn't. The majority of Uncle Sams daughters are overweight.

If the back is to be straight, with pleasing contour, the chest must be high and full, the abdominal muscles firm and flat. Throwing the shoulders forward builds a roll of flesh on the upper part of the back.

Arching the back will normalize conditions. Stand tall. Place each hand on the inside portion of the opposite elbow. Then send the torso forward and downward, bending at the hips—over at the waistline. Then up, straight as an arrow, and bend back as far as you can. Repeat several times, then lie on the floor and arch your back, resting on shoulders and heels.

Tourist Jackets With Canadian Motif in Style

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Patrick Reese wanted a new jacket suit a few years ago but her husband felt they couldn't afford it.

Instead of arguing, Mrs. Reese decided to use her needle to pick up extra money and started what has become a thriving business producing tourist jackets with a Canadian motif.

She now puts more orders than she can fill, from many parts of Canada and the United States. Mother of three children, she has had two other housewives helping her to produce the jackets and is looking for some more skilled needlewomen, perhaps newcomers to Canada.

Mrs. Reese's first jacket was made from a commercial pattern featuring Mexican design. She wove it into several gift shops in her hometown of Southampton, Ont., and got several orders.

CANADIAN SCENES

But criticism from United States tourists made her change her design to Canadian scenes. Tourists wanted to know why they should come to Canada to buy a Mexican jacket. To develop Canadian patterns she asked tourists what they expected to see in Canada.

Children from seven to 10 wanted to see caribou and bears, so they went on the jacket pockets. She put a salmon in the bear's mouth because men talked about fishing.

The children wanted to see Indians and trappers, and those decided went on the arms of the jacket. Everyone expected to see a Mountie and that went on the jacket too.

Men especially were interested in log cabins in the Rockies, and that scene was designed for the back of jackets. Honeymooners inevitably mentioned Niagara Falls, so the falls went on the jacket's front panel.

Jackets are made of felt and the design is sewn on with wool.

Mrs. Reese is now looking for low cut some of these suggestions. Then write me again and let me know what progress she has made. If she would like me to, I will send her the names of some books that will give her further ideas on how to overcome shyness. But since she did not sign her letter, she will have to give me her name and address if she wants me to send the list.

I'll be waiting to hear from her. I hope she will not disappoint me.

From Giving Readers

As Conducted by Mary Moore

When I know the answer to a reader's letter without looking in to my files I am tempted always to answer it at once, even if letters received before it are still unanswered.

To overcome such Lily-livered impulses, I arrange the mail in careful chronological order, even the postcards, then read them as they are legible, and I answer in that order—in other words, first come first answered.

It is now 8.45 a.m. on a Monday morning and I'm looking over the letters at the front of the letter basket I found four all together that have my pencilled notes on the envelopes beginning with "Given."

All of those "given" warm my heart's cockles. Your letters are so full of thanks too that sometimes I wonder if you fail to realize how much you all do for me. The following letters will give you an idea of the trouble that readers take to share their ideas and treasures with me and you.

"Dear Mrs. Moore: First may I thank you for your wonderful column. . . . I have been out here just under a year and when I arrived the children were ill so I was kept in then I discovered that there were no young families in our part of the avenues so I frequently spoke to no one for weeks on end except my husband and the odd neighbor. Your column seemed like "Water in a dry and thirsty land". Thank you for being so friendly. We are moving at the end of the week to a community that seems to have hordes of children so I shouldn't be so lonely. . . . I noted in the paper that an Englishman wanted a home for switching ox. to cuptuls. I am enclosing the list given in my English Goodhousekeeping Cookbook. . . it is not complete but I found along with the "Homely Measures" from the same book she could probably manage. . . . I have just bought me the American cup the same as the Canadian! (Note from Eom: American and Canadian measuring cups are the same: 8 oz. liquid measure.)

AMERICAN MEASURING CUP

(With weight equivalents courtesy Margaret S.)
1 cup flour—weighs 4 1-2 oz.; 1 cup rice weighs 8 oz.; 1 cup sugar weighs 7 1-2 oz.; 1 cup fat (or butter) weighs 8 oz.; 1 cup breadcrumbs weighs 2 3-4 oz.; 1 cup liquids weighs 8 oz.; 1 cup syrup weighs 11 oz.; 1 cup currants, sultanas, etc. weighs 6 oz.

"Dear Mary Moore. . . now a letter asking for recipes not using eggs. . . I have two cake recipes that are easy and quick.

PRINCE ALBERT CAKE

(Eggless—courtesy Mrs. Florence M.)

1-2 cup butter or margarine with 1 cup brown sugar. Take 1 cup sour milk (vinegar to sour milk) and add 1 teaspoon soda and stir till frothy. Add to first mix. Add 2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1-8 teaspoon salt, 30 min. in 350 oven.

EGGLESS CHOCOLATE CAKE

(Courtesy Mrs. Florence M.)

(This is the same idea as Prince Albert cake which I made up myself. It works out very good, F.M.) Cream 1-3 cup butter or margarine with 1 cup brown sugar. Take 1 cup sour milk and add 1 teaspoon soda and stir till frothy and add to first mix. Add 1 3-4 cups sifted flour, 1-3 cup cocoa, 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla. 30 min. 350 oven. This makes a lovely 2 inch layer cake or a 9 inch square cake."

"Dear Mrs. Moore: I am a working gal and don't get much time to mosey through cook books, but yours are so simple and easy to follow . . . let one of your readers is having trouble with beaten egg whites . . . I get a real kick out of them.—Mrs. L. G. M."

That is all the space I have for today. See tomorrow's column for Jessie K.'s Dickey Tarts and Fozy Lemon Pie recipes. Thanks to all.

GOOD MANNERS

UNWISE TO "STAND ON CEREMONY"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

One daughter has just told us that she was married a few months ago. It wasted very much to invite the parents to dinner on Sunday dinner, so we could get better acquainted. My husband insists that it's his parents' place to suit us first. Is this correct? — A Reader.

It is, as your husband doubtless has in mind, the duty of the young man's parents to make the first social move when their son tells them that he is engaged . . . the young man's mother and father go as soon as possible to call on his fiance and her mother to welcome their son's fiancee into their family. And it would be natural and sensible that they would be expected to follow up on this procedure when their son tells them of his marriage.

Hence, the important idea is that the significant relationship should be established between the two families as soon as possible. You and your husband should not stand on ceremony concerning this. Since no social moves has been made by the parents of the new in-laws, I strongly suggest that you and your husband take the procedure into your own hands . . . that you telephone (or write) to your daughter's husband's mother and invite her and her husband and the bride and groom to come to Sunday dinner on a definite date (with, perhaps as alternative date suggested).

TIPPING CHECKROOM ATTENDANT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm going to my first formal dance in a hotel ballroom. Do I tip the checkroom attendant? If so, when I leave my evening wrap or when I get it at the end of the dance? And how much tip? —Sallie

No, you tip the check room attendant. When she hands you your check (the number printed on it) you put a quarter on the plate. Most checkroom attendants for large dances in hotel ballrooms have a circular turning down the corner of the part of the check they attach to your coat, or by some similar indication) to show whether or not you have given the tip at the time you checked your wrap.

WANT MARRIAGE CEREMONY READ AT ANNIVERSARY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are to celebrate this we would like to have an Open House in the recreation room of our church. And also we would like to have the marriage ceremony read again. However, some of our relatives and friends tell us that this is not proper for a 25th anniversary . . . only for the 50th. Please tell us if this would be all right? — A Faithful Reader

It is the minister of your church who is the authority concerning all the details of this procedure . . . and you should consult with him before making any plans.

DEGREES OF "THE MOTHERS"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Who should have first choice in choosing her dress color, the bride's mother or the groom's mother? — G.

The bride's mother, who is to be the hostess of the wedding, chooses the type and color of dress she is to wear. She also informs the groom's mother, who chooses the same general type of dress (as to length and so forth) and of a color to harmonize with the bride's mother's dress.

THEY SHOULDN'T WAIT TO BE INVITED

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son was married last December, he and his bride at last found a small ranch house which they bought, and they have just finished furnishing it. The relatives and friends on both sides gave them wonderful wedding presents, and of course they are all eager to see the new home and their wedding presents "on location"! However, many of them think they should not go until the bride has asked them to come. But the newlyweds and I think the proper thing is for relatives and friends to go to see her, uninvited, to be friendly, to show their interest, and to "pay their respects" . . . (as my dear mother used to say). What is the proper thing to do? — R.N.N.

You and the newlyweds have the right idea . . . and your mother has the right words for this social obligation for relatives and friends to call on the bride in her new home, or, if they consider it more convenient and appropriate, to telephone her to see if or when it would be convenient for them to come.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE LACKS FRIENDS—SHE CAN FIND THEM

A woman who tells me that, all her life, she has never been able to make close friends, and longs to do so, asks:

"My husband makes friends very easily, and I sometimes even find people trying to cut me out and be friends with my husband alone. The only people in my life who have been really close to me are my husband, my mother and my children.

"Please help me," she ends pathetically.

Well, actually, I think this woman's situation is a lot more hopeful than she realizes. For if she is so fortunate as to be really close to her husband, her mother and her children, then, obviously, she is a fine person who attracts the love and respect of those who know her best, which means that she would be a good friend to anyone.

Where her trouble comes in, I think, is that she is also the kind of person who is shy and reserved, and so does not quite know how to make friendly advances toward others. Hence, it takes people a long time to discover what a fine friend she could really be.

I wish she had told me more about herself, and whether or not she has any interests outside her home and her family. Perhaps she has been too shy to try and develop any, and, if that is so, then this is where she will need to start solving her problem.

I believe her personality and temperament are probably such that she would be most likely to forget herself and her shyness if she were to undertake some work in her community that would help others. To put one's mind on other people is the very best way to forget oneself.

The large city where she lives must have a great many opportunities of this kind to offer. She might, for instance, join the Red Cross, or work as a volunteer in a hospital or in some social welfare agency where she could get interested in helping solve other people's problems. Or she might like to work with young people through becoming a Girl Scout leader, or a leader of some other type of club for youngsters.

Let her go at the thing systematically, and make a list of all the different kinds of organizations there are in her city. Then choose one or two—one can start out right—that appeal to her, and go in there and really "pitch." She will, I am sure, be surprised to find how easy it becomes to talk to people, and to make friends.

If you are working with them on a common cause.

Since she doesn't say how old she is, I have no way of knowing whether or not her children are grown. But if they are still in school, then there must be a Parent-Teacher Association that needs her help and interest, and perhaps other things she could do connected with the schools her children attend.

Another good step to take would be to find out what social and study groups exist that would be open to both herself and her husband. She says her husband makes friends very easily. So it would certainly be a big help if they could serve as outside activity together, particularly if he is understanding enough to make an effort to lend a hand in her main objective-making friends.

Above all, let her remember that she mustn't handicap herself instantly by telling herself and it will be to get out and what I have suggested. Instead, she should tell herself, not that she is going out to look for friends, but that she is going to look for interesting things to do. By concentrating on the hunt for interesting projects, she will forget to dwell on her fear of meeting people. Then, as she has found those interesting projects, and become active in them with her, she will be automatically and naturally, and painlessly, making friendships with those who are in them with her.

Let her go ahead now, and tell us how she is getting along.

Wheat Crop Control Referendum Could Rock Farm Commodity Market, Shake Farm Programs

By OVID MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—American farmers will vote this spring in a wheat crop control referendum that could rock the farm commodity markets and shake federal farm programs to their foundations.

The question to be submitted to growers is whether they want rigid federal marketing quotas extended to the 1956 wheat crop.

Rejection of quotas would require the department, under provisions of farm law, to endorse federal price supports for wheat from 75 per cent average of $2.08 a bushel to about $1.78.

The law directs that supports range between 81 and 90 per cent of parity next year if controls are in effect, but only 75 per cent if they are rejected. Parity is a standard for measuring farm prices declared by law to be fair to farmers in relation to prices they pay.

A drop in support prices could be expected to cause an immediate sharp drop in wheat prices in the markets.

Reports from wheat-producing areas indicate there is much dissatisfaction with the present wheat program. The thing that seems to be worrying farmers is the feeling that they are getting nowhere toward the solution of their problem of surplus supplies and excessive productive capacity. They have been cut to a total of 55,000,000 acres, compared with a post-war peak of 82,000,000.

Current surpluses are so large, Agriculture Secretary Ezra Benson says, that it may take 10 more years of rigid controls to get supplies back down to normal.

Some of those who voted for wheat quotas in the past and who say they plan to vote against them this spring argue that the way to get a better federal wheat program is to vote down controls. They say the depressing effect of lower wheat price supports on the farm economy would be so serious that the government would have to do something.

Some farm organizations and leaders are pressing for legislation which would set up what they call a two-price plan for wheat, as contrasted with the present one-price plan. Under it, wheat sold for food use in the United States would be supported at a high price, perhaps 90 or 100 per cent of parity. Wheat grown in excess of domestic food needs would be allowed to drag to lower levels where it could compete freely in the export market as well as in the domestic feed grain market.

Advocates contend that the two-price plan would provide a much larger market for the United States wheat. But Benson has opposed this plan, largely on the grounds that it would be criticized abroad as an export-dumping program because it would enable wheat growers to take over a large portion of feed grain markets at expense of producers of corn, oats and the like.

Legislation is pending in Congress which would allow growers to vote on the two-price plan along with the present control program when the latter is submitted this spring. But it appears unlikely that the measure will be passed, at least not in time for the referendum.

Juvenile, in Minds of Experts, Is Frightened, Sick Child

NEW YORK (AP) — An outrageous crime by a juvenile delinquent invariably is followed by great public shock, indignation and tongue-clucking about the new generation.

There are loud demands for swift, stern justice. Many people call for a "solution" to the problem. Some try to assess blame—on the parents, on society, on our culture. They ask what can be depend to do our moral fibre?

Having thus blown off steam most of us turn to the sports pages. Few pay any attention to what happens to the youthful offender after the courts finish with him.

Yet the ways in which society tries to segregate, treat and rehabilitate its young criminals represents the other side of the monumental coin called the juvenile delinquency problem.

How big is the problem?

BIG FACTOR OF TIME

The juvenile delinquent today may be just a kid who breaks windows. But, in the United States, he also commits more than half the car thefts, almost half of all burglaries, nearly a fifth of all robberies, 16.2 per cent of all rapes and four per cent of all criminal homicides.

The juvenile delinquent today is a frightening statistic but, in the minds of experts, he also is a sick, frightened child.

The U.S. children's bureau reports that in 1953 (the last year for which statistics are available) about 435,000 boys and girls were brought before juvenile courts in the United States for delinquency; perhaps as many as 1,250,000 were dealt with by the police, and a great many more escaped the attention of the law. In that year more than 40,000 were committed to state institutions for juvenile delinquents.

What are these institutions like?

The answer from the experts is that these training or industrial schools generally have shown great improvement, have helped many children, have moved far—but in some cases not far enough—from the days of public whipping posts, semi-official sadism, inadequate diets and filthy quarters.

The same experts admit the same schools still have great room for improvement, that some are plainly still terrible.

Judge Samuel Leibowitz of New York, famed for his experience with criminals young and old, recently visited an industrial school in his state. He was shocked to find there, in an institution side by side, to learn that the school hadn't a full-time psychiatrist for its 300 "twisted maladjusted youngsters."

"These so-called correctional institutions are mere dumping grounds, human junk yards where the good, the bad and the indifferent are herded together," the judge said.

How effective, or ineffective, are such schools in rehabilitating delinquents? There is as yet no sure way of knowing. Many schools will tell you that 60 to 75 per cent of their graduates, in a given year, don't come back and don't go to the state penitentiary.

But these same officials quickly admit the backgrounds of these statistics. They have no idea how many boys end up in adult prison in later years or in other states.

Authorities stress the need for trained professionals at such schools, for an understanding staff, for a relaxed atmosphere, where a boy will begin to feel emotionally safe, where he can begin to open up and discuss his darkest troubles and fears.

A Progressive Conservative member says he likes June because it is well ahead of the summer holidays and quiet on the farm.

June 20 supporters say their date is better, that June 6 is too early.

A Liberal argued against June 20 because he looks for a slump in the automotive industry by then and resulting unemployment. He said car-rate prices on new cars indicate manufacturing is going on at such a rate sales may reach a low ebb by early summer.

ALL PREPARE

Whatever the date, all parties are getting ready. Nomination meetings are being held almost every night.

When the election comes Premier Frost will be leading his party into a campaign for the second time. He took over in 1949 after George Drew resigned to become national leader of the party.

In his first campaign, 1951, his party was elected with the greatest legislature majority in the province's history. Mr. Frost has represented Victoria in the legislature since 1937.

The Liberals will be headed for a second time by Farquhar Oliver who has represented Grey South for 29 years. Mr. Oliver, known as the boy orator when he was first elected to the legislature in 1926 at the age of 22, was chosen leader of the party last year as successor to Walter C. Thomson.

CCF NEWCOMER

He first became party leader in 1947 but resigned after the party's defeat in 1948 and was succeeded by Mr. Thomson.

The CCF is headed by a newcomer to Ontario politics, Donald C. MacDonald, a former newspaperman and school teacher, who was chosen leader of his party in November, 1953, to replace E. B. Jolliffe who retired.

Mr. MacDonald, formerly of Ottawa, was national organizer and treasurer of the CCF party when he became leader and has been waging an active campaign through the province.

Children Withdrawn

ORILLIA (CP) — Mrs. East Winkworth withdrew her three children from the S. S. No. 5 Atherley school today because "the teacher uses the strap too freely." Mrs. Winkworth's withdrawal of children brings the total to 52 pupils who have left the school during the year.

Mrs. Winkworth said her son Everett, 4, told her the teacher, Mrs. Margaret Ferguson, had hit him on the head with the strap.

The teacher, who appeared in Beaverton court Wednesday on an assault charge after allegedly trapping a pupil on the legs, denied Mrs. Winkworth's accusation.

Happy Smile After Big Win

Mr. and Mrs. Garth Lapp, of Trenton, are smiling after winning $55,000 on the Grand National Steeplechase. Mrs. Lapp held a ticket, presented to her by her mother in Vancouver, on Tudor Line, which ran second. Mr. and Mrs. Lapp may use the money to buy a ranch on Vancouver Island.

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's armed forces, as an economy measure, are replacing crockery with plastic ware in some men's messes in an attempt to cut down on broken, chipped and cracked dishes, the defence department said Friday.

TEXTILE MAN DIES

MONTREAL (CP) — Max E. Binz, 58, president and managing director of the Hotel de la Salle and well known figure in the Canadian textile industry, died here Friday. He was president of the Canada Woven Label Co. Ltd.

One of the hardest hit areas was Dufferin county northwest of Toronto. Howling winds whipped across the area Sunday on the heels of Saturday's storm and filled in highways and sideroads as fast as plows could clear them.

The situation got so bad that Ray Cunningham, Dufferin county road superintendent, gave up any idea of clearing the roads for two or three days.

In some districts, heavy road blocking was blamed on the assumption of roads officials that spring weather was on the way. Snow fences had been removed, resulting in drifting across the roads.

The weatherman forecast continuing cold and windy weather for today. Temperatures in most Ontario centres would run around the mid-30s.

Snowplows which tackled sideroads in King township, 20 miles north of Toronto, became stuck themselves. An S O S message went out by telephone asking all farmers with tractors to turn out and free the plows. Where the plows did get through, the wind undid their work within minutes.

One group of nine people from Toronto, who spent the weekend near King, was forced to abandon three cars and walk 4½ miles to the Barrie highway, after they had completed their journey back to the city by taxi.

Elapsed time for the trip, normally a 50-minute drive, was five hours.

AUTHORIZE KILTS

OTTAWA (CP)—Kilts have been authorized for all ranks of Highland, Scottish and Irish regiments of the Canadian Army (Militia), the army said Friday. In the past, battledress was issued to militia soldiers.

May Charge Fees To Enter Three Ontario Parks

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government is considering charging fees for cars entering three Ontario parks, W. R. Greenwood of the parks division, department of lands and forests, says today.

Mr. Greenwood said the department is considering a 50-cent fee for cars entering Algonquin park for 24 hours and for cars entering Ipperwash and Rondeau parks during holidays and weekends.

A week-eight camping fee at Ipperwash and Rondeau is also under consideration, Mr. Greenwood said. Campers would be limited to two weeks in a choice location.

Leads and Forests Minister Macdonald said there is a possibility all fees will be effective during the coming summer.

Mr. Greenwood said a may be charged for com watercraft in Algonquin and ico parks.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

L OVER!

That's it! It's all over for the fighting Monsee for this season. On Saturday night, after that hope-raising, brilliant 3-2 victory over the Kingston Goodyears the night previous, they bowed to the superiority of the Limestone City crew by a score of 4-1 to lose the senior "B" group finals by a similar game score.

The conquerors of the Cornwall Colts in the group semi-finals went down fighting before the better all-round series play of the Goodyears. And while the margin was 4-1 in games it did not indicate the difference between the clubs. It is this country's opinion that Stanley Goodhew have just met and defeated the toughest opposition they will encounter in their quest for the Ontario senior "B" title.

While a lot will say, and we agree in the most part, that the Monsee did not get the "breaks," as sports parlance puts it, there is no denying the Goodyears their group championship. If they did get the majority of the breaks, as the story goes, they took the fullest advantage of anything that came their way. Add this to a sensational goaltending stalwart, hard-hitting defence corps and a flock of hard-shooting, Mercury-heeled forwards and you have the reasons why the Goodyears are the 1954-44 group champions.

The Monsee can be proud of their seasonal performance. They went down with all colors flying and there was not a taint of disgrace in their defeat. They were beaten by a better club on the series—and they will be the first to admit it—although a lot won't.

They played consistently good hockey during the schedule of 36 games, usually hovering between third and fourth places. Finishing in the fourth slot and well ahead of the fifth-place Brockville Magedomas, they flashed a brilliant, close-checking brand of hockey that vaulted the league-winning Cornwall Colts with four victories in six games.

The rest is history. Like the good sportsmen they are, the Monsee congratulated their conquerors after Saturday night's game and wished them luck in their second quest for the title in three years. . . .

E UP!

Point Anne went one up in their OHA Intermediate 'C' playdown, defeating Bobcaygeon 11-2 on Saturday night. The second game in the best-of-five series is being played in the Memorial Arena tonight. . . .

LIVELY CORPSE!

Senior hockey, which attempted a half-hearted revival in the Ottawa Valley District League after being defunct for some time, may not operate next year according to Cecil Duncan, the loop's secretary-treasurer. Duncan told a Cornwall sports editor in an interview that "it was only a house league (Ottawa) and all the clubs lost money. I wouldn't recommend that it operates again."

The Ottawa Amateur Hockey League was formed hurriedly this season. Four teams participated and the champion, Ottawa Senators, qualified to play in the Allan Cup playdowns. They were belted, but good, in the first three games of the series with the Moncton Hawks—and will likely bow out in four straight.

Duncan said that not a nickel was paid out in salaries in the league and that sponsors had resisted attempts to reinstate old Ottawa pros like Howard Riopelle and Emile Dargenais—(didn't that guy play for Brockville in the latter stages of the senior "B" schedule)—feeling that they would have kept the amateur youngsters out of the game. God, what eliteness.

The Ottawa League made some rule changes of their own, but smacked of those of the OMHA. Yet Duncan was enthusiastic about it, pointing out that while many people were skeptical about the experiment, they were surprised at the results obtained. He thought that the ban against body-checking in another team's defensive zone and in the centre ice zone worked wonders for the game." He said clubs attempting to advance the puck out of their own end found the task much easier with greater speed and a better pass pattern.

Then the Ottawa loop secretary came out with the statement: "Senior hockey is dead all over this country. (Chick Appel, please note.) Something startling will have to happen to revive it."

Mr. Duncan's resurrection recipe was: "The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association should sever its connections with the National Hockey League." He said the CAHA and particularly senior hockey, has suffered through working agreements with the NHL. . . With professional hockey players free to shuttle back and forth through the medium of the one-time amateur clubs, costs have risen, fan interest has declined and the participation of the average player neglected.

"The salvation of senior hockey," Duncan is quoted as saying, "lies in the elimination of big salaries. Get back to a modest, more realistic sum of about $20 or $30 a week and balance the budget."

He held little hope for senior hockey in his district next year, but said that some day a league might be revived which would take in Ottawa, Valleyfield, Hull, Montreal and Cornwall.

It should be quite a league if it adheres to Mr. Duncan's proposed standards. There would be no professionals or rather, ex-professionals playing, and if present hockey salaries are criticized, they would rather enjoy seeing what the $30-a-week jobs would produce.

Because senior hockey has been a dismal flop in the Ottawa district it is no indication that "it is dead all over this country," as Duncan puts it. Kitchener, Stratford and the other teams in that loop, the Northern League and western groups can vouch for that.

And senior "B" hockey in this district, which we are told, is on a par with the brand played in the Ottawa Senior League this season, is far from dead. While it did not enjoy capacity crowds during the season, the league was far from being ready for the mortician and bulging arunas in Barrieville and Kingston in the current playoffs scarcely warrant the "Dead March in Saul."

Mr. Duncan should set his own house in order before levelling criticism at his neighbors.

Disallowed Goal Takes Steam Out of Clancy Crew's Drive; Record Crowd Sees Boston Win

By Jim Bastable
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BOSTON (CP) — The Boston Bruins are down to the contention in the National Hockey League's victory over the Montreal Canadiens—their first in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

With the biggest Boston Garden crowd of the NHL season looking on — a capacity 13,909 — the Bruins struck for three first period goals last night. Leo Labine notched his first goal in 17 games and Fernie Flaman and Real Chevrefils scored only 30 seconds apart. The trio came in a span of only 4:52.

That was all Boston needed to cut Montreal's edge to 3-1 in the series.

PLAY TUESDAY

They resume in Boston Tuesday night while Detroit's defending champion Red Wings will be out to score a 4-0 series sweep over the Maple Leafs in Toronto. The Wings and Leafs were idle Sunday night. Detroit has a 3-0 lead.

Coach Milt Schmidt's Boston Bruins dropped the first two games to the Canadiens in Montreal 3-1 and 3-2.

Sunday night, however, Boston opened up with its third period with a close-checking, hard-hitting game. Referee Frank Udvari called seven penalties — a surprise — five against the Bruins—but Boston kept Montreal from scoring in the first session while bagging enough goals to win.

LAYCOE SCORES

To make things a bit more annoying for Montreal, the fourth Bruin goal came off the stick of Hal Laycoe, a central figure in the March 13 Boston Garden melee which cost Maurice (Rocket) Richard a suspension for the season and playoffs. Richard drew that heavy penalty for punching official Cliff Thompson.

Laycoe's tally made it 4-0 with 73 seconds left in the middle period. Montreal, foiled for two periods by veteran goalie Sugar Jim Henry, finally broke into the scoring column on a long drive by Dollard St. Laurent. Jackie Le Clair got the Canadiens' other goal with 11 seconds left in the game.

Coach Dick Irvin of Montreal continued to two-platoon his netminders, Jacques Plante and Charlie Hodge, but it didn't matter much to Boston. The Bruins beat each of them twice.

MADE LEAD LAST

As they did in Detroit in the second game last Thursday, the Wings moved into a 2-1 lead in the third period and made that up all the way. Only occasionally were they threatened in the windup session. Goaltender Terry Sawchuk was there to stop them.

Bellgrenet Ted Lindsay, who made it a point to goad any Leaf who wanted his way, scored the first Detroit goal and assisted on the other. Dutch Reibel, centre on the big line of Gordie Howe and Lindsay, got the second Wing goal. Howe assisted on both.

Leftwinger Sid Smith, who scored 25 goals during the regular 70-game schedule, made it No. 3 for the playoffs by beating Sawchuk at 9:29 of the opening period to help lock the engagement 1-1.

That was it for Leafs. They made a determined effort but a goal that was disallowed late in the first period took a lot of steam out of them.

FELL NEAR GOAL

The disputed goal came at 17:37 with Wings on a power play. Right winger Ron Stewart, speeding dead-on for the Detroit cage, either kicked or carried the puck into the net when he fell in front of Sawchuk.

Referee Red Storey ruled that he kicked the puck, passed by centre Rudy Migay, behind Sawchuk. Stewart argued strenuously but Storey stuck by his decision.

Detroit general manager Jack Adams said it was "the big one to win." In the dressing room after the game, he commented:

"It's a nice spot to be in. They have to make it three-straight now."

Day didn't go along with Storey's ruling on the disputed goal.

"It bounced off Stewart's skate as he slid near the crease. The rule book says a player must deliberately kick a puck into the nets for it to be disallowed."

Leaf coach King Clancy, shaken by the defeat, agreed with Hap. "That may have been the turning point, although we missed some good chances later in the game."

Clancy Talked, Fined $200

TORONTO (CP)—Frank (King) Clancy, coach of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, was fined $200 for his remarks to referee Frank Udvari during a playoff game at Detroit last Tuesday, NHL president Clarence Campbell announced Saturday night.

Clancy criticized Udvari in a Detroit Olympia corridor over alleged poor officiating during Toronto's 7-4 loss to the Red Wings.

NHL rules forbid any club official from talking to the referees or linesmen on the day of a game.

Toronto Marlboros Edge Teepees 2-1, Win Ontario Junior A Championship

By Bill Senyk
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Billy Harris, smalla s hockey players go, has been pulling more than his share of the load for Toronto Marlboros.

Sunday he gave an extra boost to lead Marlboros to a 2-1 victory over St. Catharines TeePees, edging the Dukes their first Ontario Hockey Association junior A championship in 23 years.

The victory, watched by a capacity Maple Leaf Gardens crowd of 12,545, gave Toronto the best-of-seven championship 4-2 and advanced Marlboros to the eastern Canada National Cup final. They will play either Quebec Frontenacs or Ottawa Canadiens for the eastern title with the winner going west for a try at the Memorial Cup.

It was a picture goal by Harris, wiry 19-year-old centre, that won the game and it was fitting that the team's leading scorer during the season and in the playoff set against the TeePees should notch the goal that eliminated the defending Memorial Cup champs.

BACKHAND SHOT

Billy snatched the puck on the Toronto side of centre ice, went through a maze of St. Catharines players and, with TeePee defenceman Ethan Nash draped around his back, fired a backhander past Dennis Riggin at 14:20 of the final period.

He had also assisted on Ken Girland's first-period marker which gave Marlboros a 1-0 lead. Joe Hockstra had tied the score for the TeePees before the first period was over when his long shot was deflected past Johnny Albani by Marlboro defenceman Al McNeill.

Harris, fourth-highest goal scorer in the league during the regular season with 37 markers, was ninth in the scoring race with 66 points. That was the highest on his team.

BRODA SCORES

The victory also gave coach Turk Broda a distinction. Broda, former star netminder with the Leafs, Marlboros their first OHA championship since 1932 in his first year as a junior A coach. He coached the junior B weston Dukes, an affiliate of Marlboro, to a title in 1953.

Referee Hugh McLean handed out seven minor penalties to each team Sunday but St. Catharines was the only team to take advantage, Hockstra's goal coming on a power play while Gary Aldcorn was off for elbowing.

OHA vice-president Frank Buckland of Peterborough presented Marlboros with the John Ross Robertson Trophy after the game.

Remember When

By The Canadian Press

Georges Vezina, one of the great goalies in hockey history, died of tuberculosis 29 years ago today. The "Chicoutimi Cucumber" played his first professional game with Montreal Canadiens in 1910 and his last, with the same team, in November, 1925, when he was suffering a temperature of 102. His memory is perpetuated by the Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the NHL goalie with the best season's record.

Goodyears Win Senior B Group Title; Defeat Memos 4-1 In Fifth Game

Score Three in Second Period To Wrap Up Fourth Victory; Meet Orillia in Semi-Finals

KINGSTON, ONT., March 27 — Kingston Goodyears, stunned Belleville defences with onrushing assault troops, shot their way to a 4-1 triumph in the Community Memorial Centre on Saturday night, and also prevailed in the best-in-seven Ontario Hockey Association senior "B" eastern group final by 4 to 1. It was a result that could not be faulted. Goodyears having furnished ample proof that they are superior to the courageous Memos. In 13 clashes this season against the Boneherrom the locals won 8, lost 4, tied one and erected a points advantage of 17 to 8.

Goodyears' driving attack gave them a 43 to 16 advantage in shots and superiority that was challenged mainly by goalkeeper "Tony" Pratt and "Flash" Macey Parisi, rising to dizzy heights of magic-saving effectiveness, set aside or stopped 39 shots and earned top rating for the night. Macey, overworked when Orillia Pirates' other linen-defenders, shared all seven penalties called against the Memos, turned in a fine two-way effort in a hopeless cause.

Kingston's well-balanced squad worked smoothly in all departments of play and left no room in the conviction that it is emoute to the championship throne. Their opponents in the first playdown round will be the Orillia Pontiac Chippers by 1 to 0 on the latter's ice on Saturday night. The best-of-seven series will resume on Thursday night.

No outbreak of violence marred this final test between old foes, but late in the action a visiting rail seat suddenly sprayed a serious uprising by striking Johnny Myke with some missile thought to be a lump of ice. Belleville fans, occupying rail seats, became involved with Goodyear rooters and the police were rushed to the scene in record time. It was claimed to identify the participants in that milling throng where the goings-on were alleged- ly more violent than they were on the ice.

PAWCHUK STARS

Willie Pawchuk, skating a la Howie Morenz or a Maurice Richard, was the most conspicuous figure in Kingston regalia but with Parisi intervening he collected only one point — an assist, whereas he might have amassed a half a dozen. Pawchuk hit the speed lanes from the outset and launched the consistent attack that saw Goodyears outshoot the Memos by the wide margin of 17 to 5 in a goalless opening period.

Bob Wilson drew the first penalty for holding at 10.14. Johnny Muckler, who held, and Myke, who slashed, were sent away at 13.05 and with five-a-side Ted Toppazzini got to close quarters only to have Parisi deflect the shot high and over the net. Don Murray, George MacGregor and Ted Nicholson sparkled during a sustained ganging assault, but Parisi made half a dozen sensational saves.

Wilson was banished at 17.14 for tripping but Parisi remained invisible. Near the close of the fruitless session Toppazzini made a sig-nal end to end dash only to be thwarted at the goalmouth. Goodyears ganged from the outset when play was resumed in the middle period and assailed Parisi with fire power before Don Murray, aided by Jack White and Nicholson, opened the tallying in 38 seconds.

Don Bellringer, tireless as ever, weaved in to the crease at 5.58 but his shot was high and over the net. Jim McKeown made it a 2-0 affair when he beat Parisi at 7.18. Myke and Nicholson assisted. Seconds later two fans got into a battle but were quickly subdued. Then a 5-43 opportunist Jack White broke away from a Belleville ganging attack and the light flashed again.

Pawchuk, who had been doing everything except score, hit a post with a blazing drive at 12.10. Muckler went away for interfering at 15.32. The warning involved went unheeded and he was penalized again for holding at 18.50.

In this "round" Goodyears led in shooting 15 to 6. Goodyears flirted with another counter 20 second after play got under way in the final period but Wilson, hooked White, who had broken into the clear, stopped the attack and was penalized. Don Bellringer, however, took ample revenge when he scored at 1.56 after Pawchuk had engineered the attack.

Penalties to Jack Irvine, Wilson, Murray and Nicholson followed with no damage done to either cause. Keith MacDonald, who had flirted with a penalty for charging, scored at 16.01 with Davey Jones and Vern Coy- ne his assistants.

ting gesture of defiance by one of Belleville's finest during the final series.

Les Douglas, who was held pointless, broke through to Parisi's doorstep at 17.30, but the wily veteran found no opening. Seconds later Myke, skating a rah lane, was struck and bedlam broke loose in the adjoining section. Ice action, however, continued with Goodyears batting all attacking efforts with neatness and dispatch.

Jack White, with a goal and an assist, also Ted Nicholson, with two assists, shared point-getting laurels in this final duel. Murray, Jim McKeown and Don Bellringer each scored once while Jack White and Ted Nicholson had an assist. MacDonald, who scored and Goyer and Davy Jones, who assisted, finished off netting a blanking in the Memos' last desperate rally.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Parisi; defence, Mackey and Wilson; centre, Doran; wings, F. Jones and Dugan; alternate, Muckler, Goyer.

Kingston—Goal, Johnson; defence, Wilson and Nicholson; centre, Murray; wings, White and MacGregor; alternates, Lon- dry, Irvine, Toppazzini, Douglas, Bellringer, Myke, Pawchuk, Mc- Keown and Gordon.

Will Televise College Games

NEW YORK (CP)—The National Broadcasting Company got back its rights to televise United States college football Saturday, presumably ending the opportunity of appreciate Canadians to follow the fortunes of the Big Four clubs on an American screen.

The NBC carries Big Four games on Saturday afternoon last fall when the National Collegiate Athletic Association awarded its TV rights to the American Broadcasting Company. While the NBC has not yet been notified the Canadian league that it does not plan to renew the option, the clash in playing times appeared to make the demise of the NBC's Canadian telecasts inevitable.

The possibility that some other network might take over the Canadian rights was clouded by the lack of a sponsor for the Big Four telecasts, which had caused the NBC to hesitate to renew its Canadian option even before it was back its U.S. college broadcasts.

NBC sports director Tom Gallery said the network will make its final decision on the Canadian option sometime this week.

Big Four president Ralph Cooper attended the Canadian Rugby Union convention at Vancouver, said his organization will negotiate with other networks in the United States if the NBC does not renew its option by April 1.

Turns Down Canadiens' Offer

PENTICTON, B.C. (CP) — Ivan McLelland, sensational netminder for the world champion Penticton Vees, has turned down an offer to play for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

McLelland said Saturday he declined the offer, made by Canadiens' general manager Frank Selke in a telephone call Friday night, "strictly for financial reasons."

Like most Okanagan League players, McLelland holds down an outside job to supplement his hockey income.

Another member of the world champs, defenceman George McAvoy, will be signed to a profes-

Grey Cup Move Criticized By Toronto Fans

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto football fans, smarting from the weekend shift of the 1955 Grey Cup game, have started making plans to visit Vancouver for the Nov. 26 classic.

Many levelled criticism Sunday at the Canadian Rugby Union for accepting Vancouver's invitation for the final this year. Others blamed Toronto city council for not fighting harder to keep the game here.

The junior Board of Trade, which for four years has sponsored the colorful Grey Cup parade and Miss Grey Cup beauty contest, said a committee is being established to study the possibility of running a special train to the coast.

"We're sorry to see it go," said Alex Rennie, the board's chairman. "But, it's still a great Canadian spectacle. It's with Vancouver all the best. We've sent a wire to them."

DEPLORES MOVE

Joseph Keenan, Toronto public relations executive and chairman of the Keep-the-Grey-Cup-In-Toronto committee, had this to say about the move:

"It's like taking the Queen's Plate to New York and the Calgary Stampede to North Bay."

Saturday he accused Mayor Nathan Phillips and city officials of lack of help in holding the classic here and said the move to Vancouver may be the result of a deal in the game.

Keenan, who led a deputation last month to board of control, claimed the city did not come through with financial aid promised at that time for sending a spokesman to plead Toronto's case before the fateful Canadian Rugby Union meeting in Vancouver.

DENIES CHARGE

Mayor Phillips denied the charge and said money was "never emphasized" by the group. He said the deputation asked only official city support and was given it.

"If they needed money they should have come back and asked for it specifically and I'm quite sure they would have got it," the mayor said.

Keenan was one of the organizers of the Grey Cup dinner which has raised $35,000 for sport charities in the last five years.

"Toronto built the Grey Cup from the time when no other city wanted it and you couldn't give tickets away," he said. "The Grey Cup and Toronto are synonymous today."

ORFU Out of Cup Contention Will Issue Challenge in 1956

By KEN METHERALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 78-year-old Ontario Rugby Football Union that gave birth to big-time football in this country and once ruled as a gridiron power, fatally dropped out of the Grey Cup playoff picture.

Announcement that the ORFU, oldest football league in Canada, would not challenge for the East-West title this year was made by league president Don Downey of Toronto. He coupled the announcement with a promise the ORFU "will be back in 1956."

Both inside and outside the meeting Downey emphasized that the withdrawal, forced on the ORFU by the more powerful Western Interprovincial Football Union and the Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union, was for one year only.

"We will definitely challenge for the cup in 1956," he said.

WILL REBUILD

Downey also predicted that clubs in the circuit would use the off-year to build themselves into contenders in another year.

The ORFU was shunted to the sidelines in a twin-squeeze-play by the WIFU and the Big Four.

The WIFU, which had met the ORFU in the 1923 and 1954 semi-finals, informed the CRU that it was the Big Four's turn this year and drew up a schedule that would declare a winner only after a week before Grey Cup day, leaving no time to meet the winners of the Ontario circuit. It was an all-east-ern final until 1921 when Regina Exhibitions made the West's first challenge.

The Big Four informed the CRU it was not willing to meet the ORFU champions in a semi-final game because of lack of crowd appeal and danger of injuries to key players on the eve of the East-West final. The WIFU said it would not meet the ORFU this year.

The ORFU, dependent on the semi-final game's revenue to replenish depleted club funds, finally was forced to accept a compromise agreement under which it will receive financial compensation for the lost revenue. Details of the agreement were not announced.

BITTER BLOW

It was a bitter blow for the league which six times had won the Grey Cup and had ruled as a major football power through the 1920s and early 1930s when the Grey Cup final between strong eastern clubs and comparatively weak western challengers was almost anti-climatic to the eastern final.

The ORFU chalked up its first cup victory in 1912 when Hamilton Alerts defeated the heavily-favored Toronto Argonauts 11-4.

Toronto Balmy Beaches added two more by edging Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four 9-4 in 1921 and Regina Roughriders 11-6 three years later.

Sarnia Imperials also were a double winner—30-12 over Regina in 1934 and 26-20 over Ottawa Rough Riders in 1936. The final cup victory came in 1943 when Hamilton Wildcats defeated Winnipeg RCAF-Bombers 23-14.

CHANGE IN YEARS AGO

Until 1923 the ORFU and Big Four met in an eastern final for the right to meet the western champions.

But as the Big Four consolidated its hold as the premier circuit in eastern Canada, the ORFU gradually was relegated to the status of a farm system for the rival Big Four and the WIFU.

With the eastern final failing to attract fan support, the WIFU in 1953 agreed to alternate with the Big Four in meeting the ORFU winners in the semi-final.

The 1953 semi-final at Winnipeg was a financial success, netting some $13,000. The West agreed to meet the ORFU again in 1954 but only 8,000 fans turned out at Edmonton to watch their Eskimos trample Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and the WIFU balked at a repeat performance this year.

Hornets, Bisons Will Battle For Calder Cup

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Pittsburgh Hornets will be hosts to Buffalo Bisons when the American Hockey League's Calder Cup playoff finals get underway Wednesday March 30. The series will be best-of-seven.

The Hornets, who won the regular season championship, reached the finals Sunday night with a 4-3 overtime victory over Springfield Indians. Pittsburgh took the best-of-five semi-final series 3 games to 1.

Buffalo, which finished fourth in the league standings, eliminated the defending champion Cleveland Barons 3 to 1 in games. The Bisons downed Cleveland 6-4 Sunday night.

Gerry Foley's goal at 7:47 of the "sudden death" period gave Pittsburgh the win. Jack Bownass converted a pass from Ray Timgren after the teams had played 17 minutes and 47 seconds. The Hornets came from behind three times before subduing stubborn Springfield, which had defeated Pittsburgh 4-3 Saturday night.

Buffalo insured its victory over the Barons when Ken Wharram drilled the puck into Cleveland cage at 19:34 of the final period. It was Wharram's second goal of the night. The Bisons trounced Cleveland 8-0 Saturday night.

SETS WORLD MARK

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Lon Spurrier, former University of California track captain now running for the San Francisco Olympic Club, set a world record for the 880-yard run of 1:47.5 Saturday. The recognized world record of 1:48.6 was set by Mal Whitfield at Turku on July 17, 1953.

Greyhounds Edge Kitchener Dutchies, Take 2-1 Lead in Senior Playoffs

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Sault Ste. Marie was playing one injuries, which first struck Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, appear to have changed the tide in the middle of the All-Ontario Senior A hockey finals. And they may have a big say in the way the best-of-seven series between Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds and the Dutchmen turns out.

The Greyhounds, who took a 3-1 lead in the set Saturday by defeating Kitchener 3-1 before 3,325 fans here, reported today that Don Rope will miss tonight's fourth game and the fifth game here Tuesday because of torn knee ligaments.

Rope was admitted to hospital today after suffering the injury in Saturday's game when he was checked Murray Into the boards by Gerry Theberge of the Dutchmen.

Other casualties for the Greyhounds Saturday were rightwinger Ronnie Lay and defenceman Jim Bumbacco. Lay suffered a torn chest muscle and Bumbacco has a badly bruised hand. Both, however are expected to be in the lineup tonight.

ADD IN SECOND PERIOD

All the scoring Saturday came in the second period with the Greyhounds coming both their goals before Kitchener replied. Jim McBurney scored one goal for Sault Ste. Marie and defenceman Orval Art Hurst tallied a goal and an assist. Charlie Brooker scored for the Dutchmen but Don Bauer, who assisted on that goal, was the top performer for Kitchener.

Greyhounds were enjoying the lead when Jim Dutchman when McBurney opened the scoring at 7:06 of the second period. He broke loose from two Kitchener defenders in time to slap in Harry Taylor's rebound.

Less than three minutes later Hurst sped up the right wing, beat one Kitchener player and shot from close in to make it 2-0.

Kitchener scored its goal while

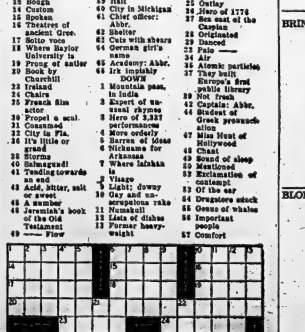
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Avoid anxiety about results; just tackle your day's duties with enthusiastic faith and believe in yourself and your aims. Nothing succeeds like earnest striving.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Aspects opportune for either new undertakings or the completion of matters already started. Don't pass up any truly good opportunities, sound advice or suggestions. You can learn at any age.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Self-restraint and extra spiritual offerings are not only helpful but strongly urged. You should find things going advantageously, serenely now.

November 23 to December 23 (Sagittarius) — Ideal for the enterprising and innately resourceful, ambitious you, but don't sit back and depend upon laurels already won. There is still much to accomplish.

December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Much the same influences as Sagittarius now. Your industriousness and patience with things that must be done can add greatly to success. Bring closer co-operation from others.



January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — The learned and artistic professions have unusually fine incentive and encouragement now. Skilled mechanics and other workers in less showy fields are also favorede, however. Onward!

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Very prevailing vibrations indications of new achievement today. Be brave, audacious when you know your talents and know-how are valuable. "Nothing ventured," etc.

YOUBORN TODAY are far-seeing, on the highly intelligent side, & brain workers. You seldom are stymied or bluffed by difficult opposition or loudly talkative opponents. But you can be too self-assured at times, so be careful. You have the qualities for leadership, the capability to handle a position of importance, authority. If you cultivate patience and self control there is no limit to the high attainment possible for you. Restrain where good sense demands; pray daily for guidance; seek only the highest type of compenions, and your own ambitious nature will be encouraged to reach top goals. American author.

Little Benny's Note Book

Miss Kitty told the class about prayer being far better than war, no matter who wins, and how it is much better to sine a treety than to fite. Then she said, you all must all do our little best to work for universal peace, because in the world wide problem and it cant be settled by any one person, no matter how important, or even any one country, no matter how big and powerful, but the people of earth, because it has been tried many times to keep ambitious nations from trying to rule the world, and it has always made matters worse. In fact there cant be any but just and practical solution, and I wonder if any of you can say what it is? Well, Charley Ate said.

Meaning Puds Simkins waving his hand, and Puds said, if some country gets too fresh, all the other countries ought to surround it with navies and planes full of atom bombs including hydrogen bombs, and it will soon get wise and force went be necessery.

When I speck of force I mean force over the store of force, Miss Kitty said, and I had an idea and waved saying, Dont mend them anything to eat, and dont let anybody eis them to anything, either. Just be careful not to shoot anybody, and when everybody starts to g e t starvation and sickness, they will ask for peace while they still have the strength, I said.

Oh dear, people everywhere must be educated to see that universal peace is the only salvation of the world, including themselves, and we must teach it to the children in the schools, such as yourselves, and evitently you need it, Miss Kitty said.

Which we probably do.

LABOR WINS TOWN

NEW HARLOW, England (Reuters)—Labor party candidates have won 13 of the 18 seats on the New Harlow urban district council and in the first authority to be elected for any of the "new" towns set up as post-war housing developments the opposing majority of the Conservative party has been overturned.

BUICK ANNOUNCES REVOLUTIONARY NEW FOUR-DOOR HARDTOP

Trim racy lines of a convertible combine with the comfort and roominess of a sedan to feature the first Canadian-built four-door hardtop announced by Buick. Latest example of advanced styling, the new four-door hardtops eliminate the centre pillars between the windows. The distinctive sports car styling of Buick's two-door Riviera with their sculptured full rear windows is also featured on the new four-door model. Buick will offer the four-door hardtop sedans in both Century and Special series.

OSHAWA — A revolutionary four-door "hardtop convertible" in the distinctive Riviera styling pioneered by Buick three years ago was introduced in Canada today by the Buick Division of General Motors of Canada.

The new hardtop eliminates the pillars between the front and rear doors, providing greater visibility for passengers in the rear seat and giving the car the trim, racy lines of a "hardtop-convertible." Yet it has the same interior roominess as a conventional four-door sedan.

Buick spokesmen termed the new model the greatest advance-ment in automotive styling since the introduction of the two-door hardtop which Buick also pioneered, and said the Division anticipates as great a demand for the four-door hardtop as there is for the two-door model.

Buick is the largest producer of hardtops in the world and at the present time is devoting about 60 per cent of its total production to this model.

The four-door Riviera sedan is offered in the 236 horsepower Century and 196 horsepower Special series only. The new four-door hardtop is mounted on the Century chassis and has the same overall length as a four-door sedan.

The distinctive sports car styling of Buick's two-door Riviera with their sloping bell-shaped full rear window treatment is also featured on the new four-door model.

Elimination of the centre posts was made possible by reinforcing the pillar that extends from the floor to the beltline to give the body proper rigidity, and also to provide a sufficiently heavy support from which to swing the rear doors.

Luxurious new interior trims in nylon and "goodyear" weatherstrip chrome roof bows across the top have been designed especially for the new hardtop models.

The Honorable Art of Agriculture Outlined at Threshermen's Banquet

By MRS. PERCY MacMULLEN

STIRLING — The 29th annual banquet of the Eastern Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen and Power Farmers was held on Friday at Tobe's County Gardens, Belleville.

President Robert McAdam, Petrborough, presided over activities in business and secretary-treasurer Goldie H. McInroy, gave a full financial report.

The address of the afternoon was given by Mr. Syrall Harris, of Chatham, president Ontario Threshermen's Mutual Fire Insurance Co. He gave a brief history of the work of his department and handed out interesting information to the farmers.

The 1955 officers elected were as follows and these terms will arrange their committees this autumn: President, Robert Mc-Oliver, Colebourne, R.R. 3; first vice-president, James Reynolds, Foxboro; second vice-president, Joseph O. Oliver, Cobourg, R.R. 5; secretary-treasurer, F. R. Morman, Cobourg R.R. 5; Oscar Mcintyre, Stirling, R.R. 4; Ross Hallowray; Theodore Cooney, Harold R.R. 2.

Tobe's Garden was decorated in a color scheme of blue and white with vases of flowers, by Williams and Howes of Canton, Ontario.

The banquet tables were nicely arranged with snowy linen cloths and had centre pieces with flowers at each plate, and a folder of Pioneer County, the Garden of Canada, put out by the Tourist Association will convene next fall.

Lovely rose place cards were used for those who were seated at the two head tables and this included wives of officers and the speakers. The program, Bouquets of yellow daffodils and other spring flowers made a pretty central decoration.

Foxboro WA catered for the banquet and served delightful food for their cuisine. Over 350 people enjoyed the repast and guests were from all adjacent areas and various points in this area and from far away as Chatham, Ont.

Grace was sung with Mrs. Arthur Fryar at the piano, followed by a toast to the Queen and the National Anthem.

Mr. Robert McAdam, former president of Peterborough, was master of ceremonies for the program and Mr. Harold Myers introduced the guests at the head table which included Mr. and Mrs. Rocco Rolsons and Mr. Eric Sandercock. Mr. Russell Fryar conducted the assembly, singing and entertained in comedy style with songs and stories, with his brother as accompanist.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave two elocution numbers.

Brief addresses were given by Warden Murney Parks, Prince Edward County and Warden James Sprackett, Hastings County. Miss Margaret Slavin, magician, entertained with her clever sleight of hand tricks.

Mr. Lee Gerlin introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Ralph Bamberry, agricultural representative of Northumberland and Durham counties. Mr. Bamberry was born in Oxford County and is a graduate of O.A.C., Guelph. He chose as his subject "The Honorable Art of Agriculture." Mr. Bamberry graphically pictured the big part that machinery today plays in agriculture and then pointed out that in the days when people all down through the ages, have always been well-fed. He felt that the acquisition of airplanes for other food products, is just as essential as acquisition of airplanes for defence security.

The great secret of success agriculture is that things can be done better if farmers try hard enough, and he gave a Bible picture of agriculture from the Garden of Eden to present days, with the trend the gather-ing of the grain down to the first threshing machine and the big improvements in recent years, and today the combine is taking precedence.

History tells us that Britain was the granary of the world and the owners of the best beef cattle in the days before Christ, and he closed his address with that thought, that "The husbandman who said: "The wheat in the ground is by share and the rest will be by and by."

The new president, Mr. Howard S. Oliver, voiced the thanks of Mr. Banbury for his informative address, spiced with humor and good common sense.

Mr. Charles Mills, Omemee, was in charge of the banquet and was assisted by several of the head table guests.

The first game of $75 went to Ross Tweedy, Ivanhoe; second prize, $25, to Charles Peterborough, Frankford, R.R. 2; third prize, $25, to Gerald Herrington, Frankford.

Door prizes: carton of ham, Mrs. Wirkens, Frankford; five gallons of oil, Lindsay Sills, West Huntingdon, and consolation gifts to Miss Robert Merrick, Stirling; Mrs. Carl Thompson, West Huntingdon; Milton Dunlop, Peterborough and Charles Davidson, Stirling.

Mrs. Roy Sills voiced special thanks to all the entertainers, and to the speaker, also a thank-you to Trinidad Automobile, Canada Packers, Truck and Farm Supply, Williams and Howes and Malcolm Co-op.

This also eulogized Mr. Goldie F. McInroy, retiring secretary-treasurer, who has done so much for organization and had assisted greatly in arranging this function.

After the program closed Arcticers' orchestra of Campbellford, furnished excellent music for round and square dancing and the large gathering had a real

B.D.S.A. Sets Entry Deadline For April 4th

The weather played a prominent part in the meeting of the Belleville and District Softball Association for the second straight week yesterday afternoon when not a single delegate was returned up at the meeting. But snow drifts kept the out-of-town teams away while enthusiasm in the city was boosted under wintry winds and a foot of snow.

Only part of the executive and a few other interested parties showed up and the meeting was called after the date of the next meeting and a deadline for entries was set.

President Cy Bazinge felt that anyone wishing to participate has had plenty of time to make plans since four meetings have been held already and the deadline was named as Monday, April 4th. At least four teams are expected to post their entries by that time and if necessary the league will operate with just three teams although there is also a probability that the deadline will be extended. The next meeting has been called for Sunday, April 3rd at the Moira Street fireball beginning at 2.00 p.m., a large turnout is hoped for and expected if the weather is favorable.

Grid Classic To Be Telecast

VANCOUVER (CP) — Television viewers in eastern Canada will be able to see a live telecast of the Grey Cup game here Nov. 26 if the CBC can secure time on a United States network, learned Dan Conrad Slaney of the Vancouver Athletic Association.

With no country-wide TV facilities of its own, the CBC has applied for time on the night, leaving their Ontario Hockey Association senior B best-of-seven group finals tied 3-3 with one game to play.

The teams will play off in a home and away two-game total goals series.

Buddy Evans tallied twice for Athletics. Doug French and Ford got the other Woodstock goals.

Training Camp Notes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

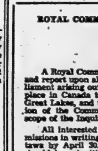
For the first few weeks of baseball's spring training season, it's the pitchers who hold the upper hand while the hitters gradually work themselves into shape. Now, with the major league teams winding up their fourth week of workouts, the hitters have started to find the range.

This was borne out Sunday when such formidable swingers as Larry Doby, Jim Rivera, Jackie Robinson, Willie Mays, Dusty Rhodes, Bob Cerv, Yogi Berra and Stan Musial unleashed a barrage of base hits that reverberated around the baseball and cactus exhibition circuits.

Doby smashed three home runs—one with the bases loaded—and drove in four runs as the Cleveland Indians overwhelmed San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League 14-6.

Two clutch hits by Rivera helped the Chicago White Sox edge the Brooklyn Dodgers 4-3 in 11 innings.

The Dodgers had a star of their own in Robinson, who collected four singles. He also scored two of Brooklyn's runs, one coming on a steal of home.



Mays continued to feast on Chicago Cubs' pitching. After batting a pair of home runs against Chicago Saturday, he again honoured in the form Sunday, Leading 8-4 triumph over Chicago Sunday, Teammate Willie McCovey also contributed batting rampage to lead the Giants' "B" squad to a 13-8 conquest over Cleveland's "B" squad. He belted out four hits—including a double and a triple—as he drove in five runs.

In a doubleheader, the New York Yankees swept past the Cincinnati Reds 7-4 in the opener and the teams split in a 2-2 nightcap in the seven-inning nightcap, Cerv's bases loaded home run in the eighth inning gave Bob Turley the victory. Berra chipped in with four hits. Musial slammed his first home baggie of the spring for the Cards.

3,000 Sufferers from Thyroid Disease Helped by B.C. Doctor

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Surgical operations by John Edward Piercy have helped more than 3,000 sufferers from thyroid disease.

And the success and administrative skill of the 55-year-old surgeon from British Columbia—perhaps Britain's top thyroid specialist—have affected many thousands more.

The tall Canadian from Victoria is surgeon - specialist - superintendent of New End Hospital, a 155-year-old converted workhouse in northwest London and director of its new £50,000 clinic, the world's leading centre for study and treatment of thyroid disorders. In the past 20 years his research and administrative skill have helped more than 3,000 sufferers from thyroid disease. Piercy went to Britain 26 years ago after study at the University of Alberta. CROPS WIPED OUT

The hard freeze virtually wiped out the peach crop in eight states, Texas, Georgia, the Carolinas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama and Virginia. It left Illinois with but a fifth of early south apple crop. Potatoes, strawberries, tung nuts and vegetables were among the ruined or badly damaged crops in Dixie.

Both the winds and the cold wreaked today. Temperatures were five to 12 degrees higher from the Ohio valley to the Gulf coast. A moderating wind was still blowing from the west, in the north Atlantic states and eastern Great Lakes area.

The count of storm-caused fatalities included: Indiana 19, Illinois 4; Michigan 4; New York 2, Florida 2, Ohio 2, Missouri 1, Alabama 1, Tennessee 1 and Virginia 1.

earlier this year.

The family last returned to Canada four years ago, when Piercy visited his mother, Mrs. R. H. Piercy, Victoria, and Mrs. Piercy and their children, Mrs. James Ryan, Calgary.

There has been no shortage of Canadian company at New End. Piercy's chief assistantsthere is John Ord, Toronto, and Dorothy Lesage, who has been with the thyroid unit about 18 years, and Vancouver-born Averett Chisholm has been his secretary for 19 years.

Storm Leaves 36 Dead In Its Vast Wake

CHICAGO (AP)—A killing storm, the worst deadly tornado in prolonged winter a week beyond its calendar-scheduled departure, moved back toward Canada today leaving 36 dead in its vast swath.

Crop destruction was estimated in excess of $20,000,000.

A fresh blanket of snow lay over much of northeastern United States and freezing temperatures reached as far south as the northern portions of the Gulf states.

The greatest disaster was in southern and south central United States, where a spell of spring had brought out the fruit blossoms before the storm swooped in from the southwest.

CROPS WIPED OUT

The hard freeze virtually wiped out the peach crop in eight states, Texas, Georgia, the Carolinas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama and Virginia. It left Illinois with but a fifth of early south apple crop. Potatoes, strawberries, tung nuts and vegetables were among the ruined or badly damaged crops in Dixie.

Both the winds and the cold wreaked today. Temperatures were five to 12 degrees higher from the Ohio valley to the Gulf coast. A moderating wind was still blowing from the west, in the north Atlantic states and eastern Great Lakes area.

The count of storm-caused fatalities included: Indiana 19, Illinois 4; Michigan 4; New York 2, Florida 2, Ohio 2, Missouri 1, Alabama 1, Tennessee 1 and Virginia 1.

Koreans Display Tremendous Urge, Drive for Learning

By MURRAY THOMSON

SEOUL (AP)—The below-freezing winds bit into the hands of the 15-year-old Korean schoolboy as he approached the home of his American friend.

He straightened his starched white collar and his black school uniform, knocked on the door and bowed low.

"Could you please explain," he asked, "the comparative influences of imperialism and neutralism in Asia?"

URGE TO LEARN

It was a typical example of what a noted American teacher has termed the "tremendous urge and drive for learning" of Koreans.

It also pointed up the shortcomings of the Korean school system, which has been shattered by war and bears the heavy imprint of many years of domination from Japan and Asia.

A 12-member group headed by Dr. Harold Benjamin of the Peabody Graduate School of Education, Nashville, Tenn., seeks not only to get Korean schools on their feet but to give the country an individualistic education system.

JOINT PROJECT

The project is sponsored jointly by the American Korean Foundation, the United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency and the Unitarian Service Committee.

Benjamin and his colleagues have been impressed by the superimposition of foreign customs on Korean education.

School children still wear the high tunics and standard uniform common in Japan. The youngsters have their heads clipped the school year, another Japanese tradition. Most instructors are in Japanese. For senior students this poses no problem. But for the younger, who neither speak Korean and Japanese, it has created a mental block.

The 40 years of Japanese domination before 1945 have left powerful influences.

The classrooms still smack of authoritarian teacher direction, common Japan and pre-war China, in which the instructor is the focal point of learning. Student participation or discussion is almost unknown. Many students get this by gathering in Korean tea rooms to mull over problems.

Although nearly all college students work fiecly way, heavy classroom and homework loads leave little time for outside jobs.

To earn money 70 percent of the college students sell blood every six weeks for $3 a pint to the Korean blood bank.

A major objective of the Benjamin associates is a freer classroom atmosphere. By the time its 10-month project is completed in June, the group hopes to have started a three-point program including:

1. Stimulation of interest in basic education research.

2. Advice to the ROK government on texts and establishment of a curriculum designed for Koreans who will live in Korea.

3. A working program of "in practice" teaching and adult education in provincial areas.

Benjamin says "systems which work in one country do not necessarily work in another."

"Swiss schools look very French and German on the exterior, but inside they have a very Swiss workshop character. This is the idea the Koreans should try to follow."

20 Inches of New Snow Falls On Upper N.Y. State

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A spring storm, paralyzed much of New York state today with a wallop worse than any the winter had thrown.

Windblown snow forced the closing of 100 miles of the state thruway Sunday night. Cousins marooned all travellers heading north into Canada at Champlain and Rouses Point. Highway travel in parts of northern, central and western New York dwindled to a trickle.

Hundreds of motorists were stranded. Snow plows cleared passages through the drifts only to see them blown over again.

The drifts were as high as 12 feet. Up to 20 inches of new snow fell.

HUNDREDS STRANDED

On the Canadian border, Champlain threw open its town hall, the gymnasium of the village school and many private homes to accommodate an estimated 300 travelers. Another 200 were put up in Rouse Point. About 30 automobiles were stalled for several hours in five miles south of Malone and 400 more were reported marooned in the Rochester area.

The storm, which swept in off the Great Lakes, dumped 20 inches of snow at Boonville in northern Oneida county. Old Forge had 18 inches. It spread from Buffalo and Little Valley in the west to parts of Schenectady county on the east and north through the Adirondacks.

The capital district was almost isolated. Cold winds chilled the New York City area and the lower Hudson valley.

Legion Branches Request More Allowances

BRANTFORD (CP) — Further increases in war veterans' allowances were urged Sunday by representatives of 69 Canadian Legion branches taking part in the Ontario district 13 convention here.

The Legionaires also asked for allowances for Canadian veterans who served in England in the First World War and are not eligible for allowances at present.

Preference for veterans was urged in the case of casual labor appointments in all branches of the civil service.

Chairman of the convention was Reg Cleaver of St. Catharines, who was re-elected district commander.

Vast Expansion Of North America Defence Planned

More Airfields, Fighter Planes, Radar Envisaged

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian and American planners now are considering a vast expansion in Canada of North America's defence network.

The expansion would entail more airfields, more fighter planes and more radar to control the interceptor operations of the fighters.

Besides the matter of how much expansion would be paid for, the problem arises: Who would supply the manpower—or permit such a defence establishment—Canada or the United States?

A high government source says the federal administration before long must make a decision on whether it wants to pay for Canadian sovereignty—that is, whether it is willing to pay the complete costs of home defence, and consequently the profits of the CNR, the TCA and the publicly-owned Canadian National Steamships. The Commons meets today.

CNR DECISION

Transport Minister Marler, winding up the debate, said the CNR has made its decision on the arrangement with the Hilton firm.

He said he knows opposition members on the committee will be convinced, as he is, that the agreement is a good one for the CNR and the Canadian people.

"But here is a definite assurance that the CNR - Hilton contract, which he already had refused to produce for the Commons, would be made public before the committee.

Bessette Bullet in Jaw In Shooting

ESSEX, Ont. (CP)—A 28-year-old Essex man was hospitalized with a bullet in his jaw after a shooting affray here Monday night.

Russell Seigrist was to undergo x-rays later today to determine the full extent of his injury.

Ontario Provincial Police continued their investigation for details of how the shooting occured remained vague.

The bullet entered Seigrist's jaw near the right corner of his mouth.

Hospital authorities said this morning that Seigrist was in considerable pain but his condition generally was good.

FLIES INTO RAGE

The incident occured shortly after Seigrist, who works in Sarnia, returned home about 10 o'clock Monday night.

Mrs. Seigrist, her mother and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Fyah, who live next door, were visiting at Mrs. Bessette's when Seigrist home.

Police were told Seigrist "flew into a rage" and knocked things about." He then left the house. Mr. and Mrs. Fyah also departed.

Seigrist returned home a second time. Again there was disturbance. Mrs. Seigrist ran next door and appealed to Mr. Fyah to come to her house and protect her, police said.

Fyah, according to police, came to the Seigrist home carrying a .22 calibre revolver with him and Seigrist met him at the door.

It was then that the shooting occurred.

Sentence Suspended

WINNIPEG (CP)—Anthony MacGillivray, 20, of Cornwall, Ont., Monday was given a three-year suspended sentence in provincial police court after he pleaded guilty to a charge of wilfully damaging cell equipment while imprisoned in Headingley provincial jail. He had completed a six-month term for vagrancy today and was released on his own recognizance.

Magistrate D. G. Potter said the youth would get a train ticket and money to go home. He also fined $70 by regular instalments for a damaged wash basin and toilet bowl.

The youth said he had suffered from nerves in jail and was refused sedatives.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO and (CP) — Synoptic Ontario: Overnight temperatures fell below zero in northern Ontario as winds were light and skies generally clear. Around the lower Great Lakes temperatures were in the mid-teens. The area of high pressure responsible for this fine weather is moving very slowly eastward and is expected to cause little or weather today and Wednesday.

MEMBERS CHARGE HOTEL SECRECY NOT WARRANTED

CNR Agreement With Hilton Corp. Under Fire

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition charges of unwarranted secrecy—and of injury to national pride—have been levied against plan for management by a United States firm of the CNR's new $20,000,000 hotel in Montreal, the Queen Elizabeth.

William Hamilton (PC — Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace) said in the Commons Monday the hotel scheduled to be called the Hilton Queen Elizabeth under the 15-year management arrangement between the CNR and the Hilton Corporation of the U.S.

M. W. Dunn (CCF—Kootenay West) said the arrangement is a blow to Canadian pride. John Diefenbaker (PC — Prince Albert) charged a "veil of secrecy" has been drawn around the agreement.

The opposition criticism developed on a motion, adopted after Transport Minister Marler set up the Commons committee that annually examines operations of the CNR, the TCA and the publicly-owned Canadian National Steamships. The committee meets today.

Check-Off Bill Meets Defeat

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature Monday night voted down a bill which would have made it compulsory for employers to collect union dues if the union requested it.

The bill was introduced earlier in the session by T. D. Thomas (L—Oxford).

Premier Frost said it was better to leave that field of labor relations to be settled by agreement in individual cases. He agreed that the bill was in the nature of the check-off. However, some employers objected to the check-off.

W. J. Grummett (CCF—Cochrane South) said the bill would reduce labor disputes. Fred Shoemaker (L—Toronto St. Andrew) also favored the bill.

CRAB BOATS SEIZED

NEMURO, Japan (AP) — The Japan coast guard today said Russian planes and warships have seized seven crab boats Monday off Hokkaido, Japan's northernmost island. The coast guard said the crab ship was released after an inspection. It said the crab boats were fishing 14 to 15 miles off the coast in international waters.

Turkey Farmer Forbidden to Ship His Grain from Saskatchewan to B. C.

By WALTER GRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — A British Columbia turkey farmer testified Monday it would cost him $465 extra to ship 2,000 bushels of his own grain from Saskatchewan to feed his turkeys than it would cost to ship the same amount of wheat board in turn informed the farmer he could not first sell the grain to the board, then re-purchase it after paying handling charges.

C. E. Finkelstein, legal counsel, told the board of transport commissioners the regulations are "unconstitutional."

He says some provisions are unconstitutional in that they give the board "absolute control" over the movement of grain within a province.

Counsel declared that under the statutes a monopoly is created in the designated area — Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta and the Peace River district of B.C.—and that this monopoly is illegal.

He said the Wheat Board Act is contrary to Section 121 of the British North America Act which provides that the produce of one province may be transported free

After Man's Dynamite Fails, Nature Attacks Niagara Ice

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP)—Nature took over today where man's best efforts had failed as the Niagara river's mighty ice jam was left to the elements.

And there was a good chance that the elements would respond quickly to the challenge.

The warmer outlook was favorable for the first time since the jam began a week ago with ice from Lake Erie piling mountains over the falls. Sunny skies and rising temperatures were forecast.

In addition, several expanses of open water were reported in the Buffalo area from the lower Black area between the falls and Lake Ontario. A couple of holes were cut in the final six miles, where 40- and 50-foot mountains of ice have done their greatest damage.

Demolition experts touched off 825 pounds of dynamite Monday in the face of the jam at the river's mouth. Two floes of slush ice broke away, but the main jam refused to budge. United States Army engineers, who had agreed to the dynamite attack only with misgivings, gave it up as a hopeless job.

Water Analysis May Provide Clue In Man's Death

COOKSVILLE (CP) — Toronto township police said today results of an analysis of stomach contents may be found partly-covered with shaving cream in an egg-shattered trailer.

An autopsy failed to reveal cause of death. Mrs. Dorothy Becker, 34, of Madeley, 41, owner of the trailer who was found in a stupor near the body, Monday. Police suspect the water from a little-used tank nearby may provide the clue.

Police questioned all known friends of the two men and submitted articles from the trailer to test at the Ontario Provincial Police laboratory.

The body, today was taken to North Bay for burial.

APPROVE HOUSING PLAN

TORONTO (CP) — City council Monday approved a plan for a $2,000,000 housing and redevelopment project in the midtown Regent Park area. Provincial approval of the low-rental scheme will be $1,820,-837. Other costs will be paid by the federal and provincial governments.

Isolated Village in Quebec Reports Food Grows Scarce

MONTREAL (CP) — A Quebec Central Railways train, snowbound since Sunday near St. Lambert de Levis, Que., resumed its schedule Monday night with a cheer from the 150 passengers who stuck it out in it.

The train, which reached Sherbrooke early today after dropping most of the passengers at Valley Junction, 20 miles southwest of Quebec City, was a victim of the heaviest spring blizzard that churned through Quebec province during the weekend, claiming seven lives and playing havoc with transportation.

Not so fortunate as the train passengers were the 1,500 residents of the Gaspe Peninsula village of Ste. Croix, 30 miles southeast of Quebec City. They have been snowbound for a week and Monday night a village doctor described their plight as "pretty serious."

However, Mayor Paul Biron said that with some luck help should reach the village by road within 24 hours. He feels provisions on hand are sufficient to keep villagers going until help comes.

Generally, the province appears to have escaped from the storm which whipped March lion that roared in Saturday and Sunday. Highways and rail lines with 20-foot snow drifts. All available men and snow removal equipment is out in full force and transportation is returning to normal.

Victims of the blizzard included an acrobatic train from Mobile, Ala., and their 5-year-old daughter who were asphyxiated in their snow-covered car early Monday after the vehicle got stuck in drifts near St. Etienne de Lauzon, across the St. Lawrence river from Quebec City.

They are John Robert Wallace, 36, his wife, Edna, 32, and daughter, Gail. Billed as "Wallace and Gail," the acrobats were en route from Sudbury, Ont., to Quebec for an engagement.

The Quebec Central train was freed from roof-high snow drifts by two plow-equipped trains and dozens of shovel-toting villagers. It proceeded slowly towards Scott Junction, 30 miles south of St. Lambert.

The passengers were reported happy and played cards and sang while waiting for the track to be cleared.

Snowmobiles scuttled between St. Lambert and the train, bringing food to the passengers and carrying some 50 men with shovels to the scene.

At Ste. Croix, which is not served by the Quebec Central railroad, 15-foot drifts clogged roads and isolated the village. The town's own power equipment isn't capable of clearing the drifts.

Dr. Richard Couture, one of the village's two doctors, said Monday night Ste. Croix "must have help soon."

"There is practically nothing left in the grocery stores now. It's a real meat left at all; the heating situation is grave."

The farmer was reported to have suffered a stroke a week ago, when the first of the heavy storms struck, and the only help he has had since has been telephoned medical instructions to his wife.

Another man was reported suffering from appendicitis and a third from a broken arm, both requiring hospitalization.

EISENHOWER DOES NOT THINK REDS WILL ATTACK

Doubts Earlier Report April 15 Matsu D-Day

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower does not believe Red China is prepared to cause any major conflict in the Formosa straits in the weeks just ahead.

The president does not share the view that a Red Chinese attack might be made on the Nationalist-held islands of Quemoy and Matsu by April 15. He has rejected this estimate of the situation by some military sources, reported from Washington during the weekend.

Information reaching the White House indicates that Red China lacks air bases and supplies to back up an amphibious assault on the islands just off the Chinese mainland.

These views were outlined by an authoritative administration source in a discussion of key current issues in the foreign relations field.

As for the possibility of a Big Four conference, the source said the administration sees all signs as pointing to a meeting of some type.

Here are some questions on the key issues, with answers from the authoritative source:

Q. What are the odds on a Big Four conference?

A. All the signs point toward one being held in the near future. What form it may take is another question still unsettled.

Q. After Tehran, Potsdam and Yalta, does the Eisenhower administration see any possibility for another top-level conference?

A. Yes — in the sense that this means finding out first some evidences of good faith. The Moscow statement of the Austrian treaty gained evidenced some difference in tone. If the foreign ministers in a preliminary meeting could clear the ground, that would help.

Q. Do you think we have a war in 25 years? It's reported that on about that date the military expect an attack on the Matsu islands.

A. That prediction doesn't reflect the views of the Eisenhower administration. Nobody can say what the Reds will do, or will not do. But our information is that they don't have the bases and supplies. There's no evidence of a deliberate buildup at this time.

Q. What is the possibility of a general war starting in the Formosa straits?

A. That is a question for President Eisenhower. He makes the decisions on such momentous matters, on what constitutes an attack on us.

Q. And if the Red Chinese attack Matsu or Quemoy?

A. That's the U.S. action probably will come before the Chinese Reds have landed—not yet. The answer on Matsu and Quemoy depends largely on whether we feel the attack is directed at Formosa.

Q. What are your diplomatic representatives in the Pacific report?

A. They don't believe Red China wants to go into the Asia-African conference with a war going on in April while attacking the U.S. in the Formosa area.

Dior Look Gets Nowhere in Awards Preparations for Show Wednesday

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Movieland's biggest fashion show beams coast to coast Wednesday night with Hollywood's version of the new look apparently boycotting the Dior influence.

Designer Edith Head, costume consultant for the annually Academy awards, said: "It's anyone's wearing the Dior look I personally don't like it."

Miss Head, up for her sixth Oscar, is a one-woman clearing house for the Academy awards to sure that no two movie stars show up in the same gown.

Miss Head scoffed at an impli-cation by Jean Harlow's fictional scorn of the swoon brought on the anti-Dior policy.

"Actually," she commented, "Dior's straight-cross neckline would look best on a figure like Jean's, and the only help he has had since has been telephoned medical instructions to his wife.

Another man was reported suffering from appendicitis and a third from a broken arm, both requiring hospitalization.

Because of television, most gowns will be of photographic quality, not to be viewed by live viewers. A notable exception: Judy Garland in a black velvet maternity gown, with white piqué collar.

Miss Garland goes into a huddle that may determine the type of caesarean birth of her third child.

Dorothy Dandridge will appear from the waist up in a flowing gown of beige wool. Of the five leading actress nominees, Miss Dandridge and Miss Garland are the only two whose gowns were designed by Miss Head.

The Head entries are Grace Kelly in an ice-blue duchess satin with evening coat to match; Audrey Hepburn in a green silk frim from London, will wear a short, black duchess satin dinner skirt and black shirt; Jane Wyman, solidly embroidered mother-of-pearl sequins in a dance with slim bodice and bell skirt.

The biggest fashion note of the night is Bing Crosby. The casual crooner, noted for his devotion to outlandish sports shirts, actually ordered a set of tails for the occasion.

Southern Viet Nam Warlords Blockade Nation's Capital

Seek to Overthrow Premier By Cutting Off Saigon's Food

SAIGON (Reuters) — South Viet Nam's warlords today began a blockade of this city of 1,500,000 people and called on Premier Ngo Dinh Diem to resign.

The warlords, who buried their differences three weeks ago and launched a revolution last week presented an ultimatum to the Moscow-backed Diem government here, announced they were ready to help form a new cabinet themselves.

They said earlier that they had cabled to Bao Dai, South Viet Nam head of state now on the French Riviera, asking for his intervention. All eight ministers representing the Cao Dai, Hoa Hao and Binh Xuyen private armies in Diem's cabinet have resigned, they pointed out.

Meanwhile government troops reinforced their defences at rebel headquarters in the tense capital and machine-guns were set up at all strategic points.

CONVOYS DELAYED

Food convoys due to arrive in the city from the west and south this morning had not arrived by noon. The warlords had warned that they would attack by road Monday to get in stocks of food and water.

While the forces in the dispute talked behind the scenes, 12,000 government troops and 8,000 men of the private armies faced each other in the city.

A five-day ultimatum by the warlords to Diem, demanding sweeping government reforms, expired Saturday. Diem later made a counter-offer to replace his personal friends in the cabinet with private army and other nationalist representatives.

Today Diem massed mobile combat troops with armored cars in the city ready to break through the blockade if necessary.

Major Atomic Device's Flash Seen 360 Miles

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The awesome might of the United States nuclear arsenal was demonstrated at the Nevada proving ground test with the explosion of a major atomic device at 7:45 a.m. EST.

The great flash of the explosion was seen clearly in Las Vegas, 65 miles from the test site, and more dimly at Los Angeles, some 250 miles away, in Las Vegas the brilliance lighted up the sky as well that observers could see the vague today of planes taking part in manoeuvres.

The flash also was seen in San Francisco.

Observers on Angel's Peak, 35 miles from the blast, said the fireball lasted about 20 seconds. Five minutes after the flash there was a faint but heavy rush of concussion wave. The power of the blast was fully 10 times greater than exploded seven minutes after the flash and one observer classed it as a "middle sized" shot.

The cloud that went up from the detonation, set off from a 500-foot tower, was flat across the top, unlike the usual towering clouds seen in the past. It also appeared that there was an icecap atop it.

The Atomic Energy Commission had scheduled today's shot originally for last March 14 but unfavorable weather caused postponement of the major detonation, although smaller have been carried out.

At Cedar City, Utah, 170 miles northeast of the test site, residents reported that the shock today was the greatest they had felt from an atomic detonation, in that city the air vibrated.

The flash also was seen in Salt Lake City, Utah, 360 miles northeast of the Nevada proving grounds.

Questions Wisdom Of Storm Sewers In Parkwood

The wisdom of city council's plan to service the Parkwood Heights area with storm sewers at an estimated cost of over $300,000 is being questioned by J. T. Ransom, Ontario land surveyor of the city.

Addressing council at their regular meeting Monday evening, Mr. Ransom said he was very concerned at the city's intention of going ahead at this time with the storm sewer project in this section of the city.

There is no emergency, the spring run-off is now over with every little dampness and other parts of the city are in more need of assistance, he said.

He claimed, however, it was necessary to open the free natural flow for water stopped up in the low section of Parkwood Heights.

Before the storm sewer project was started in this area, he suggested that an engineer be authorized to study the capacity of storm sewers now in this particular section of the city.

Mr. Ransom asked if council during its deliberations regarding the sale of 1 ½ ft. wide strip to Parkwood Heights area had contemplated that an expenditure of from $300,000 to $320,000 would be necessary to serve them. He also asked if it was wise to spend this amount of money for storm sewers to serve land worth from five to ten "cents and dollars," he said.

It has been suggested that persons buying these lots were promised storm sewers, but who promised the sewers?" he asked. He noted that he had seen nothing in the press to indicate that sewers had been mentioned during city council discussion regarding the sale of the lots.

Dollar Problem Keeping Company Out of Canada

The dollar bill still is a millstone around the neck of an overseas film producer wishing to use Canada for location for shooting films, according to Frank H. Fisher, vice-president and managing director of Odeon Theatres (Canada Limited).

Speaking to the weekly meeting of Belleville Rotary at the Hotel Quinte yesterday, said Mr. Fisher: "I regret to say due to the exchequer control and the shortage of dollars we (the Rank film organization) have not made a bigger film with the background of Canada."

Biggest film to date shot by the Rank organization was last year's "The Kidnappers", which had a Maritime background.

"We feel that as soon as the dollar position is solved our company will come to Canada and make pictures," he said.

Mr. Fisher told of the formation of a Canadian film company in Toronto and said "probably though that it will be possible for J. Arthur Rank and other companies to come to Canada to lend their know-how and stars."

"It is a pity we have no film production in Canada," Mr. Fisher commented afterwards.

PLENTY OF TALENT

"There is plenty of talent and lots of talent and loads of scenery".

Text of Mr. Fisher's address was "Movies — A Way of Life."

He noted the growth of the film industry since its inception in the early days of the 19th century and said that in the brief span of just over 50 years it has become without doubt one of the leading industries in the world."

"What is shown in movies becomes commonplace in life tomorrow," he said, recounting the various instances in which commercial enterprises had capitalized on movie ideas to introduce modes and fashions in the business market.

"Movies impress ideas to us, grave responsibility" to see their product will do good and not harm the people who see it," he said.

The various new innovations in movie screens today are vastly the forerunner "of what we hope one day will be real Three-Dimension. . . . But what has yet to day with glasses."

"TV undoubtedly speeded up the transition of movies from the small screen," he said.

NOT GOOD MINES

He discredited any popular opinion that movie theatres "are going out of business" and that 50 cent of Canada's population go to the movies each and over the year fill about one-half of the potential seating capacity of the houses.

"Going to a threatre

"Going to a theatre for enjoyment means viewing a new film under perfect conditions without distractions," he said.

"In short it is a good night out for you and your wife.

"You can count on the movies. They will be bigger and better than ever," he concluded.

Division of Board Costs Left to Representatives Of Municipalities Involved

A meeting of the elected representatives from the municipalities of Belleville and Sidney and Thurlow township who are members of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board will be called to discuss the division of board costs and also the zoning of fringe areas around the city.

This was the decision of city council Monday evening following its ratification of a planning and housing committee recommendation providing further payments to the suburban planning board because of what the committee felt was an unfair division of costs between the municipalities.

Under a previous agreement the city was expected to pay 85 per cent of the costs of the suburban planning board. Thurlow was to pay 23 per cent and Sidney ten per cent. The provision was made in the budget this year to pay payday $14,000, of which was the city's share of the $24,000 board budget for 1955 and following a further request was received from the board for payment of the city's share of costs for the city's planning and housing committee which recommended no payment be made.

However, the committee in its recommendation pointed out that in sympathy with proper suburban planning board.

Mayor J. Both tabled the recommendation limiting attendance at the proposed meeting to elected representatives of the suburban planning board, explaining only these men represented the people "who pay the bills". Requested that residents in the South Front Street area and the Belleville waterfront be invited in zoning in that area was referred back to the committee for further consideration.

HAD NO POWER CLAIM

The committee had recommended the city council should ask with by the board of adjustment when such body was set up. But Alderman Art Keegan pointed out that such body had no power to act in such a matter.

The request from the South Front Street residents was referred to have the area changed from an industrial to a commercial area. This was necessary, it was felt, to protect the interests of property owners.

Mayor Both noted there had been some talk of industries trying to locate in the South Front Street area, but he discredited this, claiming the area was already too inative and unfounded as there was not sufficient room for a foundry.

Alderman Tice wanted to know what all the discussion was about and asked if the rumors were associated with new steel industry per property. If this was the case he said no foundry was involved but that a number of boat slips were planned.

Request of James Yeates for a change in the zoning at the corner of Pine Street and Dufferin Ave to allow construction of an apartment was also referred back to the committee. The committee had recommended this request be referred to the board of adjustment when this was set up.

A special meeting of council will be called to discuss three matters, which in the mind of Alderman Keegan, are serious problems for the city.

First of the three problems to be dealt with is the traffic problem, which will be caused by the new highway north of the city when the four-lane highway goes into operation. Alderman Keegan is of the opinion that a new access road will be necessary to handle the traffic.

WANTS CHANNEL DEEPENED

Another question to be discussed at the special meeting will be the feasibility of deepening the channel at Telegraph Light to allow larger freighters into the bay and as result lower freight rates into Belleville.

Also to be discussed is the policy for city representatives to follow on the question of planning and the feasibility of annexing boroughs land for industrial purposes.

Council agreed to the special meeting but it halted on the suggestion by Mr. Keegan that Mr. Gordon Chilham, consulting engineer on town planning, be brought to the meeting to advise the city on the matters in which he is respect to annexation.

"What's this Mr. Culham and who's going to pay him?" asked Mayor Both pointing out that annexation was going to cost the city money and stressed that Belleville could not afford to embark on such a crusade.

Alderman Keegan replied Mr. Culham's advice was free and saying would cost $100, which would be "well worth while if we got direction."

NOT WORTH IT SAYS MAYOR

But Mayor Both replied Mr. Chilham had already visited the city and made a brief report on planning and annexation. "His advice was not worth $100 to the city," he said.

"Let's not kid ourselves that annexation is a one-way street," commented Mayor Both. "Municipalities also have something to say in the matter. Let's not get carried away."

Hesteddy Alderman Keegan jumped in the air at the accusation that Mayor Both was opposed to progress. He said the mayor had opposed the incorporation of property for the widening of College street and had also opposed the extension of Pine street and Victoria Ave. "I could go on for hours telling the things you have done," he said.

WANT TO BE ANNEXED

But whether or not the city is ready for annexation a number of property owners in the Sidney and area notified city of Belleville want to come into the city.

A petition from Sidney township residents west of Sidney St. requested that the area bounded by Sidney street, the 2nd concession of Sidney, Eighs street and the Belleville city grounds be taken into the city.

The petition was referred to the planning and housing committee for recommendation.

Motion for Reduced Speed Limit in City Is Defeated

A city traffic committee recommendation calling for a 25 miles per hour speed limit in Belleville fell by the wayside last night at council, when a lengthy discussion defeated the motion on a recorded vote.

Arguments both for and against the motion were heard from different aldermen before Belleville committee chairman Enos David leading off for the opposition.

Admitting that the recommendation for reduced speed limit had come from his committee, Ald. David said, nevertheless, that he was opposed. One of his reasons was that he thought the speed limit in cities and towns should be general throughout the province. Another was that the electric speed timing device to be put into operation in the city would have the effect of reducing speed. Finally he said he did not think the city's traffic record warranted the reduction in the speed limit.

Alderman Frank Grandame was of the same opinion. "We should go forward, not backwards," he said. "If we adopted a 25 miles per hour speed limit here we may as well take down signs naming Belleville as a 30 miles per city."

But Alderman Argue took a different view. He said he supported the recommendation claimed that if keeping up with the times was allowing increased opportunity children then he was opposed. "I would rather have Belleville known as the city safe for children," he said.

GREATER SAFETY CLAIM

He noted that his main object in urging reduced speed was for greater safety and pointed out that in Cleveland and San Diego there were speed zones.

"I can only echo Alderman Argue's statements," said Alderman Ralph Graham, claiming that the council should be interested about the safety of children.

He declared the time had come to control speeding in the residential areas of the city and noted that the limit was 30 miles per hour traffic because of reduced speed would be safer for all.

"The problem is whether we should protect the children or the motorists," he said.

Alderman Safe noted that the police "who should be more familiar with traffic than aldermen" were in favor of the 30 miles per hour speed limit. Rather than press for reduced speed limit council urged stricter enforcement of present laws governing speeding and carelessness.

On a recorded vote Aldermen Argue, Graham, Hyde and Maxwell supported the recommendation calling for a reduced speed limit. Opposed to the motion were Aldermen Clarke, David, Forrester, Grandame, Humphreys, Keegan, Martin, Safe, Smith, Tice and Mayor Both.

Camping is fun for crippled children. On the camp site they play games, swim, have wiener roasts and do most things a healthy child camping out would. The Ontario Society for Crippled Children owns and operates five camps throughout the province.

Ontario Makes Rapid Progress In Cerebral Palsy Treatment

Until recent years, little more was known about cerebral palsy victims in this province than in unfortunate victims were regarded and unnecessarily destroyed. Yet, so swift has ber . progress in the treatment of this affliction that many children today are given a chance to lead more normal lives. Responsible only by palsy or loss of crippling to children, cerebral palsy is a condition in which brain injury before or during birth, causes a failure of muscle control. Primary children although the condition are of normal or above normal intelligence. A few severe abnormalities discovered in children could be treated to considerable extent, to overcome their inability, in effect, training their minds to develop muscle control.

Today a first cerebral palsy training centre was established by the Ontario Society for Crippled children late in 1948. So reasonably were the results at the Woodbine health centre, Toronto, that a mobile cerebral palsy clinic was set up and began touring Ontario a year later. Basis for the progress was realization that the major factor in successful treatment was constant training, after careful diagnosis and prescription of therapy which is selected for the type of palsy.

TREATMENT IS RENOWNED

Financed by the sale of Easter Seals, which is sponsored by more than 200 service clubs which join with the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, the progress made in the treatment of this affliction of cerebral palsied children in Ontario has been recognized on this continent. Where treatment by drugs, or surgery, is required, these are provided by physicians who hold clinics for the children. And more than a score of registered nurses throughout Ontario are maintained by the Society to aid parents in therapy at home.

Mayor Charges Discrimination In Awarding Stone Contracts

A charge that discrimination is being shown by council in the letting of contracts for the supply of crushed rock for use on city streets, was made by Mayor Both Monday evening as Mayor John Both objected to a public works committee recommendation calling for the acceptance of the H. J. McFarland tender for three grades of rock.

The works committee called for the acceptance of the McFarland tender for the supply of ¾-inch, three-quarter inch and two-inch crushed rock at $1.28 per ton and for acceptance of the John Both Ltd. tender for ¾-inch chips at $1.40 per ton.

The mayor contended that the city tender called for 10,000 tons of rock in the broken stone and insisted that the contract could not be broken up.

Tenders received by council indicated McFarland's were prepared to supply the three larger grades of crushed rock at $1.28 per ton and chips at $1.40 per ton. John Both Ltd. quoted $1.40 per ton for all grades of crock.

The mayor contended that the works committee was not authorized in accepting the lower price and asked that the average price for the four grades of rock be considered. He also asked if the McFarland tender could be accepted in view of the pending court action between the city and this firm.

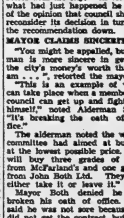
In reply Alderman Ben Safe, as chairman of the works committee, said that the tender had been split in order that the lowest price could be accepted. However, he was not happy about the situation.

LITTLE CHIPS REQUIRED

In reply to Mayor Both regarding his request that the average price of the two tenders be taken into consideration, Alderman Graham said this had no bearing and quoted from Webster's dictionary stating that very little chips would be required this year.

When Both concluded, however, that the various amounts of rock required in each grade were not available at the committee meeting when tenders were called. "If the engineer knew after the tenders were received he should have known before," he said.

"The contract was not let as the tender was called for," he said.



"I seriously resent the implication that anything improper has been done," replied Alderman Graham. "The committee is interested only in buying as cheaply as possible. The engineer advised that less ¾-inch rock was required and we were accepting the lowest tender."

REFUSE TO ATTITUDE

Referring to the attitude taken by the mayor, Alderman Graham said Mayor Both was acting not as an elected, representative legal action with this firm over a previous contract.

Alderman Tice said that in his opinion both John Both Ltd. and McFarland's had a right to tender for the stone. He said if the tenders were accepted it was up to the city engineer to see that the contract was fulfilled.

OPINION DISLIKED

The opinion of the city solicitor was sought on whether the McFarland tender could be accepted. Council was advised that due to the nearness of the court action it might be advisable to lay the stone contract over.

Alderman Graham and Alderman Bruce Smith the matter was referred back to the works committee with the suggestion that new tenders be called with separate prices for the two grades of rock.

At the same time, however, council authorized contracts be given to two other material suppliers for crushed stone. Lowest prices submitted by J. Sobeches and J. C. Clapper for sand and gravel requirements were accepted.

Montreal Man Faces Charge Of Killing Woman

MONTREAL (CP)—Roger Hetu, a 50-year-old bus driver, was arraigned Monday on a charge of murder in the death at a middle-aged widow whose head was bashed in by a shovel.

Police said Hetu apparently forced his way into her house while she was out.

Council Wants PUC to Take Over Sanitary Sewer System

For the second time within a year city council has passed a recommendation calling for the sanitary sewer system to be taken over by the Public Utilities Commission.

Monday night council approved of a motion from Mayor J. Both calling for the city solicitor to prepare the necessary by-law for presentation to the ratepayers at the next election authorizing the Public Utilities to take over the construction and maintenance of the city sanitary sewers, including all debentures. After considerable discussion the motion was approved.

Last year a similar recommendation was passed by council but this recommendation was not put for a vote of the people on the matter.

Alderman Argue noted the move if adopted by the P.U.C. would take a load off the shoulders off the ratepayers and place more on the utilities users. Alderman Moxam said it would save the city money.

Alderman Graham wanted the matter laid over for further consideration as soon as information is obtained, but his amendment was turned down on a recorded vote. Aldermen voting for amendment were Aldermen Forrester, Graham, Keegan and Tye, with opposing votes cast by Aldermen Argue, Clarke, David, Grandame, Hemmphrey, Lott, Mackenzie, Moxam, Safe, Smith and Mayor Both.

When the motion was again put up for vote, Alderman Graham said he must vote against it. Although possibly it was in favor with it."

"I cannot vote on a question of such magnitude without more consideration," he said.

The motion to have the matter to a vote of the people was carried unanimously by council.

MOTION REFERRED BACK

Council referred back a further recommendation by Mayor Both calling for reduction of council to eight members and mayor, instead of the present 14 members, and mayor.

In support of his recommendation the mayor noted that the city of London with a population of more than 100,000 had only eight aldermen. "And they do a good job," he said.

Alderman Moxam did not believe council could be cut at present, noting that eight members would not be able to find the time necessary to look after city business.

Alderman Argue noted a similar recommendation had been before council last year and said he had voted for it on the condition that the reduction in council numbers be tied in with a city manager ship form of government.

Alderman Hyde said the reason he had voted for it last year was as with fewer members each alderman would then have a chalmanship and the work load would be more evenly divided. One of the disadvantages with the present set up, it would be much easier to get a clique going to run the city.

Alderman Lott said the move might mean better efficiency and would be a step in the right direction "if accompanied by city manager ship." Alderman Graham said also felt the trend was in the direction of smaller councils.

Mayor Both said he declared Belleville already had a city manager in the clerk-comptroller. "If council lived up to its procedure by-laws and allowed the clerk to use the power invested to him.

PRIVATE BILL NECESSARY

"We have a good second council now if it would quit the bickering and forget personalities," he said.

Alderman Keegan wanted to know if a private bill would be necessary to reduce the number of council. He was told the private bill would be necessary.

On recommendation of Alderman Humphreys the matter was laid over.

Council concurred in an outside recommendation that the provincial government to assume full education costs, and also endorsed a city of London resolution calling for restoration of construction grants on school rooms other than class rooms.

Mayor Both was given authorization to deal with a Montreal communication dealing with the proposed fire hall in that city during April 18th to 25th. The communication included a "textile week" to be proclaimed during the week. A Montreal store and that merchants be asked to co-operate by displaying Belleville products.

Council approval of a plan to widen Pinnacle, Bridge and Bleecker streets in the recently developed section in the east of the city, was given.

Reports from the Medical Officer of Health, Dr. A. J. Hagerman Metcalfe on the sanitary conditions at several Front Street restaurants and at three tenement buildings were read in council. Council ordered the lights and repaired them in the health department.

Sport Fishermen Grow Careless With the Truth

TORONTO (CP)—Fisheries Minister Sinclair Monday gave the angling fraternity a gentle nudge about their willingness to exhibit a truthful reporting of catches.

Speaking at the formal opening of the new fisheries exhibit at the Royal Ontario Museum, he described sport fishing as the largest single sport in North America.

"We have very accurate statistics on our commercial fishing," the minister said. "But I regret the same cannot be said for our sport fisheries. . . We have found considerable evidence that fishermen grow careless with the truth when reporting the number and size of their catch to their friends or to the government.

"Sport fishermen will be glad to see all the principal species of sport fish in this gallery but will probably be disappointed to see that none of our specimens are as big as the ones which got away from them last summer."

The remarks were contained in text of the speech released to the press in advance of delivery.

Opposition Attempt to Obtain Army Theft Documents Beaten

OTTAWA (CP) — An opposition attempt to pry from the government documents dealing with theft from the stores of an army unit at Vancouver has been beaten in the Commons.

The Liberals defeated by a vote of 129 to 96 Monday's attempt by the Progressive Conservatives, who were backed solidly by the CCF and Social Credit groups.

Davie Fulton (PC — Kamloops) asked the government to produce a copy of the report of the defence department's chief auditor which described alleged irregularities in No. 11 works company, Royal Canadian Engineers, at Vancouver more than two years ago.

MENTIONED IN 1952

The auditor's reports were mentioned in the 1952 report by Montreal accountant George S. Currie, who found an admirable break-down in the army works services at Camp Petawawa, Ont., and Currie report.

faulty accounting at Vancouver.

The RCMP and the army provost corps are also investigating the theft at No. 11 works company. Civilians as well as military personnel are involved.

The large-scale thefts were discovered March 15 by Brig. George Kitching, commander of the army's British Columbia area. He said they dated back to 1945.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

Three days later in the Commons Defence Minister Ralph Campney said the thefts were uncovered through the department's internal system recommended in the Currie report.

Before Monday's vote, Mr. Campney said the auditor's report was a confidential document prepared for the minister of the defence department and it therefore could not be made public.

Mr. Fulton argued the report already had been referred to in the house.

"Y" Basketball House League Teams Honored

Close to 40 members of the Belleville YMCA basketball house league teams turned out at the "Y" last night, some to receive awards and plaudits for their prowess in the gym, all of them congratulations for their interest and conduct in the organization's important activity for youth.

Of different ages they all of them were linked together in the spirit of sportsmanship, which the "Y" fosters among the youth of the city.

The young members were forcibly reminded of this when veterans Pat Man, Newt Thompson, at the conclusion of an intimate banquet address told them: "It doesn't matter whether you get the cup or the award, or what you get, so long as you play the game.

"I hope you stay with the 'Y' for years and years. But give it everything you've got and play the game."

Fred Sadly and John Luscombe introduced the members of the winning teams to Robbie Clark, basketball and the YMCA who presented the awards and trophies.

Receiving awards were:

Senior House League, Pirates (captain, Gerald Hill); Juniors, Bob Elliott, Roy Gatland, Jim Ramsbottom, Gerald Hill, Sam Smith and Ron Fraser.

Junior House League, Crazylegs team — Danny Moon (capt.), Bill Gallagher, Jack Wynn, Wayne Bunnett, Brian Vel Camp, Larry Rapelje, Donald MacDonald and Ted Robinson.

The banquet was chaired by Chris Hyndman, and prizes were brought from the Physical Education Committee of the city by Bryan Gallagher and the YMCA board of directors by Don Williams.

Mr. Thompson was introduced by Bill Hutchison and thanked by George Parkhurst. A sing-song was led by Linton Reed and Ron Elmy.

TRENTON — (Special) — A spokesman for the Board of Education indicated today that the board will ask council for an additional $9,208 this year to go into high and public schools. Council will consider the board's request this coming Tuesday night.

"Y" Booming of City Hall Clock Cuts Short Spirited Debate

The booming of the city hall clock as it struck the midnight hour during a spirited debate in city council Monday evening as one aldermanic appealed for a vote of council on mayor's interpretation of a certain clause in the procedure by-law.

The debate was still in progress when the clock struck and Mayor Both declared the meeting was automatically adjourned.

Of different ages they all of them were linked together in the spirit of sportsmanship, which the "Y" fosters among the youth of the city.

The young members were forcibly reminded of this when veterans Pat Man, Newt Thompson, at the conclusion of an intimate banquet address told them:

NO DIFFERENTIATION MADE

Quoting from the procedure by-law Alderman Forrester said there was no differentiation between meetings of regular committees and special committees. She said, according to the by-law other council members were permitted to attend "any and all" committee meetings.

She said the ruling by Mayor Both had only committee members could attend meetings of special committees "interfered with the right and duty of councillors." She appealed to council for a recorded vote on the mayor's ruling.

But Mayor Both stuck to his guns and said that his ruling must be accepted as the mayor rules the day," he said.

"Subject to an appeal to council," interjected Alderman Graham.

SEVERAL IN DISCUSSION

Several of the aldermen entered into the discussion with the suggestion being made that a ruling from the solicitor should be secured on the matter.

Alderman Grandame pointedly asked the mayor why he did not with other councillors to attend a special committee meeting.

The mayor noted that when council asks for a special committee to be formed, that committee was to meet and make a special report.

Alderman Lott wonders in my duty if I allowed other councillors to attend" and the report. "I am ruling that way and until such a time as the by-law is changed, that is the way it will go," he said.

She said the ruling by Mayor Both had only committee members could attend meetings of special committees.

Before the discussion got under way Alderman Forrester had questioned the mayor's ruling at a previous meeting on the matter of council members being permitted to attend meetings of special committees when they were not members of that particular committee. The alderman had said she was ruled from such a meeting.

Avro Aircraft Forced to Lay Off About 1,000 Men

TORONTO (CP)—Avro Aircraft Ltd., formerly the aircraft division of A. V. Roe Canada, announced a layoff starting May 1 of about 1,000 men working on the CF-100, twin-jet fighter plane.

The company statement said a further reduction in the monthly production rate of the aircraft will bring about the layoff.

Earlier this year, a similar number of men were laid off by the company.

The present layoff, beginning May 1, will be spread over the months of May, June and July.

"It is felt appropriate at this time to point out that re-organization is being increased on the C-105 project, particularly in the engineering drawing offices of the departments and it is hoped that this will result in increased activity in the near future," the statement said.

The C-105 project involves production of a supersonic jet aircraft for the RCAF. Production will be started when the CF-100 project is complete. It was reported recently that the new project has started.

The CF-105 project employed about 8,500 men. Security regulations prevented release of the date for the start of the new project.

Weekly Benefits For Unemployed May Be Raised

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government's proposed unemployment insurance changes will increase weekly benefits to a maximum $30 and generally modify the scale of benefits in lower categories, it was learned today.

The measure also will give a worker more benefit credits for the time he works, though the maximum number of benefit days in a single year will be reduced.

The changes are a series of other changes will be proposed by Labor Minister Mitchell in a bill overhauling the Unemployment Insurance Act which he is expected to introduce in the Commons next week. He gave the House notice of the measure today by questioning resolution on the Commons order paper.

A major new provision, it was learned, will be creation of three basic salary brackets for benefits and payments into the insurance fund. Each present half a week is the result figure for all earnings above that get the same maximum benefits as the top rate for single persons and $24 for those with dependents.

Under the new plan, there would be benefit rates of $26, $28 and $30 a week. Contributions paid in the three new categories which will be at the same rate as now. The maximum for a single person will be $23 instead of $17.10.

The present top category for those earning under $9 a week would be retained, but the rate step up to $15 a week would make the same payments and get equal benefits.

Benefit rates and payments for existing categories would be unaffected, some going up and some down, though by and large the average weekly benefit is the same as now. The aim is to get benefits relating more to earnings and to provide a more equitable distribution of contributions on a weekly, rather than the present daily, basis as a means of simplifying administration.

The formula for qualifying workers with benefit days will be revised drastically. At present, a worker must have one benefit day for each four days he works. He would get one for each two contributed under the proposal.

However, it was understood the present requirement of 15 weeks of benefit in a year will be cut down sharply.

Rumors Grow That Malenkov Has Been Purged

LONDON (AP)—Rising speculation about the whereabouts of Georgi Malenkov, deposed Soviet premier, was freighted today with the suggestion that his testimony for a visiting Swedish delegation to Moscow.

The Sweden Monday night end a 11-day tour of Soviet power stations, made at the invitation of the Soviet government. For unplained reasons they did not see Malenkov, who was demoted several weeks ago from the premiership to the post of minister of power stations.

Malenkov also was missing from the government box at the first session, Saturday of the Supreme Soviet of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, parliament of the largest of the 16 Soviet republics.

Rumors that Malenkov has disappeared or been executed or sweeping London. A foreign office spokesman, asked about them, said: "I've heard the rumors but I've heard them." But he declined to assess them.

Some Western officials have speculated that Malenkov may be stepped down as premier Feb. 8 was doomed to eventual liquidation. Some officials thought him a loser in the Kremlin struggle for power, but believed it only a matter of time until he was done away with.

ROPE ENOUGH TO HANG HERSELF

After Charles Darwin published "The Origin of Species" in 1859, he touched off a great controversy.

Foremost amongst the defenders of Darwin's theories was Thomas Henry Huxley. Leading the critics were the clergy.

Amongst the most formidable was an eminent divine of the Church of England, a bishop who spoke with the tongues of angels, a man gifted with a brilliant mind as well as with a stirring voice.

Huxley, much daring, agreed to meet the bishop in a public debate.

The bishop, early in his address, made some sarcastic comment about the possibility of Huxley's grandmother swinging in a tree by her tail, a grossly distorted reference to the theories Huxley was defending.

Huxley, exulting, turned to a friend and exclaimed "The Lord has delivered him into my hands."

He then replied that he would be less ashamed of a grandmother who was an ape than he would be if he were a man of great talents who debased them by deliberately attempting to deceive.

It was with something akin to Huxley's exultation that we read in Saturday Night a letter by Mrs. Barbara King of London, Ont.

Mrs. King is in fashion. It is all the style, these days, to criticize modern educational methods. Some of this criticism is justified. When such as Dr. Hilda Neatby speaks or writes, it behooves the rest of us to listen or read with attention. But all who assay to follow in her footsteps do not tread with as nimble or as sure a step. These hobbling hippos frequently get lost in the morass of ignorance and are only prevented from realizing their state by the kindly fog which beshrouds their minds. They may not suffer—but their antics cause suffering to the rest of us.

Take Mrs. King's letter. Here it is in its entirety:

"It's about time somebody questioned the kinds of readers being used in our schools. A more mumbo-jumbo type set of books would be hard to find. They're beautifully printed all right, and handsomely illustrated and they must cost the school boards and put-upon taxpayer a pretty sum. No one would object to that, however, if they really gave the children some mental exercise. The selections, unfortunately, seem to have been chosen with some vague purpose of keeping the pupils entertained rather than inducing them to think."

Now we are not suggesting that the readers used in our schools today are above criticism. They have been criticized, we believe, not for their tendency to entertain the pupil but for their failure to do so. That is a sound reason for criticism, if justified in the facts. But Mrs. King says they do attempt to entertain. Her complaint is that they do not induce children to think.

Readers are only used in primary schools. Their purpose is to teach the children to read. Can Mrs. King, can any person, suggest a better way to encourage children to read than by making their reading entertaining, by making them want to read?

LOUD AND FUNNY!

"Canadian Sailor," official organ of Seafarers International Union of North America Canadian District affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, may not be as well known as "Punch" or the "New Yorker." But we'll swear its March 1 issue was funnier.

"Labor Fink Number One Pulled by F.B.I." read "Canadian Sailor's" headline.

The story beneath the double streamer told how "a contemptuous bum" by the name of "Slim" Droeger had been arrested aboard the "Canadian Constructor" at Philadelphia and charged with a violation of the U.S. selective service laws. The story described Droeger's activities in Canada and reported "he went on the payroll of 'Scabby Mac,' a Montreal Hiring Agency operator who had rented the hold-the-hall on St. John Street in Montreal as his 'Crimp joint.'"

'Scabby Mac" is "Canadian Sailor's" affectionate nickname for H. G. McMaster.

On March 1, when this issue of "Canadian Sailor" went to press, H. N. McMaster was head of the United Mine Workers' Seamen's Union in Canada. But around the sides of March there was a slight disagreement. McMaster found himself accused of assorted misdeeds and minus a job—until Hal Banks, head of the SIU in Canada, hired "Scabby Mac" as security consultant.

We await with interest "Canadian Sailor's" new nickname for "Scabby Mac," which should appear in its next issue unless there are some untoward incidents during the honeymoon.

THE WORLD

This troubled world has never been,
Except in spots, a place serene,
Since first my memory began
This theme the grownups dwell upon.
There is no future now for man.
The good old days that were, have gone.
Even the children of today
Their wiser elders won't obey.

They said the world was failing fast
And not much longer could it last.
Despair was all I seemed to hear.
By problems grave the race was beset.
The end of hope was drawing near.

No generation praised the next.
It was the sad and solemn truth.
You couldn't trust the world to youth.

They moaned and wailed for ages long
That almost everything was wrong.
Wise men had been, but dead were they.
All able leadership was gone.
'Twas plain no faith in us had they,
But still the world kept going on.
So youth, when needed, have no fear.
The world, long doomed, will be

"The courtroom will be jammed for this trial . . . lucky we got here early enough to get good seats!"

Endorses Tribute To Michael Rabin

41 Hastings Drive,
Belleville

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I should like to take this opportunity to wholeheartedly endorse Mr. Eugene Lang's tribute to Michael Rabin, the brilliant young violinist, on the occasion of his recital in the Collegiate auditorium last Thursday. Rarely does one have the opportunity to see and hear, in person, an artist who is blessed with the divine spark of genius, and many of my pupils who were fortunate enough to be present at that memorable event, must have been inspired.

It is highly gratifying to me personally, that the lovers in Belleville are able to enjoy music being performed by some of the world's greatest artists, this being made possible by the untiring efforts of the Community Concerts Association.

Good News From Prairies

(Financial Post)

We talked this morning with two manufacturers' agents just back from their spring tours of the prairies. Both these men have been on the road for a long time. One deals in farm implements, the other in household goods. Both left their respective stop from the Lakehead to the Rocky Mountains. They know the prairies.

The pair admitted that they had approached their tours with considerable gloom. Last fall, they had found their customers extremely reluctant to buy, and exclusive to cut into cash reserves for the 1955 spring operations. The bad crop and the falling wheat price had dried up the prairie market.

After a winter spent watching rising unemployment figures, and hearing speeches about a crisis in agriculture, they were more pretty sure this trip would be another dud.

Instead both men (on separate trips) found their customers eager to buy, ready to order, and prepared to pay off the old accounts.

The farm implement salesman booked far more farm orders than he had expected. The housewares salesman beat all his own previous records. From other salesmen in the field heard similar surprises. They're convinced that the prairie dweller has overcome the depression scare he suffered last fall, and that the prairie market is back in business.

In spite of the decline in income from wheat, the farmers, across the prairie farmers, the region as a whole, realize that its economies are broader and its financial position more stable than in the days of the dirty thirties.

This is good news for all of Canada. It will reflect itself in that some of the unemployment the past winter has been directly due to the lack of confidence in the prairies last fall. If the general feeling of optimism continues, it is going to do more business this spring, we'll all share in the benefits.

Word of Warning

(Fort 'Arthur News-Chronicle)

It took an Eastern Ontario jury only six minutes to find a man who had shot and killed a chicken thief and the presiding judge said he was sure the jury's verdict although he advised the accused to be more careful in future with firearms in the future. It is even better advice for chicken thieves.

Temperature Range Big

Milwaukee Journal)

One thing you can't deny about mid - westerners — they're a pretty rugged lot. They like to be, or the weather would kill them off.

Last week was a fine example of what we have to stand. To get the snow flurries, rain, cold winds and nice hot sun that spiced things up. Take just temperature ranges.

In the course of three days we varied from one below zero to 63 above, a range of 64 degree range. Watusa had a 64 degree range too, starting with 11 below zero. La Crosse wandered through eight below to 46 above.

This, the chest thumpers would say, makes us a strong, vital, energetic people. Not us. It makes us morose, startling unhappy and envious of lazy, sunwarmed southern California.

Why Bother?

A Soviet lecturer on child welfare urged Moscow parents to go easy on spanking children. She declared corporal punishment was a throwback to Czarist days and tended to make kids "cowardly, secretive, sly, untruthful and fretful."

760 Millions In Free Asia

(Christian Science Monitor)

Looking at a flat map of Asia, the great expanse of continental China seems to so dominate the area as to make the countries and islands around it seem little more than specks. Yet, looking at these on a globe of correct projection, they are seen to be substantial. Compared in terms of population, they take on real significance.

This comparison has been pointed up by Hugh Stamen, chief of the Foreign Operations Administration, on his return from a visit to seven of the three nations forming what he calls "the arc of free Asia." These extend from Pakistan through India, Burma, Thailand, Malaya, Indonesia, Indochina, the Philippines and Formosa up to South Korea and Japan.

The Chinese Communists in a census announced last year claimed to have overstepped the 600 million persons. Yet this probably inflated figure is surpassed by the total population of the 15 non-Communist countries, which, as Mr. Stamen declared, number more than 760 million. Some, such as India, Indonesia and Japan, are very heavily peopled.

The significance of this lies not in totalling up conflicting military potentials; it is to shape that outside the Iron Curtain. Probably little so many millions of human beings as the tremendous and growing laboratory for democratic forms of government and individual freedom can be found. Among them there is superb opportunity for the world's greater productivity and greater attractiveness of free ways of life to help counter Communist regimentation.

The practical disadvantage of these free Asian nations is their lack of unity with one another and in relation to the great lack of strong internal government. Yet they have one thing in common. They develop with a little assistance at the start and with that inclination and stability against the Communist menace.

This is the purpose of the program which Mr. Stamen heads and whose application he has been studying in the Orient. The FOA chief has pointed out that 2 billion dollars asked for foreign aid this fiscal year is "peanuts" in the year's budget well be so divided as to give Asian countries an increase over last year. This would mean about 1 billion for Asia.

Such a figure is much more modest than some that were talked last fall, but it is doubtless more realistic and will be more effective. In the judgment of those who know the Asian nations are interested in rural village development rather than industrial projects. This and the plan are to some extent exported to India in Southeast Asia. Subversion infiltration and subtle pressures are most acute, the chief need is economic aid to strengthen public administration, schools, and other governmental services.

These need not cost billions, but they can be of enormous importance in helping free Asia find their own will, ability, and cohesion to resist the expansion of Communism into their countries.

All Cold Air Not Canadian

(Victoria Times)

Why do Americans regard Canada as a land of ice and snow?

Mr. Diefenbaker, in his little quip minister of trade and industry, has the answer. In an address to the chamber of commerce last week he blamed it all on radio and the fact that Canada's cold wave is sweeping down from Canada.

"That stir," argues Mr. Sturgess, "has to start somewhere, and I'm sure it starts all start in Canada."

It's easy how to refute this libel! Has Mr. Sturgess courage enough to attempt the education of American radio announcers!

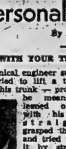
SELF COMPANIONSHIP

The one person we know better than anyone else in all the world is ourself. And yet, with all this knowledge, a large number of us find that main poor self companions. They are bored even with themselves, and long for other people.

It's a big and important thing to make friends with yourself. The joy it is to entertain oneself! It takes resourcefulness to be certain others. Most of us spend hours each day alone so that it is worth while to learn the secret of these hours in study, meditation, and self improvement.

People who live alone, or whose work necessitates their being alone a good deal of the time, find many interests to assure their privacy and companionship. Travelers have many hours awaiting to give their service. A love of books, of nature, and wide reading give a broad invitation to those ready

Many a one, returning to his or her home often wonders what to do with oneself. Why not spend it in a happy companionship? Why not learn something more about this person with whom you spend all your days and nights? He is the best friend you have, or ever will have!! He knows when your great fortunes, or later all others have deserted you. Those who make friends with self companions are sure to make themselves a good companion to anyone. Their self confidence will assure that they will be interesting.



Others be it said, are buried within him hidden resources about which we are often remain ignorant. Taking the time to search them out, or to discover them, is a task well worth while. Indeed the discovery of oneself is the biggest

LIFT WITH YOUR THIGHS, NOT WITH YOUR BACK

A mechanical engineer says he foolishly tried to lift a tub of sand from his trunk — probably he means he leaned over and with his legs straightened up — presto!

Dr. Brady

Oh, well, we won't call him names this time — everyone must learn how to lift, and some ninnyhammers learn the hard way.

I know, for I'm one of the aforesaid ninnyhammers. On bowling days, of which, somehow there are too many, I take a break about 12:30 — the time when I should be toddling toward the bowling green — and go out to putter in the patio and absorb a little nitrovitals. While puttering one day I noticed a young tree springing up under a stairway leading to a studio. I bent over, grasped the tub and tried to lift it by straightening up — presto!

Oh, well, we won't call him names this time — everyone must learn how to lift, and some ninnyhammers learn the hard way.

I know, for I'm one of the aforesaid ninnyhammers. On bowling days, of which, somehow there are too many, I take a break about 12:30 — the time when I should be toddling toward the bowling green — and go out to putter in the patio and absorb a little nitrovitals. While puttering one day I noticed a young tree springing up under a stairway leading to a studio. I bent over, grasped the stub with both hands and yanked on it. It didn't give. Leaned down, took a firmer hold and yanked harder. Yolk slipped inordinately, as several yolks. The young tree didn't give but my sacro-iliac did.

It took half an hour to limp into the house and into bed. From the way I felt, it was going to be a long, painful . . . osteopathy! I did have one of the leading physicians of that school — I don't remember whether he called it "slipped intermittent," sacro-iliac sprain or subluxation. I do remember that his manipulations, which I had feared would cause more anguish, Paul called upon to converse everywhere in God's gifts with confidence, to pray without ceasing, to bless and not curse, to sanctify hands and hearts, and to receive the blessings which God has promised in the Beatitudes.

Our trouble, however always is that we wait to hand God a time schedule and a list of the gifts we think we particularly need. But God has a little schedule of His own, and a list which to put it mildly, is of tremendous scope. Blessings will come when God wants them to come, and the blessings will be of His choosing. But what should stir within us a hope never to be quenched is the realization that God does care and that He is eager to provide for us bountifully.

READY ALWAYS TO GIVE

"Open thy mouth wide, and will fill it." Did you know how words are found in the Bible (Ps. 81:10)?

This is but a specimen of the oft-repeated Biblical declaration that God is more anxious to give to us than we are to receive. The glories of heaven in Person abound in us, and we are indifferent to them. We are like children who, being given a costly present, soon turn from the present and begin amusing themselves with the wrapping paper and the box and the string which bound it. Jesus warned against by calling upon men to ask, seek and find. He assured them that if they knocked, doors would be opened to them. He encouraged them to have faith which would remove mountains. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The lady who waits on me at the library and helps me find the population of Afghanistan in 1500 A.D. and that sort of thing is a great believer in signs and tokens, superstitions and extra-sensory perceptions. On her bulletin board in the bus all the way down to Duke University even in summer when hardly anybody is around there, to revel in the records, statistics and particulars with regard to astrological, clairvoyance, telepathy, hypnology, thaumaturgy and hocus pocus.

But of course, she will also be made under inquiry and will buck up and go around a block rather than cross a black cat's path.

Three or four days ago, when I was in borrowing a book on how to climb a rat trap that seemed to me the world to beat a pathway to my door, she was interested.

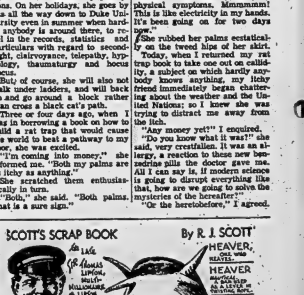
"I'm coming into money," she informed me. "Both my palms are itchy as anything."

She scratched them enthusiastically in turn.

"Both," she said. "Both palms. That is a sure sign."

"It might be a little eczema," I suggested.

"Nonsense. You can't get eczema on your palms. Anyway, if you are that sort of thing it is, you can always distinguish between psychic intimations and ordinary, everyday itches. Now you just scratch mine!"



She rubbed her palms against the broad hips of her skirt.

Today, when I returned my rat trap which had not caught a mouse, actually, a subject on which hardly anybody knows anything, my lady friend immediately began chattering about the weather and the United Nations as if this were the first time to distract me away from the itch.

"Any money yet?" I enquired.

"Do you know what it was?" she said, very creatively, as was all allergy, a reaction to these new benzine pills the doctor gave me. All I can say is, if modern science is going to disrupt everything like this with new pills and cure new mysteries of the hereafter!"

"Or the heretobefore," I agreed.

Danish Milliner Uses Fish Skin, Horsehair in Hats

By SILVIA HACK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Fish skin and horsehair turned up to surprise viewers at the spring and summer showing of hats by Danish milliner Erik Muller.

But the strange materials were hardly recognizable in the chaste black and white Mayfair salon, lined with tropical plants and delicate gilt chairs.

The horsehair, sewn tightly together and dyed in pastel shades, resembled featherweight straw. The mottled hide of a rare Greenland fish, called the sea leopard, could be substituted for lizard skin when used for decorative bands and buckles.

GAY OR SEVERE

Muller, who counts the Duchess of Norfolk and members of Scandinavian royalty among his customers, has $5,000 creations, ultra-veiled extreme styles. Most are either small and pretty, fitting snugly to the head with silhouette supplied by trimmings, or large and severe, often with fluted or fringed brims.

Bronze, rose and olive are the predominant colors with tiny touches of white, rechristened platinum. Trimmings are gloriously gay and used in abundance, featuring black and red cherries, lily of the valley, and roses all the way.

The right-side-down hat, introduced last year, is the favored model. Worn sharply tilted over the right ear, it's a becoming style for most faces.

French inspiration shows in some styles. Masses of violets top a bronze boater, a foot - long feather floats on a flat grey shape.

HANDY HEADGEAR

Just right for cocktails are a white satin half-hat trimmed with satin bands and bunny, olive straw calyx type decorated with an outsize pink rose, and one comprising a cluster of deep pink peonies.

For the races, sporty but feminine imitations of the stiff types in warm pastel shades are the thing. Hyacinth blue and tangerine models have a matching chiffon drape at the back to protect the hair and neck from strong winds.

"I don't give my hats names, I let them introduce themselves," Muller said, explaining that his own favorite, a Parisian-flavored black tulle number, resembling a fluted lamp-shade.

Fish Sticks Gain Place In Canadian Mart

By PEGGY THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Fish sticks, a ready-to-eat food item, have gained a place in the Canadian market.

The one-ounce slices of battered, breaded, pre-cooked and frozen fish were introduced in Canada last year, when production totalled 1,683,000 pounds. During last January, production was 505,254 pounds for the month—almost one-third of last year's total.

The fish sticks save the housewife time and trouble, the industry says. They need only be heated and served. As yet, however, they are available only in larger towns and cities.

POPULAR IN U.S.

Fish sticks were developed by the U.S. fishing industry and introduced there in 1953. American production that year totalled 7,500,000 pounds. It jumped to 30,000,000 pounds in 1954.

The fishing industry has high hopes that the sticks will boost fish consumption, but says it's too early to estimate how well they will go over in the Canadian market or whether they will give the industry a shot in the arm.

Seven or eight processors in Canada are making fish sticks, using mainly cod and haddock. The bones and skin are removed and the fillets are packed in trays and frozen under pressure. The blocks are sawed up into sticks, dipped in batter and breadcrumbs, fried in deep fat, packaged and frozen.

Some variations on the idea, like ready-to-cook sticks which are fried at home, mouthful-size cod pieces and pre-cooked fillets have been produced in small quantities, but the heat-and-serve sticks lead the field.

The Canadian fishing industry is benefitting somewhat from the success of fish sticks in the U.S., however. Some 25 plants are producing the frozen fillet blocks for export to the U.S.

However, Canadian processors haven't any chance of breaking into the American market with the finished product, the industry says, because of a 30-per-cent tariff on cooked sticks.

Bridge St. United W.A. Hears Talk on 'Candles'

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of Bridge St. United Church was held in the S.S. rooms on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Arthur Clare, presided, due to the absence of Mrs. Fairman and welcomed the members and guests. The meeting was handed over to group convener, Mrs. Charles Scott, and her assistants, Mrs. Frank Pringle and Mrs. W. Campbell, who were in charge of the afternoon program.

Mrs. Scott led in prayer.

Mrs. Demeza rendered the solo "Green Pastures", accompanied by Mrs. Gallagher at the piano.

Mrs. Scott introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Ralph Middleton, Mrs. Middleton, in the introduction to her talk, said that she had visited this past summer in the part of Scotland where Mrs. Scott had lived, before coming to Canada, and where her own mother had been born. This beautiful part of the country, where one must go "Up to the hills, with lift Mine Eyes".

EASTERS IN OTHER LANDS

Mrs. Middleton told of Eastern and other customs in various parts of the world, one, in particular, in Assisi, in Italy, where St. Francis lover of birds had lived. There she went to the church service, where boys and girls were around the altar, bearing lighted candles. Then, one by one, the candles went out symbolizing how the disciples left Jesus after His death. Then the one candle, again aflame, rekit all the others.

Mrs. Middleton, quoting Proverbs said "The Spirit of Man Is the Candle of the Lord" and "What a responsibility we have" and also "What a Heritage". She told of the Candles of Love on the tables at home with a Sainted Father and mother at each end of the table; of the burned candles from the wrecked ship washed up on the beach during the First World War; of the candles in the church past Montmartre where people went expecting to be healed; the candles in the Sistine Chapel of St. Peters in Rome, and the Martyr Candles of Bishops Latimer and Ridley, who were burned at the stake for their religion at Oxford.

In closing Mrs. Middleton said, "The Church is one huge candlestick, and we are the candles," and asked, "Are we all lighted candles of the Lord?" a Mrs. Fairman expressed the thanks of all the ladies for the message and for Mrs. Demeza's solo.

A short business meeting was then held, following which the group in charge served a cup of tea.

Indian Travelogue Enjoyed At University Women's Club

The University Women's Club of Belleville and district met at the Kiwanis Centre on Thursday at the dinner hour for a dessert and coffee party.

After a most delicious selection of favorite confections, Mrs. Donald MacKinnon, the president, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. Basil Tippet, of Toronto.

Under the sponsorship of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. Mr. and Mrs. Tippet visited Y.M.C.A.'s all around the world. They were also intrigued with India, that they returned last year and took the pictures which Mrs. Tippet showed the club.

POVERTY — WEALTH

The travelogue began with Delhi, and at once the contrast between masses of the poor, with their primitive existence, and the wealth of the high caste was obvious. A street scene revealed the manner in which most people lived; there household equipment, families walking to town carrying bedding to stop for the night, merchants selling wares in the open street, men crushing sugar cane in a wooden press, veiled woman cauldron making their way through all the confusion and poorly clad children darting about.

In sharp contrast was the stately grandeur of the Tajmahal set in a back ground of spacious, well tended gardens with pools, fountains, and lovely flowers. The outstanding feature of this monument was the intricate masonry with beautiful mosaic patterns, both geometric and floral, interspersed with precious stones. Other marvels were shown, one in particular was built extensively of pearl and each had a holy bathing pool.

MANY CURIOSITIES

Benares had many curiosities, including the man doing Yogi exercises and a temple occupied by monkeys. There was also a university accommodating some 15,000 students.

In Jaipur, It was quite common to see women dyeing long lengths of cotton materials in huge iron kettles right out in the streets, and then stretching these gaily colored pieces on the roofs to dry.

Along the Ganges, were a series of funeral pyres with a sacred white cow tethered to each. These pyres were always piled high with wood in readiness for a death.

SACRIFICIAL LAMB

As in Biblical times, sacrifices are still the custom with some religious sects of India. A lamb was slain with a crowd accompanied by the appropriate rites and taken to the altar as a sacrifice.

A jungle scene with mahouts on trained work elephants revealed how important these animals are as a means of travelling in the jungle, as well as rounding up wild elephants and adapting them to captivity.

The final scene was the Golden temple of the sikhs which was breathtaking in its beauty and golden glitter. It is rarely that this temple is allowed to be photographed, and only by special permission of the governor. Sentries are posted outside to guard its sanctum and it is a great privilege for foreigners to gain entrance. Inside were rich Oriental rugs and priceless ornaments.

Miss Mary Doyle thanked Mrs. Tippet for bringing these intensely interesting pictures and her detailed commentaries.

A painting donated by Miss Maraneau, of Wellington, was won by Dr. Lily Mathieson.

A motion was passed to donate $25 to the John Howard Society.

The books of raffle tickets for the painting by Manly Macdonald were distributed to the members so that they could be sold in good time before the draw which takes place at the Kiwanis Centre, the second Saturday in May, at the close of the annual Spring Fair.

GALLANT GESTURE

Gallantry and chivalry do still exist even in these modern times. During the recent floods which struck Southend, England, Mrs. Sylvia Polkinghorn was lucky enough to find able - (if not knightly), assistance in traversing the floodwaters covering the Southend sea-front. The check, too, is a big seller this season, and the fabric is crease-resistant and packable. White piqué for collar and tabs. Miss Hilda Ellis read the Easter group took the program and their theme "Forgiveness" and Forgiveness was well carried out. Belleville Presbyterial WMS Holds Meeting in Picton

"The Christian Hope,—and My Responsibility," was the theme which brought together what was a full Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, held its annual meeting in the United Church, Picton, on March 23-24.

The regular meeting was preceded by a devotional meeting on the night of the 23rd, when members were supper guests of the Picton auxiliary, after which a short business meeting was held, concluded with a conference with the guest speakers, Dr. Winifred Bryce and Miss R. Catherine McKeen.

The president, Mrs. Lincoln Ellis, of Forest, welcomed some 180 delegates and visitors from 28 auxiliaries and presided for the morning and evening sessions. The first vice-president of Presbyterial, Mrs. Ernest Hagerman, Belleville, chaired the afternoon meeting. From the opening worship service, led by Mrs. Ellis, to the benediction, the day was packed full of heart-warming fellowship and inspiration.

WORSHIP

The worship period, led by Mrs. F. G. Whitely of Picton United Church, introduced the theme. The Christian Hope—and My Responsibility. In his morning address as he spoke of "The Finished Work of Christ", arising from chapter one of the first letter of Paul to the Thessalonians, Dr. Bryce stressed the need of labor of love, works of faith and patience of hope, and urged perseverance; patience to tolerate and to endure,—with faith and hope in the Lord Jesus, Christ—and the spirit make us realize the presence of God in the midst of life to which we are called. From a sense of purpose comes power as we witness to the Kingdom of God.

The afternoon devotionals were conducted by Mrs. Charles Hyde of Bellevieu Presbyterial Bridge Street Auxiliary, Belleville, on the theme, "Christ in You, the Hope of Glory,"—Colossians 1:27, Col. 1:28-29. The hymn, "Hope of the World" was sung at the World Council of Churches at Evanston was used in all three worship services. Mrs. Hyde read excerpts from the Evanston message, stressing that Christian Hope directs us to our fellowmen, our neighbors. The Church of Christ is today a World Church, embodying in every place He has gathered out from the nations, peoples, and in His family, in which His gifts and forgiveness are received.

Special Easter music was presented by the members of King Street Auxiliary, Trenton; Mrs. A. Frost reading the Scripture lesson, and Mrs. G. Whitely, a solo, "Hear Ye Israel" and of, "Now Ye Are the Body of Christ, and Members Individually of It." "Each has a particular talent, described by the Apostle Paul, as a gift, which is to be used ours, alone, to be used in the service of God," Mrs. Whitely concluded.

All are members of the Body of Christ, to the degree that we recognize our responsibility to rely upon His innermost love and to live day by day in obedience to all walks of life; The living Christ is the hope for world peace, world security, and the only ultimate solution to the problems of the world today.

REPORTS OF SENIOR GROUPS

An interesting feature of the morning session was the "Mission Parade," named—"We Have a Story to Tell to the Nations." By reverently enshrining the distinctive posters with interesting comments on the work of the departmental Secretaries gave a vivid interpretation of the year's work of Senior Groups.

Mrs. R. G. Coulter, acting in place of Mrs. Ernest Hagerman, was to attend, introduced each secretary and questioned her regarding the year's work in the group.

The following items were presented:

1. Responsibility for co-operation with Senior groups.

2. The importance of reverence and good worship services;

3. The value of the weekly book and Missionary Monthly and Monthly Letter;

4. The need of Prayer for our missionaries and keeping in touch with their correspondence;

5. The value of Mission Study calls made on new-comers, shut-ins and those ill at home or in hospital;

6. The four-fold purpose of the Christian Stewardship—Information in Temperance, Racial Relations, Social Welfare and World Peace. Our honour system,—should be—beyond reproach.

7. For "55—Be—alive! Pray more—study more—than ever before.

The treasurer, Mrs. R. W. Jones of Trenton, reported a very good branch treasurer,—$34,500. This is an increase of $1,000 over the year of $1700. to be used for two projects in, "Gifts for building additional manses and Parsonages" Mission work—$850. and—Christian Radio Broadcasting Station—Japan, $850.

LITERATURE PRESENTATION

Mrs. Pierce Jones of Picton, literature secretary, presented new books for the year and those of the "Book Parade" for 1946, also books for "Adventure in Bible Study" for both adults and children. Delegates were asked to pick up their reading lists for 1946, from the table. This was a popular spot.

At the supper hour, her lively comments on the "Award books," were bright and interesting. Seven Award books of value to auxiliaries having the greatest membership increase in each missionary character during the year (including the Book Shelf.)

Mrs. Jones also gave to Bloomfield Afternoon Auxiliary, a gift in memory of Mrs. Hagerman, per person. Picton Evening Auxiliary came second with nine per cent. Other awards went to Hazards, Madoc, Odessa, Wellington and Centenary Mission Circle.

To quote Mrs. P. Jones—"Books are the road—makes thought."

What we think—makes us. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." If you don't want to do any work, for once you start praying, you're bound to do it. Prayer is work. Problems pertaining to various departments of the work were enthusiastically discussed in group conference. In these conference the literature secretary and secretaries made suggestions and answered questions concerning phases of the work and problems involved.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The morning session closed with a most impressive Memorial Service, when the names of twenty-six all members of the six sections of Belleville Presbyterial who had been called to their reward since during the year, Mrs. W. C. Haggarty of Picton, presided at the ceremony, assisted by the president, Mrs. Lincoln Elliott of Forest, and a representative from each section. Each in choir gown, lighted the white candle and slowly came forward and attached a lily to a white cross placed on the table by Mrs. Ellis.

The congregation joined in the hymn of Remembrance.

Mrs. Haggerty spoke of the promise and condition for inheritance of the Kingdom—"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Her closing words reminded us that the love to that land beyond seems as short—yet eternity is fair—since it is now the home of those we love.

Mrs. F. G. Whitely's solo, "God Is Working His Purpose Out Thru Every Eye," suitably closed this touching service.

In the dining hall of the church were happy periods of fellowship. Everything were excellent when the hostess church by the minister, Rev. F. J. Whitely; from Belleville Presbyterial, the Girls' Auxiliary of Trinity and Bridge Street Presbytery W.A. by Mrs. M. R. Davidson, speaking for Mrs. Ed. Pratt, ill, to whom the word was unable to be present.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The afternoon session conducted Mrs. Fred Wilson gave Mrs. Hanson Ruff, president of Picton Presbyterial Auxiliary, a gift from Belleville Presbyterial Board Secretary for these groups. Mrs. Wilson spoke of Mission Fields, for Mission Circles; Mrs. Gerald Brooks, for Baby Bands; Mrs. Jack O'Burke, for Mission Bands and Mrs. W. K. Pace, for C.G.I.T. Auxiliaries.

All spoke of the work done in their groups.

Mrs. Pace, speaking of C.G.I.T. told of it's four-fold program. Mrs. Wilson told of a resolution that the World Friendship Rally was to be April 3rd Tabernacle United Church, Belleville. She told of the literature used by the groups and explained the symbols of the affiliation badge.

Mrs. McKeen, with a wealth of knowledge in each field, explained that a separate department is provided for Missionary Monthly, Leaflets and a secretary appointed with the work of each group. She discussed questions relating to missionary education for children and younger groups. Why and how can Auxiliary members encourage the use of mission boxes for younger groups and in what way can they co-operate in the observance of Mission Days in these groups? Why and how can Explorer groups be encouraged to study Social Welfare and World Peace. Our honour system,—should be—beyond reproach.

Mrs. Ernest Hagerman, Belleville, presented one resolution and a petition, which were voted upon.

1. The Resolution was from Bridge Street W.M.S., concerning moral reform in women, suggesting that recommendations suggested by the committees appointed to investigate Social Service, Mercer Reformatory and the parole system of this province be implemented as soon as possible.

2. The Petition, to the Hon. Gordon Fryton, requesting that legislation pending, to the extent of prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages may be permitted to be sold in grocery stores and other suitable places in the province of Ontario.

Following the memorial was the tussels in the choice of guest speaker. Dr. Winifred Bryce, the lady years missionary in India and Medico in educational work and opportunities for Christian ministries for betterment of home and family life of that land; also Miss R. Catherine McKeen, Bloomfield Board, secretary for younger groups who have had considerable rich experience in that work.

These guests were introduced by Mrs. S. W. Spafford of Belleville, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference branch of the Woman's Missionary Society.

Dr. Bryce, speaking to large gathering at both afternoon and evening meetings, thrilled her hearers to the depths of their being by her stirring addresses. Her message in the afternoon session she opened her afternoon address with these words:—

"The Christian—the Hope of the World;

Jesus Christ,—the Hope of India."

In what sense do we believe that? she asked.

"If we believe that, what will be the consequences?

"Jesus Christ, the Christian's Hope and conviction. Christian Hope is not a mere wish-ful thing we must also have a passionate conviction."

THREE GROUNDS OF HOPE

What grounds have we for thinking that Christ is the World's Hope of India? Because of experience there, we do have hope, certainty and proof. He has been in India long enough to see the fruits of the first teaching of the gospel in India. For our comfort and encouragement, there are three reasonable grounds for hope:

(1) "In the change in the position of women in India. Young women of India are coming in prominent posts, in public life, as stateswomen, in professional life, in work, and in labor fields. Recently a two-day conference was held in India, for the education of girls and women—a far cry from other days in India, as are the days declared for women, which began when the Christian women of this land and others, started the first movement for women in their land—such as Dr. Ida Scudder, of College of Lucknow.

"There is the Christian testimony evidenced, because of the concern that our Christian women had for the Indian women. The spirit of Jesus has helped to set women of India free from many bonds, though sometimes there are many dangers encountered along the way. Christian girls and women in India today, sometimes there are many dangers encountered along the way. India sends her first foreign missionaries to Christian work in Nepal, where doors have been closed for 200 years and now Indian Christians are finding entrance there.

GREATER SYSTEM 'OUTLAWED'

(2) "Secondly, there is a change in the position of 'Untouchables' which is defined as a system of caste. This has been outlawed. Dr. B. M. Ambedkar was an outcast as a child,—an untouchable—who is now India's cabinet member of parliament. What is more significant is that when he reads the words, "We, the People of India," and knows that he is one of them.

There have been many freedoms given to women, and women possessed people of India since Christian people first said 'brotherhood' is the underlying law.

"He was despised and rejected was he and we despised and we esteemed Him not"—.

The unsatisfactoriness of India had entered into that experience.

MEMBERSHIP

3. "The third change is the law passed, giving religious liberty. This seems unbelievable, but now the right to practise, profess and propagate their religion, and there has been a marked religious revival, since some are a bit sorry at the Christians in India, you are born a Hindu and remain one so long as you abide by the caste rules. This is a matter, not one of personal conviction.

"The Christians in India say it is part of their religion, to talk about it. It belong to a revolutionary religion, and things should be different—declaring we are Christians."

That's what we do," asked Dr. Bryce, "if this hope is to continue in the hearts of men of India?"

Medical work, schools, hospitals and their young people, beginning to see what others have and are now aware of their terrible poverty and are ashamed of it and hate it. We are trying to have equipped kitchens to cook our children, but what of women of India who have neither a kitchen in which to cook, nor a stove on which to prepare a meal. Many people in some districts work in the quarries, and bring back their family live there, with nothing to live on. Poor people have to be satisfied with the scraps of fruit that have been discarded from the fruit market. These they gather, separate the small part that is still good and have it for sale at a coin—just a small segment of fruit.

LEAVING INDIA SAYS

"Young India says—

"This first not go on—

"The first is to do with better methods of agriculture, better sanitation, education, and Christian schools.

"The second is to do with better methods of agriculture, better sanitation, education, and Christian schools.

"The Petition, to the Hon. Gordon Fryton, requesting that legislation pending, to the extent of prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages may be permitted to be sold in grocery stores and other suitable places in the province of Ontario.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WRITING TO MAYOR AND HIS WIFE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I've just been elected secretary of a woman's organization, a large, civic organization. Later it will be necessary for me to send letters to our mayor and his wife, and I have no idea how to adress the envelops. Please advise me.

—Thank you.

Address the envelope:

The Honorable and Mrs. Henry Wolf

ADDRESSING CARDS TO NEW PARENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My neighbor and I are having a discussion as to how to address the envelope of the card of congratulation for the arrival of a baby. She insists that the mother's day must be addressed to the mother only. But I think the envelope should be addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." What's the proper way? — Dorothy K.

If the envelope enclosing the congratulatory card is going to the home, it should be addressed to "Mr. and Mrs." . . . it's father's day as well as mother's day! But if it is addressed to a hospital, it's addressed only to the mother . . . but the card enclosed should have a message to father, too.

THE BOOR AT THE DANCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To attain a chuckle as well as laughing, please answer this question: At a dance, is it or isn't it discourteous for a man to wander off and dance with a complete stranger, yet entirely ignore members of his own group? — Reader

The man who goes with a group for a dance and then wanders off and dances with a complete stranger, entirely ignoring members of his own group is a selfish, inconsiderate, insufferable boor. To abandon his partner in order to come to the dance to dance, and not to keep an eye on his dancing pals . . . shows of course that he has no sense of the responsibility attendant on a dance, or at least that he has no idea of sidling by this responsibility. If he ever does return to his group, every one of them should ignore this blundering, inconsiderate boor and as he ignored them. He's definitely not dance-cooperation material!

TWO HYMNS IN DESSERT COURSE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

As the dessert course of a more or less informal dinner (say for six or eight guests, is it correct to serve a simple dessert, such as fruit cooked in wine or vanilla ice cream with a simple fruit sauce, and with this serve cake for should only one or the other be served?

With the simpler desserts, such as you mention, it is correct and customary to serve some kind of cake for cookies as an accompaniment. And the general idea is: the simpler the dessert, the richer the cake!

WHO READS THE CONGRATULATORY TELEGRAMS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At the wedding reception, who usually reads the congratulatory telegrams? — Bride-to-be

The best man usually reads these telegrams. However, if there are many telegrams, the bride's father may share his delightful responsibility with the best man.

YOUR little girl's eagerness to help set the table can turn out well for both of you if you give her a simple guide. On a skirt cardboard, draw the outlines of knife, fork, spoons, etc., then make a copy it with the real things.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

DIRECTIONS FOR THE HOME PEDICURE

With stockings gossamer-thin and evening slippers consisting of a sole and a strap, the attractive feminine toes are practically in the public eye. Women's feet are getting such care as they have never had in the past. They have to be decorative, pedicure-nails properly groomed and lacquered.

The pedicure has become an important part of the beauty routine and one should be familiar with the correct procedure as recommended by the experts. The first step, of course, is the removal of polish. The next, a five minute soaking in warm, soapy water.

For the purpose of shaping the nails one should have a long, flexible nail-file and another steel for cuts quickly. It is a mistake to use scissors which may leave rough edges and cause another . . .

File straight across. To work down at the sides may cause the flesh to thicken, and in time an ingrowing nail may result. To make sure that the nail is properly filed should be a second filing with the coarse side of the emery board.

Buffing, a step sometimes omitted in the professional manicure, is never omitted in the pedicure, since the toenails, encased as they are in shoes and stockings, need this stimulation. Buffing also helps to keep the nail surface smooth and shell-like.

A cuticle cream is applied to each nail and the surrounding tissues; light massage movements follow. Then lift the cuticle lightly with an orangewood stick. If any little shags are flushed up, . remove . . . a s in with the curved needlepoint scissors.

Another soapy bath to remove the cream, a tepid rinsing and brisk drying, and nail polish is applied. Place tissues between the toes so that the polish will not smear.

CENSURES EGYPT

JERUSALEM (AP)—The United Nations Israel-Egypt mixed armistice commission censured Egypt Sunday for an Arab band's "brutal and murderous" attack on an Israeli wedding party Thursday. A resolution said two armed men threw hand grenades and fired Sten guns, killing a woman and wounding 23 persons.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHOULD OTTAWA PEOPLE OF DIFFERENT NATIONALITIES GO TOGETHER?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What do you think about young people of different nationalities going steady? Is there any harm in that?

Some people don't approve of mixed marriages. What happens when a couple like this get along well and want to get married? Should they talk over situations with each other and figure them out themselves, or what?—M.M.C.

Dear M.M.C.:

I heartily approve of young people having friends of other nationalities and backgrounds than their own. For that is the only way in which they can broaden their ideas, and become well-informed, tolerant and understanding citizens both of their country and of the world in which they live.

It does not always follow, however, that the problem of marriage between persons of different backgrounds is a simple one to solve. For there may be many reasons why two young people who have been brought up to hold different views in life, and to appreciate these views, and adjust themselves to them in their daily life, could live together harmoniously.

That is not to say, of course, that it cannot be done. It has been done many times, and is being done today, where young people of all nationalities mingle intimately with each other, as they do today.

When it comes to a marriage of this kind, the main thing is to not rush into it on impulse, or through pure emotion, but to take plenty of time to look out and analyze all the factors involved, and, as you have suggested, talk over situations with each other, so that each one knows where the other stands on the big questions which arise. For the two people concerned are sure to find that they cannot happily agree with each other, and to each other's points of view, attitudes and philosophy of life unless he is willing to yield on unimportant differences, and if they are quite certain that any children they may have will not find their lives confused and difficult by having to struggle against too many social cross-currents, then it seems to me such a marriage has more in favor of it than against it.

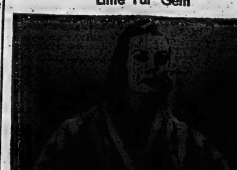
REGARD RUM AS A FRIEND, NOT AS A POSSIBLE HUSBAND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18, and have been going with a boy 19 who used to go with my best girl friend. She quit him because she didn't like him for several reasons, which she told me. So when he first asked me to go out, I refused, because I thought they might make up.

However, after awhile I accepted his invitation, and we went steady for a little over three months. Then he just up and decided he didn't want to go steady any more. We are still dating one or two nights a week, but I have reason to believe he is also seeing my girl friend again. He tells everyone he is going with me, and on every date we have he talks about the plans we had for getting married some day. But I can't understand the way he suddenly broke off going steady.

Should I just quit seeing him at all, or go on seeing him when he wants to and hope for the best?



— Jo Ann

Dear Jo Ann:

I would say that what you decide to do depends entirely on how much you really like this guy. If your heart is set on getting him back eventually, then you probably should accept the situation as it now stands, go out with him when he asks you to friendly, but not too eager, and, as you say, "hope for the best." But I suggest that, in the meantime, any talk of marriage with a very light touch. It hardly seems to me that it's appropriate at this time.

Jessie Gives Tarts and Pie

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Today's little message to you is, from a reader who is a welcome contributor and a resourceful cook. But she can tell her own tale:

Dear Mrs. Moore: My conscience is forever nagging me because I never did thank you for help you gave me last September . . . about cooking pickles in Dutch ovens. . . . You went to a good deal of trouble finding out the information, I bought the oven. . . . and am thankful to have someone like you standing by ready to help. . . . when I read your column I marvel at the different kinds of information you dig out. . . . you seem to be able to answer anything from how to figure out recipes in German to where to put the mother-in-law at the wedding reception. . . . your column is really very unusual because it supplies that friendliness we need in our lives. . . . I noticed a request one reader sent in for a sticky tart. . . . I have a French recipe . . . if your lady is in business she might like to try the large amount of tarts this will turn out:

TARTS A LA PICHOUNE

(Courtesy Jessie)

(Note from Emem: Most housewives will find that half of this quantity will be sufficient as filling for an average batch of tarts.)

Two cups brown sugar, 1 cup white sugar, 3-4 cup seedless raisins, 3 tablespoons flour, about 3 cups boiling water. Mix brown and white sugar and flour in pan. Pour on boiling water slowly, stirring constantly. Cook sauce for three minutes stirring, and add raisins. Cook five minutes more. Remove from heat and stir in 2 tablespoons butter and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Put mixture in shells and bake 12 minutes at 450 deg. Fahr.

Pie . . . lemon pie recipe has helped me to turn out pies that my husband claims surpass even his mother's. Now my mother makes. This is the highest praise possible so I am not going to look any further for a new lemon pie recipe.

EASY LEMON PIE

(Courtesy Jessie)

Right-inch baked pie shell, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, 1-3 cup cornstarch, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 2 unbeaten egg yolks, 1-4 cup lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 1 1-3 cups water, 3-4 cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons butter. Combine the 1-3 cup sugar, cornstarch, salt, egg yolks, lemon juice and rind in a small bowl, beat with rotary beater until smooth. Combine water, the 3-4 cup sugar and the butt - in saucepan. Bring to boil. Slowly stir some of this mixture into the egg mixture and then stir it all back into saucepan. Bring again to boil, cook 2 minutes longer, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Pour into pie shell and let cool. Spread with meringue.—Jessie.

Another reader friend is Theresa A., who wrote to the Hungarian Association in Toronto for the following recipe for

HUNGARIAN RUFLA

(I hope Mrs. Doerr I sow this.)

Eight egg yolks, 1 lb. butter, 4 cups flour, 1 yeast cake, 2 tablespoons sugar. Take as much sour cream as it needs to make a soft spongy dough. They can be made plain or with walnuts, jam or poppy seeds. Roll them out about 1-4 to 1 inch thick. Cut the dough in about 3 1-3-inch squares or like a half moon. Bake at 375 deg. until a golden brown.

(Note from Emem)—I think the yeast should be dissolved in 1-3 cup lukewarm water before being added to all other ingredients—also that dough should rise for 1 1-2 hours before rolling out and shaping.

Thank you so much Theresa for all the trouble you have taken.

The new toppers, slim and trim, combine smartly with skirts to make up nice little variations in spring suits. Here is a new design that is as good with a skirt as over a dress. Of black and white flecked tweed, it has the right weight for warmth without heaviness or bulk and is very attractive. Three black buttons below a bias-cut collar, three-quarter sleeves with bias cut cuffs, slantwise patch pockets and a red crepe lining all add their quota of good looks.

Owner Tries Unsuccessfully To Give TV Station to U.N.

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—For the last six months Ira Hirschmann has been trying unsuccessfully to give a radio station to the United Nations.

The UN would like to have the station but hasn't figured out how it would finance the operating costs and provide a staff to run it.

The station is WABF, operating on a local FM channel. Hirschmann started it in 1948 as what proved to be a noble experiment in programming.

A music patron and former department store executive, Hirschmann patterned his programs after the Third Service of the British Broadcasting Corp. The station featured classical music, drama and other cultural programs.

Partly because few sets in the New York area were equipped to receive FM broadcasts and partly, perhaps, because not enough people cared for the serious programming, the station lost money steadily. Hirschmann took the station off the air in June 1953 but obtained extensions of its permit while he decided what to do with it.

PAYS FOR MOVING

Last August he conceived the idea of giving it to the UN and wrote to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. The UN official conditionally accepted in October.

More weeks passed and the UN brought up the problem of moving the station from its Hotel Pierre location to UN headquarters. It would cost $8,000. Hirschmann wrote on Jan. 17 that besides giving the station, he also would pay the moving costs.

Meanwhile the proposal for operation by the UN of a station of its own received tentative approval from the federal communications commission and state department, subject to approval of the U. S. delegation to the UN.

Man Sentenced To 21 Years Is Appealing

TORONTO (CP)—Defence argument in the appeal against the manslaughter conviction and sentence of Joseph Adams, 23, of Windsor in the beating death of his six-week-old daughter, continues today before the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Arguments by both defence counsel Gordon F. Fraser of Windsor and crown counsel W. B. Common were heard Monday by five judges of the Appeal Court.

Adams was sentenced to 21 years in penitentiary Sept. 24, 1954, by Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson after he was found guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter by a Windsor jury. He was originally charged with murder.

Mr. Fraser argued that evidence presented at the trial was circumstantial, except for a statement entered by a police sergeant.

STATEMENT QUOTED

The statement, made by Adams in the Windsor police station the morning following the death of his child April 26 last year, quoted him as saying: "I lost my baby to death. It wouldn't stop crying." This was sworn to by the police officer during the trial.

Mr. Fraser challenged the admissibility of the statement as the main point in his appeal. He said there were several hours between the time the statement was made and when the police officer made his report.

Testimony was that Adams got up to bathe his child at about 2 a.m. April 26, went into another room to find a towel and when he returned to the bathroom he found his daughter with her mouth in the water.

He then "squeezed" the child, Mr. Fraser said, in an attempt to force all the water out of its lungs. Further testimony showed the child suffered 13 broken ribs and had a bowel-by-five-inch bruise out its back. There were no skin breaks.

Mr. Common said Adams showed "gross criminal negligence" in going far beyond normal behavior in his actions to save his child from drowning.

C.N.R. Plans Bigger Slash In Expenses

DAY LEAD HOUSE—CNR reveals 1955 budget

OTTAWA (CP) — In an attempt to break even, the CNR is planning this year to slash its expenses even more drastically than its 23-year record cut of 1954.

Faced with a forecast of continued falling revenues, the public-owned line told Parliament Monday its 1955 budget calls for a reduction in operating expenses of $34,500,000, largest since the mid-depression year of 1932.

Biggest previous cut since the depression came last year, when a $26,000,000 trimming of operating costs failed to avert a deficit of $28,100,000, created mostly by the Parliament-established debt structure of the CNR.

NOMINAL SURPLUS

The CNR budget, tabled in the Commons, forecast a nominal surplus of $200,000, based chiefly on the calculation of a small drop from 1954 in its over-all revenues accompanied by the big cost-chopping program.

Today, the figures go under examination by the sessional commons committee on government owned railways. Pending committee approval of the 1954 accounts, a parliamentary appropriation to cover the deficit for that year is being held up.

To keep the books in order, it will have to be approved by the committee, the Commons and the Senate before the government fiscal year ends at midnight Thursday.

SUCCESSIVE MEETINGS

To speed matters, the committee will meet morning, afternoon and night until scrutiny of the CNR's accounts is completed. President Donald Gordon will be the main railway witness.

The 1955 operating budget of the $2,000,000,000 company he heads forecasts — on paper — operating revenues of $625,000,000 for this year, which would be a continuation of last year's decline in rail revenues but a slowing in the downward rate.

At the same time, operating expenditures would be cut to $591,-000,000 from last year's $626,500,-000.

The budget indicated the CNR plans to call on Parliament for $28,350,000 in treasury money to finance capital spending of some $183,000,000 during the year. The remainder would be provided from its own resources and from already approved authorizations from Parliament.

Wonderful World of Atom Lies Close at Hand

By RELMAN MORIN

WASHINGTON (AP)—The wonderful world of the atom lies close at hand, in that world—

When your automobile frets and sputters, you will have the motor "tuned" instead of torn down.

Pictures of its insides, taken with Cobalt 60, will locate the trouble.

Your home, of course, will be lighted with energy taken from a nuclear reactor. And you will ride on trains and ships powered by the atom.

It will purify sea water and carry that water across mountains to the desert.

WILL AID SAFETY

In factories, radioactive broadcasts will guard the worker against mangling by dangerous machines. If the laws of the machine come too close to his hand, radiation from the bracelets agitates a peeper counter. It instantly stops the machine.

Buck Rogers stuff?

No, indeed. Some of these things already are here. Others—many others—are beyond the experimental stage.

Then does this mean that the atomic age finally has flowered for peaceful instead of military purposes?

Well, yes and no.

IMPATIENT FOR START

Last month, a United States congressional committee questioned many witnesses—businessmen, engineers, patent lawyers, labor leaders, experts of the Atomic Energy Commission—in a long series of hearings. They all attacked this problem:

"How to harness atomic energy, on a grand scale, to enhance the living standard."

A bright red threat of Inspiration, almost frustration, ran through the hearings.

Here is the industrial system, equal to any mechanical problem.

And here is the atom, the tamed giant, waiting to work. One pound of fissionable uranium equals, in release able energy, 2,000,000 pounds of coal.

STILL USE "FOSSIL FUELS"

Yet, the U. S. is not generating commercial electricity from the atomic. "Fossil fuels"—coal, gas and oil—are still the main sources of energy. The profusion of benefits from the atom are visible on the horizon, but not yet attained.

Hence the impatience. Each witness was asked, in effect, "what's holding us up?"

Last fall the U. S. Congress passed a new Atomic Energy Act. It provides, principally, for two approaches.

1. Opening the door—part way—for private industry to use and develop atomic energy.

2. Greater co - operation with other countries in the peaceful uses of the atom.

The AEC is pushing a five-year program of reactor research. Out of some 40 types of reactors, it selected five to build and operate. Cost: $130,000,000. Object: To determine operating costs, output, efficiency of the different reactors, improve safety devices, and so on. The information will be available to private industry.

Two utilities, Detroit Edison and Consolidated Edison, have announced plans to build nuclear plants for electricity in Michigan and New York.

In Canada, the federal government and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission will build Canada's first atomic power plant at a cost of about $15,000,000, with the Canadian General Electric Co. doing the construction job.)

Industry stands on the threshold. What lies ahead? A glittering vista—and a fantastic set of new problems.

(Wednesday: Barriers to the atom.)

VAST EXPANSION

The new attitude has been brought about by two factors. The chief one is the increasing speed of jet bombers. The second is the wide devastation which can be caused by hydrogen bombs.

HASTY SHOCK

Officials have said that the unveiling by Russia of new jet bombers last year came as a nasty shock. And the speed of jet bombers is increasing all the time.

That cuts down the available time interceptor planes would have to get into the air and knock down enemy bombers carrying hydrogen bombs.

Therefore, to obtain defence against faster air attack from the polar regions, they say, a part of what now is available against present - day bombers, fighter airfields, squadrons and control radar will have to be pushed farther and farther north.

The authority said it would seem unreasonable for Canada to carry all the costs and supply all the manpower for Canadian defences which, in effect, would be defences for the U.S.

MANPOWER PROBLEM

There might be no great political problem in regard to costs. For instance, the U.S. is paying the major share for building the DEW (Distant Early Warning) radar line in the Canadian Arctic.

But, at least politically, the problem of manpower is far more delicate. More airfields and more planes in Canada would require more servicemen — many thousands more.

The question of Canadian sovereignty has sometimes been a touchy subject for the government.

There now are some 3,000 American servicemen stationed in Canada, not counting the some 12,000 at the three leased bases in Newfoundland. The 3,000 are helping to man the Pine Tree radar chain along the Canada-U.S. border, flying in equipment for the DEW line and working at such posts as Frobisher on Baffin Island, Goose Bay, Labrador, and Fort Churchill, Man.

If the job were to be done by Canadians, they would probably have to be obtained through compulsory military service. The armed forces now number about 120,000 and in recent years the army has had some difficulty keeping its strength at approximately 20,000.

By the end of this year, there will be only 32 Canadian fighter planes ready to meet an air attack from the outside. This force would be augmented, of course, by hundreds of American fighters based in the country.

The coming problem for the Canadian government is: Should many of these American fighters be stationed in Canada and, if not there, where? Baffin Island, he was a graduate of Queen's University and Knox College, Toronto. At one time he was moderator of the Lindsay and Peterborough Presbyteries.

MEMBERS CHARGE

The government had no desire to conceal any information on CNR operations. However, information could not be made public which would aid the CNR's competitors.

Mr. Hamilton said Parliament should condemn what he said was a government attempt to put Canadian money at the disposal of "those empire builders from the U.S."

DISLIKES IDEA

He said he dislikes the idea of "handing out the taxes of our gracious young sovereign to an organization that is not Canadian."

There was nothing the Hilton organization could do for the hotel which Canadians could not do.

Mr. Herridge said it would be a "ghastly business" if the hotel were called the Hilton - Queen Elizabeth. The Hilton name should not be used in connection with the hotel.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the $20,000,000 hotel-building loan by the government should get the fullest investigation. Parliament knew nothing about terms of the profit sharing agreement between the CNR and the Hilton firm.

He also criticized the lack of full information on CNR employees layoffs and said Mr. Marler has been evasive about giving facts. CNR morale was being undermined.

Dr. Owen C. Trysing (PC—Winnipeg Fort Garry) said the CNR has become a government sacred cow. It refused to divulge information on its management to parliament or any representatives of the public which owned it.

CENSOR NEWSPAPERS

VALLETTA, Malta (AP)—Overseas newspapers publishing articles on Maltese affairs may be confiscated under a new government directive. Customs and post-office officials, who under a 13-month-old law can withhold incoming newspapers if they are considered seditious or immoral, were told today that newspapers carrying items on local matters must be sent to the office of Prime Minister Dom Mintoff for censorship.

Red Arms, Ideas Will Not Delay Human Progress

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Martin predicted Monday that Communist armies and ideas will not long delay the irresistible forward movement of humanity.

The years ahead, he said, will be exciting ones, full of tremendous possibilities for those countries that are progressive in their ideas, free and sincerely concerned in the welfare of the world's people.

"For the first time in human history we are within reach of satisfying man's material needs, while respecting human rights and aspirations," he said in a speech before the national Liberal Federation advisory council meeting.

His statements were contained in the text of his address released to the press in advance of delivery.

Turning to his own department, Mr. Martin estimated that the federal government spends about 5 cents out of every revenue dollar on welfare and social security.

But he argued that Liberal policy on social welfare has at all times been a "responsible and prudent one," designed to keep up with the country's economic development and to make sure that the cost does not at any time overreach itself "and become a drag or dead weight on our forward progress."

Red Wings Figure They Don't Have To Practise To Beat Maple Leafs

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

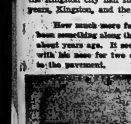
RIDE 'EM COWPOKE!

It's a matter for conjecture just who will get the better of this intensely "Grand National" scheduled to be "run off" along at Kingston's Princess Street next Saturday afternoon. Post time is two o'clock, so Chief Steward Don Kingdon of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce Board of Racetrack Impressarios, informs this department.



MAYOR JOHN BOTH

Central figures in the spectacle are Mayor John Both, chief magistrate of Belleville, Mayor George Clarke Wright, bon-mas of the Kingston city fathers, and a horse. Whether the nag will be "Native Dancer", "Exterminator", one of the pensioned dobbins of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery or a refugee from a Princess Street milk wagon, is not known at this writing.

This two-men-and-a-horse spectacle stemmed from a challenge hurled by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, loyal sons all, at their counterparts in the Limestone city, which stated that in the event the Belleville Memorial senior "B" hockey club won the group title, the Kingston mayor would lead a nag along Front Street, from the city hall to the waterfront, while the hand-borne equine would be Belleville's chief magistrate. In the event the Kingston Goodyears won the title, which they did, the positions of mayor and equine would be reversed. Which they are.

As matters stand now, Mayor Both will assume the role of the Dobbin-guiding majorette, while Mayor Wright will do a Hopalong Cassidy astride the pride of the Frontenac pastureland. Then, too, the Belleville mayor is to make a speech on the Kingston city hall steps extolling the virtues of the Goodyears, Kingston, and the country in general.

How much more fun it would have been had the wager been something along the lines of an old election bet we heard about years ago. The second the mayor had to push a peanut with his nose for two city blocks without touching his lips to the pavement.

MAYOR WRIGHT

However, we do not think the Kingston Chamber of Commerce were caught with their mainsails aloft when they accepted the challenge. The Kanny Kingdon Krew, in this department's opinion got the best of the bargain even in defeat. The least it will cost them is their dog-eared dollar bills—and it being Saturday, they will suffer no lost time from their various occupations. They will likely get the chance to do some free-loading, and to show the Kingston populace what a fine, upstanding bevy of citizens represent the Old Lady of the Moira in a Chamber of Commerce capacity.

Then there is the wear and tear on the chief magistrates of the two cities. Mayor Wright of Kingston, a self-admitted rider of years ago, states he will be on familiar ground when he feels the leather, palomino, Clydesale or whatever piece of animated cat-foot the Limestone Chamber dips out of retirement. We are informed there is an ancient equine landmark down Kingston way called "Harriett of the Heaven." If this ruler of the gay nineties is taken out of captivity for the purpose, Mayor Wright may furnish the spectacle of doing the mambo while in sitting position.

And if the backbone of the nag resembles an old-fashioned washboard His Worship may find himself eating his meals off the family platter for the next two weeks.

On the other hand or foot, Mayor Both, a right merry trudger from way back—will be in his glory, leading the mayor-laden Dobbin along Kingston's main stem. In good physical shape after his fistic-puffing calisthenics with Mayor Ross Barrett of Trenton a few weeks ago, the Belleville chief magistrate's only qualm could be the possibility of a slight attack of flat feet. It has been suggested he might wear stilts so the event can get a good look at him.

However, it is only good, clean fun, and the respective heads of the respective cities, who are the best of friends, are to be complimented on a fine spirit of inter-city sportsmanship.

SECOND VICTORY

Earl Anderson's Point Anne Cementmen, walked off with their second straight victory over the Bobcaygeon Bobcats (or is it Minchuks?) in the O.H.A. Intermediate "C" playdown series last night to lead their best-of-five series two games to none. The third fixture is slated for the northern village Wednesday night and should the Bobcats pull an upset the fourth game will be here on Friday night.

The score was 70-7 with the Strahan-Gilmour-Scott line leading the Williams-coached clan. Gilmour had the hat trick and assist, while Scott and Strahan scored once each and added three assists. Lee Doyer also tallied a trick. George Nicholls fired three goals in defeat with Phillips getting two.

Coach Skinner Says Team Has Not Worked Out in Weeks; Bruins Look Feeble in Win

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—This is not to say Toronto Maple Leafs are setting but Detroit Red Wings figure they don't have to practise to beat them in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"We haven't had a workout in weeks and we don't intend to," says Red Wing coach Jimmy Skinner.

Nobody can knock his kind of reasoning, particularly with the Detroiters riding a 3-game undefeated streak and holding a 3-0 edge in the best-of-seven semi-final series against Leafs. They are overwhelming favorites to clean it up in the fourth game here tonight.

TAKING IT EASY

Skinner, who hastens to say, however, that his regards Leafs as the toughest of playoff opponents because of their defensive play, won't let his big guns work up a sweat unless it's for the real thing. Such players as the twinings Gordie Howe, leftwinger Ted Lindsay, centre Alex Delvecchio and defenceman Terry Sawchuk haven't practised since the beginning of March.

"Just a few of our boys—the ones who don't get too much work during a game — practise these days," Skinner said Monday night on the eve of the fourth engagement. "And they just skate around a bit, taking shots at our spare goalkeeper."

He added:

"Hockey players are human beings, you know. It's hard work getting that equipment around the rink in a practise. We let them rest unless they're stale. If they're not ready after a few games second rate they'll never be ready."

SOME PRACTISED

Seven Detroit players practised Monday. They were defencemen Jim (Red Eye) Hay, Bill Dineen, Benny Woit, Vic Stasiuk, Marcel Bonin, Johnny Wilson and stand-by goaltender Andrew Payette of Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Hockey League.

Leafs had plenty of playtry out for a practice. The emphasis, as usual, was on shooting. Toronto's main weak point. Leafs lost the first game 7-4, second 3-1 and the third 3-1.

Coach King Clancy says Leafs need only "a few breaks" to get back in the series.

"We should blow won the last two games. Somehow or other we played our best game on Saturday. I don't agree. We played well enough to win but I think we played our best game of the series in Detroit last Thursday."

If Leafs come up with a victory tonight, the series goes to Detroit for a fifth game Thursday.

BOSTON (AP)—Montreal Canadiens, with a 3-1 lead in their best-of-seven National Hockey League semi-final playoff series, return to Boston Garden tonight.

The big question seems to be whether the Bruins, who were a hard-hitting and hustling club in their 4-2 victory here Sunday night, can keep up that pace.

Boston looked feeble much of the time while dropping the first two games of the series in Montreal, 5-0 and 3-1.

In the third tilt, however, coach Milt Schmidt's club came out in the first period and really dug. They wound up with five of the seven penalties called in that session by referee Frank Udvari, but bagged three goals—enough to clinch the triumph.

BIG LIFT

The Bruins doubtless got a big lift from the packed 13,909 crowd and friendly fans for the last time out. Only the visitors' impassiveness and the snapping of their sticks almost turned the trick.

Coach Dick Irvin of the Canadiens dismissed the loss last time as "just a game right for the birds. Disgustingly poor. I guess the players thought they would be ready to roll over and be nice guys."

Schmidt pointed out that his club was "determined to bump them around because we've beaten them only when we've stepped into them."

NO PACING

He said he had no intention of telling his players to try to pace themselves tonight, adding: "It's too late to do that now. Our plan is to go all-out from the start and "we'll see if it works as well."

Boston will have but one lineup change for the game, Fleming Mackell, centre forward, will be available for at least limited duty after missing the last game because of a high temperature.

To make room for him, young Gordie Wilson, up from Hershey in the American League, will step out.

Veteran Sugar Jim Henry will be in the nets again, as he was in the previous contest.

The fifth game will be played in Montreal Thursday night with a sixth game, if necessary, back here Sunday night.

Vancouver Given Game for Solid Business Reasons

TORONTO (CP)—The 1955 Grey Cup final went to Vancouver for "solid business reasons," Harry McHerien, Canadian Rugby Union secretary, said Monday.

McHerien, in a statement from the week-end CRU annual meeting at Vancouver where the game was awarded the Nov. 26 football classic, was swamped throughout the day by people wanting to know why the venue was changed from Toronto to Vancouver.

McHerien had a stock answer: "Because it is solid business procedure. Add Empire Games at no increase of $80,961 over the 1954 net gain. Who is going to turn that down?"

CIVIC APATHY

It was learned from one responsible official that apathy of Toronto civic and city officials in the final had an effect on the voting for the switch of venues.

He said that the $10-a-plate Grey Cup dinner was staged without any backing from the city. Only the pregame parade and Miss Grey Cup beauty contest were the only show biz provided by the Toronto Junior Board of Trade without civic backing and that the post-game civic reception practically ignored the western cup finalists.

"Last year, Edmonton Eskimos received only 20 invitations to the civic reception. Edmonton had a party of about 40, including the players, and some players had to 'bargain' their way in past officials at the door," the official said.

Regina Pats Move Into Finals

REGINA (CP) — Regina Pats moved into the Abbott Cup final for the second time in four years tonight when they defeated Humboldt Indians 8-1 here before 3,581 fans.

Victory, the fourth straight for Regina, gave the Western Junior League champions a four-of-seven series 4-1. Pats now meet Fort William Canadiens or Winnipeg Monarchs in the Memorial Cup final opening here April 5.

BC Government To Make $20,000 Grant to Game

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Fred Hume, who sparked the campaign to bring the Grey Cup final here, announced Monday that the British Columbia government has agreed to make a grant of $20,000 toward the big football game.

"The grant will help paint a better financial picture in bring the classic to Vancouver," he said.

It would be turned over to the Pacific National Exhibition, and would pay the approximate rental for the stadium.

AT ANNUAL MEETING

The Grey Cup final was awarded to Vancouver by the Canadian Rugby Union at its annual meeting during the weekend.

The meeting selected a new slate of officers, including J. P. (Jim) McCaffery of Ottawa as the new president.

He succeeds Dr. W. A. Campbell of Kingston. Mr. Snow takes the post of immediate past-president. Vice-presidents, past-presidents for 1954, was named a member of the board of governors.

Ken Preston of Toronto, representing the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, was named a member of the executive.

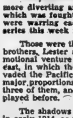
Monarchs Check Fort William Into Ice to Win

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Jagging that accounted for Fort William Canadiens into the ice Monday night, blanking the Habs 4-0 in the seventh game of their best-of-seven western Canada junior hockey semi-final series. Score now 3-3.

The teams meet here Wednesday in the deciding game.

Needing a win to avoid elimination, the Monarchs came up with their best game of the series to force a crowd of 2,500. They outshot the Forts 33-19.

Gary Starr, Curly Melenchuk, Murray Couch and Ron Farnfield accounted for the Monarchs' scoring.



In contrast to the last two games, the contest was clean and quiet. Only eight minor penalties were handed out.

DEMARCO EDGES MANZO

NEW YORK (AP) — Paddy DeMarco, the ex-world lightweight champion, used arm-locks, bear hugs and hot shoot everything except a flying tackle to win a split decision over Libby Manzo, a tough New Yorker, in a 10-round brawl at St. Nicholas Arena Monday night. De Marco weighed 140½, Manzo 138.

THE STANLEY CUP
Part II

Some strange, bonne blarry, semi dramatic things have happened. Incidents have punctuated the long history of the Stanley Cup, first artificial ice rink, three of them, and introduced hockey where it never had been played before.

The shadows of a major war were closing over the world in early 1914, as the Victorian, champions of the Pacific Coast, came east and were received by Governor General Duke of Connaught, to found a new professional league of major proportions. The Pacific Coasters added the first artificial ice rink, three of them, and introduced hockey where it never had been played before.

The shadows of a major war were closing over the world in early 1914, as the Victorian, champions of the Pacific Coast, came east and were received by Governor General Duke of Connaught, to found a new professional league of major proportions. The Pacific Coasters added the first artificial ice rink, three of them, and introduced hockey where it never had been played before.

The world was at war the next year, and war between the two big hockey leagues was starting to cloud sports skies. West Coasters purloined Tommy Smith of Quebec, who had let the masters down two successive years. Under pressure, they returned him, but the peace was an uneasy one. And when the 1915-16 season ended, Canada's first conscription calls reached their stockades had been invaded, for, as Seattle lined up for its opening game, they had in goal "Happy" Holmes, Ken Carpenter, Foyston and Walker of the former champion Toronto.

The fight was on. The eastern league had agreed in subject itself to draft by the young, powerful western body. But when pretty nearly an entire team was filched by the daring raiders, the east rebelled.

But the dispute still prevailed in the spring of 1918. Even then, the magazine of each league were by no means ready to hurry the matter. Neither were they inclined to pass up the spoils of a Cup series. So, during a brief truce, the Stanley Cup series was played in Montreal, Canadiens defeated the Portland Rosebuds, the Cup became Montreal Habs' warfare, though it was settled soon after by a peace agreement.

(This concludes the two-article series about the Stanley Cup. Next week in this column, Elmer Ferguson will examine some of Canada's problems in the 1956 Olympic games.)

K-W Dutchmen Square Series With Greyhounds, Winning 4-1

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, erupting for more goals in one game than in their previous three, defeated Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 4-1 here Monday night to square the All-Ontario senior A hockey championships.

The game, which tied the best-of-seven finals 2-2, marked the first game in the series that the teams have been separated by more than two goals. Greyhounds won the first game 1-0, dropped the second 5-0 and took the third 3-1.

A crowd of 4,845 fans watched Monday night's victory, which gave Dutchmen the satisfaction of knowing the series will finish on their home ice. Fifth game of the set is here tonight and the sixth and seventh, if necessary, will be in Kitchener.

The winner of the series moves into the eastern Canada Allan Cup final against Moncton Hawks.

NO TROUBLE

The Dutchmen, plagued by the tight-checking of the Greyhounds in the previous games, had no trouble Monday night, taking a 1-0 lead in the first four minutes of play and increasing it to 3-0 by the 13-minute mark.

Charlie Brooker, who was out of the lineup the first game of the series, scored Kitchener's first two goals to wrap up the decision. He now has three markers in the three games he has played. Henry Lee and Jackie Hamilton insured the victory with single counters.

Ron Hurst tallied Sault Ste. Marie's only goal and it came in the first period after Kitchener's first three.

The Dutchmen, Allan Cup winners in 1952-53, were tagged with seven of the 12 minor penalties. Only two of the game's five goals were scored with the teams at full strength.

TWO ABSENT

Brooker's first marker was scored with Marcel Clements of the Greyhounds off for interference. His second came while Clements and Ted Kemp of the Dutchmen were in the penalty box. Lee's goal was also scored while that pair was off.

Bobby Bauer, coach of the Dutchmen, benched George Scholes before the game for ineffective play. Bob White, who played this season with Kitchener-Waterloo Canucks of the OHA Junior A league, took his place and played his first senior game.

With Don Rope out of the lineup for the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A champs with torn knee ligaments, Sault Ste. Marie coach Johnny O'Flaherty dressed Pentti Lund, former forward with New York Rangers in the National Hockey League.

Jim McBurney, Jim Simpson and Ronnie Lacey, all suffering from minor injuries, played for Greyhounds.

Run Black Border

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Gloom, expressed by the local newspaper, descended on fans of the city's hockey team Monday.

The St. Catharines Standard, which ran a "Go TeaPees Go" sign atop its leading local news page throughout this month's hockey playoffs, Monday carried in its place a blank space surrounded by a heavy black border.

Reason? St. Catharines TeaPees, last year's Memorial Cup winners, were eliminated by Toronto Marlboros Sunday from the Ontario Hockey Association junior A championship.

Phillies, Braves, Pirates And Red Sox Golden Boys Of Spring Exhibition Schedule

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It doesn't seem like it's being built around the pennant races and the better way, but right now it's the Philadelphia Phillies, Milwaukee Braves, Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Red Sox who are the golden boys of baseball's spring exhibition schedule.

Only one of the four—Milwaukee—figures as a pennant contender. The Phils seem to lack power. Pittsburgh doesn't have the experience, and the Red Sox don't have Ted Williams.

Yet, Philadelphia is the winningest exhibition club to date, winning 19 of its 25 spring games. That's the best record (.857) in either league. Milwaukee follows with a .643 percentage on a 9-5 record. Pittsburgh and Boston both are 10-6 for a .625 mark.

Manager Phiky Higgins' Red Sox have the best record on a sixty-day league basis, however. They've won seven of eight against clubs from the Texas and Cactus Leagues.

There wasn't much but rain and bad weather on the exhibition schedule Monday. Just three games survived the elements.

Pittsburgh beat St. Louis 3-1, with Preston Ward hitting a two-run single in the third.

The New York Giants scored five runs in the eighth to overhaul the Chicago Cubs, 6-5, on a dash-locking run in the ninth and broke it open with four in the 10th off Rueben Gomez for a 14-11 decision.

Kansas City defeated the Detroit Tigers 3-2 behind the six-inning, three-hit pitching of rookie Art Ceccarelli.

Detroit Lions Permitted to Sign Player Under Contract With Als

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—A National Football League rule prohibiting the signing of college players until January of their graduating year was a factor in the ruling by NFL commissioner Bert Bell permitting Detroit Lions to sign a player already under contract to Montreal Alouettes of the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union.

The January rule, which gives Canadian clubs a two-month head start in the annual "war" between Canadian and American football clubs over playing talent, came up in Monday's NFL executive committee meeting.

While representatives of Big Football Leagues are free to sign United States campuses in search of playing talent as soon as two Canadian seasons end in November, the NFL doesn't permit its clubs to go after college talent until after the league's annual draft meeting in January.

DETROIT ARGUMENT

The Detroit club advanced this argument in the case of halfback Gordon Matley, whom Montreal Alouettes grabbed late last year and who subsequently also signed a Lion contract after he was drafted by the Detroit club.

At the time prospects were bright for a settlement of the NFL's differences with the Canadian league over respecting each other's contracts and option agreements. In the interests of international amity Bell, disallowed Detroit's contract with Matley and ruled that he belonged to Montreal.

SETTLED ISSUE

Detroit's protest against Bell's ruling was one of the principal causes for the calling of Monday's NFL executive meeting. But Bell retiled the issue in advance by reversing himself, influenced by the signing of a couple of NFL players by Canadian teams as well as by Detroit's argument citing the January rule.

Monday's meeting upheld both Bell's right to disallow contracts and an individual club's right to protest his rulings. The executive also agreed to Bell's suggestion to seek agreement with Canadian teams on a club-by-club basis rather than continue negotiations for an over-all agreement on player rights.

Bell said it would be useless to seek general agreement with the Canadians as long as they lack a spokesman with authority to speak for all clubs in the Big Four and WIFU.

She will enter the water for the 16-miles-plus swim about three miles from the point where Princess Chadwick started her unsuccessful try last year.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers look big and tough and appear to be feeling the same way about their spring training search out of Florida on their exhibition tour.

Talking with manager Walt Alston and key members of the club, one senses that the Dodgers still are hungry for another pennant-winning performance last year and are going after it in a big way.

The sophomore manager is inclined to underplay the somewhat bellicose spirit of his athletes to the fact that they believe both pitcher Don Newcombe and catcher Roy Campanella are prepared to come back with big seasons.

Newcombe played a prominent part in last year's debacle, if that is the word for finishing five games out of first place. The big right-hander, just back from the army, won only nine games while losing eight and had an unlightly earned-run average of 4.36. He had control trouble and a crick in his throwing shoulder.

To appreciate fully what big Newk's failure meant to the club, it is necessary only to recall that in the three campaigns before Uncle Sam called he successively won 17, 19 and 20 games.

This spring Newcombe has been going up to a dozen innings in a row without giving a base on balls.

"As for Campanella," Alston comments, "he's hitting those bullets of his again."

Last year, handicapped by a semi-paralyzed catching hand, the chubby catcher hit only .207 and drove in but 51 runs. The previous year the figures had been .312 and 142.

Point Anne Takes Two Game Lead Over Bobcaygeon

By GARRY ALEXANDER)

Jumping into a 6-3 lead in the fifth period, the Point Anne Cementmen rocked on to a very 10-7 victory over the Bobcaygeon team before a very small crowd at Memorial Arena last night to take a two game to none stranglehold in their best-of-five O.H.A. Intermediate "C" series. The third game is scheduled in Bobcaygeon on Wednesday evening.

The local squad spotted the visitors the initial goal, tied it and went behind before they did their stride to sling home five in a row and grab a 6-3 lead at the 12:00 minute mark. Bobcaygeon latched one more in that period. Each team hit the twine once in the middle session and the Bobcats finished the game with a trio after the Pointers had tallied three quickies in the opening minutes of the final stanza.

Kimble was the marksman on the Point Anne attack and assisted his fellow Cementmen ahead to stay with Gerry Goyer. Johnson and Bill Hurst adding the other Point Anne goals and Ernie Nichols from Gerry Goyer scoring for the losers before the period closed.

DREW ONLY PENALTY

Pat Gilmour drew the only penalty in a very clean period which was called twice while he was off.

George Nichols cut the winner's lead to 6-4 at 1:21 of the second beat; roaring in on a clean breakaway before Gerry Goyer slung in a short drive. Pat Gilmour took Billy Strahan's pass and worked his way in close to set the puck back at 13:49 and the period ended with Point Anne on top 7-4.

Leo Goyer sparked the winners in the early minutes of the final session, tallying a pair in 27 seconds. His first came at the four-minute mark on a solo effort, sinking a long drive to the corner and he followed up by tipping in Jud Semark's pass on Russ Nichols short side.

Pat Gilmour blasted a short drive between the goalie's pads at 5.21 to make it 10-4 but George Nicholls who played an outstanding game for the losers came back with a pair, the second on Ernie Nicholl's pass into a goal at 5.49 and rifled home a blue - line bullet from Poole and Packer on the power play at 8.06.

With Semark off for high sticking around the ten-minute mark, big John Green handed out the hardest body check of the night, shaking up Phillips as he attempted to make a play along the boards. It was a clean check with no penalty assessed.

Phillips gained partial revenge however at 12.30 when he raced in on a clean breakaway to tally the final marker of the game with Ernie Nicholls assisting.

SPARKED ATTACK

The Jos Scott - Pat Gilmour - Bill Strahan trio sparked the winner's attack with four points each. Gilmour registering three goals and one assist while his mates scored one and three. Leo Goyer also had three goals, Gerry Goyer a goal and two helpers while Hurst scored the odd goal and Semark had one assist. George Nicholls paced the losers with three goals on which Ernie Nicholls had a goal and two assists. Phillips hit the scoop twice and Kimble once while Irving Nicholls and Packer chipped in two assists each. Poole and Percy Nicholls helped on one goal.

Point Anne drew all four of the minor penalties while Bobcaygeon have yet to earn a sentence in the series.

Ready to Build Large Stadium Says Sportsman

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto sportsman said Monday he represents wealthy business interests that would build a stadium, sufficient in size for the annual Grey Cup playoff, if city council will supply the site.

Joseph Keenan, chairman of the Keen - Sheridan Stadium Committee, made the statement following an appeal by Mayor Nathan Phillips for 20 philanthropic millionaires "to contribute to Toronto's future greatness."

Mayor Phillips said he will hear Mr. Keenan and his backers early next week.

Earlier Monday the mayor was quoted as saying Toronto "must win back the Grey Cup." He suggested enlargement of Maple Leaf Stadium or construction of an entirely new one.

Mr. Keenan has proposed parkland east of east-end Riverdale Park as the site for the stadium which he said his backers would be willing to build.

Game Proceeds Of All-Stars For Children

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fifth annual East-West all-star hockey game may be some consolation to Toronto, losers in the bid to host the 1956 Grey Cup final.

The game will bring together all-stars from the East and the West as selected by sportswriters sportscasters and coaches in the annual Canadian Press poll and all proceeds will be funneled to the Sick Children's Fund for Crippled Children.

Winnipeg's Ralph Missenor, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the benefit, says here the only logical venue is Toronto.

"We'll know in 20 days or so if the game will be played," he said. "It's probable the game will alternate between East and West, depending on where the Grey Cup is played."

States People Want More Roads And Less Talk

TORONTO (CP)—Lands Minister Macpherson told the legislature Monday night that people in his riding of Port William are tired of the subject of highways irregularities and want the government to get on with the job of road-building.

Mr. Macpherson was the last speaker in the debate on irregularities in highways department operation and highways contracts.

Earlier, Premier Frost denied a charge that two highways department engineers were pressured into pleading guilty to charges in connection with contract irregularities.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab—Kenora) and A. R. Mills, former divisional engineer at Port William, and Donald Patterson, former divisional engineer at Huntsville, were pressured by someone into pleading guilty.

WREN CONTENTION

The two men "were no more guilty of offences than a good many others," said Mr. Wren. "They were merely carrying out activities that had been going on for some time."

Mr. Frost said the two engineers pleaded guilty without any pressure being put on them.

G. C. Wardrop (PC—Port Arthur) interjected that Mr. Mills was a friend of his and "I was not true that pressure had been put on him to plead guilty."

Mr. Wren renewed an opposition demand for a royal commission to investigate the highways department operations and contract irregularities.

TREASURER ESTIMATES

Earlier in the day the premier reported to the legislature on estimates of the treasury department for the year starting April 1.

The premier took issue with a magazine (Maclean's) article which said the Ontario racing commission allowed lame horses to run at race tracks in the province.

The racing commission comes within the provincial treasurer's department headed by Premier Frost. Commission chairman is magistrate Tupper Bigelow.

Premier Frost said no scandal existed and conditions mentioned in the article by Dr. George Cairns covered racing in 1951, a year after the racing commission was organized.

TABLOID ARTICLE

The premier tabled the article by Dr. Cairns, replaced in 1952 as chief veterinary at Ontario race tracks.

The article said owners were icing horses, applying ice packs to lame legs and joints, and running them as sound horses on which the public wagered.

Expert opinion showed that icing did not remove lameness but only soothed joints or limbs, Premier Frost said.

J. S. Dempsey (PC — Renfrew South) recommended that the province consider legalized bookmaking and sweepstakes. Bookmaking was going on all over the province but was still illegal.

He could not understand why thousands of dollars was allowed to go out of the country to support Irish hospitals' sweepstakes.

ASKS NIGHT-RACING

Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver asked the government to consider night-racing which had "a measure of merit."

The premier said night-harness racing in New York state has attracted criminal elements and there is not satisfied such elements have been completely removed. He was against leaving Ontario open to them.

The Kibitzer

The way to scare Elva Tyme is to open with a bid of two in a suit when she is your partner. Such a bid ordered her to keep the bidding alive to at least a game. Just when Elva has nothing.

She could have the north hand shown here:

♠ 3 8 4 3
♥ 9 7 5
♦ 4 2
♣ Q 6 5 2

The bidding starts off like this:

South	North
2 Hearts	2 No-trump
3 Diamonds	4 Clubs

What is south saying with his two bids? What is he expecting north to do about it? What should north do about it with the hand you see? Consider what south has been showing.

An opening of two in suit guarantees nine tricks and says it should reach at least a game. Immediate response of two no-trump is the convention signal for denying a sure trick by responder.

South's second bid gives partner a chance to show if he has support for either red suit. Since this bid of three diamonds not at a game, north must keep going.

North bids a suit bid of any kind, either takeout or assist. The only bid left is no-trump. So, he should bid three no-trump. This is merely complying with the request not to stop short of game.

Does north fear it will be left in three no-trump? If so, it means that south does not have a reliable-ish red suit. In that case it belongs in no-trump instead of a suit.

Remember that the opening two bidder promised nine tricks. If his tricks are not in long and short suits, they must be in high cards. Therefore, he has stoppers in the other suits.

Opener says he can take care of the situation if partner will only tell the truth. So, there is nothing to be scared about.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was looking in my little red book called 1001 Intriating Facts while I was getting ready to do my homework, and I said to pop, Hay pop, how far away do you think the sun is?

A goodly piece, pop said, and I said, Its more than 90 million miles away.

That sounds like a good safe distance, except on unusually hot days, pop said. Has that got anything to do with anything of immediate importantz? he said, and I said, Sure, pop, it's got to do with this little book. I forgot I had it and I just found it in the back of my desk. It's got a thousand and one facts in it. Oh boy, imagine knowing a thousand and one facts that hardly anybody eits knows, I said.

Preston Kewzen knew more facts than that, pop said. I used to ask him for information when I was in doubt about the latitude of the Ichy Islands or the altitude of the Venus D. Milo, he said, and I said, Gosh, he must of had an even bigger book than mine.

He didn't need a book, pop said. He had the facts all crammed in his head. You could ask him anything at all and get a reasonable answer. He knew that the spiny woozle grows upside down in Australia and a useless kind of cheese is made from its milk, and he knew that the bicycp berd lays flat eggs to keep them from rolling off of round surfaces, pop said, and I said, G, he must of been fun to talk to.

He was while he lasted, pop said. His mind was so cluttered with interesting facts,that there wasn't an inch of room left for anything practical, such as the difference between red and green traffic signals, pop said, and he was always tripped out in the street when the signal was red Now get hizzy, he said.

Meenlag on my homework.

AT THE McCARTHY

What has been called "the liveliest cops-and-robbers opus in a long, long time," Columbia Pictures' "Father Brown, Detective" rom at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. The Facet Production stars Alec Guinness, famed for "The Man in the White Suit" and "The Captain's Paradise," a comedian whose presence on the screen in any sort of role is virtual guarantee of frolicsome entertainment.

Mr. Guinness plays the title role of the new film, a special kind of private eye, in a screenplay based upon the memorable Father Brown stories by G. K. Chesterton, and as "The Detective" Mr. Guiness blithely tracks down an international art thief in order to reform him.

Keeping a constant step ahead of Scotland Yard, Guinness not only gets him man but he gets his man behind bars, and wins the girl in the case. Reportedly, it takes a little doing, but Guinness' previous performances on the screen have satisfactorily demonstrated the star's ability to do practically anything, and to do it with a gusto that has won him international acclaim.

Also starred in "The Detective" are winsome Joan Greenwood, and handsome Peter Finch. Miss Greenwood, who appeared opposite Guinness in both "The Man in the White Suit" and the memorable "Kind Hearts and Coronets," in which he played eight different roles, is the girl in the case, a wealthy art collector who is aided by the ingenious and ingenuous sleuth. Finch appears as the art thief who evades Guinness' various efforts to ensnare himself when he listens to the dictates of his own conscience and the romantic promptings of his own heart.

2nd feature is "The Gay Adventure" with Burgess Meredith and Jean Pierre Aumont.

Matter of Haircuts No Joke To Cummings in TV Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The matter of haircuts is no joke, not to Robert Cummings. Since he started his new TV show on Sunday night for NBC, he has been sporting a crew cut.

"That means I have to get a trim twice a week," said Bob. "I didn't know what a production I was getting into. I have it done by the Clark Gable of barbers—a fellow who does crew cuts for guys like Spencer Tracy, etc.

"This requires about an hour and 15 minutes in the chair, so naturally he expects a two-dollar tip. Then there's $1.75 for the haircut. It costs to get my coat back, I might splurge and get a manicure. By the time I get out of the place, I can spend between five and seven dollars."

$500 ANNUALLY

Bob wasn't too alarmed by this sum until his money-minded wife Mary points out that his annual barber bill would come to around $500.

"Do you know how much money you have to earn in order to have $500 left over?" he said. "Around $4,000."

The sum of $4,500 for haircuts may seem monstrous, but it's true. Cummings is in an income tax bracket that allows him to keep only one out of every eight dollars he earns. Although the crew cut is necessary for his TV role, it is not considered a deductible expense.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, March 30, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—To all of us come days when we think we have had luck, or things are worse for us than for most. It is well indeed that we have such days, otherwise we would grow stale. Capitalize on talents now.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—This is no day for "just thinking" about duties, but a period for your best brain work — plus patience. The rewards will be gratifying, so pitch in with Taurus' innate cheerfulness.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — If you are genuinely interested in your tasks and other matters, you won't rebel at occasional delays, either be more concerned at what caused them, and how they can be remedied — by you.

June 22 to July 21 (Cancer) — If you are conscientious and industrious, there's no need for you to lose out today, even in difficult matters. Keep in mind that anything worth doing is worth doing well.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Couple your innate enthusiasm with your know-how and stick to your tasks. You will achieve faster, better than many. All useful activities favored.

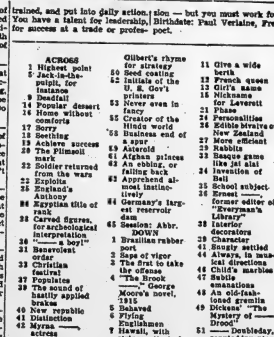
August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Don't be too set in your ideas. Activities, business, most things call for elasticity of mind, the new and valuable in methods, materials, etc. Work with the soundly progressive.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — An astute study of events and conditions, coupled with your knowledge and experience, should prove valuable. With proper effort your percentage of good results should be high.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You have great stamina but progress could be accelerated by scientific thinking, and by doing the best that can be done with the tools at hand. Do your best, it will be good.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Many lines of business and work are favored today but your own intelligence must be applied to bring about desired results. Have faith. Don't worry.

December 22 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — It would be wise to have a sort of blueprint of what you intend to do and how best to start now. Simplify matters, get to the core of things for best results. Good rays.



January 21 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Good thinking and careful allocating of duties with less time spent on uncessentials will put you in line for gains and bring personal satisfaction for having done your job well.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Tenacity and patience are two of your many natural assets. Both will be helpful also now, especially if new work or interests require your attention. The day favors all useful undertakings.

You born today are strong in character, determined, ofttimes too self-willed, but innately honorable and forthright. You have much talent and capability for real achievement. Remember that humility is a quality of the truly great and that graciousness and agreeable cooperation are better assets than money in the bank. Such fine qualities are available to all but must be nourished and trained, and put into daily action. Birthdate: Paul Veriaine, French poet.

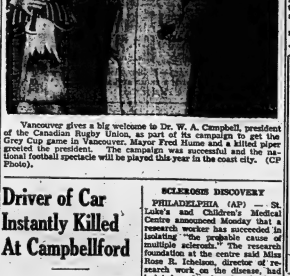
TOKYO TROOP RENDEZVOUS CLOSES



After two and one-half years of operation, the Maple Leaf Club, a popular rendezvous for Commonwealth soldiers on leave in Tokyo is closing down. One of the highlights of the club's decoration was the famous "badge board," where a collection of all the badges and shoulder flashes, representing the various Commonwealth services and units, were hung. Here the famous board is being taken down for shipment to Canada, where it will be hung in the Canadian Red Cross headquarters. Here, Sgt. Jaques Oliver of Montreal, gives Miss Louise Beauchemin, also of Montreal, a helping hand. (Central Press Canadian).

U.N. SEARCHES FOR METALS IN KOREA

Out of war's devastation in Korea may come a development in natural resources that will give a higher standard of living to Koreans than they ever had. The United Nations' Korean reconstruction agency is engaged in a search for metals such as gold, lead, copper and zinc which are known to be present in the country's rocks. Here Francis Walsh, UNIKRA engineer from Montreal, watches while laboratory technician Chang Won Pyo analyzes a sample of ore. (Central Press Canadian).

GREY CUP TO WEST

Vancouver gives a big welcome to Dr. W. A. Campbell, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, as part of its campaign to get the Grey Cup game to Vancouver. Mayor Fred Hume and a lifted piper greeted the president. The campaign was successful and the national football spectacle will be played this year in the coast city. (CP Photo).

Driver of Car Instantly Killed At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD — (Special) — Eugene Rabble, Keene, Ont., was instantly killed Monday afternoon when his car went out of control and rammed a tree on Highway 30, about six miles north of here.

Rabble, thought to be about 35, was alone in the car. Road conditions were good and it is thought the accident may have been caused by a mechanical defect.

The car skidded about 300 feet along the highway before turning over against the tree. No other cars were on the highway at the time.

Dr. D. W. Burgess, Campbellford, who was called to the scene by police, said death was due to multiple head injuries.

OPP Const. Arnold Radle, Campbellford detachment, investigated.

SCLEROSIS DISCOVERY

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — St. Luke's and Children's Medical Centre announced Monday that a research worker has succeeded in isolating "the probable cause of multiple sclerosis." The research foundation at the centre said Miss Rose R. Ichelson, director of research work on the disease, had isolated and cultured spirochete mycelophthores, which the foundation described as the probable cause of the crippling nerve disease.

CREW TO STAY ON ICEBOUND SHIP UNTIL BREAK-UP

Three men are trapped in this fishing tug—the Yarken Number—on Lake Huron, one mile south of Southampton. Food is being brought to the men by means of a lifeboat which can come close to the ship so that sleds can be hauled across the ice to the crew. The men intend to stay aboard until the ice breaks up. (Central Press Canadian.)

PASSENGERS WALK AWAY FROM STRANDED OCEAN LINER

This is one case where liner passengers walked back from their ocean voyage. The ship is the Dutch passenger liner Veendam, and she is caught in a hard and fast on the rocks of Plymouth, England, where she was driven by a 60-mph gale. Her 248 passengers walked across the rocks, leaving the huge ship to be refloated. (Central Press Canadian).

Little Benny's Note Book

I was playing Forrin Intrigg with Puds Simkins, me being Operator Number one and Puds being Operator Number 2, and we were up on the 2nd Avenue shadowing people and looking for clews, and I said, On the trale, Number 2, look who's snooping around the bank.

Meening a short narrow man walking up and down in front of the bank with a kind of a doubtful expression, and Puds said, Oh boy, he's a special envoy from Klotsburgen just waiting till the coast is clear.

Sure, he's going to draw out a million dollers to arm an army and attack us, I said, and Puds said, That's just what I thought, Number One.

Which just then the man started to walk up the steps into the bank, and I said, Oh boy, if you ever saw a silly look he's got it. That's the next step, Number 2? I said.

Let's follow him and find out for sure and then report to the head of the War Departmint, Puds said, and I said, On the trale.

And we went in the bank and the man was on the end of a line in front of one of the little windows, and we got right behind him and moved up in back of him secret till he got to the window and said, I'd like to cash this check for 13 dollers, but I'm not quite sure if my account is good for that much.

I'll look it up, the bank man said, and he went away and came back, saying, You can just make it, Mr. Barkens, you've got 13 dollers and 13 cents.

And the man took the money and started to go out looking as if he felt lucky, and the Forrin Intrigers quick got out of the line, Puds saying, He saw us in back of him, Number One, that's why he changed his mind.

PREMIERS MEET

Prime Minister St. Laurent (left) greets Italy's Premier Mario Scelba as the latter arrives in Ottawa during his visit to Canada. The two national leaders held talks in Ottawa before Premier Scelba went to Washington. (CP Photo).

TRUCE COMMISSION

Brig. Sherwood Lett (left), Canadian delegate to the International supervisory commission for Vietnam, talks with chairman M. J. Desai, the Indian delegate. The meeting was in Haiphong, Indo-China. The persons at the rear are unidentified. (CP from National Film Board.)

ON THE AGENDA: SQUIRRELS

Subject of the conversation between President Eisenhower, right, above, and Bernard Baruch, advisor to many U.S. presidents, is not the atom bomb, high finance or international politics. It is about squirrels, the ones that have been, nibbling away at the greens around the White House in Washington. One of the squirrels, left, was caught by the cameraman in the act of eyeing one of the president's golf balls, but the order has gone out —Squirrels Vamoose! Mr. Eisenhower says he did not issue the order, but the little rodents have, nevertheless, been trapped and removed.

Trinity L. L. Views European Scenes

MADOC — The March meeting of Trinity Ladies' Club was held at the home of Mrs. George White with a large attendance of members and visitors.

Mrs. Adams presided over the business period. Mrs. (Dr.) Anderson conducted an inspiring devotional, using as her theme, "Appreciation of the Beauties of This Earth."

Mrs. White was in charge of the interesting program. Colored pictures of Switzerland, Germany and Denmark, taken on the White's recent European tour, were shown with Mrs. White giving an informative commentary.

Mrs. Burris was in charge of an amusing contest.

Refreshments and a social hour brought the evening to a close.

Driver Decorated

TORONTO (CP)—Alex Gardiner of Toronto, representing 7,000 commercial drivers who drove throughout 1954 without a single "at fault" accident, was decorated Monday night by Highways Minister Allan of Ontario.

Twelve winners of the Ontario Safety League's medals for 20 years of accident-free driving were honored Saturday by the minister.

Those receiving 20-year-accident-free driving medals included L.F.J. Adlam of Peterborough; C. Egerdee of Kitchener and A. McGurn, Guelph.

JET-FLYING ROOF

BERYL, Utah (AP) — A jet fighter plane apparently aiming at a landing strip slashed a railroad bunkhouse Monday, but four men inside the bunkhouse and the pilot all escaped injury. The flier was a Korean exchange pilot stationed at a nearby United States air force base. Four railroad men had just gone into the bunkhouse when the jet knocked the roof off the building.

Pressure Mounts On 9 Nebraska Prison Rebels

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Pressure mounted today on nine insurgent Nebraska penitentiary convicts to surrender themselves and two captive guards.

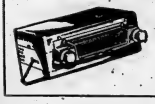
Hunger and the apparent futility of their position authorities thought, would be weighing heavily on the rebels.

Nobody knew exactly what was going on this morning in the square, three-storey penitentiary building in which the convicts and their hostages have been sealed since Sunday forenoon.

But governor Victor Anderson Monday night said he was confident the men, whose last meal was Sunday breakfast, had no food cached in the so-called maximum security building. He was certain, too, that the guards, with whom he talked Monday afternoon, remained safe.

NOTE DEMANDS

In an exchange of notes Monday the prisoners made nine "demands" covering such things as three hot meals daily, definite sentences instead of indeterminate sentences in the security building, adequate medical attention and "dismissal of all guards that we can prove to be sadists and-or headbeaters."



Anderson replied by letter that the "demands would be "carefully considered" but that there would be "no compromise."

Nothing would be done until the guards were freed unharmed.

The prisoner rebellion, largely non-violent, began about 10:30 a.m. Sunday when 12 convicts in the jail building seized the guards, threatened to kill them if their building were rushed, and promised to spell out their demands later. Three of the convicts left by agreement about 16 hours later.

Matsu Leader Expects Red Drive On Isle Any Time

Says Activity on China Coast Smells Like Trouble

By FRED HAMPSON

MATSU ISLAND (AP) — The commander of the Chinese Nationalist garrison on this far edge of the free world expects the Communists to attack at any time, but will not commit himself to a date.

Col. Hsu Kai-ming interposed events today: "It looks as though they intend to come pretty soon, maybe tomorrow, maybe next week—or it might be next year. You can't tell."

Hsu (the censor would not permit use of his full name), a tough 56-year-old Shansi native, says Red activity on the China coast since mid-February from this bleak crag smells like trouble. The signs are busier than they have been. Has said he has been told when all the seven islands under his command the Reds might choose to attack, but he said the 15 hours' estimate at 11,000) are ready all along the island chain.

AMERICAN GEAR

This six square miles of more or less perpendicular granite whose defenses is involved in American foreign policy seemed remote indeed from North America on this warm, lush day. But its soldiers have American gear and guns, revised tactics and fortifications on the island is a handful of United States Army men from the military assistance group in Formosa.

My visit to Matsu, largest island of the seven, left me with two strong opinions about these endangered pearls of the free world:

1. That Matsu itself is strongly defended and would be hard to take—but it is vulnerable like the Tachens were vulnerable to flanking attack.

2. The Reds may not be able to take Matsu, but the nearer islands of Kaoteng or Peikantang seem less strong and their loss would make Matsu's military lot even make it hard to hold and even harder to supply.

Soviet Denies Gromyko Violated Secrecy Pledge

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign ministry denied today that Andrei Gromyko had violated a secrecy pledge by revealing the Soviet Union's position at the London five-power disarmament talks.

The foreign ministry press chief told a press conference that Gromyko had merely taken advantage of his right to "correctly and fully" interpret and apparently inspired versions" of the talks which he said had been appearing in the Western press.

Today's statement was brought forth by a storm of criticism in the following Sunday's broadcast an interview with Gromyko, then chief Soviet delegate at the talks, gave to a Russian correspondent in London.

Higher Cheese Prices Forecast As Result of Act

STRATFORD (CP)—A member of the Ontario cheese marketing board Thursday predicted higher cheese prices and more money for Ontario cheese producers soon.

R. Ingersoll, the board's marketing board representative, forecast a price increase when the Ontario Dairy Industries Act comes into effect this spring or summer. He spoke at a meeting of the western Ontario cheese exchange.

Mr. Ingersoll based his prediction on the change in the system of charges for marketing the cheese. Under the old system producers pay a two-cent levy for every hundredweight of cheese marketed. Under the act they will pay a 1½ cent levy deducted from the price of milk sent to the cheese factories, to turn out the government.

Urge Big Drive To Bring Millions Into Unions

CLEVELAND (AP) — The CIO Auto Workers Union today offered to put up a dollar for each of its 1,300,000 members in finances with other unions a drive to organize millions of non-union workers.

The proposal is in a resolution the 3,000 UAW delegates are expected to adopt at their annual convention here. It says that when the proposed AFL-CIO merger is accomplished every union should put up a dollar for every present member into a pooled fund to organize new members.

'Opinion Hardens' British Election Coming on May 26

LONDON (Reuters)—The political correspondent of the British Press Association said "opinion in the House of Commons hardened this afternoon" that a British national election will be called for May 26.

Many members of Parliament, he added, now believe it certain that this is a more likely date than any other recently mentioned. They believe in June or October had also been talked about following reports that Prime Minister Churchill plans to retire from office in the immediate future.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A general, central and eastern North America extend clear skies and near normal temperatures during the night as a large high pressure area continues to dominate the weather pattern. Cloudy skies and the high pressure area drifts slowly southward southerly winds will bring milder air into Ontario Thursday.

NON-CONFIDENCE MOTIONS DEFEATED BY GOVERNMENT

Votes End Eight-Day Debate on Jobless

OTTAWA (CP)—Two opposition motions of want-of-confidence demanding government action to meet the unemployment problem have been defeated.

Tuesday night ending a spasmodic eight - day debate which began a month ago, the government voted 121 to 71 against a Progressive Conservative motion and 116 to 79 against a CCS motion.

The straight party votes, with the Liberal majority against combined opposition groups, were on Conservative Leader Diefenbaker's program to meet "this emergency" and on the CCF demand for immediate assumption of responsibility for all able-bodied unemployed and a long-term program of public investment and economic development.

The closing day of the debate brought repeated opposition declarations by Prime Minister St. Laurent enter the debate with a statement of government plans for action.

ACCUSE ST. LAURENT

Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) accused St. Laurent of "sitting on strike and of abdicating leadership by saying nothing.

Gordon Graydon (PC — Toronto Broadview) said cabinet ministers "just don't give a hoot" about unemployment and charged Mr. St. Laurent with misleading Canadians by saying unemployment is being discussed at the April 25 Federal-provincial conference here.

Harold E. Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) said the prime minister shows the same attitude as petitioners in the current series of demonstrations at Ottawa: "He stays glued to his seat."

The target of their criticism was absent from the chamber most of the day. Health Minister Martin said at one point that Mr. St. Laurent was busy in his office on important business of Canadian welfare. However, the prime minister was present for the two votes.

Each of the opposition attacks were government figures showing steadily rising unemployment in the first two months of the year. The latest statistics, issued during the debate, showed that the number of persons receiving unemployment insurance benefits during the week ended March 12 totalled 478,000, a 39,000 increase over the previous week and 229,000 more than a year ago.

GIVES GOVERNMENT

Opposition Leader Drew, speaking Tuesday, criticized the government for its failure to speed up its plans to meet unemployment. He said the government should use existing laws to protect producers' jobs against low-cost imports.

He said the government is going to be any attempt to use present laws to protect Canadian farmers under our free enterprise system which provides Canada with living standards we now enjoy.

Both Mr. Argue and Mr. Hees referred to a speech by Mr. St. Laurent in Quebec City last fall in which he is reported to have said the government was incompetent if it could not organize the whole country to provide full employment.

Mr. Argue said the statement is cold comfort to the unemployed who have to wait for an election to turn out the government.

Eisenhower Against Too Much Speculation, Talk About War

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower spoke out today against too much speculation and talk about war. He said it doesn't serve the cause of peace.

Eisenhower also said at a press conference that he has an information indicating the Chinese Reds plan to launch an attack soon on the Nationalist islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Admiral Robert B. Carney, chief of U. S. naval operations, has been quoted as predicting that the Communists would strike at Quemoy and the Matsus around April 15.

Asked if Carney would be reprimanded, Eisenhower said not by him.

Eisenhower said he himself was not ruling out the possibility of an attack by mid-April. But, he said, if anyone has information pointing clearly to such an attack, that person must have more information than the President of the United States.

Eisenhower said that in any top level conference of the Western powers there would, however, be many dangers involved in holding a conference without a specific list of topics to be covered.

Moscow Radio Gives New Twist To Disappearance of Malenkov

LONDON (AP) — Moscow radio gave a new twist today to the mysterious disappearance of the deposed Soviet premier, Georgi Malenkov.

There were indications that the regime had decreed a blackout on mentioning Malenkov's name in reports to the Russian people, even as it continued to publish speech-itials that he may have been liquidated.

A Moscow broadcast on the home service this morning referred to the "minister of electric stations" but did not name him. Malenkov was dropped by this after he was ousted as premier.

The same broadcast told how a Swedish delegation was entertained by the deputy minister of power stations, and pointedly named Khrushchev as Alexi Pavlenko.

The fact of Malenkov's name in the same report that mentioned his title appears to have been significant, Russia-watchers said, when Malenkov has suddenly been listed in the Soviet capital.

Moscow radio carried a detailed report on the activities of a visiting Swedish power experts headed by Pavlenko.

Rathmann told reporters on his return to Stockholm that Pavlenko "told us Georgi Malenkov had spoken his regrets that he was not able to receive us here in person because Moscow inspecting a power station."

Labor Party Leaders Decide Not to Expel Aneurin Bevan

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's Labor party leaders today decided not to expel rebel Aneurin Bevan for past defiance of their orders, but warned of "drastic action" against future violations.

After deciding to keep the fiery left-winger within the party's fold, the 28-member national executive today called for "unity and loyalty" actions to unite now "in a determined endeavor to secure the return of a Labor government at the general election"—rumored today to be coming May 26.

The executive's resolution said the parliamentary labor organization will "fully justified" in barring Bevan from its ranks two weeks ago for his refusal to follow official policy in a parliamentary debate.

It then referred to Bevan's promise to a special eight-member committee of the executive Tuesday to "observe the Labor Group in its decisions" as "a step in the right direction."

Bevan's decision still leaves Bevan outside the Labor group in Parliament. He will continue sitting in the House of Commons as an independent Labor MP, barred from taking any part officially in the activities of the group.

Frost Wants Gas Pipeline Finished by '56

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said Tuesday that Attorney-General Dana Porter will file official writ by to Edmonton within 10 days to take part in trans-Canada pipeline negotiations.

Mr. Frost announced in the Ontario legislature he had spoken to Trade Minister Howe and C. D. Tanner, president of the Trans-Canada Pipe Line Ltd., in an effort to promote action on the project west natural gas pipeline from Alberta to Ont.

"We want to see the pipeline finished by 1956," the premier said later outside the House. "We are bringing of western gas to central Canada is the most important development taking place in Canada in the foreseeable future."

He indicated the provinces of Ontario will not invest money in the $300,000,000 pipeline.

Harris May Tell Budget Secrets To Cabinet

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris may unwrap some of his budget secrets when cabinet meets Wednesday, it was understood ministers were anxious to hear what Mr. Harris plans in the way of tax cuts in the 1955-56 budget to be brought down April 5. It was also felt that Mr. Harris may tell Mr. Harris plans tax cuts both for industry and the individual taxpayer, with special emphasis on reductions in excise taxes on a wide range of consumer goods.

Coldwell Once Hid Czech Papers From Communists

TORONTO (CP) — M. J. Coldwell's bedroom once was a hiding place for Czechoslovak papers of the wartime Czechoslovakian government in exile.

The national CCF leader said Thursday night he looked after the papers to help keep them out of the hands of Communist agents.

Mr. Coldwell told a party meeting attended by a large number of Toronto's new European immigrants that his story began Feb. 14, 1948, a few days before the Communist coup which made Premier Klement Gottwald's government in Czechoslovakia.

He and his wife, now dead, and their daughter were dining in Ottawa with Czech ministry Foreign Minister Nemec, an old friend, asked him if he would take possession of the papers of the wartime Czech government which operated from London.

OFFICE NOT SAFE

"I suggested that I keep the papers in my office at the House of Commons but Nemec said that he wouldn't do. He asked me to find a place for them in my home, preferably in my bedroom, and I agreed."

The week after the dinner, said Mr. Coldwell, "the world learned of the overthrow of Benes and Masaryk."

The minister called me at the House of Commons at night of the coup . . . and Nemec and I left for my home.

WRITING STORY

"Nemec was anxious to get the papers in safe hands as he thought the Communists might be able to get them from him. He now is using some of the papers to write the story of the Czech government."

The former minister, now living in Montreal, took out Canadian but citizenship papers in 1952.

Eisenhower Backs Dulles' Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today backed Secretary of State Dulles' policy of "brinkmanship" in dealing with Communist aggression.

Eisenhower said he thinks Dulles has been misunderstood in his use of the term.

Eisenhower said that Dulles has used the term to mean that the United States must be willing to go to the brink of war in order to avoid war.

Eisenhower said that Dulles has never meant that the United States should deliberately go to war.

UN COUNCIL BLAMES ISRAEL FOR GAZA CLASH

Plans to Urge Egypt, Israel Assist Burns

By WILLIA MHARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The United Nations Security Council today is expected to urge Egypt and Israel to cooperate with Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Canada in implementing his proposals to reduce Israel-Egyptian tension.

The request is contained in a resolution co-sponsored by Britain, the United States and France. It appears to win unanimous approval by the council today.

After lengthy consideration Tuesday of a report by Burns, the council unanimously condemned Israel for the Gaza clash that killed 38 Egyptians and injured 24 others Feb. 28.

The condemnation came in a resolution submitted by the same three powers and also called on Israel to take all measures to prevent "recurrence" of the future.

BLAMES INFILTRATION

In voicing their support of the condemnatory resolution, the council backed recommendations by Burns designed to cut to a minimum future clashes between the Israel-Egyptian border that have inflamed Middle East tension.

The recommendations deal chiefly with stricter border supervision.

Burns' report did not specifically blame either side for the clashes between them. However he said Israeli infiltration from Egyptian - controlled territory was "by no means only cause of present tension, but has undoubtedly been one of its main causes."

In condemning Israel, the council implied that the Gaza attack was greatly out of proportion to whatever individual acts of provocation preceded it.

Eight Nebraska Convicts Give Up, Free Hostages

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Eight weary Nebraska penitentiary convicts ended a 33-hour siege early today and released unharmed three hostages — two guards and another convict.

The convicts surrendered after four of their number had given assurances from state Governor Victor E. Anderson as to the prison punishment. Two others refused.

The guards, 34-year-old Eugene Swanson, and Harold Miller, 42, were released first. Thirteen minutes after, the eight rebel convicts and the prisoner-hostage were ordered unguarded to the main prison buildings by the men armed with the governor, a warm meal was awaiting them.

Eleven men had been holed up since 10:30 a.m. Sunday in the Tuesday night by leaders of the three-storey brick and concrete structure separated from the other buildings on the grounds.

Their only food had been a loaf of bread and some sugar which the convicts shared with their hostages.

Race for Movie Oscars Is So Close Long Shots May Head Off Favorites

By JAMES BACON
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Hollywood's smart money talked long shots today as even the experts differed violently on who will win when tonight's Academy awards.

Crosby or Brando? Garland or Kelly? "The Country Girl" or "On the Waterfront"? With those favorites, it was even money and take you choice.

Only Jonathan O'Brien, up for a supporting role in "The Barefoot Contessa," didn't make the experts agree.

The closest finish in years raised the perennial question that the Oscar favorites might not win. Bing Crosby, Humphrey Bogart, Dorothy Dandridge and the musical "Seven Brides for Seven Brothers" rated better than an outside chance.

Hollywood's international element bought a win for Miss Dandridge, first Negro ever nominated for top Oscar, might enhance United Artists' "Carmen Jones."

So closely contested was this year's race that even such famous stars as Bing Crosby did everything but bring out their crystal ball.

In Brando's favor was the fact that the Academy can't go on much longer ignoring the many regard as the greatest living actor. But then John Barrymore never won an Oscar.

Crosby, who has made millions playing Crosby on the screen, decided on playing someone else in "The Country Girl." Add such a performance to Crosby's own personal popularity and he becomes a hard man to beat.

Among the girls it's Judy Garland, born in a vaudeville trunk, against Grace Kelly, born in a Philadelphia mansion. Miss Garland has been a favorite of the world's heartbreak kid. An Oscar would climax an amazing Hollywood comeback from a series sentimental Hollywood likes.

Miss Kelly's fame is a new thing. She gave birth to a son last Tuesday.

But Miss Kelly's favor is a tremendous talent, a craftmanship which Hollywood says don't acquire until middle career. She already is talked of as a young Bergman or Garbo.

The whole show will be telecast over NBC-TV from 10:30 p.m. EST until midnight.

Pirates' Army In South Viet Nam Is Beaten Back

National Troops Frustrate Attempt to Oust Premier

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON (AP) — National troops were concentrated at vital points throughout this South Viet Nam capital today after beating back an attempt by a private army to oust American - supported Premier Ngo Dinh Diem by force.

Twenty-six persons were reported killed and 112 wounded in the fighting which began more than four hours early this morning. French sources gave this breakdown: the national army and police six dead, 34 wounded; insurgent army, 10 dead, 20 wounded; civilians 16 dead, 58 wounded.

None of the nearly 1,000 members of foreign diplomatic, military and economic missions here was injured.

Except for the troop concentrations and a few roadblocks, there was little evidence today of the battle which broke out shortly after midnight between the national army and the private army of the Binh Xuyen Society of former river pirates.

Traffic moved normally over the Boulevard Gallieni, the main artery between Saigon and its Cholon section of Cholon. The hottest fighting had centered there in the thoroughfare. All major public utilities were functioning normally.

Heavily reinforced army units stood guard around Diems palace, the government radio station, the Binh Xuyen troops began their attack from the adjacent military compound and the botanical gardens, where two battalions of paratroops were bivouacked.

Five mortar shells fell in the palace garden but the building was not hit. Diem, who was inside, was unhurt.

Two other actions reported were a battle at the prefectural police headquarters and an attack on national army headquarters. In both the Binh Xuyen troops were beaten off and driven back to an area their forces hold between Saigon and Cholon.

Government troops have made no attempt yet to dislodge the Binh Xuyen from the headquarters of the Surete Nationale, the national police, which it controls.

The society, which has grown rich from its monopoly in local gambling and vice, also had controlled the national police force in the Saigon and Cholon prefecture, but Diem ordered it taken away from the society earlier this day. This stemmed from the Binh Xuyen's support of Premier Nguyen Hoa Hao and Cao Dai religious sects, which also have their own armies, in their fight to oust Diem. Diem has refused to negotiate with the sects unless they first disband their armies.

The United front sent another ultimatum to Viet Namese chief of state, Bao Dai, who is in France, on March 29, Diem demanding that Diem be ousted. The front members Tuesday called on Bao Dai to recall Premier Diem to form a new government.

Frogman Stays Under Water For 25 Hours

MONTREAL (CP) — Guy Cauderon, looking more like a fictional man from Mars than a human being, emerged dripping and triumphant from a glass tank Tuesday night and claimed a record for under-water endurance.

The 29-year-old Montrealer stayed underwater for 25 hours and six seconds, eclipsing a mark of 36 hours and two minutes set last month by Richard Ferg of New York.

Bowed and grotesque-like in his 70-pound of frogman's equipment Cadieux spurned offers of a wheelchair and walked a bit unsteadily to an ante-room in Montreal's Old Show Mart where the tank was set up.

The endurance test was held in conjunction with the Sportsmen's Show and an estimated 8,000 people have lined to cheer when he left the tank.

Reds Threaten Berlin Blockade By Tax Increase

BERLIN (Reuters) — Communist East Germany today threatened a new type of Berlin blockade by announcing huge increases in road taxes for vehicles travelling through the Soviet zone on the 110-mile autobahn between this city and West Germany.

Mayor Otto Suhr of West Berlin immediately branded the measure "one of the expected reactions" to ratification of the Paris treaties by West Germany.

The East German press says the tax increases are intended to make Western transport share the cost of maintaining the road.

A West Berlin city government spokesman described the rises, effective from next Friday, as "monstrous" and in effect "a cold blockade of Berlin."

EFFECT DISASTROUS

The spokesman said the tax for goods transported by road, on which the West Berlin economy depends, would increase eleven-fold. The tax for passenger transport would be the cheapest transport linking West Berlin with West Germany, would be four times as much. For private cars it would be almost twelve times the previous rate doubled.

The spokesman said the effect of the West Berlin economy would be disastrous with the major lifeline to the West cut by blockade to West Germany, prohibitively expensive.

DEPT STRIKE BAN

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Strike meetings of Australian seamen Tuesday ordered officials of the Seamen's Union to call a fall if necessary in defiance of an order prohibiting a steamer's strike, issued by an arbitration court Monday.

Whey Whisky Highballs All She Needs For 'Childbirth as Nature Intended It'

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Ellerbe W. Carter expects her eighth baby in April. As usual, she plans to deliver it herself.

Now past 40, she has brought five of her children into the world unattended. Her oldest child is 17. Her youngest is 3.

Mrs. Carter, Mrs. Carter's system consists of taking "a few whisky highballs" to relax and having her baby. "Then she resumes her housework. Mrs. Carter says she enjoys "the pregnancy of childbirth as nature intended it."

"There is no agony, no screaming pain. Usually I'm up half a minute of acute discomfort, but not long. I've had no having a tooth pulled."

Her husband, 71, a retired army general, is a member of the city council and president of the Titusville Lions Club. He also heads a realty company.

Mrs. Carter says many books on natural childbirth before attempting to deliver her own babies, and she "believes" their doctor authors.

When she is aware that the birth of a child is due, she mixes a few highballs and goes into a bedroom alone to relax and wait. When the child is born she cuts the umbilical ties the cord, bathes the baby, dresses it, then summons the other brothers and sisters and her husband.

After the baby has been properly welcomed by the family, Mrs. Carter gets herself up to her usual meal is due, and goes about her other daily household chores as usual.

Mrs. Carter says it is "very important" that the mother should stay up so that the organs can "contract back into place."

She takes the highballs to avoid "complete relaxation."

"I've never had such a relaxed state in a crowded household like mine, the whisky is necessary," she says. "I don't take enough to get drunk, or even woozy."

Mrs. Carter, a strong, attractive, gay and charming woman, does not believe in "anesthetics" for her husband and seven children. Her normal weight is a little more than 100 pounds.

Judge Anderson Gives Citizenship Papers to 19 New Canadians

Hastings County today is the home of nineteen new Canadian citizens.

They are former immigrants to Canada who received their citizenship papers from Judge J. C. Anderson, presiding over a special citizenship court here yesterday.

The former immigrants, today full-fledged citizens of Canada, were of four different European nationalities. There were four Czechs, eight Poles, five Yugoslavs and a Dutch couple.

Following the oath-taking ceremonies in the county courthouse the new citizens were guests at a welcoming reception in the Armouries, given by the Argyll Chapter of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, where they were the recipients of a fine and cheerfully impromptu oratory by leading figures in the community.

The ceremonies started in the courthouse at 2 p.m., when the new citizens and their relatives expectantly filling nearly half of the courtroom, a march of music was added the dignified dullness of the courtroom decor. It is a moot point whether the traditional full-dress uniform of RCMP was worn by MacPhee.

ALL TOOK OATH

Sitting beneath the Union Jack and the Canadian ensign, in little over a half-hour Judge Anderson had quietly swayed a group of new citizens in a way after the other they filed before the Bench, renounced their former citizenship and took the Bible in their right hands and swore:

". . . that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Second, her heirs and successors according to law and that I will faithfully observe the laws of Canada and fulfil my obligations as a Canadian citizen. So help me God."

All received their certificates of citizenship and a personally-inscribed letter from Mabel Fox, Citizenship and Immigration, J. W. Pickersgill, Seated once more in the body of the court they then scanned letters and certificates, some passing around among their friends and relatives for inspection.

Following the oath-taking Judge Anderson congratulated the new citizens, read portions of Mr. Pickersgill's letter. The message noted the privileges and responsibilities enjoyed of a citizen and invited the new citizen " . . . to share with us the ancient liberties of a free people, living together in harmony under a democratic parliamentary system, witnesses the right of all its citizens."

Judge Anderson then called Mrs. Everett Fairman, D.O.D.E., the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E., to the front of the court where she outlined I.O.D.E. aims and ideals to the citizens and extended them an invitation to the reception at the Armouries.

At the invitation of the bench, Mayor Jones, as first citizen of the city, extended "a hearty greeting."

"I hope that you live long and enjoy this democratic way of life," he said.

Judge Anderson also gave the citizens greetings on behalf of Hastings Warden Gordon Sprackett, who was unable to attend the ceremony.

The welcoming reception at the Armouries was a happy gesture on the part of the I.O.D.E. supervised by regent, Mrs. Fairman, there was a flow of comradely conversation as co-hostesses poured tea.

Prominent community figures, including representatives of service clubs, schools and the church spoke warmly of, and to, the new citizens.

LOVE OF FREEDOM

Col. Everett Fairman, CO of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, told the assembly, "Never before in history has this fair Dominion of ours enjoyed such a prominent part in the affairs of the world."

The nation, he stated, is cemented by a love of freedom "where we can live as one" with the same privileges for all and not for a group. He suggested the new citizens make a "determined effort" to learn the English language; affiliate themselves with some church and to study all levels of Canadian government.

Stressing the importance of using the franchise, he said, "Use an own good judgment in keeping this a free country and a people which we can enjoy."

Judge Anderson said new Canadians also have a wonderful heritage. "They all bring something in their background . . . something which will enrich our Canadian way of life."

He expressed the hope that the new citizens would not be regarded as New Canadians — and that they would regard themselves now as Canadians.

Mayor Both underlined the freedom of Canada and hoped this year help and those who come after you to this country, this will be the country of tomorrow.

TWO CHURCHMEN HEARD

Two churchmen, one a Canadian and an Anglican minister, the second a Rabbi and himself one of the new citizens, also addressed the assembly.

Rev. Willens, Robinson, pastor of St. Thomas', said that Canada is a "much better country" because of the new blood being transfused into it from other countries, plus the added zest new life-and vitality.

Rabbi Manasyk Kutziner, thanked those who took the oath of allegiance yesterday, had this to say: "It is a wonderful thing to say 'I am a free man' and absolutely different to feel it."

"Some people take their freedom sometimes for granted . . . they don't realize what it means to be free but we new Canadians do know what it means to be free.

In becoming a Canadian citizen "all must remember the duties as well as the privileges but the responsibilities to the country—a free, freedom-loving, prosperous one."

Representatives of business and service clubs also addressed the gathering. They were: Fred Adsetts, president, Rotary; Staff McKenna, president of Kiwanis; Mrs. Andrew Kirkpatrick, president of Soroptimists; Mrs. Isobel Wallbridge, Business and Professional Women's Club; Fred Deacon, Lions Club.

James Musgrove, director of vocational guidance at BCIVS, also spoke briefly.

Great Spectacle Of Anniversary To Be Unfolded

(This is the sixth and last in a series of articles by Harold F. Mott, past president of the Belleville Rotary Club, on Rotary's international which is celebrating the golden anniversary of its founding this year).

By HAROLD F. MOTT

From May 29 to June 2, a great spectacle will unfold in Chicago. Rotarians from every corner of the earth have already made plans to converge upon the city where Rotary was born 50 years ago, in February, 1905. In their chilas, at inter-city meetings and district conferences; through movies, radio and television broadcasts, and from public platforms, they have used the occasion of Rotary's golden anniversary to explain and demonstrate to the world the meaning of "Service Above Self."

At the scene of its simple beginning half a century ago will come the grand finale of the celebration.

Rotarians have observed many Rotary conventions will testify that they are not remarkable for the extravagance of their display. Cheerful they are, but sober; dignified, but not obtrusive. Perhaps the participation of wives and families has something to do with it. It is a fact that Rotarians bring with them to the conventions of Rotary a civic pride that makes them pillars of propriety in communities other than their own. Most completing of all, however, is the awareness of the International convention as a cosmopolitan gathering.

SOLEMN SPLENDOR

Looking backward on previous conventions evokes memories of solemn splendor in the Vienna Opera House, of suave amenities exchanged at Nice and Ostend, of the grand manner encountered in the Palais de Chaillot, Paris, and of the gardens of Versailles under a full moon.

Especially countries sent Rotarians to the international convention in Rome, many more will be represented at Chicago is still a matter of speculation. An attendance of at least 20,000 is expected. After all, this is the international convention of the Golden Anniversary Year. The retrospect of 50 years will be the dominant note.

The cherished personalities in the history of Rotary will be honored, among them Paul Harris, the founder of Rotary, who died in 1947. Huge Chicago Stadium will be the setting for a pageant which will present four 1905 members of the Rotary Club of Chicago, the then living district governors of Rotary in 63 countries, the board of directors, and an address by the president of Rotary International. The evening of the first day will see a pageant designed by that famous producer of dramatic spectacles, Helen Tiecken Gersighty. A symphonic drama, a kaleidoscope of color, song and dance involving 250 players and 100 costumes, will tell the continuing story of Rotary through the years.

A MEETING OF MINDS

Aside from these Golden Anniversary features, this year's international convention will consist mainly of functions which have become traditional. There will be addresses and panel discussions by world statesmen and leaders. An evening will be set apart for regional dinners of Rotarians from North America, the Commonwealth countries, and other geographical groups. Several magnificent balls will round out the convention.

Most significant of Rotary, however, are the numerous meetings of men in the same business or profession. These "vocational craft assemblies" provide an opportunity for men of many different countries to exchange experience with their confreres. As such, they won comment and commendation from the general French writer, Andre Siegfried:

"One would have to be rather naive to suppose that men bring only to meet in order to appreciate each other. Some contacts insufficiently prepared, can, indeed, do more harm than good. Quite otherwise is it when men of different professions, different countries and even different races come together with a common purpose as they do in the international meetings of Rotary. It is especially excellent when, for example, the French lawyer meets with American, Argentine and Egyptian lawyers. The benefit from the exchange is then unquestionable, for they learn that it is in a common quest of the same ideal of good will."

ESSENTIAL PURPOSE

In not this precisely the essential purpose of the International convention and of Rotary itself during its "Fifty Years of Service Above Self"? Here is the firm conviction that personal acquaintance between men of good will results inevitably in joint endeavors to solve problems, to break down barriers and to build a better future for mankind.

So, Rotarians at this climax of the Golden Anniversary may well find their most rewarding experiences in the informal encounters

CMHC May Issue Mortgages For Old Houses

TORONTO (CP)—Stewart Bates, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said Tuesday National housing Act mortgages may be extended to old houses to encourage the building of new houses.

Addressing the first national housing industry conference, Mr. Bates said the extending of NHA mortgages to old houses might be the next amendment to the act.

The NHA has been one of the most fluid pieces of legislation in use since the Second World War, he said. It had not been and would not become a static statute.

The conference was held in connection with the annual National House Builders Association convention.

NEW MARKET

Association vice-president Donald K. Fraser said the government should consider extending NHA to cover old houses because it would provide a new market for new houses by allowing persons in the lower income brackets to buy the older houses.

W. Hugh Shorthill, immediate past president of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards agreed it would be a help in selling new houses if CMHC could take a large percentage upstairs as old houses.

Other speakers agreed Canada's house-building industry is entering a buyer's market.

A. C. Duncan, governor of the Residential Appraisers Society, said:

"We are definitely in a buyer's market. . . Supply, particularly in the Toronto area, appears to have caught up with demand, at least among many types of housing."

TORONTO REPORT

Works Minister Winters said: "Perhaps in some areas we now are entering the stage where the buyer no longer signs up for a hole in the ground. However, a recent report from the Toronto area shows, despite all the building, less than 10 days' supply of new houses is on hand. That indicates a brisk market."

W. Hugh Shorthill, of the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards, said:

"The buyer is in the saddle now. Buyer resistance has multiplied five times in the last five years."

Miss Ruth Watson Contest Winner For Oratory

Miss Ruth Watson, 18, a Grade 13 student at the Belleville Collegiate, took first place in the finals of the Lions'-sponsored A-3 district oratorical contest in Peterborough Monday night.

Miss Watson, who won a preliminary contest in Napanee in February, is sponsored by the Belleville Lions' Club. Her victory over two other regional winners Monday, entitles her to compete in the Ontario-Quebec finals scheduled for Oshawa in April.

The district finals, held at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, included contestants from an area bordered by Brockville on the east, Alex on the west and Bancroft on the north.

Miss Watson's winning subject was "What I Would Say If I Could Do What I Want to Do."

She painted a vivid word picture of a leper colony in Formosa and of the great work available for someone who will dedicate his life to the care of lepers.

Miss Watson was presented with a trophy for her victory.

Charges Frost With Evasion

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost's statement that he had no knowledge of political contributions to the Progressive Conservative party was evasion of the highest order, Ontario CCF Leader Donald MacDonald said a nomination meeting Tuesday night.

"He may have no detailed knowledge of them but he is quite willing to fight his elections with them," Mr. MacDonald said. He said it was general knowledge that contributions from provincial contractors kept the Progressive Conservative party alive.

MacDonald said contributions from contractors should be made illegal, the sources of party funds should be public information with the books open, and the amount of money spent in elections should be limited by law.

Police Blotter

James Smith, 34, no fixed address, has been charged by city police with shoplifting following a complaint from an official at the T. Eaton Company store here. When apprehended Smith had in his possession two military brush sets.

City police recovered a car which had been reported stolen in Toronto. The car was found on Front Street.

Several city dog owners have received summonses to appear for failure to purchase tags for their dogs. The dogs were picked up by city dog catcher Charles Thorn with charges being laid against their owners.

In fact some of the pet owners face double charges. They received summonses for failure to purchase tags for their dogs and also face charges for allowing their pets to run at large, contrary to the city by-law.

Douglas Mitts Receives Trophy In Public Speaking Contest

TRENTON (Special) — A Trenton High School student, Douglas Mitts, winner of a public speaking contest sponsored by the Belleville division of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association received a trophy last night at a dinner held by the association here in the Quinte Hotel. The youth represented the local high school and competed against speakers from two Belleville high schools.

On behalf of the Trenton High School teacher Vic Swizzon received the trophy that will be held by the school for the ensuing year. A spokesman for the association announced that the competition this year schools from the Quinte District including Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Napanee, Stirling, Madoc and Tweed will be invited to enter contestants.

Subject entrants are asked to speak on is "Safety."

Members of the Belleville division heard Jim White, director of safety promotion for the I.A.P.A. outline a number of reasons why accidents happen in industry. He explained that most accidents are contributed to the attitude of the workers. "Safety," he said, "is just between smiles and tears." It prevents human misery, he added. He cited an instance when a mother, worried about her sick child, lost a hand because she was emotionally upset and her mind was not on her job. He said workers fearing for their jobs and loss of income to keep up their households, were accident prone. He indicated that management concerned about bigger profits were throwing their shoulders behind the job of stopping production inefficiency because of loss of skilled labor through accident.

UNSAFE WORK PRACTICES

Mr. White emphasized that records proved that 85 per cent of the human failures in industry had been credited to unsafe work practices. "Management has to prove to people that safety is beneficial as far as they are concerned," Mr. White noted.

Bill Freeborn of the Bata Shoe Company introduced the guest speaker. George Stanton from the Stephens Adamson company of Belleville tendered the vote of thanks.

Elmer Jewell, chairman of the Belleville section of the association advocating accident prevention pointed out that 391 workers in industry in Canada lost their lives last year because of unfortunate mishaps. Urging his listeners to really get down and do a job on accident prevention he quoted figures that revealed that Workmen's Compensation paid $35,000,000 to victims of accidents last year.

"Bright spots in accident prevention in Belleville in 1954 were records established by Northern Electric and Meade Johnson," the chairman said. The former accumulated 3,000,000 work hours before the first accident happened and now have 1,000,000 accident free hours. The latter company has not had an accident in the plant in 461 days.

Homer Hyrset of the Northern Electric Company of Belleville presented the trophies.

During the meeting the chairman announced that R. Harden of the Bakelite company and W. Freeborn of the Bata Shoe would be chairman and vice chairman respectively for the I. A. P. A. Belleville section for 1955-56.

Present officers are Waller Jewell, Stephens Adamson and W. Colclough, American Optical.

YOUTH RECAPTURED

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A 20-year-old London township youth was recaptured Tuesday at a girl friend's home in west London three hours after he broke away from his police escort near the county jail and escaped. Donald McArty, committed to stand trial on a rape charge, now faces an additional charge of escaping custody.

Two Wildlife Films Shown To Kiwanians

Belleville Kiwanis yesterday were treated to insights on wildlife, when two films on the subject, produced by the Carling Conservation Club, were shown at the club's weekly meeting.

The first film dealt with the origins and present-day activities of the Conservation Club; one of the club's aims is to focus attention on the need for preservation of wildlife.

The second film, "Ring-necked Pheasant," showed the life of one of the most popular game-birds on the continent.

The program was introduced by Kiwanian Ken Burkitt, while president Staff McKenna expressed the appreciation of Kiwanis for the program.

FIND HUGE DIAMOND

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—The newspaper El Nacional reports that a miner has found a 620-carat diamond near the juncture of the Paragua and Caqui rivers in Venezuela's southwestern jungle. The stone would rank in size close behind the famous Jonker, found in 1934 in South Africa, and the Vargas, found in 1938 in Brazil. They weighed 726 carats each in the rough.

Twins Separated

CHICAGO (AP)—Surgeons successfully separated Siamese twin girls Tuesday.

The 20-months-old girls, Prissana and Napit Polpinyo, were born the same country as the original Siamese twins, Chang and Eng.

Physicians say the two sets of twins also were connected in similar fashion—by a band of tissue.

Prissana and Napit of Thailand, formerly known as Siata, came through the 3½-hour operation in excellent condition.

BRITISH POLITICS

Because Britain is important to the world, British politics should interest all of us.

Today there are two possible developments in British politics either or both of which could greatly influence the future policies of Britain and, therefore, the future of the world.

One is the possible resignation of Sir Winston Churchill as leader of the Conservative Party.

The other is the possible widening of the rift between Anseurin Bevan and Clement Attlee of the Labor Party. Bevan has escaped expulsion from the party, but that does not mean the breach has been healed.

The squabble in the ranks of the Labor Party has been widely interpreted as making a Conservative victory certain at the next general election, which may be held in the near future.

It is possible, though, that the resignation of Churchill as leader of the Conservatives might adversely affect that party's vote. Almost certainly some Britons voted for Churchill, rather than for the Conservative party, at the last election.

The two possible developments may not precisely counter-balance each other, but their influence is unquestionably in opposite directions.

While it is probable that most Canadian students of British political affairs expect a Conservative victory —perhaps a sweeping victory because of improved economic conditions—that view is not shared by some observers in Britain.

For instance Edward Martell, chairman and managing director of "The Recorder," a bluntly anti-Socialist Labor weekly, has appointed an editor for the paper in order that he may devote his time to a campaign "to awaken anti-Socialists through The Recorder to the danger of the Labor Party winning the next general election."

Mr. Martell has little use for the argument that, because the Conservatives have brought Britain prosperity, they are bound to win with an increased majority.

"Things do not work that way in our democracy," he says.

Then he calls attention to an amazing fact. For nearly a hundred years no government in Britain has increased its majority.

He also quotes figures on the Socialist vote. From 4,341,383 in 1922 it rose to 13,946,726 in 1951. Labor has increased its vote in nine successive elections. While the Labor Party won the 1950 general election and lost that in 1951, its vote increased from 13,295,736 in 1950 to 13,948,605 in 1951. Its share of the total vote from 46.4 per cent to 48.73 per cent.

No wonder a staunch anti-Socialist like Mr. Martell is worried, Bevan or no Bevan!

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE!

"This subjection and submergence of the individual by the totalitarian state, the archbishop of Canterbury declared, is the direct consequence of godless social and political structures emanates from a belief in and employment of the doctrine of historical determinism."

Beg pardon? Would you give us that again—slowly—please?

Well, there it is before you in cold type. You can figure it out, if you can't figure it.

Well, er, yes, probably, that is we can if we understand just exactly what historical determinism is. Man says that the little guy is enslaved and enveloped into the mud by dictators and guys who plan state controls based on historical determinism. Now historical determinism means —say do we really have to go into all this?

Well, if you're puzzled reading that sentence in print, how would you like to have it thrown at your aching ears and left to ring there, without benefit of a second chance at puzzling out its meaning?

That is what happened to the delegates to the Assembly of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States. The speaker, Hon. L. B. Pearson, Canada's Minister of External Affairs.

Friday The Daily Telegraph of London, England, praised Pearson's speech to the Canadian House of Commons as "plain speaking in contrast with Ottawa."

Well, it's nice to know that he has been cured. We hope the cure is permanent.

CHOKED WITH CREAM

At Gormley, Ont., 328 mink died as the result of eating spoiled whale meat from the Antarctic.

Like the cat that was choked to death with cream, the mink found that man is sometimes too lavish in provisioning his pets.

The mink in its natural habitat is a great fish eater and is not so discriminating that he is likely to pay much attention to the fact that the whale is not a fish but a mammal.

Nevertheless, even a mink will not bite off quite so much more than he can chew as an Antarctic whale.

WIFE

My boy, she may be fair to see
And as a sweetheart gracious be,
But after years and years and years
With her you'll have to share your tears.
And, she will tell you now and then
That other wives have better men;
More thoughtful and much neater, too,
And far more helpful than are you.
She'll love you, but she'll also hate
The times with friends you stay out late.
You'll not be home for dinner, dear,
If you should phone, cross words you'll hear.
My wife with tenderness will pat
A husband who does things like that.
Remember this: the answer's "yes"
When she proclaims: "It's formal dress."
When she has cooked for you all day,
She will resent it if you say:
"I had a little self-same thing for lunch,"
And leave you there alone to munch.
Admire her gown, but if you're told-
"This thing is more than two years old,"
You'll better grab your coat and hat;
No wife on earth will stand for that.

20th Century Wizards Meet

(New York Times)

New York City is the electronics capital of the world, with as many as 40,000 engineers and scientists meet here for the annual meeting of the Institute of Radio Engineers. The men who have made the electronics miracles of the past-war decade possible have come to reveal still more astonishing prospects as transistors and random noise, sine waves and magnetic amplifiers. These mysterious matters may be beyond the ken of most of us, but we see their products increasingly aroUnd us in developments as different as high fidelity sound, color television and color television, high-speed electronic computers and automatic factories.

Though they are probably too busy with their daily work to realize it, this goodly group of electronic wizards is one of the most revolutionary forces at work in the world today. There is no major aspect of our economic, political, or military life which is not now or will not soon be affected by the results of their work. The ultimate goal of much of this work is, of course, the production of the drudgery which human beings must still put into daily productive labor. Another goal is the strengthening of our defense against sudden and unprovoked attack. Finally, these same "revolutionaries" are giving us ever more such exciting gimmicks as transistors and random noise, sine waves and magnetic amplifiers. TODAY'S TALK

I'M LOOKING ASHAMED

From all points of the compass I have received letters from those who read my Talk about an organization I had heard about in my youth, who have informed me that it is still active, and that its "The King's Daughters and Sons," organized in 1886. I am pleased that there are now some 60,000 members and that a wonderful work is being performed in His Name."

I humbly apologize for being so ignorant, but thank scores of readers who were so kind as to inform me about this work which is being done in this case, perhaps it paid to be ignorant for I have learned so much about this organization and the inspiring work in which it is engaged all over America, and internationally.

Illinois has a membership of more than 5,000 and Boston has a very active club, maintaining a Day Nursery which cares for some twenty girls who come to the city to work or go into business. I wrote to Governor Leslie, and Edward Everett Hale gave the motto for the organization, which was and is:

Look up and not down;
Look forward and not back;
Look out and not in;
Lend a hand.

It would take more space than I am allowed in this brief column to tell all about the splendid work done by this wonderful society. It just shows that many there are in this world doing a great service, quietly, unostentatiously, for love of it and giving to it their time and devotion, glad of the opportunity to serve.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When we argue about racial discrimination, we fail to get one thing clear, as a rule. All human beings belong to the human race. It is in our species and sub-species that we find the greatest of bias, hostility, at times. And to deny that there are species and sub-species of the human race, is as absurd as to deny that there are species and sub-species of the canine race, or the rodent race or the race of fish. All dogs should love and understand each other, and should remember that the canine race; but the hounds and the terriers seem to be at enmity.

The rodents have an beaten too. Within the rodent race are over 2,000 species, including the rabbit and the beaver, the rat and the porcupine. There is no known peace of all rats; though the beaver with his dams drowns out millions of his kin, the mice and chipmunks, and forces his poor fellow rodent, the rabbit, to higher ground. But this, no doubt, like man, he ascribes to the inscrutable deity.

In the fishy race, it is dog eat dog, or, to put it into more human terms, as the civilize has done, the blackmail.

Personally, though I have seen thousands of Chinese in my lifetime, I have never seen a Chinese man, in the provinces of China, I confess I have seen the odd Chinese in Canada, but the best racial record of the Grey Cup game, in which I did see a famous Canadian of the Chinese species run the way I wish I could have run myself, in the Canadian Rugby game, was the Chinese walk, while all around him were the various Canadian species of English, Irish, Scotch, German, Israelite, Pole and Greek, spring and sprint and leap and bound.

One out of every four people on earth seem to be doing very well, Chinese. For a walking, easy-going, calm and unflustered species, they seem to be doing very well, don't they?

ANYWAY THE 80's TRIED

"When our boys brought home from school notes from the school physician advising tonsil removal," commenta a reader, "I have refused to have the operation, as their tonsils or throat seemed to give no trouble. Our family physician has examined the boys several times since then and he says the boys and their tonsils are perfectly normal. But for your "harping"—more power to you — we might have made a dreadful mistake.".

Signed.

You know, if I could get a 5% cut of the tales of the 80s (ever-ready operators) for unnecessary tonsillectomies in the state of Pennsylvania I could take the curse off the fee-splitting deal by using the money to communicate to every parent of school child in Buck's County the fact that Children's tonsils normally enlarge in the winter and spring, and, if parents or guardians have the wisdom to wait, the tonsils will shrink again to what even an 80 must regard as normal, in the good old summer time when parents and guardians don't mind so much letting the youngsters run outdoors.

Bangs fist on table." Press reports of March 9: "Sickening, shocking," say members of Estimates Committee that 'disgraceful conditions' exist in Immigration Department.)

"I will not have it!" exclaimed the Gillypick. And he kept banging the table with his plump little fist.

It is true that nobody was particularly frightened at the banging of the Gillypick's fist. But it was annoying, and caused a disturbance in the proceedings.

At last Alice thought she had better speak up. "Mr. Gillypick," she said, with some firmness, "I think you should stop banging your fist upon this table. You see you really don't belong at this Estimates Committee."

For a moment the Gillypick stopped his banging. With one sane fist he brushed a forelock out of one eye. Then the answer came from his head. "But you're all talking about me, aren't you? And if you're all going to talk about me, it's only right that I be present to hear what you say of me."

"He's really rather tiresome," said Alice to herself. But she felt she couldn't quite say that out loud. And so she said instead: Mr. Gillypick, you always insist upon being present whenever reports in your case are being thing about you? If you do, you are going to lead a very busy life, I fear.

Alice glanced about the table. She saw that most of those at the tea-party felt they just had to think that the Gillypick belonged there. So, with a big sigh, she decided she would try to go on with the tea-party. "I was just saying, Mr. Gillypick," she said to him, "that you always insist upon being present whenever something is said about you. Now I'm sure you're glad to lead a very busy life, I fear.

Alice glanced about the table. She saw that most of those at the tea-party felt they just had to think that the Gillypick belonged there. "I was just saying, Mr. Gillypick," she said to him, "that you always insist upon being present whenever something is said about you. Now I'm sure you're glad to lead a very busy life, I fear.

Then the strangest thing happened. Alice could seen many strange things happen before, but this was the strangest of them all. For suddenly everyone at the tea-party began saying that they were disgusted with the Gillypick was "disgraceful."

And this time the Gillypick did bang his fist on the table. On the contrary, he nodded his head, and banged louder than ever. Then he said: "I'm really quite disgraceful," he said. He wasn't "proud of his failings. Indeed, he said that he couldn't "discriminate between them."

Alice was so bewildered that she forgot for a moment to be shocked. She thought with her usual directness. "You just said something like that somebody in the tea-party who might say things had been 'shameful.' But now you are saying they are quite disgraceful."

Alice was thirsty for information. The Gillypick looked at her quickly and good-naturedly. Take a little bun out of his pocket, he said, "Have a biscuit?"

Alice thought it would not be civil to say "No," though it wasn't at all what she wanted. She took one of the buns and ate it quickly and it was very dry.

"Have another biscuit?" he said.

"No thank you," said Alice. "I'm not hungry, though."

Thirst quenched, I hope?" said Mr. Gillypick.

Alice did not know what to say to this, but the Gillypick did not wait for an answer. He went off to his House. And everyone at the tea-party began talking the time by seeing who could twiddle his thumbs the fastest.

KEEP HOPING

Earlier this year convicts in a Boston prison starved in the bread lines when they held five guards as hostages for four days in an attempted escape. Fortunately for society, the escape was unsuccessful. Through the patient vigilance of the prison officials, and especially the timely advice of the prison chaplain and the physician, the convicts were persuaded to release the guards unharmed, and to surrender.

The attempt was a desperate one—almost bound to fail, one would think. No doubt the prisoners will be further punished for it, and properly so. But what had they to lose? None of them much if any hope of being released during his lifetime. What prospect—the rest of one's life behind bars, with no hope of anything else!

Hope is the one thing we must never lose. With it, we can bear anything; without it, even a comfortable existence is unendurable. Yet so many people give up hope all too easily and abandon themselves to despair. Is your situation really desperate? Have you done all you can? Do you believe that the door of opportunity is closed upon you? You live in a land where such things are possible—a land where good is abundant, work plentiful, the latest advances in science and medicine available to help everyone.

Sir Winston Churchill Fulfilled Real Destiny At Age When Most Men Retire

By FRASER WIGHTON

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill, prominent, flamboyant of modern times and colossus among world statesmen of the 20th century, fulfilled his real destiny at an age when most men retire.

He was in his 66th year when called to the leadership of the British people in the Second World War. It was the climax of a career crowned with adventure and with honors. His versatile genius already had expressed itself in a score of directions—in Churchill the soldier, the war correspondent, the statesman, the author and the historian.

Oddly, the man who will go down in history as perhaps Britain's greatest commoner is a scion of one of her most aristocratic families—the duties of Marlborough.

CONFOUNDED CRITICS

His political critics often have tried to brand him a protector of money and class privileges. But he has many times confounded them by his deep understanding of ordinary people and his warm humanity.

Through his career, he has shunned honors which would take him away from the House of Commons or bury the name of Churchill under a title. He could have been a duke after his wartime triumphs, but turned the offer down.

As long as history books are written, men will ask what was the mainspring that made his a giant among men.

Many will say it was his great sense of history, the realization that wars, politics and statesmen remain basically the same so matter how the world changes.

From this springs his ability to see immediately the heart of a problem and so take quick decisions with supreme confidence.

SECRET OF DRAMA

Churchill loves life and his true frame has enabled him to extract the maximum from it. It has been said that the eternal boyishness in him is one of his most sustaining qualities.

He is something of an actor. The bulldog set of his chin in moments of crisis, the two fingers jabbed upwards in the "V" sign, the stentor voice, the flutter of a cigar—all that side of his character.

His sense of the dramatic displayed itself often during the war. Called on to make a historic announcement in Parliament, he would heighten the effect by a deliberate, tactful delay.

He is the kind of man the British people make their public figures to be—a devoted husband and father, a family man.

SPARKS CONTROVERSY

But no one has figured in more controversy or provoked more criticism than Churchill.

Yet it was he who, when his hour came, welded all sections of the British nation into a united force and by the power of his personality inspired them to the greatest effort in their history.

When in 1940 he became head of the wartime government, he remarked that the British "are the only people who like to be told how bad things are—who like to be told the worst."

Bluntly, sombrely, he warned the nation it must brace itself against a future of terrible, unimaginable ordeals.

"I have nothing to offer but blood and toil, tears and sweat," he told Parliament and people in the first of his famous wartime orations.

HAILED8 COUNTRYMEN

After the evacuation from Dunkerque, he rallied his countrymen to meet the imminent peril of a German attack on Britain with these words:

"We shall not flag nor fail. We shall go on to the end. We shall fight in France, we shall fight on the seas and oceans . . . We shall fight in the fields and in the streets . . . We shall never surrender . . ."

In a matter audible only to those close to him in Parliament, he added ruefully: "I don't know what we shall do it with—choppers (hatchets) and broken bottles, I suppose."

In the tragic days leading up to the fall of France before Hitler's legions, he twice flew across the English channel to confer with French leaders and took the unprecedented step of offering France a "solemn act of union" with Britain, which was rejected.

ROCK OF FAITH

To Britain, standing alone in the dark and, it seemed, endless winter of 1940, Churchill was the rock of national faith and endurance.

His voice on the radio gave the British people the will to fight.

To the overseas and partisan fighters of German - occupied Europe, his words, clandestinely heard, brought hope.

"Victory" was Churchill's watchword and the unflagging energy he worked for its achievement. As defence minister, he had the prodigious task of directing practically every phase of the war effort at home and overseas. As prime minister, he regarded it as a personal responsibility to be continually at the disposal of Parliament, answering for the conduct of the war.

On top of all this, he held it necessary to maintain the closest contact with the Allied leaders—ready to go to any part of the world at a moment's notice for personal meetings.

COVERED GROUND

Within six days of the Allied landings in France in June, 1944, he was on the Normandy beaches, seeing the battle for himself.

By the end of 1944, when he had reached the age of 70, Churchill was reckoned to have covered 40,000 miles in journeying back and forth over a war-swept world.

In May, 1945, when the unconditional surrender of Germany crowned the efforts of the Allies, Churchill was the only man who had been in the war cabinet continuously since its formation in 1939. Through the greatest of all ordeals, he had personified the dauntless determination of the nation and Commonwealth to achieve victory at whatever cost.

But in July, 1945, the Conservative party's defeat at the general election came as a thunderbolt to him.

He commented: "Some people tell me it is a blessing in disguise—but I can say is that it is a very good disguise." Later he was to describe the event as his personal Dunkerque.

REGAINED LEADERSHIP

But he was too seasoned a campaigner to indulge in self-pity. Within days of losing power he was best to lead an aggressive opposition against the Labor government. He displayed the same vigor and intensity as he had shown through the war years.

His efforts were rewarded in the general election in 1951 when, soon after his 77th birthday, he found himself prime minister again.

Once more he was his country's man of destiny at a time of chaos and confusion when the world was bewildered by the problems of peace even more than it had been by those of war.

The year 1953 must have brought deep satisfaction to his monarchist and traditionalist heart. He was made a knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, one of the most ancient orders of chivalry in Europe, by his personal sovereign, Queen Elizabeth II.

But the greatest of all personal honors of state brought an end to a complete rest. This lasted only a few months.

VISITED OTTAWA

In the summer of 1954 he went to Washington and Ottawa to discuss world problems. An ensuing crisis over German rearmament and European unity was successfully solved at a nine-power conference held in London in October, after which the new French prime minister, Pierre Mendes-France, described Sir Winston as "the great British statesman, to whom we owe a debt of gratitude we can never repay."

His 80th birthday in November was an event which stirred Britain and the world. Crowds thronged the streets to cheer him and he was honored in Westminster Hall by an assembly of Lords and members of the House of Commons, who presented him with a portrait of himself.

Churchill started the year 1955 faced by the grave Formosa crisis. About that time he revealed that an illness in the summer of 1953 had been caused by a slight seizure which had paralyzed his left side. He had vanquished this temporary physical disability with his usual determination.

WARRIOR'S HERITAGE

Churchill's heritage is that of a warrior, 1904, the fighter's gleam first filled his eyes in childhood games with tin soldiers.

His birthplace, Blenheim Palace, historic seat of the Marlborough family in Oxfordshire, was built to commemorate the victories won by his ancestor, John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, and the French and Bavarians at Blenheim in 1704.

There he was born Nov. 30, 1874, eldest son of Lord Randolph Churchill, who was third son of the seventh duke. His mother was Jennie Jerome, beautiful American daughter of Leonard Jerome of New York.

It had been one of Churchill's proudest boasts all his life that his birthright was the blood of the two great English-speaking nations.

MILITARY EDUCATION

As a boy, he expressed the wish to be a soldier and thereafter his schooldays had the air of a drill. After a few years at Harrow, the public school, and a journeying back and forth over a war-swept world.

In May, 1945, when the unconditional surrender of Germany crowned the efforts of the Allies, Churchill was the only man who had been in the war cabinet continuously since its formation in 1939. Through the greatest of all ordeals, he had personified the dauntless determination of the nation and Commonwealth to achieve victory at whatever cost.

But in July, 1945, the Conservative party's defeat at the general election came as a thunderbolt to him.

He commented: "Some people tell me it is a blessing in disguise—but I can say is that it is a very good disguise." Later he was to describe the event as his personal Dunkerque.

REGAINED LEADERSHIP

But he was too seasoned a campaigner to indulge in self-pity. Within days of losing power he was best to lead an aggressive opposition against the Labor government. He displayed the same vigor and intensity as he had shown through the war years.

Young Girl Gone Astray Most Poignant Problem In Dealing With Delinquency

One of the most poignant problems in dealing with juvenile delinquency is the young girl who goes astray. This article described the whole sad story.

By RAUL PETT

DELAWARE, Ohio (AP) — The 15-year-old girl lay in a messy heap in a cell of the girls' industrial school of Ohio.

Her long, tangled hair hid most of her face and spilled down over her drab sleeping gown. Facing the wall, she lay on a bare mattress on the cement floor, in bed. She couldn't be trusted with any metal.

The room was hot and smelly. Only cardboard filled the window. The girl had smashed a glass. She also had swallowed pins.

No one with nerve many hand-written inscriptions, such things as "Mary loves Betty" and "Nancy loves Helen."

Like one-third of the 230 inmates at the girls' industrial school, she had been confined for sexual promiscuity with men. But once inside the school many of these same girls show an unnatural interest in other girls.

LIKE ANY BOBBY-SOXERS

Although her symptoms are more spectacular, the girl is not necessarily any sicker than many of the wholesome looking girls who stroll along the school's shaded walks in relative freedom and looking for all the world like bobby-soxers anywhere, in their saddle shoes and bright shirts. Inmates range in age from 12 to 20.

In many ways, the girl in the cell typifies female juvenile delinquents, in their sudden violence, in their anti-social rebellion, in their confused groping for love and sex.

And yet, to deal with 300 such girls, the Ohio school has only one part-time psychiatrist, one day a week.

The school at Delaware is not all cells. Actually, there are only eight for the worst discipline cases and for those so emotionally violent they can't be trusted to mingle with the others.

More generally, the girls live in pleasant, comfortable physical surroundings. There are no walls, no fences, guards around the attractive, landscaped "campus." They have comparatively healthy recreation.

Talking alone to the girls, this reporter was told they were fed well and were not abused or mistreated.

Several times the girls have been allowed to dress up in party dresses and play hostess to boys from Ohio Wesleyan for dinner and dancing.

"The change on such nights is astounding," said Dr. Ted Allen-bach, the school psychiatrist. The girls greet him with their wrinkles, makes pleasant conversation and are, in every way, like little ladies."

ORE BOATS RELD UP

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pittsburgh Steamship division of United States Steel Corp. decided Monday to hold its 49 ships in port until April 11 before starting ore shipments on the Great Lakes. The division, largest fleet on the lakes, said ice conditions on the upper lakes caused the delay. It had announced earlier that it intended to start shipments April 4.

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dora Cooke (Mother of 8)

Baby ready for that first pair of bones-to-goodness walking shoes? Before you buy, check these points for correct fit:

1. Shoes should have one-half to three-quarters of an inch growth room.
2. Make sure shoes are wide enough when baby is standing.
3. Soles should be firm, but flexible for baby's comfort.

P. S. Socks should be large enough for foot freedom, not too large to crowd shoes.

Weddings

PIKE — SAGER

Flowering potted plants and ferns formed a lovely background at the home of Mrs. Robert Sager, Queensboro, and late Mr. Sager, on Saturday, March 26, at high noon, when their daughter, Elsie Aileen Sager, became the bride of Robert W. Pike, of Toronto, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Pike, Newfoundland. The Reverend John Lovekey, assisted by Mr. E. V. Lewis, officiated.

The wedding music was provided by Mrs. Fred Dafoe, who accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Floyd Ray.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her elder brother, Mr. Allan Sager, of Queensboro, was attractively attired in a medium blue English cotton of street length. She wore a matching headdress and carried a shower bouquet of Rapture roses, white freesia and white hyacinth bells.

Miss Barbara Sager, of Queensboro, younger sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a becoming gown of eggshell tinted silk and linen, in street length, with light blue accessories, and carrying a round bouquet of Lester Hibbard roses, intermingled with mauve freesia and adiantum fern.

Mr. Gordon Collins, of Toronto, assisted the bridegroom.

Following the reception, which was held at the bride's home, where the bride's mother, wearing navy figured crepe, and corsage of white carnations, received, the young couple left for New York City and Long Island, N.Y. The bride travelled in a grey wool ensemble with dark navy topcoat and accessories, and her Talisman rose corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Pike will make their home in Toronto, upon their return.

Guests were present from Toronto, Belleville, Otter Cooper, Peterborough, Halloway and Madoc, Ontario.

REID — BATES

ROSLIN — A pretty but quiet wedding took place in St. Luke's Anglican Church, Kingston, on Saturday, March 19th, at 3 p.m., when Norma Irene, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bates, of Roslin, was united in marriage to Douglas Blakely, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Reid, of Tweed.

The rector, the Rev. R. Brman, performed the ceremony and the wedding music was provided by the church organist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a tailored suit of navy gabardine, white hat and navy and white accessories, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of red Sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

The bridesmaid, Miss Mary Bates, of Belleville, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a box suit in coral shade with white hat and black and white accessories and carried a nosegay of cornflowers, Shasta daisies and stephanotis.

Mr. Wally Moffatt, of Tweed, was groomsman.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Reid left on a wedding trip to Syracuse, N.Y., later they will take up residence at Niagara Falls.

Music Pupils Present Varied, Colorful, Two-Part Recital

Last Friday evening the pupils of Mrs. T. F. Townsend, R. M. T., presented an interesting and varied musical recital with vocal and instrumental in 2 parts. The program follows:

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THESE PARENTS SHOULD "STAND BY", NOT ARGUE

As I have often said before, no one can save anyone from himself. Each of us has to work out his own salvation in his own way, even though that 'way may lead through plenty of trouble, and through many mistakes, before enough experience has been gained to bring maturity of judgment.

This is a hard truth for parents to accept.

When they see a son or daughter about to take a step which they feel may ruin his or her life, it is the same to them as though they saw their child standing on the side of a precipice. Their natural instinct is to reach out and forcibly snatch the boy or girl away from danger. In other words, they try, by every means in their power, to impress their judgment upon the son or daughter, in the hope that this outside pressure may keep him or her from committing what they believe to be a serious, if not fatal, mistake.

Such pressure from the outside, however, rarely, if ever, has the desired good. If it succeeds in one instance, other instances of the same kind will certainly soon arise, and unless and until the son or daughter matures sufficiently to have the pressure toward the sound sources of action come from within himself or herself, the battle with life will have to be fought again and again.

And the parents will not always win. Sooner or later, they will have to resign themselves to the fact that they might as well abandon their efforts to guide the destiny of their child, and wait for time and experience to do the work.

This is about all I can say to one distraught mother who writes me of her distress over her daughter's infatuation with a married man.

This man seems to be the type who says that he is getting a raw deal from his wife, and then, either because he feels sorry for himself or for the sake of excuses he never really intends to get one, keeps postponing the step. The girl's parents have permitted their daughter to bring him to her home because they didn't want her to feel that it would ever be closed against any of her friends. But they are seriously concerned that nothing good can come of this association, and would like to know if there is any way she might be influenced to look at the situation more realistically.

The mother stresses the fact that the man is truly sincere, she doesn't want to cross his path, etc., etc. But she feels that, until he proves his sincerity by at least getting his wife's consent to his leaving himself from his marriage, he would not owe their daughter anything.

I think this mother is right. But I don't believe there is anything she and her husband can do in the way of advice this time, except to "stand by," as they are doing. I think they are wise in not forbidding the girl to bring the man home. For, if they did, the prohibition might well push the girl, in her present mood, into something more serious.

If, once and for all, they make their position perfectly clear—that all they are opposing is the possibility that this man may be trying to play both ends against the middle—and if, thereafter, they refrain from any further discussion of the matter, and continue to be as understanding and sympathetic as they can, the girl's infatuation may in time wear itself out. But arguments and pleading may only serve to stiffen that infatuation into mutinous defense of herself and her dubious affair. If it won't, it does not carry her into outright revolt and impetuous marriage.

A Church Luncheon for Men

By Mary Moore

Congregational dinners, fallen and run bazaars, mother and daughter banquets and doubtless uncle and nephew banquets are also prepared and served by swarms of hardworking church ladies. I certainly hope the callers appreciate the troubles these loyal souls go to.

The very thought of the 330 men mentioned in this letter makes my bones weary.

Dear Mary Moore: . . . my problem is one of a group I belong to. We expect to cater to approximately three hundred and fifty (350) men for a luncheon. We would appreciate suggestions, as to costs and amounts to satisfy such a crowd. We will receive one dollar per person. . . . Lois A.

That "one dollar per person" almost stumps me. What men like! and hope for are dinner size luncheons with such delicious food as baked ham, glazed sweets, new green beans or new buttered cabbage, a salad that is not too rabbit-y and apple or cherry pie and cheese or ice cream. Of course if you served up a delectable corned beef and cabbage luncheon with hot rolls and lemon meringue pie there'd be happy but you would have to be magician to make ends meet. You could make a little money if you served fluffy meat loaf and mashed potatoes and creamed onions and cole slaw and cottage pudding with lemon sauce or macaroni and cheese in tomato sauce with wieners baked on top, and large plates of celery stuffed with cheese and carrot strips and fruit jellied in lemon jelly and homemade cookies.

I am giving you the recipe for

FLUFFY MEAT LOAF
(serves 25)

Have 1½ ladies in your group to help you. If there is a crew of men for this amount will serve 25. I would be grateful if girls who have large catering jobs coming up would clip this.

Three lbs. ground beef, 1 1-3 lbs. lean ground pork, 6 cups soft bread crumbs, 2 beaten eggs, 4 1-3 cups milk, 3-4 cup finely chopped onion, 3-4 teaspoon dry mustard, 1-4 teaspoon sage, 1 tablespoon salt, 3-4 teaspoon pepper. (Measurements must be absolutely accurate in making up these large amounts — use measuring spoons and cups.) Mix ingredients in order. Pack into three pans measuring 8 1-2 x 4 1-2 x 2 1-2 inches. Bake 1 hour 1-2 hour at 350 deg. Fahr. Gravy may be made from drippings in pan.

To make mashed potatoes for 25 people you will need from 6 to 8 lbs., amount depending on quality of potatoes and how generous you intend to be with your servings. Boil them in 2 1-2 qts. boiling water with 2 tablespoons salt. You will need 5 cups (1 quart) whole milk heated with 1-4 lb. butter, and 1 1-2 tablespoons salt when mashing them. Stir and one-quarter lbs. onions will serve 25 — or select 1 medium-large onion each for each 25 onions or 6 1-4 lbs. provide 5 cups sliced onions (5 cups milk, 3/3 cup each butter and flour, 1 1/4 teaspoons salt, 1/3 teaspoon pepper). Note: Here amounts of white sauce for 6 lbs. any other vegetable you wish to cream are correct.

COLE SLAW (for 25)

Shred cabbage and measure 12 cups well-packed. Heat 1 cup milk vinegar with 1 1-2 tablespoons salt, 1 teaspoon pepper, 2 teaspoons dry mustard, 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup butter, until they just boil. Stir this mixture slowly into 4 beaten eggs then cook over low heat until thickened. Remove. Remove from heat and beat in 1-2 cup cream. Pack pour over shredded cabbage. Chill, covered, and serve icy cold.

This cottage pudding package bear in mind that an 8 or 9-inch square cake will cut into about 12 pieces. Lemon or caramel sauce are favorites on this. Six cups serve 25. If you need more details please let me know.

CHANGE UNLUCKY 13

NEWARK, N. J. (AP)—An understanding police sergeant agreed to change a sentencing date for manslaughter after the defendant said he was superstitious. Elijah Walton, 43, pleaded no defence in the fatal stabbing of Basil Jones, 37, and judge Alexander Waugh set April 13 for sentencing but changed the date to April 12 on the defendant's plea that the 13th was unlucky.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMESON

BUILDING BEAUTY IN ODD MOMENTS

Keeping fit, animated and pleasing to the eye of the beholder should be the part-time occupation of every woman. The idea of loveliness must take root in the mind; then, with faith and care, it will bloom.

One must keep pace with what is going on in the world of fashion. That doesn't necessarily mean extravagance in the purchase of one's attire. But to disregard the modes of the moment is to lose interest in dress, to become dated. It won't do to wear the same old hairdo, use the same make-up items. As fashion changes, so do finishing touches and figures.

Many women, busy as bees, should, like the busy bees, improve each shining hour. Or, let us say, shining moments—moments which can be utilized in the quest of health and beauty.

Suppose your dentist or doctor is keeping you waiting for your appointment. Don't get into a nervous tizzy. It is an opportunity for you to relax. Close your eyes, let your body go limp. This will release your nervous system from tension. With nerves and muscles at ease, the internal motors will pick up energy, recharge their batteries.

When on a bus or train you have a chance to rest your eyes. They are on the job every waking moment. So close the lids and think about nothing at all.

Deep breathing is splendid for the complexion and the body. Inhale deeply when walking. "Air conditioning" your lungs speeds up circulation and good circulation gives coloring to the skin.

No matter how tired you are at bedtime, wash and cream your face. That practice pays handsome dividends.

Get out the hairbrush and give your "glorious crown" a few brisk licks. It will come alive with lustre. The brush is your best weapon against thinning, greying locks.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OPEN HOUSE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

(1) We are holding Anniversary coming soon, and would like to have a little celebration.

(1) The date falls on a Thursday. A Sunday would, of course, be the most convenient day. Should we have it the Sunday before or after the date?

(2) We would like to have Open House say from 3 to 5 o'clock and from 8 to 9 o'clock in the evening. Would this be all right?

(3) How would we invite our many relatives and friends?

— Uncertain

(1) Choose the Sunday after the actual date.

(2) Yes.

(3) You may invite your guests verbally or by telephone. Or by courtesy little notes of invitation, written on semi-note paper. Or on cards, such as fold-over cards, so-called informals.

SALAD PLATE WITH MAIN COURSE

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

(1) At an informal dinner or luncheon, is it correct to serve salad with the main course? For example, lettuce or endive with one or two tomato slices or wedges?

(2) If so, on which side of the dinner or luncheon plate? — Hostess

(1) Yes.

(2) The salad plate (often today the convenient crescent-shaped salad plate) is placed at the left of the dinner or luncheon plate.

Three Unionists Admitted to U.S., One Excluded

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A Canadian delegate to an international union conference in Cleveland was refused admittance to the United States at a special immigration hearing in Detroit Monday.

Three other delegates were cleared by immigration inspectors and allowed to continue on to the conference.

Detroit officials said the delegate, Frank Harris, was refused permission to enter the U. S. because he said he had belonged to the Labor Progressive party in 1940.

Harris was stopped with the other three delegates, Roy Babcock, Orlie Allen and Carl Anson, all representing Local 200, United Automobile Workers Union (CIO-CCL).

Immigrants Misinformed On Employment Situation Declares Hamilton MLA

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur J. Child (PC—Wentworth) says it has been brought to his attention a number of times that British immigrants have been misinformed on the employment situation in Canada by immigration department authorities overseas.

"These people complain that they are told there is very little unemployment in Canada and that starting a job, if they did not like it, they merely had to quit and start on another job in their own trade the next day."

Mr. Child was one of eight members who spoke in the Ontario legislature on the throne speech debate. It continues today after consideration of estimates of the attorney-general's department.

Mr. Child said there should be a planned program of immigration "rather than one of indiscriminately taking every person who wishes to come without telling them the true facts as they are today."

SUGGESTS BULLETIN

He suggested a weekly employment bulletin be posted in Ontario House in London which would outline the types of trades that require skilled craftsmen in Ontario.

"Then if these people, knowing all the facts, decide to emigrate to Canada, they would not feel so down-hearted and despondent as many of them do, particularly the skilled tradesman that has served his apprenticeship and finds himself in the unenviable position, due to having conditions misrepresented by federal immigration authorities, of going from factory to factory looking for any type of job he can find."

Mr. Child said there are so many unemployed in Canada it would be wise not to encourage any more immigrants except those who have a special trade or skill that is needed. This would continue until the employment situation improved.

Turning to education, Mr. Child suggested the present time of education provide a series of plans for school boards to use for new school construction which would eliminate the necessity of hiring an architect and spending of up to $25,000 for each class-room.

TO SAVE MONEY

"A standard school could be constructed for many thousands of dollars less . . . at the present time if it seems the taxpayer is taking a horrible beating in some municipalities in the province as far as school construction costs are concerned."

He asked the provincial government consider reviewing salaries of women employees of Ontario (mental) hospitals, to amend legislation to provide a 40-hour week for firemen and to provide a large lodge and family accommodation at Algonquin Park to attract tourists.

W. E. Brandon (PC—York West) said a guaranteed annual wage for labor is not possible. It would require state control of industry, resulting in loss of private enterprise and incentive.

Opposition to the building of toll roads at the present time was expressed by Andrew T. Ward (PC—Kent East) who said the province is not yet ready for them and will not be for several years.

ENGINEER SHORTAGE

"This is a very costly system of road-building. Also, at the present time we are short of engineers and personnel which it would take to enter into a road system of this nature."

Mr. Ward said Ontario has neither the population nor the automobile traffic to warrant heavy expenditures needed to build toll roads.

J. Fred Edwards (PC—Perth) said layoffs of railway employees is a serious matter in his riding and asked for more support of the railways. "The last two wars have proven their usefulness, let alone the part they played in developing this province and the whole dominion."

He said one of the problems facing truckers and railways is unfair rates charged by some operators. These rates should be investigated not only on a provincial level but on a federal level.

He asked for a study of load limits on provincial highways.

QUOTES FIGURES

John Root (PC — Wellington North) said it appears from taxation figures that the federal government is using revenue collected from the automobile industry to subsidize railways, waterways and aviation.

He referred to a chart which showed the federal government in 1953 received $237,094,109 in excise and customs duties on gasoline, tires, motor vehicles and commercial trailers.

The year before the Ottawa government collected $53,505,000 in corporation taxes from the automobile industry. The annual collection in income taxes for persons in the industry was about $44,000,000, he said.

Mr. Root questioned why part of these revenues was not spent on aid to highway construction and municipal roads.

Other speakers were C. C. Wardrope (PC—Port Arthur), and W.G. Noden (PC—Rainy River).

The legislature is to meet today. Thursday is Friday.

CNR May Come Under New Fire For Withholding Information

OTTAWA (CP) — The publicly-owned CNR, attacked for holding out information on some of its transactions, may come under new fire today.

Members of the Commons railway committee took President Donald Gordon to task Tuesday night on the issue and are expected to renew the point today on a different tack.

The committee, in its annual examination of CNR accounts, was hearing Mr. Gordon report on company operations when he declined to reveal the sale price of four of the hotels the corporation disposed of last year.

Progressive Conservative members questioned his right to hold back the figures and Jean Francois Pouliot, blunt-speaking Liberal Commons member for Temiscouata, accused Mr. Gordon of high-handedness.

PURCHASERS' BUSINESS

The CNR chief said the company should not be forced to give details of transactions. They were the purchasers' business and publication of them could be damaging to the CNR.

As the burly Mr. Gordon and the veteran Mr. Pouliot started a warm exchange, committee chairman H. P. Cavers (L—Lincoln) smoothed troubled waters for the moment by getting the tangle deferred until this morning.

But even if the hotel-sale deal slips by today, the committee evidently is in for another wrestle on the matter. Opposition members said that the CNR has been refusing to give Parliament full information on another hotel proposition.

That is the management contract whereby the CNR has given the United States-controlled Hilton hotel chain the operation of the $20,000,000 Queen Elizabeth Hotel being built in Montreal. The railway itself will be Canada's largest.

QUESTIONS TODAY

In the Commons, opposition members have been unable to get financial details of the contract. Today gives them their first chance to question the management directly.

Meanwhile, with Mr. Gordon as the witness all day, the committee got a miscellany of information including:

1. The CNR has not laid off employees as quickly as has the competing CPR and comparable roads in the U.S. The CNR's average employee layoff through 1954 was 7,871 persons or six per cent of the total personnel. The smaller CPR laid off 8,139 or eight per cent of personnel.

2. Mr. Gordon said if the coal-burning gas turbine engine being experimented with at McGill University is ever perfected it will "beat the pants off" the diesel locomotive.

3. The government line has dropped a general contract for labor supply with R. F. Welch Co. of Port Arthur that has been under criticism from unions, but reserves the right to contract with it for specific jobs later.

DROPS SUPPORT

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Sun in a front-page editorial has announced it will no longer support the Liberal government in Ottawa. The Sun, which has supported liberal governments since the First World War, has long been critical of the government's CBC policy.

GRANTS ANNULMENT

QUEBEC (CP)—Superior Court Judge Wilfrid Zelge has granted an annulment of marriage to Louis Philippe Bernier of Joequiere, Que., and Mattie Jeanne Tremblay of Quebec, married for 18 years and the parents of two children. A Roman Catholic Church annulment of the marriage was granted recently on grounds they are second cousins.

World Champion Giants Would Like Another Pitcher, More Bench Strength

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Early reports to the contrary, the world champion New York Giants are not a stand-pat ball club. It just looks that way, says manager Leo Durocher, because "nobody wants to trade with us."

What Leo wants is another pitcher and perhaps some helpful support to stopgap second baseman Davey Williams' back miseries.

"This is a good club," said Durocher Tuesday as the Giants broke camp to start the long trip to the Polo Grounds. "Men for man it's solid. If no one gets hurt, it's great."

OTHERS' TROUBLES

Meanwhile, other managers were having their troubles.

Eddie Stanky pulled Stan Musial out of the St. Louis Cardinals outfield and put him back on first base as the Red Birds belted Eddie Lopat and a New York Yankee "B" team 6-2. Stanky is looking for more punch at first, where Musial hit .365 in 1946 and .312 in 1947.

Manager Lou Boudreau of Kansas City got a new worry when Bobby Shantz, the hard-luck guy, was felled on the mound by a line drive off the bat of rookie Earl Smith as Pittsburgh beat the Athletics 9-4. X-rays failed to show serious injury to the A's lefty, however.

There Brooklyn Dodgers — Don Newcombe, Clem Labine and Don Zimmer—were hit by batted and pitched balls, but they, too, escaped serious injury. The incidents occured in pre-game drills before the Brooks made four hits good for a 5-4 victory over Milwaukee.

THREE HITS

Art Fowler and Jim Pearce allowed just three hits and catcher Ed Bailey hit a home run as the Cincinnati Redlegs beat Washington 5-1.

The Yanks' regulars knocked off Detroit 6-1 with Bob Turley making his first good showing of the spring. He gave up just two hits in five innings, although walking five.

Ernie Banks kept his bat in action, lining a run-scoring single and his third home run in two days, as the Cubs beat Cleveland 9-7.

Baltimore tripped Philadelphia 6-5. Rookie Don Leppert and veteran Gene Woodling drove in two runs each.

The Chicago White Sox had 13 men left on base but still pulled out a 5-3 decision over the Boston Red Sox.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

BISHOP SCORING FIGURES

Unlike the Cornwall series when the Maroons' three sidestepping stars split scoring in as neat a triangle as possible, the Meadowdale, Geyer, Dave Jones trio carried the scoring punch during the Kingston set-to with Rutherford's "Athlete of the Year" leading the way. True, there were only two goals to divy up but the aforementioned line clicked for six of them, Doran's aggregation claiming two while one each went to the Duncan combination and the defence.

• • •

Keith MacDonald's five goals in as many games against the Limestone City crew gave the "Little Spain" lad the most points for the series and lifted him into second place during all the playoffs with nine points on eight goals and one assist. Edwin Duncan finished first with 10 points, all assists, nine of them coming against Cornwall.

• • •

Getting back to the Kingston series, Dave Jones and Vern Goyer completed the high-scoring line, Dave netting one goal and three helpers, while "Jumbo" earned four assists to give the Nue a 13-point total and 23 overall. They drew ten minutes in penalties to bring their total to 32 out of the 110 minutes the team received.

• • •

Red Doran flicked the light twice in the group finals to give him the runner-up spot in goals scored, with five. His pulled total was six. Pete Jones drew one assist for an overall 3-3 six-point figure, while Arnie Dugan was held patiently after collecting two assists for seven points. Meadowdale's Ted Trio was handed 13 minutes in penalties, including a misconduct to Jones, and served 30 minutes over the 11 games played.

• • •

Edwin Duncan chipped in the only goal for the Duncan-De-Gray-Duncan line, giving him three markers and one assist over the route, while brother Edwin added one assist to his nine against Cornwall. Ted DeGray also picked up one assist for a total of four goals and three assists for seven points. "Teddy" had the only penalty of the line to bring its total to sixteen minutes.

• • •

Bobby Wilson was the top 'offensive' defenceman against Kingston with a goal and two assists. His over-all record entered into the semi-finals was two goals and five assists in 13 minutes scoring in the last five games. John Muckler had a trio of assists to raise his point total to four, including one goal, while his penalty record showed 10 minutes served in the latter series and four in the semi-finals. Bob Macey added one helper to his previous six and did not serve a single penalty after drawing one in the Cornwall bout. John Wade, who and out the last two games due to an ankle injury, had one assist for a total of two points. His penalty sheet was clean throughout both playoff series.

• • •

Doug Hull, Frank Bettiol and Doug Day all saw limited action without figuring in the scoring or penalties.

• • •

In the goal-tending department, Tony Farid played every game in terrific form, allowing Kingston 16 goals when they might well have had 36. He had one shutout over the route and in the final game kicked out 30 shots. Cornwall beat him 28 times (remember Glen Hall allowed 29 goals) to bring the total goals-against to 39. His shutout was the only one over the Goodyears this season.

SOFTBALL

With the hockey season on its last legs, our last big snowstorm behind us (we hope) and many of the local lads hurling the oversized baseball around the basement, the executive of the Belleville and District Softball Association, headed by Percy Cy Barriage, is as busy as Liberace cleaning his teeth, counting his greenbacks and tuning his pianos all at the same time.

Four meetings have been held so far, an executive elected and other general business cleared away, as well as the naming of a strong local delegation to attend the OASA convention in Peterborough next week.

The only sad note so far has been the lack of teams represented and sponsors available. The usual few hard workers have been doing their best and it is felt that the move and, in general, nasty weather, has kept many away who will show as soon as the grass does.

A meeting has been called for the Moira Street firehall on Sunday afternoon at 2.00 p.m., the last before the deadline for entries which is the next day, and it is hoped that anyone and everyone interested in the popular sport will attend.

T.V.L. PLAYOFFS

The seventh, and possibly deciding, game in the TVL northern section finals between these rivals of long standing, Campbellford and Marmora, will take place at Memorial Arena tonight. All accounts the Marmora crew have won three games, lost two and tied one, in a vain effort to overcome world wrap up the series and place them against Point Anne for the league championship, but Campbellford has different ideas.

Five of the six games played have been on Marmora ice, so the league ordered this battle, and the next, if necessary, to be played on neutral rice. All of the fixtures, with the exception of the last, have been very close, two going into overtime with Campbellford winning 4-3 and the other ending in a 4-4 deadlock.

Game time is 8.30. There two teams should provide some fast action.

Whipped and Sometimes Toyed With Toronto in Winning 3-0; Rookie Hero of Canadiens' Win

By JIM EASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Detroit Red Wings have swept into the Stanley Cup final without really using the explosive power that has made them National Hockey League champions for the last seven years.

They whipped, and sometimes toyed with, Toronto Maple Leafs Tuesday night for a 3-0 shutout that gave them the best-of-seven semi-final series in four straight games. It knocked Leafs out of the running for big-league hockey's most prized award and it sent the Detroiters into the final against either Montreal Canadiens or Boston Bruins.

In a word, it was classy the blast that prompted Detroit general manager Jack Adams to call this team possibly the greatest in Red Wing history.

Seldom were the Leafs, who finished third during the regular 70-game schedule, able to do anything about it. Defenceman Jim Morrison's first game 7-4, the second and third by 3-1 scores and were pitifully disorganized and frustrated in Tuesday night's engagement.

GOOD CLUB

"We lost to a good club," said Toronto coach King Clancy, still somewhat bewildered by his players' inability to cope with Detroit powerhouse.

At no time did the Wings, undefeated in this last 16 games appear to be pressed. They gave the impression they could score more goals if need be.

Two of the goals were born of poor Leaf defensive work. The other was made on an empty net as with Toronto goaltender Harry Lumley on the bench in favor of a sixth attacker. Leafs sought to get back in the game.

Wix Stackhouse Gordie Howe scored second-period goals. Tony Leswick accounted for the last-minute goal, providing added zip to the first shutout victory of the playoffs for goaltender Terry Sawchuk. He had two in 13 playoff games last year.

STRAUSKIN'S LEGS

Stasiuk put the Wings in front at 5:35 of the middle session by tapping a puck through Lumley's legs as big, Harry dived for it in front of his cage.

Defenceman Benny Wolf had fired from the blueline. The puck bounced off Lumley's pads and came to rest a few feet out from the net. Leaf leftwinger Joe Klukay and Stasiuk battled for the puck beg neither touched it. Lumley, nervous with the puck lying so close, skated out a couple of feet and Stasiuk broke loose from Klukay. That was it.

Howe made it 2-0 at 9:20, flipping a 15-footer over the sprawling Lumley after a pass-out from behind the Leaf goal. It appeared that Toronto's Ed Smith knocked the puck out in attempting to clear, but Lindsay was given the assist on the play.

It was Howe's first goal on Toronto ice in two years and his fourth of the series.

There was nothing to goal No. 3. Leswick grabbed Marty Pavelich's pass near the Toronto blueline late in the third period and let go a long shot that hit the empty net. Seconds earlier, Howe and defenceman Red Kelly had missed by inches on similar drives.

Soo Greyhounds Only Game Away From Winning Ont. Senior 'A' Title

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Ken Watson, who came out of retirement this year to play for Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, scored a goal a period Tuesday night to lead the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A champions to a 5-3 victory over Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen.

The Greyhounds, who now lead the best-of-seven All-Ontario senior A final 3-1, can wrap up the title and enter the eastern Canada Allan Cup final against Moncton Hawks if they defeat the Dutchmen in Kitchener Thursday.

Watson, 25-year-old center who once played for Toronto St. Michael's College Majors, broke up a tight game and scored the winning goal—his third of the night—at 10:34 of the third period. Jim McBurney, a graduate of Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series, and Ron Hurst were the other snipers for the Greyhounds.

FIRED TWO GOALS

Jackie Hamilton fired two of the three goals for Kitchener, OHA senior A championship lineman Joe Schertzl scored the other.

The lead in the game changed hands four times. The Greyhounds went ahead 1-0 after only 22 seconds of play but Kitchener bounced back with two quick goals to jump ahead 2-1. Sault Ste. Marie tied it and Kitchener scored another goal to lead 3-2 going into the second. The Greyhounds again tied the score with the only marker of the middle period and wrapped it up with two goals in the third while holding the Dutchmen scoreless.

PENALTIES COUNTED

Sixteen penalties were called in the game—nine, including a 10-minute misconduct going to the Dutchmen — and they played a large part in the scoring.

Kitchener and Sault Ste. Marie both took advantage of opponents' penalties to score two goals. Schertzl's marker in the first period came while Harry Taylor of the Greyhounds was off for holding. Later in the period Lyle Wiseman of the Greyhounds was in the penalty box for high sticking when Hamilton got his second goal.

Bud Kemp got two costly penalties for Kitchener. One, called near the end of the first period for high sticking, resulted in Watson's goal which tied the score 3-3 at :21 of the second period. Kemp was also off for holding when Watson scored the winning goal at 10:34 of the third.

Teeder Sorry to Go Out Of Hockey With a Loser

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Ted Kennedy, the heart of Toronto Maple Leafs, hung up No. 9 Wednesday night and said he was sorry he has to "go out of hockey with a loser."

The 28-year-old centre, around whom Leafs had built Stanley Cup champions, retired from the National Hockey League, a dejected man who had given everything as the Leafs were beaten 3-0 by Detroit Red Wings and then shunted out of the Stanley Cup semi-finals. Detroit won the series 4-0.

Nobody took the loss harder than Kennedy.

"I had hoped for a comeback," he said, dropping his sweater—No. 9—to the floor in the dressing room. "But it just wasn't there. We didn't have it. I'm finished."

DETROIT TOO GOOD

"The Wings are a good club. They made the most of the breaks. We didn't."

Retirement of the star Leaf centre, who joined Leafs in the 1942-43 season, and was on five Stanley Cup winning clubs, was not surprising. He has maintained for months that this would be his last season.

The Red Wings didn't whoop things up. It was obvious from the start of the best-of-seven set that Wings would make short work of Leafs.

Said Detroit coach Jimmy Skinner:

"Sure we were better. Why shouldn't we be? They have a lot of young and inexperienced players. We have young ones too, but we have some real solid pros to back them up."

There was no rumbles as Kennedy put away his hockey togs for the last time. Ed Smith, star left-winger on Kennedy's line, shook the centre's hand and said: "We've had some good years, Teeder."

So ended 13 years of big league hockey for Kennedy, a protege of Nels (Ole Poison) Stewart and one of Leafs' greatest centres. He played in 764 league and playoff games. His feat of being on five Stanley Cup championships is unmatched by any other player now

Janice White To Tackle Straits On Thursday

VICTORIA (CP)—Janice White, her attempt to swim unconquered the Juan de Fuca strait slated for unpredictable winds, has shrugged off the delay and rescheduled her dare-dip for Thursday.

Four hours before her scheduled 8 a.m. PST start today the Toronto swimmer accepted the decision of her navigator that the seas were running far too high over the 22 watery miles between Victoria and Port Angeles, Wash.

"I'll be just as ready to do the swim tomorrow as I am today," said Janice. "I understand you have to go along with the weather. There's nothing you can do about it."

The time of Thursday's attempt was set for 4 a.m. PST but the forecast is that the weather may not moderate in time and another postponement may be necessary.

The departure was called off after Janice's navigator, Capt. Charles A. Goodwin of the Island Tug and Barge Company, reported "we couldn't put a girl out in that."

Winds were blowing at 25 miles an hour at 11 p.m. and were expected to reach 35 by noon today.

The 154-pound schoolgirl, daughter of a well-known Toronto family, says she is trying the 22-mile swim to accomplish the unaccomplished, and for no other reason.

Juan de Fuca, with its rip tides in Race Rocks, Current waters, last year defeated Florence Chadwick of San Diego, conqueror of the English channel, the Straits of Gibraltar, the Catalina swim, the Dardanelles, the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles.

OPTION PITCHER

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Chicago White Sox Tuesday optioned pitcher Connie Johnson to Toronto of the International League. Johnson, a righthander, had a 17-8 record with Toronto last year.

Cannington Has Two Champions In Juveniles

CANNINGTON, Ont. (CP)—This farming village is bursting with pride over its two Ontario championship hockey teams.

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association provincial crowns won by its juvenile and midget "C" teams are the realization of an eight-year-old dream for the parents of the champions, the local Lions Club and other interested folk in the area.

These people have worked eight years to build up hockey in this village of 560 about 75 miles northeast of Toronto and the teams have become something of community projects.

The midgets romped through their regular schedule unbeaten. In the playoffs they beat Newcastle, Stirrettsburg, Stouffville and Scarboro. They lost only one game all season, a 7-5 defeat to Seaforth in the second of the best-of-three final series.

GOOD RECORD

The juveniles couldn't find any league competition this season and had to play exhibition games with high school teams. They finished the season with two defeats and six wins. In the playoffs they beat Campbellford, Marmora, Woodbridge, Gravenhurst and Port Dover.

The juveniles travelled 1,315 miles this season in their title quest and the midgets 785. Cars and gasoline were donated by the parents. The Lions Club took care of rewards. Even long-distance phone calls for arranging games were paid for by interested parties.

To ensure future championship teams, a peewee farm club has been formed to develop players. More than 40 kids turn out to play for the one team, but officials make sure everyone gets a turn on the ice.

There aren't enough midget and juvenile youngsters to make up two championship teams so several players were imported from nearby Oakwood and Little Britain to bolster the ranks. At that, five of the midget players also played with the juvenile champs.

Rookie Don Marshall Cheered By Mates for Winning Marker

BOSTON (AP) — It's just the fickle finger of fate," said Montreal coach Dick Irvin in the jubilant Canadiens' dressing room Tuesday night as rookie Don Marshall drew a spontaneous round of compliments for his game-winning goal against the Boston Bruins.

Floyd Curry, who along with Calum MacKay, has been red-hot all through the series, said: "Me and MacKay were really weary. It's a good thing Don did it because we were really tired out there."

Irvin refused to single out any individuals, describing it as real team triumph, but when prodded said he liked the work of Curry and Marshall.

Coach Milt Schmidt said that although his Bruins are in a tough spot, they "can come off the deck." "We've done it before," he added.

The news that goalie Sugar Jim Henry won't leave Boston at least until Thursday was a blow to Boston. The veteran did a tremendous job in the nets.

"Jim wants to come to Montreal tonight on the train," Schmidt said. "But he's going to hospital for the night and will have x-rays tomorrow. He may have a fractured chestbone," Henry was cut by a stick in the third period.

Swimmer Pulled Forcibly From Chilling Waters

VICTORIA (CP) — A well-oiled but ungreased swimmer was forcibly pulled from the waters of Victoria harbor Tuesday night after he started an unheralded attempt to conquer the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Police said that only few hours before Janice White of Toronto postponed her scheduled attempt to swim the 22-mile strait, a 45-year-old ship's engineer was pulled out of the water after he was discovered stroking towards the entrance to Victoria harbor.

He was wearing swimming trunks, an undershirt and socks.

He was taken to hospital where he was treated for slight exposure. Then it was back to his ship for treatment of what was described as a larger hangover.

FIGHTER TREATED

NEW YORK (AP) — Chamrern Songkitrat, veteran Thailand bantamweight fighter, who was given a bad beating by Mexico's Ramon Macias March 9 in San Francisco, has been admitted to hospital suffering from what is described as a "nervous condition."

Since the fight, Songkitrat has been visiting friends in New York.

Walls Dropped To Sixth Place Among Heavies

NEW YORK (AP) — Increased activity among the top-flight boxers has occasioned a host of changes in the April ratings of Ring magazine, released today.

Tommy Jackson of Far Rockaway, N.Y., who is on a winning streak, advances to fifth place from sixth in the heavyweight division. Ezzi Walls of Toronto, Canadian heavyweight champion, drops to sixth from fifth on his draw with James J. Parker of Paterson, N.J.

Jimmy Slade of New York has been eliminated from the top 10. Charley Norkus of Jersey City, N.J., who was ninth last month, is No. 10, while Parker was upped to ninth.

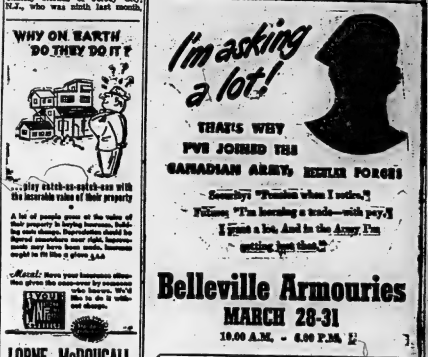
Nino Valdes of Cuba remains the leading challenger to Rocky Marciano's throne, although second-ranked Don Cockell of England will get a title shot at the champion May 16.

WICKETS RALLY IN TEST

KINGSTON, Jamaica (Reuters) An unbroken ninth wicket stand of 128 by Clyde Walcott, 85 not out, and Collie Smith, 90, helped the West Indies recover from a poor start against Australia on the third day of the first test match here.

Replying to Australia's first-innings total of 315 for nine wickets declared, the West Indies had two wickets for 37 runs and half the side was out for 101 before Walcott and Smith came together.

At the close of play they were 321 for five.



Sarnia Sailors Win First One By Shutout

SARNIA (CP) — Sarnia Sailors shut out Woodstock Athletics 3-0 Tuesday night in the first game of their two-game total-goals playoff in the Ontario Hockey Association senior B final.

Leo Houlahan slammed a backhand shot from 15 feet out for the first marker. Fred Free got the other with 25 seconds left to play.

Tubby Hodgins starred in the nets for Sarnia.

Next game will be played at Woodstock Thursday night.

Cadillac

The Story that Silence Tells!

You'll probably never hear a 1955 Cadillac! It is so wonderfully quiet in operation that you can detect only the soft whisper of the wind . . . and, occasionally, the pleasant song of the tires on the pavement.

Insofar as the car itself is concerned, there is only—silence!

And listen, if you will, to the remarkable story this silence tells about the "car of cars."

"Here," it says, "is a mechanism so flawlessly designed and so faultlessly engineered that every component performs with absolute perfection.

"Here is truly scientific styling—so basically good and sound that there is literally no noticeable resistance from wind or road.

"And here is craftsmanship so painstaking that not a trace of vibration can be heard."

And how eloquently it speaks of the satisfactions of Cadillac ownership! It testifies to the wonderful rest and relaxation to be found at the wheel. It promises peace of mind . . . and greater driving safety. And it pledges the utmost in dependability—and endurance—and economy of operation.

Clearly, no one can tell the Cadillac story as well—or as convincingly—as the car itself!

And if you haven't as yet "heard" this remarkable story, we hope that you will accept our invitation to come in and spend an hour at the wheel.

You'll agree; we're certain; that the 1955 Cadillac is its own best spokesman!

Baha'i Faith Celebrates New Year

TRENTON — Members of the Baha'i World Faith — in 330 nationalities, states, and protectorates the world over — recently celebrated their New Year. To Baha'is, it is happy new year 112.

Locally, celebrations were held in Trenton, where Baha'is from Peterborough, Belleville, and Trenton attended.

Festivities took the form of a service, during which selections were read from both Old and New Testaments, the Qur'an, and Baha'i Sacred Writings.

Received music brought the chapel choir of the Cathedral of Trevino to the occasion.

The world unity theme was followed by a pot-luck supper and a lively discussion.

Three Injured In Car Crash Near Havelock

CAMPBELLFORD — Although a number of minor accidents occurred in the district over the week-end, only one resulted in injuries to the parties involved.

About 9 p.m. on Saturday two cars collided on Highway 7, about a mile and a half east of Havelock.

The accident happened as a car, driven by Leonard Davis, 43, of Marmora, attempted to pass another car travelling in the same direction. Police were not sure just exactly what happened, but the two vehicles collided.

The Davis car skidded sideways east along the highway for about ten car lengths, and came to rest in the north ditch, striking a large tree. The Davis car received about $25 damage, while the second auto was damaged to the extent of about $700.

Three occupants of the second car were injured.

Two brothers, Raymond Caverly, 19, and Gerald Caverly, 25, both of R.R. 1, Marmora, were taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital. Raymond, the driver and owner, received a fractured jaw, facial cuts and injured ribs. His condition today is improved. Gerald suffered a broken right leg and chin lacerations, but hospital authorities said his condition is favorable today.

Roy Hannah, a neighbor, received an injured knee and a shaking up. He was able to go home without treatment.

OPP Constable George Louth, of Campbellford detachment, investigated.

QUESTION METRO VALUE

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto and controller Fred Brand, both members of the metropolitan executive committee, today questioned the value of the metropolitan government to Toronto. Mr. Brand said suburbs are receiving reduced tax rates while the city faces an increase. "Metro has not proved much help to the city," he said.

TORONTO
There isn't a day that almost every new and used car dealer in Belleville and district doesn't know who is going to Toronto to buy a car. Carried away by fabulously advertised prices, and a big full of glamour.
Let me tell you as to evaluate what you are buying. We have always felt that it is a sign of shortsightedness on a person buys where he can buy the cheapest. There is a vast difference between buying best and buying cheap.
Next to his home, the average family man's biggest investment is his car. Yet, so often people's cars cost without ever thinking of
1. Will it pay me to go to Toronto and buy a car? I don't know anything about the company who might sell it to me. On the other hand should I buy it in Belleville, where I know the dealer — if I don't drive it I can be a friend who works with me or I have a neighbor who has done business with him.
2. Should I spend "X" dollars for a car in Toronto without having a service board to stand it and a guarantee that it is serviced because of the distance that I have to drive to get any adjustments made. I have never "I neither have the time nor the money to drive 134 miles for my service.
If the buying now and used car public of this community will weigh the facts — then balance the scale of "pros" and "cons" they will find that they buy for less in Belleville and have less headaches.
WE DO NOT HANDLE NEW CARS BUT WE DO HAVE ONE OF THE FINEST COLLECTIONS OF USED CARS IN EASTERN ONTARIO . . . . WITH THE WARRANTY, FAIR TRADE AND A SERVICE HOME.

Senate Wants Govt. to Fill Any Vacancies

OTTAWA (CP)—Legislation has been introduced in the Senate to compel the government to fill within six months any vacancies occurring in the 102-seat upper chamber.

The move has been proposed by Senator William Roler, 79-year-old Kitchener, Ont., businessman and former federal trade minister, in a bill to amend the British North America Act.

Adoption of the bill by the Senate and the Commons would mean the filling of 21 current Senate vacancies and the appointment of new members six months after the death, retirement or resignation of any senator.

AMENDMENT POSSIBLE

Legal authorities here said Senator Roler's proposed law would be within the power of Parliament, which can amend the constitution on all matters within federal jurisdiction.

The last Senate appointment was that of Senator Nancy Hodges, former speaker of the British Columbia legislature, in November, 1953. Since then there have been numerous reports that Prime Minister St. Laurent would soon fill at least some vacancies.

Senator Roler said in an interview outside the Senate that some of the Upper House seats have been vacant five to seven years. This was contrary to public interest and unfair to the Senate.

DEATH BY ATTRITION

"I'm not arguing whether or not there should be a Senate at all," he said. "But if a Senate is worthwhile it should be fully constituted and not be abolished piecemeal by a process of slow attrition."

Under the constitution, the prime minister has the prerogative to make life appointments to the Senate. Newfoundland has six seats, Prince Edward Island four, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick 10 each, Quebec and Ontario 24 each, and the four western provinces six each.

There now are six vacancies in Quebec, four in New Brunswick, three each in Nova Scotia and Ontario, two in Manitoba and one each in Alberta, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Present Senate standing: Liberals 74, Progressive Conservatives 7, vacancies 21—total 102.

Govt. to Spend $100,000 To Attract Games

OTTAWA (CP) — The government plans to spend $100,000 to help attract the 1960 winter Olympics to Canada.

Northern Affairs Minister Lesage told the Commons estimates committee Tuesday he proposes to ask Parliament to vote the money for construction of a new ski jump and other facilities at Mount Norquay at Banff National Park.

The jump would be built to Olympic and International Ski Association standards in the hope that the 1960 games would be at Banff. It would be erected on the site of an existing ski jump which recently collapsed.

Mr. Lesage said Mount Norquay is the only area in Canada where downhill, slalom and cross-country runs and a ski jump could be built on one site to Olympic standards.

He said the Canadian Olympic Association has not yet made representations to the international body for the 1960 games to be held in Canada.

In Montreal, a COA official said he doesn't see how Canada could get the 1960 winter Olympics, "but there is no harm in trying to attract the 1964 games."

The official said the deadline for bids for the 1960 winter, as well as summer games was March 1.

Churchill Unlikely To Retire While Paper Strike On

Silencing of London Press May Delay His Retirement

'Impending Doom' Talk Assailed By St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says too many people in Canada have been talking of impending doom.

This, he adds, can easily lead to defeatist thinking, destroying the buoyant confidence which played a big part in the country's economic build-up.

Mr. St. Laurent admitted Wednesday night there are problems and that it would be foolish to ignore them. But the government did not intend to do so. It would do everything possible to overcome them.

"But they really represent adjustments of a temporary nature in an economic machine which is basically sound," he added in a banquet address before the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation.

A DISSERVICE

"To emphasize them out of all proportion to their effect on our economy, as too many are doing, is surely a disservice to our nation. That sort of talk can easily lead to defeatist thinking and can destroy that buoyant confidence which has been a large factor in building our nation."

South Koreans Want 16 Allies To End Armistice

SEOUL (AP)—The South Korean National Assembly today unanimously resolved to call upon the 16 Korean war allies to nullify the armistice and to continue stationing their troops in Korea.

The resolution says that since 1953 the Communist side increased military strength on a large scale in violation of the truce while the UN commission aided by its neutral nations supervisory commission with spying on South Korea and engaging in "hostile activities."

Niagara Ice Jam Now Breaking Up

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y. (AP)—Bright spring sunshine and the gnawing current of the Niagara River appeared to be gradually breaking up this year's worst ice jam in nearly 20 years.

Gleaming in a mix of ice and open water appeared in many places in the 12-mile stretch of the lower river from Niagara Falls to Youngstown, N. Y.

And at the river's mouth, an increasing volume of slush ice and big chunks whirled out into Lake Ontario.

CHURCH SERVICE BY TV

BALTIMORE (AP)—Palm Sunday and Easter services will be televised in a closed-circuit arrangement by the Northwood Methodist church, which faces a supermarket and a gasoline station. The church expects 1,000, but seats only 600. The arrangement would permit the left-over 400 to see and hear the services in the church basement.

THE WEATHER

TORONTO— (CP) — Synopsis: Although stations across northern Ontario are reporting about a foot of snow on the ground, maximum temperatures Wednesday were some five to 10 degrees warmer than those reported from the lower Great Lakes region. This situation should change the next 24 hours as milder air covers the entire province. A developing storm in western Kansas this morning is expected to bring an end to our clear weather by Friday evening.

LONDON (AP)—The Manchester Guardian speculates that London newspaper strike may delay Prime Minister Churchill's anticipated retirement.

The Guardian, a Liberal paper, says that "all the plans have been prepared" for the 80-year-old Conservative leader to hand over the government reins to Foreign Secretary Eden next week. But it adds:

"It is widely and firmly believed by some Conservatives that this fundamental change in government would not be allowed to happen while the London press is silent.

"It, therefore, the newspaper strike continues throughout next week, the announcement of the government changes may be deferred."

All 13 of London's big morning and evening newspapers have suspended publication because of a wage strike last Friday by some 100 maintenance men and electricians. There has been no sign of a break in the union-publisher deadlock.

RUMORS REVIVED

Reports that Churchill's retirement is imminent have been revived recently, with April 4 generally considered the most likely date. That would be just before Parliament's Easter recess and before Churchill leaves for a Mediterranean trip to Sicily.

But no newspapers was good news for libraries and book stalls. To Londoners, any reading matter is better than none at all. Westminster Library in downtown London said book circulation has doubled in the last week.

One major chain of booksellers, with stalls in the main tube stations, reported it has increased its magazines and periodicals of all kinds.".

New Translation of New Testament, First by a Jew, Presented to Queen

BY DAVE MASON

LONDON (AP)—A new translation of the New Testament that occasionally calls Jesus "chief" and the apostles "envoys" was exhibited here Wednesday. It is Christ's crown of thorns becomes "the sacred fillet."

The translator calls this the authentic version of the writings which form the story of Christianity. It represents 35 years' labor by a Jewish scholar.

The translator, Hugh J. Schonfield, told reporters previewing the work that he was moved by "a great need to promote improved relations between Jews and Christians." He termed previous translations "very faulty" and dead.

The translation looks more like a high school history book or a fat novel than the Scriptures. Author and publisher say it is the first ever done by a Jew and the translator's first non-ecclesiastical interpretation of the New Testament.

The Queen accepted a copy and autographed copy of Schonfield.

Schonfield, an English Jew, said he approached the job as an historian with the life and thought of the period in which they were put down.

He uses original colloquial expressions and idioms in his new translation is in the modern English idiom, avoiding the conventional archaic phraseology of previous versions. Schonfield said, however, that "there are no violent changes to any fundamental thing believed to have Christian."

Schonfield studied scores of original manuscripts in the 30 years of research for the book which took him to Palestine, Egypt, Athens and Rome. He took five years to write it.

OPPOSITION CALLS VETS' COMMITTEE A RUBBER STAMP

Wants Better Treatment Of Allowance Recipients

OTTAWA (CP) — Two war-veteran members of the opposition accuse the government of turning the Commons veterans' committee into a powerless rubber stamp for its legislation.

The charges were made in the Commons-Wednesday by Col. A.D. Brooks (PC—Royal) and Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South).

The criticism likely will continue today, when the House resumes clause-by-clause study of a government bill to boost war veterans allowances by 30 per cent.

Wednesday's statements were a further attack on committee demands for better treatment of allowance recipients — some 41,500 veterans and widows and orphans of veterans in needy circumstances.

Col. Brooks, his party's chief spokesman on veterans' affairs, said the 30 per cent increase is "merely rubber-stamped" the bill, which would increase monthly allowances to $60 from $50 for single men and to $108 from $90 for those married.

NO POWER

Mr. Gillis said the committee, which once acted as the government's adviser on veterans' legislation, has been reduced to a rubber-stamping board with no power to recommend changes in government bills.

The present measure, besides increasing allowances, would raise the ceiling on permissible annual income for allowance recipients to $840 from $750 for single veterans and to $1,440 from $1,200 for married veterans.

The Progressive Conservative and CCF critics said the government should have set the income ceilings at $1,200 and $2,000 for single and married recipients, respectively, in line with the repeated requests of the Canadian Legion and the National Council of Veterans.

The Commons spent most of its half-day sitting discussing the final items in the government's spending program for the fiscal year ending today. It passed $33,594,000 in supplementary estimates, bringing budgetary spending for 1954-55 to a record-breaking total of $1,507,234,000.

During study of supplementary estimates, Jean Pallett (PC—Peace River) accused the transport department of unfairness in expropriation and control of land around airports.

He referred to the program of buying up land around air terminals for future expansion and controlling the use of land to prevent construction of flying hazards on airport approaches.

Mr. Pallett said property owners near Vancouver Municipal airport learned only recently of a regulation passed in April, 1953, prohibiting the erection of any kind of structures near airports.

Construction had not been notified, and a two-year limitation on damage claims against the government had almost expired. It was the only way to obtain compensation was through expensive legal action in the exchequer court.

LOWEST DEATH TOLL

CHICAGO (AP) — The smallest United States traffic death toll for any month since July 1950 was recorded in February, the National Safety Council announced today. The 1,500 reported fatalities numbered 2,279 in February, the lowest monthly total since February, 1950, when 2,258 were killed.

South Africa's Govt. Takes Over Most Missionary Schools

JOHANNESBURG (AP)" — South Africa's Nationalist government takes over most of the country's missionary schools Friday. Protestant and Roman Catholic church groups have mounted the move as a further step toward racial segregation.

The mission schools, bolstered by government assistance, have educated colored (mixed blood) children for more than a century. Under the new law, financial aid will be cut and subsidized mission day schools will come under Dr. H. F. Verwoerd's ministry of native affairs. The Roman Catholics are trying to keep their schools going by means of subscriptions among members.

"It was an unlucky day for Bantu (native) education when Mr. Verwoerd was permitted to take it under his control," comments the Rand Daily Mail. The paper suggests the move is aimed to "prevent the native from learning." It adds:

"No minister and no government has ever succeeded in doing that. But what a pity that he should try."

Grace Kelly and Marlon Brando Win Oscars for Best Actors

BY JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"On The Waterfront," the movie that Hollywood almost turned down, has won eight Oscars—including Marlon Brando's first—to tie the all-time Academy awards record.

The brutal, often sadistic story of labor racketeering on New York docks made a rout of the 27th annual awards presentation Wednesday night. The eight awards, plus one honorary plaque, equalled the record of "Gone With The Wind" made in 1939.

Only Grace Kelly, the dowdy wife of "The Country Girl," was able to steal a smattering of the glory away from the hard-hitting drama of the longshoremen's union.

The reserved Miss Kelly, with tears in her eyes, took home the award for best actress. Even the honor could not shake her ladylike composure. When photographers asked her to kiss Brando on the cheek, the Philadelphia millionaire's daughter shrivelled politely:

"I believe he should kiss me."

Brando, with unrestrained pleasure, enthusiastically kissed Miss Kelly time after time while flashbulbs popped.

Fear inside the Oscar was one long overdue him. Considered by many to be the finest actor since the late John Barrymore, Brando had been nominated three times before without a call from the podium.

"I honestly thought Bing Crosby would win," he told a reporter.

There seemed to be such a profound well of sentiment in favor of both him and Judy Garland that I didn't think Grace and I stood a chance."

"Waterfront" was named best picture of the year. It also received awards for top actor, film editing, art direction, cinematography, story and screen play, best direction and best supporting actress.

It also received a plaque for set decorations, an award that automatically accompanies the art direction trophy.

The winning movie was conceived by director Elia Kazan, writer Budd Schulberg and producer Sam Spiegel. It was turned down by two major companies, then Columbia volunteered to release it and it was produced for the comparatively small budget figure of $780,000.

Eva Marie Saint, who supplied the romantic interest in Brando's punchy pug in "Waterfront," was named best supporting actress for her first film role.

Edmond O'Brien, the only nominee, the forecasters agreed on, won the award for best supporting actor as the harried procuring agent of "The Barefoot Contessa."

Dandy, who apparently had a ball at the first Academy award function he has attended in years, wasn't the least dismayed when he lost.

"I knew all along Marlon would win it," Bing said, laughing. "And he deserved it, too. I had honor enough just being nominated."

Miss Garland, who viewed the awards by television in a hospital where her son was born Tuesday, said afterward she wasn't really disappointed when Miss Kelly got the nod.

"After all, I was presented with my own special oscar," Miss Garland said in reference to the new baby. "I thought Grace Kelly was great. She did a magnificent job in 'The Country Girl.'"

In other awards, Walt Disney got the Irving Thalberg award for top production.

Other awards:

Best documentary short — "Thursday's Children." British Information Services.

Best documentary feature—"The Vanishing Prairie."

Best film scoring — "The Glenn Miller Story."

Best cartoon — "When Magoo Flew."

Best one-reel short—"This Mechanical Age."

Best two-reel short—"Time Out of Mind."

Best special effects—"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea."

Best costume design (black and white)—"Sabrina."

Best costume design (color) — "Gate of Hell."

Best song—"Three Coins in the Fountain."

Line Up for Food

BERLIN (Reuters) — The East German newspaper National Zeitung has admitted that people are having to line up for food in Communist East Germany.

In some districts only eight grams are being sold to each person. Sugar goods and candy are reduced to enable sugar rations to be raised, and darker flour is being used for various kinds of bread and rolls, the newspaper says.

RELIGIOUS SECT'S PRIVATE ARMY SWITCHES SIDES

Premier of Viet Nam Scores Major Victory

By JOHN RODERICK

SAIGON (AP) — Premier Ngo Dinh Diem scored a major victory today in his bid to oust war with South Viet Nam's three private armies. One opposition commander came over to the premier's side with some 10,000 of his troops.

Silence meanwhile was quiet under an uneasy 24-hour truce arranged Tuesday. At least 37 were killed and 112 wounded in predawn fighting Wednesday in the capital of Saigon. Officials said that battle was between the national army troops of Ba Cut Binh Xuyen Society, another unit of anti-Diem coalition.

The switch to the premier was made by Gen. Nguyen Thanh Phuong, military commander of the Cao Dai religious sect. Phuong heads the most important and best trained of the state's three "private" armies.

A high staff member of the anti-Diem "united front of nationalist forces," Gen. Nguyen Hoa Hao, another religious sect with its own private army. The Hoa Hao controls much of the Mekong Delta. It was reported Wednesday night to have agreed to organize a military campaign against Diem's troops in the west.

Will Appoint New Managers For Soviet Farms

MOSCOW (AP)—Pravda says the Communist party and the Soviet government plan to appoint new managers for "tens of thousands" of Soviet collective farms in a further effort to step up production.

The Soviet Communist party newspaper in an editorial says the plan was made public by Nikita Khrushchev, the party's first secretary, in a speech to farmers and party workers Wednesday. Khrushchev said the plan would help Pravda say to farms which are lagging behind" and to get rid of "bureaucrat inefficient and corrupt managers.

The new farm manager program is the latest in a series of urgent measures by Soviet authorities to increase farm output. Thousands of city youths were sent to Siberia and the Soviet republics last year to plow up virgin areas and grow more grain.

Premier Nikolai Bulganin's government meanwhile underwent another high-level change Wednesday with the removal of Konstantin Pankov as minister of lands. He was replaced by V. A. Kucherenko, one of four new deputy premiers appointed March 8.

It has uncertain whether Sokolov's removal ended his control from the ruling Kremlin group or whether he was being shunted into another post. The construction ministry has been under fire for the last few months for poor workmanship.

BEA COLLAPSES

LONDON (AP)—Beatrice Lillie, veteran Toronto-born comedienne, collapsed on the stage of the Globe Theatre Wednesday night shortly after the show began. She had reportedly been suffering from nausea on with a later second show on the night's program. Miss Lillie's physician agreed she was merely "working off" a bout of influenza. The first show was cancelled when the star collapsed. Miss Lillie, Lady Peel in private life, is 56.

Old Stick-in-Mud Balanoglossus Out of Rut After 300 Million Years

WASHINGTON (AP)—A strange new what-is-it has been added to the Smithsonian Institution's vast collection of specimens and one of the biggest balanoglossus in the world.

What's a balanoglossus? It's hard to get a straight answer out of scientists. But the best one is a balanoglossus is something like a starfish, something like a starfish and a little like a worm. Actually it is a creature with a backbone.

In fact, says Dr. Smithsonian, the balanoglossus, which looks like a giant worm and smells like a freshly opened bottle of iodine, sometimes is considered a sort of link between the worm, echinoderm (starfish) and vertebrate groups.

Summing up the balanoglossus, the government museum says: "It is not pretty, but then two or three hundred million years ago most animals were not the prettiest."

This particular balanoglossus was dredged up in 1951 off Grand Isle, La., by Dr. Harry Bennett of Louisiana State University. It is about 18 inches long and one day. They had to work gingerly for balanoglossi—or is it balanoglossuses?—are delicate and go all to pieces when disturbed.

When he got them, Bennett had a balanoglossus more than three feet long.

Grace Kelly Says Eden Has Done Excellent Job

LONDON (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill told the House of Commons today Britain is prepared to "examine any proposals likely to prevent an extension of hostilities in the area of the Formosa straits."

The prime minister added: "I doubt if anyone has worked harder — indeed I doubt if anyone has worked so hard in the whole world — than the foreign secretary (Sir Anthony Eden) to steer this matter out of the danger area."

The prime minister was answering a question by Labor member Fenner Brockway, who urged him to suggest to President Eisenhower a meeting of the heads of state of the United States, Britain, the Soviet Union, France and India.

Churchill replied:

"During his triumphal journey the foreign secretary discussed this problem with Secretary Dulles and he had discussions with Nehru and Burma.

"As he told the House Mared a, he came reluctantly to the conclusion, with which I agree that the necessary conditions have not yet been brought about where progress could be made to a conference."

If Whole World Fights, India Will Be Neutral

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru said today catastrophe threatens the world, but India has no intention of getting involved in it. India will be on the whole of the rest of the world is at war.

The prime minister told Parliament that while he does not think there is any danger of war, the world situation has "hardened" since the Geneva conference.

The Indian leader said the main Geneva topics today are Formosa, Indochina and Germany.

FLAMES BIG POWERS

Nehru blamed the United States, Russia, Britain and France for setting off a Big Four meeting for 2½ years because they wanted to negotiate from strength while the situation went from bad to worse.

Two Being Held As Witnesses In Man's Death

Polish Immigrant Beaten In Montreal Rooming House

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Rosario Fontaine, medico - legal expert, said today heart failure caused the death of Lobo Januszewski during a battle Wednesday in his rooming house.

In announcing the cause of death following an autopsy, Dr. Fontaine said it was difficult to determine immediately the cause of the heart failure. A pathology examination would be required.

Dr. Fontaine said there was a congestion of the brain which could have been caused by emotional disturbance.

"But it was a sick man and he apparently didn't know it," said Dr. Fontaine.

Two men and a woman are being held as material witnesses. Police said they will be detained for an inquest now scheduled for Friday, ONE DOP ... pars 2:30

One of the men and the woman were arrested early today in a room a few blocks from the rooming house owned by Januszewski. The second man later gave himself up and was lodged in police cells.

Officers said the men, both Negroes, were 29. The woman, 35, is white.

Detective captain Russell Senecal of the Montreal homicide squad said an autopsy will be performed later today to determine the cause of death.

NO CHARGES YET

No date has yet been set for a coroner's inquest. In Quebec province no charges are laid in cases of violent death until an inquest has been held.

Januszewski, 44-year-old Polish immigrant, had been complaining about the heat and lying in a pool of blood in the downtown boarding house he had purchased recently.

Police said he was attacked when he went upstairs to ask the occupants of a room to make less noise.

The occupants were a man and a woman who had rented the room a few hours earlier, and a second man who had joined them shortly after they had entered the room.

BOY TAKEN AWAY

The Januszewskis came to Canada in 1948 and worked as domestics in Ajax, Ont., until the owner to buy the rooming house less than a year ago.

The eldest son, Zygfryd, was separated from his parents when the Russians occupied their country. He forced labor by the Nazis in 1942 and spent the next 12 years with relatives. He was among the first to be allowed to quit Poland to rejoin his parents in Canada. He arrived here last September.

They have one other child, Johnny, 5.

Booklet Available On Animal Health

There's a commonly heard statement that of all the countries in the world, Canada has the healthiest animal population of any. This state of health we are told, "just happens", but though the application over the past fifty years of the new findings in means of prevention is worth a pound of cure".

This statement frames the introduction of the new farm booklet now being distributed by The Canadian Bank of Commerce under the caption "Animal Health is Important", from which the following is an outline about how an "ounce of prevention" will assure the continuing health of the animals and as a result, give the farm operation better quality livestock, and lower production costs.

This new booklet prepared by the Bank, "Health Is Big Business Is Important" was published with the co-operation of Dr. C. A. V. Barker, Department of Medicine and Surgery, Ontario Veterinary College, and federal and provincial veterinarians across Canada. The booklet is illustrated by artist Jack Cockburn, of Dromore, Ont.

The booklet is divided into three main sections: — 1. Major sources of disease; 2. Methods of disease control; 3. Methods of disease prevention. Written in a concise form, it gives a complete presentation of the problems of animal health on the farms, and the best methods of solving those problems.

To date 18 issues on 16 different topics have been prepared in both French and English, and more than 2 1/2 million copies have been distributed — an indication of the reception the program has enjoyed, and a tribute to those who initiated the plan. The splendid success of the program is also shown by comments and letters offered by people in all walks of life.

The booklets, accurate in detail and couched in language, has created an intense interest with farm families. The booklets are prepared under the direction of leading farm authorities in Canada.

"Animal Health Is Important" may be obtained from any branch of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, or by writing to Mr. F. S. Taylor at the Head Office, 25 King Street West, Toronto.

MAYFLOWER SAILS AGAIN

BOSTON (AP) — A new Mayflower—an exact copy of the Pilgrim's 1620 vessel—may sail the Atlantic soon from Plymouth, England, to Plymouth, Mass. The plan is to build a $350,000 duplicate of the historic ship with funds from the British people was announced Wednesday. Representatives of the sponsoring committee have raised almost all the money needed for the project described as a "gesture of goodwill."

Driver Thrown From Bread Truck Onto Causeway

Charles Hamilton, Bloomfield, driver for Weston's Bread, escaped with little more than a shaking up shortly before noon today when he was thrown from his bread truck onto the causeway rocks as the vehicle crashed through the guard rails on the Bay Bridge Road.

Hamilton was thrown from the right door of the panel delivery as the vehicle bounced down the rock embankment, coming to a stop only three feet from the water. He narrowly escaped being crushed by the truck against the rocks.

Either a blowout of a front tire or failure of the steering mechanism was blamed for the accident. The vehicle skidded out four guard rail posts on the east side of the causeway and bounced 25 feet down to the water's edge. The truck remained on its wheels but the front axle, wheels and front fenders were smashed.

Traffic on the bay bridge road was limited to one-way, while a wrecking crew pulled the smashed vehicle back onto the road.

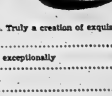
Police Blotter

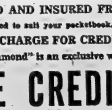
Five hundred feet of electric welding cable, the property of the Canadian Pacific Railways, was reported stolen this morning with police receiving the complaint from a company section foreman.

Two Picton soldiers got mixed up in their directions early today and instead of making their way toward Prince Edward county ended up against a hydro pole on East Moira road, north of Colebrooke. One of the soldiers was booked on a drunk charge, while the driver, Patrick D. Lahey, was charged with drunk driving, and was allowed bail until the court appearance April 28th.

Robt. Patterson, 119 Dundas St., west, reported to police that he had been struck by a car while crossing near the Ontario School for the Deaf. Police said they were uncertain as to what had actually occurred.

PATROLS TIGHTENED





WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States government had 2,139,000 persons on its civilian payroll at the end of January—45,000 less than a year ago—the labor department reported Monday.

$213,600.83 In Goods, Services Bought in Area

OSHAWA—Goods and services worth $213,600.83 were purchased from suppliers in the the Belleville area by General Motors of Canada in 1954.

"Confirming a pattern established in previous years, Belleville firms made substantial contributions to the production of cars and trucks by General Motors last year," GM President William A. Wecker said in releasing this figure.

With production schedules at General Motors exceeding the same period last year, Mr. Wecker saw GM drawing even more heavily on Canadian sources of supply in the future. In 1954 more than 1,300 Canadian firms found a market with General Motors for some part of their output.

As Canadian industry continues its growth and diversification, Mr. Wecker said, this expanded General Motors production will continue to seek out Canadian suppliers and channel its purchasing to Canadian firms in every possible case.

Sleeping in the Lord

Dear Dad, we think of you

Your memory will live with us
Dear Dad.
That you died the helpless to defend,
We wondered why
War like a roaring mighty torrent
Bears many a soul away
But the memory of our brother Ken
Will be with us to stay.
Too dearly loved to be forgotten,
Too deeply mourned by Mother, sister Frances, Fred, Nancy and baby. M31

Quebec Village's Long Isolation Is Nearly Over

STE. CROIX DE LOTBINIERE, Que. (CP) — Business was almost at a standstill and this village's 1,200 residents talked of the worst snowfall in history today as March stole away like a lamb.

Seven miles south a snowblower, bulldozer and villagers with shovels worked in warm sunshine through 15-foot-high drifts to clear the remaining two miles of a road to Lauzier station where fresh food and fuel can be obtained.

Ste. Croix, 40 miles southwest of Quebec City, has been isolated since March 21 by three blizzards which whipped snow as high as the tops of telephone poles. The snowblower has been working since Tuesday towards Lauzier station, nine miles south of here through snow packed as hard as concrete by the winds. The blower broke down twice.

A second snowblower began moving from Lauzier to Lauzier station Tuesday. It had covered a mile and a half when it quit today because of a bent cam, Mayor Paul Biron said.

The village which receives a twice-weekly delivery of fuel from the station ran short last week.

Blind Operator Said Excellent In Spot Test

MONTREAL (CP)—The switchboard operator at Plateau 6491 in Montreal was recently graded "excellent" in a spot test by the Bell Telephone Company.

The results meant much to 27-year-old Pauline Roy, a sightless operator at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Pauline, who lost her sight four years ago, works at one of the three boards in Quebec province which operate on the braille system and which have no light signals.

The attractive redhead kept house for her sick mother and five brothers and spent her free time swimming and bicycling before she lost her sight.

Her disability came on slowly after an illness, first with the loss of sight in one eye.

"I was so mad—so angry—this should happen to me," Pauline said. "I think the hardest part was to go out alone."

Two years ago, Pauline acquired Beegee, a four-year-old seeing-eye dog, now with her constantly.

Mrs. Curry said the last thing she remembered before losing consciousness was driving along a street with her husband.

Uganda Ousts Three Tribes

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — The governor of this British protectorate today ordered the expulsion of all Rikuyu, Meru and Embu tribesmen, except Mau Mau, that still remain while terrorism would spread from neighboring Kenya.

Mau Mau terrorists have been crossing the frontier and receiving shelter from fellow tribesmen in this hitherto terrorist - free land, the governor said.

The expulsion order will be carried out within three months. Only the deportation of members of the three tribes who have been longtime residents of Uganda, and who can satisfy the governor that they have had no connections with the Mau Mau.

No official estimate has been given of the number of tribesmen affected by today's order.

Meeting Expresses Concern Over Setting of Lake Level

TRENTON — (Special) — Between 60 and 70 people representing scores of property owners in the Bay of Quinte area gathered here in the town hall last night to discuss the International Joint Commission's decision to set the water levels of Lake Ontario at 248 feet some five inches lower than the present lake level.

During the meeting a spokesman expressed concern at the anticipated increase of the lake level by this June. It is felt that lower Trenton will be inundated if the water in the bay raises two feet as expected. Property owners at the meeting look forward to the high water level to cost them thousands of dollars in damages and erosion.

The mark set by the International Commission is only one foot, three inches lower than the all-time high of Lake Ontario, a concerned property owner revealed. The level would be all right if the bay and lake remained as calm as a mill pond, one speaker explained drawing attention to the loss property owners there suffer, when the waters became rough and ate away land on the shore.

As the result of the meeting the Bay of Quinte Lake Ontario Shore Property Protective Association was formed with Jack Allin of Belleville, Reeve Herman Morrow of Brighton and Mike Andison, Hugh Fraser, Rhett James, Don Fraser and Irving Shulman as committee members.

The committee requests all property owners who will be affected by the tentative high water level to write Hugh Fraser at Post Office Box 375, Trenton for information relative to the scheduled public hearings of the International Joint Commission at the Toronto Metropolitan Council Chambers on April 14.

Tax Rate Will Be Increased By Seven Mills

TRENTON (Special) — Trenton's 1955 tax rate will be struck at 60 mills, an increase of seven mills over 1954.

Budget requirements of the Board of Education account for the entire increase.

Town council will be asked to approve the new rate at a regular meeting Tuesday evening, April 5th.

The increase in the 1955 rate was explained Thursday morning by Trenton's clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry.

The Board of Education budget for 1955 calls for expenditure of $373,853, an increase of $75,453 over 1954 expenditures of $2175,240. The mill in Trenton raises $10,512. The entire seven mill increase will be used to meet the $75,453 increase in the Board of Education budget.

Trenton's Board of Education is currently building a $575,000 collegiate.

Israel, Egypt Will Co-operate With Gen. Burns

By WILLIAM HARCOURT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) A Canadian army career soldier flies back to Palestine today to continue his efforts to bring peace between Israel and Egypt.

Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns of Ottawa, chief of the UN truce supervision organization in Palestine, returns in the wake of a Security Council appeal to Israel and Egypt for co-operation with him in his efforts.

After several meetings, the council voted to condemn Israel for the Gaza incident and urged both parties to co-operate with Burns in implementing his proposals to reduce the tension between them.

The appeal for co - operation came Wednesday night in resolution sponsored by Britain, United States and France, and unanimously approved by the council.

Both Israel and Egypt promised co-operation, although Israel criticized the resolution for not condemning Egypt's alleged laxity in preventing the infiltrations.

POLICING SPORTS

"Players get away with things in rinks which would warrant their arrest on the streets," says the Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

It reports that a constable on duty at a game in Port William, commenting on the conduct of a hockey player, is said to have stated: "If it had been on the street, I would have arrested him."

"Why didn't he arrest him in the rink?" asks the News-Chronicle. "From this best legal advice this paper is able to obtain there is nothing written into the laws of the land that gives anyone permission to do in a hockey rink what is not legal elsewhere, at least by way of maybe."

Unfortunately the situation is not quite that simple. On the street it is technically an assault to tap a man on the shoulder. On sports fields, sporty contact is invitable. This contact may be accidental, as in a collision between a fielder and a baserunner in baseball, or it may be deliberate and sanctioned by the rules of the game, as in football or hockey, to the point where bodily contact ceases to be legitimate is determined not by the law of the land but by the rules of the game.

There are, however, limits which are as obviously contrary to the rules of the game as they are to the law of the land, but an infraction of the strict letter of the law having already been countenanced, it is difficult task for a police officer to decide exactly when he should act. No police officer should be blamed for failure to arrest an athlete on the playing field for an act which would have resulted in his immediate arrest if he were on the street.

Still, more frequent intervention by police officers is desirable if rowdiness is to be curbed. It is possible to suggest an easy solution. Players, by the very act of participating in a sport, agree to forego some of their legal rights. The spectator, by his attendance at the game, does not. Spectators are entitled, at all times, to the fullest protection of the law. Conversely, spectators have no right to infringe the law in the slightest. Any assault on a spectator, or any assault by one, should result in a prompt arrest.

The position of officials, which common sense suggests, lies some place between that of the player and the spectator, is hardly defined. Officials should not, of course, be permitted to assault a spectator, nor should they be subject to assault by spectators. Their relations with players, however, may require more leeway. Players, by the very act of agreeing to act as an official as having the same status as a spectator in relation to other spectators and as a player in relation to other players.

RUSSIAN TUNE CHANGES. WHY?

Final French parliamentary approval has now been given to German rearmament.

The U.S. Senate and the parliaments of Denmark, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg are expected to speed ratification of the Paris treaties.

Paper work on the task of rearming Germany will then have been completed.

Yet Premier Nikolai Bulganin of the Soviet Union says his country takes a "positive attitude" toward President Eisenhower's proposal for a Big Four conference.

This is in distinct contrast to Russia's earlier declaration that if the Western powers accepted Germany as a member in their defence pacts any attempt to reach an agreement on European issues between the East and West would be impossible.

Russia now seems willing to accept the fact that Germany is to be rearmed.

Why?

There will be those who will argue that the Russians have no choice in the fact that Germany will be rearmed, that it makes it necessary for Russia to seek a settlement with the West.

There will be those who will contend that Russia has no intention of negotiating any settlement and that Bulganin is merely talking for propaganda purposes.

And there may be a few who will suggest that the reason why Russia has accepted so frightful a fact as rearmed Germany and now appears ready to accept this development is that the Russians believe that the time has passed when a conventional war is of any real importance, beyond providing an additional target for a few atomic bombs.

BRITAIN MAKES WORLD'S FASTEST CAMERA FOR U.S.

Packed in three specially-built cases, two of them six feet tall and the other twelve feet, each, the world's fastest camera was recently flown to New York.

It has been especially designed and made for the United States Government for testing weapons.

The camera is technically known as a "sequential image converter," and is the first of its type in the world. It consists of two large cabinets—the power unit and optical unit. These electronically control an image converter tube, on the face of which six sequential pictures of extremely fast-moving phenomena are obtained. The camera has been devised, developed and constructed by a United Kingdom firm to enable photographs of one part in a millionth of a second exposure (light travels 30 yards in this time) and at one half-millionth of a second intervals to be taken a time. This is a frame-rate of two million per second.

THE PRICE

I viewed his roses, red and white,
And envied him the lovely sight.
"I wish," said I, "my ground would grow
Like yours, so beautiful to see."
"It would," he answered, "if you'd try
And work for it as hard as I.

"You could have roses long of stem,
If you'd provide the care for them.
If you would rake and hoe and spade,
Like mine, your garden could be made.

"If you'd but study what you ought to know
You cannot wish a rose to grow.

"If you would have your garden nice,
For that you have to pay the price.

Here's the first lesson you should learn,
A lawn is something you must earn.
Who wants a garden has to work.
Flowers will not flourish for a shirk."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Not everybody marries wisely. Divorce and separation figures probably give no idea of the personal tragedy of unhappy matches that have been made, and which fabulously persist. No doubt thousands of badly mismated people are unhappy wives, and thousands of hapless husbands are bitched to unhappy men. But by an overwhelming proportion, marriages are happy. Even when you discount the general cussedness of human nature, this is miraculous.

A couple with whom I am acquainted have been heading for a breakup for two or three years. They have been married twenty years, have children who are now teen-agers with no further interest in their parents or home, and nothing but confusion remains. We, their friends, have entertained them separately, sympathetically, listening to their beefs. Their mistake has counselled them. But they are just bored. They are like dispossessed people camping out waiting for new accommodation to be provided. As soon as their children are grown and gone, they know that they will have nothing further in common. They seem to be just sitting waiting for the gong to end the curtain to fall. It has been a dull play.

Last fall, the family doctor had to be called for what looked like an impending nervous breakdown for the wife. She had developed screeching spells, which were at once either by shouting abuse at the husband. The children, of course, just ate each other's food. The doctor had been taking some courses in psychiatry recently. He looked at the situation coldly and fully, the house in which the family had lived at their fifteen.

Here is what he prescribed:

"Sell this house. You can afford a better one. But more important, sell all the furniture—every stick of it, even that up in the attic bedrooms. Most important, however, get rid of every framed picture you've got. Don't take a single one to the new house. Every painting, every print, every photograph, every dismal one, throw out or give away. Prepare an absolutely new, fresh, strange environment as you can possibly manage."

Which they did. Now they are so busy entertaining us in their smart new home, in fact so busy with the kids to go out for the evening so we can have a little peace and quiet. What seems to have happened in the times requires is a fresh environment.

Legendary Heroes Exposed

(By Allen Schoenfield in the Detroit News)

Believing as did Remy Ford, that "history is more or less bunk," a Northwestern University professor of English has undertaken to examine some of the most famed and cherished legends of the ages and, with many a merry quip, to expose them as patent fakes.

This is not the first time that Bergen Evans, author of the recently published "The Spoor of Spoken," has debated with himself the "legitimacy" of the "bugbears", or "Bellevers". He was responsible, eight years ago, for "The Natural History of Nonsense".

It is disconcerting to learn, from Prof. Evans, that Diogenes never lived in a tub and that yarn started by 200 years after the death which Seneca remarked that the philosopher was sorry that he "ought" to have lived in a tub.

"And as for the lantern," says Prof. Evans, "he probably had no bother to look for an honest man, day or night, with or without a lighted."

Brave Horatius never stood on a bridge to repel Lars Porsena because, according to Evans, a Horatius, "Cocles," meaning "one-eyed," says the professor, indicates that the Horatius legend was merely a Cyclops and "a confused fragment of the legend of Vulcan."

Romulus could have been born of a Caesarean section since the operation was first performed 15 centuries after his assassination.

Cleopatra, a Greek and not an Egyptian, was not so beautiful as possible to dissolve a pearl in wine and drink it. Even if she did so it is virtually certain she did not bathe her own life by pressing an asp to her breast.

Lady Godiva, it appears, figured in a conspiracy to thwart Norman conquest.

There is no contemporary record of Wilhelm Tell or the tyrant Gessler. As for Tell's marksmanship, and the story always begins with it—they were relating the same yarn about Norwegian apple-knocker 300 years before.

Prof. Evans finds that Lucrezia Borgia was the innocent pawn of her father and brother, "surprisingly courageous as it may be to romantic conceptions of her wickedness, lucrezia Borgia was a pious, charitable, bovine, good nature."

Benedict Arnold, Prof. Evans, the two English kings, Richard and John, sons of Henry II, Richard "the Lion-hearted," is a national idol.

Matter of fact, he never spoke English, was in the country less than one year, bled ft white to finance his Crusades, and was a tyrannosaurus, was B-tempered, overbearing, blundering, a bad son and a faithless husband.

John, says Prof. Evans, is always pictured as the villain in the wretched rascal, a villain and a knave."

But he ought to be honored because he battled the barons and the papacy to the advantage of the common people and, in granting Magna Charta, helped to think he was granting them special privileges while, actually, he was securing the basis of English liberty.

Prof. Evans strives to demolish tenaciously-held beliefs in ghosts, the prophesies of Nostradamus, Prof. T. B. Rhine's "extra-sensory perception", the Indian rope trick, dowsers, persons who have gone for years without eating or drinking, anyone claiming to be more than 100 years old, household remedies, clocks that stop at the owner's death, the credibility of clock-marker letters, the effectiveness of mothballs, "jolly" bachelors, marriage counsellors, the growing pains, "crime does not pay" and many more accepted concepts relating to the laws of libel, trespass and the supposedly feminine art of making a man wearing glasses.

It is quite all right for him to prove that the Earl of Sandwich never invented the sandwich at a gaming table, precisely at 5 a.m. on Aug. 6, 1762, and that meat between two slices of bread was known to the ancient Romans as "offula".

Prof. Evans can — and does — prove that Dr. Joseph Ignace Guillotine did not invent the guillotine. It was Dr. Antoine Louis, secretary of the Royal Academy of Surgeons, who designed the decapitating device. Originally it was known as a "louisette". He may have gotten the idea from a German contraption that Mary Queen of Mathew being guillotined. Anyway the first victim to be executed was guillotined and both died in their beds of natural causes.

It is a shock to learn that no Dutch boy ever saved the town of Haarlem by plugging a hole "with his little finger" into a hole in a dike because anyone knows a hole in a dike requeired that impossibility.

Queen Juliana may have appeared at Spaarndam Lock in 1909 to dedicate a statue to that problem hero — but the whole thing remains a tourist trap and the incident was immortalized by Mrs. Hayes Dunlap in her "Hans Brinker, or the Silver Skates", published in New York in 1865.

One can "survive the fact that Neville Chamberlain, the "umbrella man" of the 1930's, "had his day in time", after Munich, was merely quoting from the Order for Daily Morning Prayer in the Book of Common Prayer.

TODAY'S LATH

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEFT-OVERS

Life is made up of experiences. Into each one some phase of adventure enters. And after each of these adventures and experiences are left-overs. Their part as the left-overs with which we enrich our memories.

Mrs. J. J. Hamilton, a dear friend and neighbor for over thirty years, expressed it this way: "I like the sleep that knows no dream." The soul is a wonderful thing, developed by all who ever met or knew her. She once wrote: "I accept the past as it is, and the present as it comes, and the future with confidence, and enjoy its bounty. If the left-over be alms, I enjoy what is left to me."

Most of us think of an event as ended when it is over. But there are left-overs to every event and experience that we have. Many of these left-overs influence our lives for years. A few even for a lifetime. We read a book and when we turn to it again and again because of its magic left-overs from a former reading.

That which cements friendships are its left-overs. More and more do we learned, both ways, at each new meeting. Even the stranger, anyone, but from the many left-overs we judge his character and personality. Something of everyone somehow seems to remain.

Through the years many a man and woman are what keep the years from being a curse. "In spite of that one has gone from life, new left-overs are constantly added. For nearly a hundred years since the death of Abraham Lincoln, new left-overs have been added to his fame. Great men and women never die! Thereby he scattered him- left-overs.

Let us not, however, be trapped by the left-overs of yesterday. Let us start our days clean and full of hope, bypassing the fears and worries that are no unreal yesterday, or tomorrow.

Strength for the Day

DR. KARL L. DOUGLASS

STILL THE BEST POLICY

Honesty, like other virtues, has a curious way of paying dividends over a long period. It is often inconvenient to be honest, sometimes it even seems unprofitable, though this view is generally a very shortrange one. For the dishonest act that seems so small, so secret, so safe, usually is in fact so likely to blossom and bear ill fruit at just the wrong time.

A tragic illustration of this principle exists in the annals of the United States Navy. All midshipmen at the Naval Academy must pass a swimming test—a reasonable precaution for men destined to serve much of their time at sea. One particular midshipman, years ago, could not swim, but managed to get credit for passing the test by having another man swim in his place. He was graduated and went out into the fleet.

Several years later this same young officer was returning with a party of officers and men in a small boat near Cuba one night. It

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

HOW'S YOUR RHEUMATIC, MOLLY ?

I try hard, and at night when I go to bed I ask God to help me, not to take testimonials too seriously.

Dr. Brady

I do so especially in regard to the rheumatoid — joint degeneration (not inflammation, not arthritis) which so many readers of this column have.

If you have chronic joint disability, it is my belief that the disability commonly called "chronic arthritis" or "chronic rheumatism" is, in most cases of more than one year's duration, not inflammation, not infection and not retention of by-products of faulty metabolism, but simply physical degeneration of joint tissues, due to nutritional deficiency.

Whether you do your morning rolls (commercials, in Liverpool, before Young Bill went to college) or not, you ought to know what degeneration means. Please bear in mind that we are concerned with physical, structural degeneration and not with moral deterioration.

Webster defines degeneration in five terms: Deterioration of a tissue or an organ in which its vitality is diminished; a constitutional state; poor or a higher form of structure, either by chemical change of the tissue (true degeneration) or the deposit of abnormal matter in the tissues (infiltration).

Stedman, the medical Webster, devotes more than half a page to it, beginning with this: A retrogressive pathological change in cells or tissues in consequence of which the functioning power is lost, and the living substance becomes converted in an inert mass.

Now I tell you, folks, this hurts me as much as it hurts you, but, after all, we're grown up and we can take it well fine it: Degeneration comes to every one who lives long enough.

In some instances the retrogressive pathological change is general, showing all the tissues more or less, and we call it old age or premature aging, perhaps.

But when the change affects primarily the tissues of the heart and arteries, and we call it cardiovascular degeneration. In the professh. we have an abbreviation for it: C.V.D.

In still other instances the retrogressive change is most manifest in teeth, gums and jaws, and unteachable practitioners of dentistry and medicine label it "pyorrhea" or "Rig's disease" and even sell expensive instruments, medicines and expensive courses of treatment purporting to cure or arrest the "disease".

In the most familiar if not most distressing form, arthritic degeneration affects physical joint tissues and we call interstitial or insidious disability resulting from impairment of joint function the rheumatic.

Bachelors Have Problem

(Windsor Star)

Bachelors always have a problem when seeking housekeepers. It is not that they want to remain bachelors. Some applicants for position have their hopes eyes eagerly alert to matrimony, rather than just a job.

This is illustrated by an advertisement in England) wherein two financial farmers seek a woman who can cook. They add the precautionary phrase "no wedding bells." It is stated soon they are confirmed bachelors, content with a bit tired of their own cooking.

Trouble is, how can a bachelor know when he has a housekeeper, that she is not thinking of matrimonial possibilities? Or, for that matter, how he may change his own attitude if the housekeeper he employs should become a good cook? One way to a man's heart, it is said, is via housekeeper cash.

Many a bachelor has done right well by marrying up with an acceptable housekeeper. If she be a good housekeeper, that is one element in a good wife. Not all housekeepers, of course, have a mind to matrimony. And not every bachelor really wants to stay that way. The housekeeper contends herself to him.

But Fair Sex Loves Fight!

(Montreal Star)

We are fully aware of the caution about underestimating the female sex which apropos the forecast by Dr. Summerskill, British medical expert, that the world will if need be take over the job of reproduction. Perhaps if they put their minds to it, they could bring it off.

But Dr. Summerskill has something to learn about her own gender. She speaks of their "instinctive aversion to fighting". She should visit a wrestling match. It is quite a good idea to attend one.

The instinct of feminine members of the audience is generally to encourage one of the contestants to dismember the other in the most painful manner that seems possible.

Instinctive aversion to fighting? Tosh, Dr. Summerskill!

Porter Defends His Leniency With Bootlegger

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter Wednesday defended in the Ontario legislature his action in reducing a two-month jail term given a Peterborough taxi-driver to a $100 fine for bootlegging.

Mr. Porter said his move was justified because the convicted taxi driver, Geoffrey Feeley, assisted provincial police in the arrest of bankrobbers.

The attorney-general said Feeley assisted police although he knew in the course of the investigation they would find that he was bootlegging.

"He took the risk of arrest to aid the law. I think I did the right thing in remitting the sentence," Mr. Porter said.

Opposition leader Farquhar Oliver said the attorney-general reduced the sentence against the advice of magistrate, W. H. Philp, and crown attorney John Bradshaw of Peterborough.

Mr. Oliver, reading a story from the Peterborough Examiner, said it appeared justice was interfered with by the attorney-general.

APPEALS TURNED DOWN

Mr. Oliver quoted the paper as saying that Feeley was convicted of bootlegging April 15, 1954, and sentenced to two months by magistrate Philp. Subsequent appeals to the county court judge and the Ontario Appeal Court were turned down.

The paper said Feeley was convicted on a second charge of bootlegging while the appeals were pending. When the appeals were disposed of he was sentenced to six months on the second charge, now under appeal.

REJECT RED DEMAND

BERLIN (Reuters)—The United States Wednesday turned down a new Russian demand for the return of a Russian officer's 17-year-old son who asked for political asylum in the West because he didn't like conditions in the Communist world. The demand was made by Maj.-Gen. P. A. Dibrova, Russian commander of East Berlin, when he called on Maj.-Gen. Georg Honnen, American commander in Berlin.

$50,000,000 Pulp Mill Promised For N. Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—An agreement which may bring a $50,000,000 pulp and paper mill to northwestern Ontario has been concluded by the Ontario government, Hon. Clare Mapledoram, minister of lands and forests, told the legislature Wednesday.

Mr. Mapledoram said an 18-month licence has been granted to the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Co. Ltd., "which it is hoped will result in the establishment of a pulp and paper mill in the vicinity of Sioux Lookout and the development of the large forest area lying north and east of Lac Seul."

Sioux Lookout is about 150 miles northwest of Fort William and the Lac Seul area lies north of Sioux Lookout.

"The departmental surveys indicate an ample supply of wood available to support a mill," he said. "I am confident that we shortly shall see the establishment of an important new industry on this location which will have an important effect on the economics of northwestern Ontario."

NEW POLICY

Mr. Mapledoram said the granting of 18-month licences was part of a new government policy.

"We will grant no long-term licences henceforth, in the belief that within this period the company must be prepared to undertake production or relinquish the limits for some other company to consider," he said.

The provincial government is surveying a modern-surfaced road to be built from the trans-Canada highway into Sioux Lookout and to the proposed mill site, Mr. Mapledoram said.

The highway would be a two-lane road with a surface to meet requirements of the greatly-increased traffic. Hydro crews now are in the area surveying power resources.

Quinte Craftsmen Close Session

Last evening the Quinte Craftsmen held their closing session, which began last October, at the home of Mrs. Charles Ling, West Bridge Street, with a fine attendance of students and guests.

Since the beginning of the course, previously busy articles in leather craft have been made by the group, including purses of all descriptions; key cases; wallets; change purses; ladies' gloves; ladies' and men's belts, all of which were beautifully tooled and laced.

During the evening Miss Helen Gulman favored with several humorous readings which were greatly enjoyed, and Roger Ling, Mrs. Ling's grandson rendered several piano selections. Little Stephen Ling, five - year - old grandson also added his quota to the delight of all present.

Following the brief program, Mrs. Ling was presented with a lovely pen by Miss Gladys Tamblyn on behalf of the group. The gift was accompanied by a beautiful card signed by the group members.

Refreshments, served by the hostess, brought another Quinte Craftsmen session to a close.

High Commissioner to Canada Gives Address on 'Britain Today'

"The greatness of a nation lies not in its geographical situation; not in its natural resources, nor in its industries, but in the character of its people," stated Lieutenant-General Sir Archibald Nye, United Kingdom High Commissioner to Canada, last evening as he spoke to the Women's Canadian Club in Queen Alexandra School.

His Excellency, who was introduced to the Club and guests by the president, Mrs. W. L. Langlois, spoke on "Britain Today," prefacing his remarks on a brief history of Britain prior to the war and defining the work of an ambassador or High Commissioner in relation to the country visited and the country sending him.

SMALL COUNTRY

Britain is a small country about the size of one-fifth of the Province of Ontario, having a population of 54,000,000 which is three and one-half times the population of Canada. Because of its size and density it usually is self-sufficient, and to meet this deficit has to import from other countries, for which it is never quite able to pay. However, the country was rich because of its invested money the world over, to which the United States owes much. Britain's income before the war was sufficient to maintain a balanced budget and to maintain her standard of living.

The war put Britain in the front lines; her food imports were affected due to loss in shipping; half of the Merchant Marine tonnage was crippled, necessitating the rebuilding of the Merchant Navy. Through bombing, one house in three was either damaged or totally destroyed, and so with the factories and other plants. This building and housing problem had to be made good. She had to scrape the bottom of the barrel to finance the war, and had to sell a great part of her overseas investments which disturbed the traditional markets, which were taken over by other nations. Many countries did not buy the same articles as before, but began building their own, of these, one was Canada.

MANPOWER DEPRECIATED

Her manpower was depreciated in the two World Wars with 1,000,000 being killed and many wounded and unfitted for their former occupations. The flower of young manhood was gone; those who would have become leaders in all professions. At the end of the war Britain suffered from the war shortage: meat, which one would eat if they could, some in one day had to last for seven days; fuel rationing also was rationed; which in itself was depressing, especially on the women folk. They were worried about their sons and husbands, but found time to help each other.

But they were "stout of heart", giving the courage to their what came.

Looking ahead there are many problems, the major one being to get going again, to export in order to maintain the state of living to which they had been accustomed. Although the people are working harder now, the production has been greater for overseas to be sold. There are exhibits of cloth, but not for sale when many sizes are not available for six or seven years.

UNIVERSAL MILITARY SERVICE

England thought that World War II ended all wars, but there are clouds and menaces yet. So the government says "every universal military service if they wish to continue to exist. Every boy 18 years of ever spends two years in either one or the other of the services. There are 844,000 men under arms looking after the world's interest.

In referring to the shorter hours of work, his Excellency said that it was not a bad thing, as too idle hours tend to tire the workers, and his showing up diminishes the output. The average work hours in England are 45.8 in Canada, 43, and in the United States, 40.5 hours per week. It is not the number of hours but the productivity which counts. To date productivity has increased about 30 per cent and in the last few months it has again stepped up to 5 per cent more output.

TRADE WITH CANADA

In speaking of trade with Canada, Sir Archibald remarked that Canada's problem is Britain's in reverse, where they had to import to live; Canada has to export; Canada produces more wheat, lumber, minerals, almost fruit than she can use, so has to sell the surplus to maintain her standard of life.

England buys these commodities from Canada but the drawback is the currency problem. England is on the sterling standard, and Canada on the dollar, and Canada wants her payment in dollars; she is thus driven to sell her goods to dollar countries in order to purchase goods from Canada. In 1953 England bought twice the value that Canada purchased from her, leaving England with a big deficit of three to two. But British exports when at all possible was the speaker's advice.

Britain is not going down the grade, but is on the up grade in all lines of industry; aircraft, gas turbines and T.V., Britain was never so prosperous as today.

1953 was Coronation year, and Elizabeth II became queen of England and Canada, and may issue in a new Elizabethan era when men will seek, by God's guidance, to win the up grade in the Peace," and the friendship of the great nation, the United States, look to the future with faith, hope and confidence."

Miss Excell-Berry was thanked for his fine address, on behalf of the club, by Mrs. J. W. Kinnear.

Christ Church C.C. Plans 'Melody Tea'

The regular weekly meeting of Christ Church Content Club was held Monday evening in the parish hall with president Marguerite Cooke, presiding. A business discussion was held.

The prize which was to be awarded for the best name and ideas submitted for the club tea and sale in June went to Florence Lennox, who suggested "Melody Tea."

When all business had been taken care of the girls continued with their work on articles being prepared for the sale.

It was announced that next Monday being in Holy Week the club would attend the service in the church before meeting in the parish hall.

At the close of the evening refreshments were served by hostesses Marion Reed, Sally Mossman and Myrtle Day.

Belleville Pr. Ed. Club Holds Meeting

Belleville-Prince Edward Club, held in spite of heavy rain its March meeting at the Y.M.C.A., which was attended by 32 members. The president, Mrs. L. Wannamaker, presided for a short business meeting. Mrs. A. McCoy reported for cards sent to sick and shut-ins.

Miss Clara Anderson led in several Irish songs, after which all enjoyed a dinner served by Mr. Cooper, demonstrator and lecturer, for cooking utensils.

Short talks were given on "Scientific Food Preparation" "Cooking and Serving Meals for Health and Economy." The dinner was delicious and suggestions well worth following, not only from a health but from an economy viewpoint.

Contest prizes were won by Miss C. Anderson, Mrs. P. Parliament and Mrs. Salisbury.

Thanks to Mr. Cooper were extended by the president.

Since the meeting the club has been saddened by the passing away of Mrs. H. Parliament, one of the older and most faithful members. Deepest sympathy is extended to her daughter, Mrs. L. Wannamaker and to her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parliament, with whom she made her home since coming to Belleville.

The Easter meeting will be held at the YMCA on April 13.

Women's Study Guild Holds Panel Discussion

The pros and cons of Council-Manager Form of Civic Government was the topic of the discussion at the monthly meeting of the Women's Study Guild held on Monday evening, at Mrs. Hunter's home, MacDonald Avenue.

The president, Mrs. Varcoe, presided, the minutes were read by Mrs. Wamboldt, and the treasurer's report given by Mrs. Fewtrell.

In reply to the petition sent through the S. P. C. A. regarding the ill treatment of the bush horses, a letter had been received stating that this situation has been improved. Mrs. Haig spoke briefly on the TV survey to be held shortly in the city.

Contest prizes were won by Miss C. Anderson, Mrs. P. Parliament and Mrs. Salisbury.

Thanks to Mr. Cooper were extended by the president.

DISCUSSION PANEL

The panel discussion was conducted by the guest speakers from the University Women's Club, on Mrs. Haig, Mrs. G. Murray, and Mrs. Harrett and, as a result of intensive study, they presented most ably advantages and disadvantages of a civic government with a council - manager at its helm.

This form of government was first introduced under the late Woodrow Wilson, about 40 years ago in the United States, due to some dishonesty and inefficiency creeping into their system of government. Thus, after careful research and study the plan of council-manager was introduced, as a parallel to a general manager in large business corporations. In 1953, 1300 communities in the United States and Canada had this form of government, as well as Ireland and European cities. Today, several Colleges in the States offer courses for council-manager, and also Carleton College in Ottawa.

Council - Manager has been called the most economical and honest form of government. The number of councillors is reduced to from five to six members, depending on the size of the community. The council - manager co-ordinates and administrates all departments, while the Council members their busy devote all their time to legislative work and policy planning; also political favoritism would be eliminated in purchasing and in the awarding of contracts.

SUITABLE MAN

The difficulty is to find the suitable man. He would practically have to be a paragon to have the necessary knowledge at his finger tips; and with such an efficiency expert permanently in charge, the interest and voting of the electorate might decrease and public apathy result.

This must not be allowed to happen in any case, and the electorate should be educated in the plan of council - manager and constant vigilance on civic affairs and the elected representatives of the people. Democracy must be guarded at the civic level of government.

To form a council - manager form of government the following steps must be taken: (1) The request must come from the electorate. It requires a private bill passed in the Provincial Legislature; (2) The number of councillors is reduced — for a city the size of Belleville the number would be approximately eight.

The Council appoints the council - manager and he is the czar of the whole scheme.

General discussion followed and refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Beresford and Mrs. Culler.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

MAY SERVE ONLY CHRISTENING CAKE AND COFFEE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister's husband is in the service. They have a new baby, and want to have it baptized when her husband comes home for his leave of a few days. They will have the baby baptized at home, and in the afternoon.

(1) Would 3 o'clock be all right?

(2)- Their apartment is very small, not large enough to have a sit-down meal for the minister and his wife and the sponsors. What would you suggest we serve afterward? Would a fruit salad, fancy sandwiches, dessert and beverage be suitable? (The sandwiches mustn't be too expensive, and shouldn't take long to prepare.) — Sister.

(1) If the minister and wife will tell you if 3 o'clock is an hour convenient for him. Your sister for you, if you are making the arrangements) should consult with him about the hour, and then make any other plans.

(2) Choose an hour when you can take for granted that everyone has had luncheon, 2 o'clock or 2:30 perhaps. Then it would be appropriate, proper, and very delightful to serve the type of refreshments known as "Dessert-and-Coffee." For the dessert I suggest a Christening Cake, which could easily be made, or might be bought: it must be a white cake with white icing, and it can be very simple. This is the traditional cake served on this occasion. Your sister need not serve a salad or sandwiches. With the cake serve coffee or tea.

CORRECT WAY vs. "THE EASY WAY OUT"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our plan: to have a small, informal (nothing elaborate) church wedding; a candlelight ceremony at 7:30 in the evening, with the reception following immediately in the church parlor, in making up our guest list for the invitations, we have come up with the old familiar problem of where to draw the line when it comes to friends and associates. Our question is: Is it socially correct to send invitations to only our immediate families plus our close friends living out-of-town, then to announce in the local paper two days before the wedding that it is to be an open church wedding giving the time and place, and saying that all friends and acquaintances are invited to attend both the ceremony and the reception? We want all who are interested to feel welcome to come to both if they wish, yet we would prefer not to send a personal invitation to each and every one. Thus we would avoid: (1) the possibility of hurt feelings because of someone being overlooked; and (2) the feeling of obligation to give a gift when an invitation is received. By making the newspaper announcement, our problem, in my opinion, would be solved very satisfactorily. However, we do not want to do anything that is going to look cheap on our part—or would be frowned upon as "the easy way out." — S.

It is apparent in your letter, I'm glad to say, that you know that the right way to go about inviting guests to your wedding is to send them personal invitations. If for any reason . . . and you give several reasons . . . you do not wish to abide by the correct, the traditional procedure, "the easy way out," as you so truly say, is to publish your invitation in the newspaper . . . as perhaps may be an accepted procedure in your community.

Easter Table Parade

By Mary Moore

One thing I know for sure is, and place a whole clove in centre of each square. Sprinkle with that during Easter week there will be guests in town and a well stocked refrigerator will be more welcome than money in the bank — and you know how welcome money in the bank is (especially if you have a wedding on the immediate agenda).

So with you in mind, my dear friends, I've been cogitating on ham glazes and other finishes for hams, and on fine tasting spring-like-looking foods.

If you are a timid hostess, which heavens forbid, and would like to try my glaze ideas ahead of the main event, buy something like a smoked midget roll or back bacon in the piece and try the glaze which appeals to you most on one of them — reducing the quantities by half.

Note: The fat in the pan left from roasting ham must not be spooned over the ham after the glaze is applied. Fat dulls the glaze. Reserve some glaze in a bowl for basting ham from time to time during final baking period.

BAKED HAM (with various glazes)

Wipe a 10 or 12-lb. ham with rind on and bone in with a damp cloth and place skin side up in roaster on trivet. Bake without any water at 325 deg. Fahr. allowing 18 minutes per lb. which comes out at about 3 1/4 hours. These figures apply to ham with-out glaze. If you are going to apply a glaze allow a little more time for skinning ham and apply glaze. About 45 minutes before serving time, remove skin from ham and slash the fat into squares making cuts about 1/3-inch deep. Place narrow strips of raw or candied orange peel in these slits

FROZEN LEMON PIE

I am giving you this recipe for 3 reasons: I think it a very good idea to serve extra helpings of the citrus fruits at this time of year. 2. It may be prepared ahead of time and 3. it is so good.

Beat 3 egg yolks in top of double boiler thoroughly, combine with 1/4 cup lemon juice, rind of 1/2 lemon, 1/8 teaspoon salt, 2/3 cup sugar. Cook, stirring, over boiling water until fully thickened. Cool. Fold in 3 stiffly beaten egg whites and 1 cup heavy cream whipped. Have ready 3/4 cup crushed vanilla (or graham) wafers. Sprinkle half of them in bottom of small pie plate (if you have no large freezing compartment in your refrigerator, line freezing tray with crumbs). Pour in lemon mixture. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over. Freeze until firm. These amounts serve 6.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

BOY-FRIEND ETIQUETTE FOR A COLLEGE FRESHMEN

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My friend's daughter, who is 18 years old and in her first year at a college not far from her home town, is going with a boy who is attending the same college.

When she comes home for the weekend, he brings her, and stays at a by no means nearby, since he lives out of town. She invites him to her home for dinner but doesn't bother to help her mother cook or wash the dishes. She thinks all she should do is entertain him.

Now she has written her mother asking to know if it is all right to spend the weekend at the boy's home, as he has written and told his people he was bringing her for the weekend. Her mother told her she didn't think it proper for her to go to his home unless his mother personally invited her or told him to do so. She wrote her mother back saying that if she didn't want her weekend at his home he would get mad at her.

Was her mother right in advising her not to spend the weekend at the boy's house? And do you think she should help her mother with the cooking and dishes when she invites the boy to her own home for dinner? — Dear A.C.:

My guess would be that you are the mother in this case, for, otherwise, of course, none of this would be any of your business.

It would be courteous, I think for the girl to wait for a personal invitation from the boy's mother before going to his home for a weekend, or, at least, for the mother to send the invitation through a letter to her son which he could show the girl. In any event, she should have some assurance that she would be welcome before a guest in the boy friend's home. It would be rather unconventional, a n d a bit thoughtful, on her part, for her to go merely on his invitation alone. There is no reason why she should not tell the boy this, and then be sure that his mother is willing.

As for the other matter, any considerate daughter would naturally help her mother with the dinner and the dishes when she asks company to her home. At least she should offer her help; then, if her mother said it wasn't necessary, and that she could be excused from such duties in order to spend the time with her guest, she would have done all she need. A really thoughtful young man, however, and one who used to being considerately courteous at home, would, I think, suggest, when dinner was over, that both he and the girl go out and help with the dishes.

IS THIS GIRL REALLY SERIOUS, OR JUST TRYING TO BE FUNNY?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 14 years of age, and very much in love with a boy of 19.

I know what some people would advise—marry him. But I can't, because he is a relative of mine. We are very much in love, but we are afraid to have anything further we are married.

My mother insists that I forget Bob, and I have tried to forget him but I can't. Not too long ago, a friend of mine had an affair, and Mom said that maybe I'd do the same thing. But I know I won't.

Please, please help me. I am desperate and I'm looking for an answer. — D.

Dear D.:

Aren't you just trying to have a little fun with me? Surely you don't expect me to take you seriously. I can't believe that even a 16-year-old girl would be quite so childish as you make yourself out to be in your letter.

All I can say to you is that, whether you mean to be funny, or serious, you'll have to wait until your attitudes show people that you are gaining some maturity before you can expect them to discuss romance or marriage with you. I advise you to keep your mind on your normal teen-age interests and friends, so that you won't have time to indulge yourself in fancy daydreaming. If this "problem" really exists, and you still have it four or five years from now, write me again, and I'll give you some good advice.

HANGED BY MOB

QUERETARO, Mexico (AP) — Two men accused of witchcraft were hanged by a mob, authorities in the town of Juarez reported Tuesday. The slayings occurred when a man who objected to the construction of a highway told villagers the two engineers were kidnapping children and selling their blood.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

EYEBROWS AND LASHES

Make-up accent, which used to be on lips, now includes the eyes, eyebrows and lashes. The new beauty balance between eyes and mouth is maintained.

We now recognize that Nature designed the each of us the eyebrow pattern that suits us best, so don't try to alter it radically. Simply pluck away stray hairs in the interests of perfect grooming.

To find the right point at which your eyebrow should start at the inner corner, hold a pencil at the outer edge of the nostril straight up to the forehead. Mark the point where it crosses your eyebrow and clear away all shafts from there across the nose. For perfect facial balance, the highest point of your eyebrow arch should be directly over the pupil of the eye when you look straight ahead.

Select a good tweezer for this performance. One of the most efficient of these implements has inclined handles. It's easy to operate and engineered to achieve maximum pressure at the pulling point. The ends are blunt rather than pointed, so the operation goes on quickly.

Never pull the shafts out at right angles or against the normal manner of growth. A soft cloth, wrung out of hot water and applied to the flesh before tweezing, prepares the area and reduces discomfort.

You should have a colorless lash cream. This is excellent to apply to the eyebrows as well. It makes the hairs remain flat in a glistening arch. A touch of this creamy substance over the eyelids gives a dewy sheen. Stroked over the lashes with the fingers or a small brush, it makes them look longer, thicker and darker.

If mascara is used on the lashes, the cream should be applied at night to promote luxuriant growth during sleep.

Queen Mary-Pr. Charles H-S Association Sponsors 'Family Fair'

On Friday evening the doors of Queen Mary School opened for the "Family Fair", sponsored by the Queen Mary - Prince Charles Home and School Association, and directed by the vice-president Mr. F. A. Beeby. From 6.30 to 10 the school, usually a place of restraint, fairly rocked with the rollicking merriment of the crowds of children, scampering from one source of delight to another, beside themselves with excitement. Nothing imaginable seems to give children the satisfaction and enjoyment than does one of these Home - Parents, teachers, and guests present in large numbers, seemed to enjoy watching the pleasure of the children, and to catch the prevailing atmosphere of fun and excitement. One family from Holland was heard commenting, "Isn't this fun! We've never seen anything like this before. Why this takes place in the schools in Holland!" Perhaps it's a good idea to allow the children to let off steam within the precincts of the school once a year.

WELCOME GUEST

An especially welcome guest during the evening was Mr. C. I. Fredrick, now principal of Sir Winston Churchill School.

The first one held in this Association since 1950, the Family Fair proved a truly worthwhile project from the point of view of developing the interest and cooperation of the membership, of creating a real family night, and of financial success.

Sincere appreciation goes to the able director, Mr. F. A. Beeby, who secured so many hard - working conveners, to the ever faithful membership committee, who keep things humming in the background, and to all those who contributed in any way to the success of this Family Fair, to the nations to the home-cooking, candy, white - elephant and needlework booths were most generous, making magnificent displays to gratify the hearts of the conveners and the customers.

The classes that won the banners for largest attendance of parents were: Queen Mary, Senior; Mr. Frink's Grade VII; Junior, Miss Walkom's Grade III; and Prince Charles, Senior; Mr. Robin's Grade IV; Junior, Miss Welbourn's Grade II.

Those in charge of the various departments were as follows:

Brownie Pack Aux. Holds Puppet Show

The Warren Marionette Show of Kingston, brought to Belleville at the Sir Winston Churchill Rec., Scout-master, and 6th Belleville Scouts.

Publicity: Mrs. F. A. Beeby.

School by the Mothers' Auxiliary of the First Belleville Brownie Pack, was a great success.

The skilful manipulation of the puppets made one soon forget the strings, especially in the circus act when the "man on the flying trapeze swung through the air with the greatest of ease," reaching the bar and swinging by his toes.

"Mammy" received applause for singing songs of the south, while waiting for "Spanianos dos."

"The Easter Bunny," "Frosty the Snowman," "Jack Frost," "The Ghosts" and "This Old House" held great fascination for the children.

The old Scotsman, with his crooked cane, singing songs in the style of Sir Harry Lauder, was a favorite of all.

Mrs. A. A. Wilson, chairman for the evening, announced the selection during the intermissions. A piano solo by Gordon Baker; three songs by the Brownies; Maureen Alyea was awarded a prize for selling the most tickets.

The troop included Mr. and Mrs. William Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holloway and Miss Inez Holland.

Chileans Serve Tea Backwards

OTTAWA (CP)—They have tea backwards in Chile, says Sheila Coyne of Newcastle-on-Tyne, Eng.

Miss Coyne, who spent three years teaching school in Valparaiso, one of the South American republic's main cities, said in an interview that the Chilean high tea, served in late afternoon, begins with fancy cake and ice cream and progresses backwards to sandwiches.

Chileans usually have a light breakfast of coffee and rolls and two main meals—the evening one served at about 9 p.m. and consisting of six or seven main dishes.

Miss Coyne is visiting her aunt and uncle in Ottawa before returning to England.

Light, Velvety Easter Cake

For a special Easter treat! Why not this light as a feather cake with its tantalizing bitter-sweet chocolate flavor and fluffy delicately tinted frosting.

What a lovely time of year! Spring is here now and with spring comes Easter. It is time when children look forward to fluffy baby chicks and gaily colored Easter eggs. But everyone, no matter what age, would be terribly disappointed if they did not have at least one or two eggs in some form at Easter. Because eggs are so popular at this festive season and because they make such beautiful cakes, the home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture suggest a delicate sponge, angel or chiffon cake for this year's Easter dessert.

Some may think because these delicate cakes are so light and tender they require ay rest deal of skill to make. Actually they are not difficult at all if directions are followed carefully. Here are a few tips that will help to make these light delicate textured cakes a success. After choosing a recipe from your favorite cook book take the required number of eggs out of the refrigerator so that they will be at room temperature when it is time to whip them. Egg whites whip to a greater volume when they are not too cold.

For the very light sponge, angel or chiffon cake an ungreased tube pan should be used so that the batter can cling to the pan as it rises. When baked invert the pan and let the cake hang until it is completely cold. If it is cooled upright it tends to settle down and may fall slightly.

These light fluffy cakes can be made in different mouth-watering flavors and tinted exciting colors. They are very delicious when covered with grated unsweetened chocolate is folded into the batter before baking. Another delicacy is a delicate cake which goes hand in hand with springtime and Easter. For this, spoonfuls of yellow sponge cake batter made with egg yolks and white angel cake batter made with egg whites are put into the cake pan in an irregular pattern. When the cake is baked and cut it has an attractive yellow and white marbled effect.

Any of the three — sponge, angel or chiffon cake can be dressed up for this special occasion with a smooth creamy frosting or served with whipped cream and fruit. A boiled or seven-minute frosting attractively peaked on the cake is sure to cause expressions of delight from all who see and eat it. Here is an Easter twist for these two toppings made with deep purple grape jelly instead of the customary sugar and water.

Whether the icing is made by pouring a boiled syrup over beaten egg whites, as in White Mountain Frosting, or in the Seven-Minute kind it will be easy to make with the jelly. In either case all that is needed is two egg whites, a pinch of salt and three-quarters of a cup of grape jelly. For the syrup method coat the jelly in a small saucepan and boil it for ten minutes. In the meantime add the salt to the egg whites and beat until they are stiff but not dry. Then gradually pour the boiled jelly syrup over the beaten egg whites beating all the time until the mixture is still enough to spread. This will take from eight to ten minutes beating.

Never though this second frosting is called "Seven-Minute" it takes ten minutes instead of seven when made with jelly. To make it, put the egg whites, salt and jelly in the top part of a double boiler. Then place over boiling water and beat with a rotary beater until the mixture holds its shape.

Now what could be easier than that and these toppings made with jelly are softer and more fluffy than the ones made with sugar and water. A cake with this icing is easy to cut and serve and another thing, this frosting holds up very well for serving the next day.

Govt. Ordered More Weapons But Spent Less for Them in '54

OTTAWA (CP) — The government ordered more weapons but spent less for them in 1954 than the previous year. It did it by extending the time of delivery.

The stretch-out policy for arms production appeared in Defence Production Minister Howe's annual report tabled Wednesday in the Commons.

Contracts for aircraft tripled last year as defence production department orders increased by 50 per cent to $1,221,276,000 from $814,- 836,000 in 1953—lifting total orders placed since the start of the 1951- 1954 build-up to $4,474,081,000.

By stretching out delivery dates in many orders, however, actual expenditures in the calendar year 1954 were trimmed almost 17 per cent, by about $200,000,000 to $1,- 000,000,000. This brought spending on military goods since 1951 to $3,- 372,940,000.

Canada's initial defence build-up was largely completed last year, Mr. Howe said. The emphasis had been shifted to scheduling projects so that essential defence production facilities can be maintained. Many projects had been reviewed with the need in mind of establishing "production levels for somewhat lower but more long-term requirements."

The report also said development work continued on a powerful armament system that will make the Canadian CF-100 jet fighter "one of the most heavily armed, fighters in existence.".

New electronic devices were developed and produced. Deliveries and installation for the first line of the northern radar warning system were completed. This apparently referred to the Pinetree chain, which stretches across the continent somewhere along the Canada-United States border.

About half the 1954 orders went to aircraft plants, mostly for fighters and as a start on production of the Shackleton Britannia for RCAF maritime reconnaissance work. Aircraft orders since 1951 now total $1,802,800,000.

Defence construction orders increased to $193,176,000 from $157,- 980,214,000, mostly on the army's Camp Gagetown, N.B. This brought the total for defence construction orders since 1951 to $920,478,000.

The report also said:

1. The number of department employees declined to 1,500 from 1,631 in 1953 and 21-a-year men borrowed from industry to 23 from 31.

2. Production of the Second World War Harvard trainer for the air force was ended.

3. Production in volume on some types of conventional ammunition items was achieved for the first time in 1954.

The report said the value of military goods on order at the end of 1954 was about $300,000,000 higher than the outstanding orders at the end of 1953, when they totalled about $1,000,000,000.

Case of Beer Bought in Name Of Collie Dog

TORONTO (CP)—A man bought a case of beer Wednesday in the name of a collie dog.

The Telegram published a photograph of a beer order form for a 24-pint case. It was signed "Rover Collie, 44 Kennel Row."

The paper said the order was promptly accepted.

Arthur Child, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Wentworth, said in the legislature Tuesday that a person can sign a dog's name and get a case of beer. He was arguing that beer order forms to be filled out by customers should be abolished.

Given 6 Months For Attempt To Bribe Officer

BRANTFORD (CP) — Attempting to bribe a provincial police officer brought a six-month jail term Wednesday to George Rural of Inverrol.

Provincial constable Wilfred Bennett testified he saw Rural drive an unlicensed truck through the intersection of highways 2 and 5 without stopping.

He said Rural offered him $2 to forget about it, and then tossed the money into the police car when told it could not be accepted.

Magistrate John T. Shillington told Rural the offence was one which could bring him 14 years' imprisonment.

The crown withdrew charges of driving without licence plates and of not stopping at the intersection.

Legislature Has Completed Deliberations

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature prorogues today after royal assent is given 124 bills. The session started Feb. 3.

Premier Frost said Wednesday night Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt is being asked to attend the afternoon session to provide assent. The budget debate and votes will be completed at a special morning session.

The premier announced the appointment of nine House members to a committee to study the air pollution and smoke abatement problem.

The committee was given powers to sit between sessions, examine witnesses under oath, and travel where necessary. It was ordered to report at the next session of the legislature.

Public Works Minister Griesinger said the House members report of farm at Lindsay consultancy says his department is being hampered by a lack of sufficiently trained staff.

The basic trouble in the department is that there are too many veteran employees compared to the junior men moving up to the executive level, said the report of R. D. Woods and Gordon Ltd.

"Many routine decisions and approvals are being made at higher levels than should be necessary," said the report. "This not only increases the workload of the senior personnel but also causes delays in projects or other matters awaiting the results of these decisions."

A number of suggestions were made for tighter control and modernization of work and drawings, but no criticism was directed at present methods used.

John Chapat (PC — Nipissing) said government control of aircraft used for fishing and hunting in Algonquin park and other provincial parks would aid in eliminating "a growing evil" in Ontario's fishing and hunting areas.

Mr. Chapat in his first speech to the legislature said he personally is not against the use of aircraft as transportation. "But it stands to reason the versatility of this modern means of transportation would soon exhaust our northern fisheries unless some measure of control was brought to bear."

REDS NOT SUPERIOR

LONDON (Reuters) — The present "numerical strength" of the Soviet army is less than half that of the armed forces of the 14 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries, Moscow radio told British listeners Wednesday night. It described Western statements that Soviet armed forces are far superior to those of the Atlantic bloc as "silly talk intended for simpletons."

Salk Vaccine Will Be Used On 20,000 Children

TORONTO (CP)—Vaccination of more than 20,000 school children with Salk polio vaccine will begin on Monday.

Department of public health officials said Wednesday the first vaccinations will be given in the four days. A second and third dose will be administered in the following four weeks.

Eleven city medical teams will work through 96 public and 32 separate schools morning and afternoon to complete the first operation.

About 91 per cent of the parents have consented to have their children vaccinated, officials said. There are 22,176 grade one and two pupils in both separate and elementary schools.

In Belleville, school officials said more than 800 elementary school pupils in grade one and two will be vaccinated against polio this year. The first dose will be given Monday.

Reason to Think Some Countries May Be Ahead of United States Putting Peacetime 'A' to Work

Editors' note: In putting the peacetime atom to work, there is reason to believe other countries may be ahead of the United States. Here the race stands in the opinion of a third article in a four-story series.

By EDEMAN-MORLEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — "Furthermore, they (Europeans) have a great deal more incentive to be serious about this field than we have in this country."

Hafstad was not talking about atomic weapons. He was talking about using atomic energy for industrial purposes.

The U. S. is only now beginning to move in this field. Until last fall, when a new Atomic Energy Act was passed, American industry had no part in building or using nuclear power plants. Government monopoly held the field.

Today American private industry is preparing to spend millions of dollars on atomic-energy applications. But the U. S. is keeping pace with other countries in peaceful uses of the atom?

The Russians say they have reactors for ocean-going vessels, locomotives and automobiles. They hint at atomic devices for powering aircraft.

They say they will furnish fissionable materials and know-how to their satellites in Eastern Europe. Was this an answer to President Eisenhower's proposal to form an international pool of atomic fuel and information?

The biggest step of all, so far, appears taken in Britain.

Last month the government announced a 10-year program for atom-generated electric power. It will spend $300,000,000 for 12 central power stations with a planned capacity of nearly 2,000,000 kilowatts.

But the implications go much further than mere domestic economics. One comes under the heading of Cold War. Most countries are power-starved. Millions of people in China, India, Indonesia, Indochina and Korea are struggling to build industries.

This is their great hope, the bright avenue of escape from poverty for more than half the human race. But to run a factory, to have a chemical industry, to irrigate vast deserts, you must have power in some form. Where will they get it?

The answer may very well be "the atom."

And so the question: Suppose the Russians offer to build nuclear reactors for these countries, to provide them with the original fissionable fuel and the technicians to teach them?

That is the Cold-War aspect of the drive to use atoms for peace—putting the atom to work in underdeveloped areas.

The other aspect is in international trade.

A New York engineering firm, Babcock and Wilcox, recently said it has had more than 800 inquiries from abroad about reactors. The figure, from one firm, shows the momentum of the program.

Next August in Geneva 94 countries will meet in an "Atoms for Peace" conference. The U.S. plans to set up an actual reactor there. Russia may do so also, although Moscow has not yet asked permission from the Swiss.

It may produce the answer to the question: Who's ahead in the atom sweepstakes?

Tomorrow: An engagement is announced.

Ontario Farmers' Union Holds Inaugural Meet

MARMORA — The inaugural meeting of Marmora Local, No. 173, of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held in Marmora town hall on Friday evening with president William Fyvon in the chair, and the attendance being fair despite various counter attractions of the evening.

The guest speaker was John Hutchinson of Markham, a director of the union whose remarks were listened to with marked attention.

It was stated that in the last six weeks the membership had increased from approximately six thousand to ten thousand. In that period the Union has set up no less than 75 new locals. The movement, which started in 1952, to make slow but sure advance,

Sub-Soil Moisture Considerably Over Normal Figures in West

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadas western grain belt starts the new growing season with top-soil moisture considerably over the normal figures.

The over-all excess is figured at 65 per cent for Saskatchewan, 39 per cent for Alberta and 12 per cent for Manitoba. Of all the grain-growing regions, only Peace River shows a deficiency from normal—a drop of 11 per cent.

The Peace River district is a new compilation in statistics prepared for The Canadian Press by the meteorological division of the department of transport. New "normals" are also used, since new computations of temperature and precipitation averages have been completed. The new normals, however, vary by less than 10 per cent from the old, in most cases.

A year ago, the report showed sub-normal precipitation over most areas during the fall and winter months. This year, the report shows an excess moisture trend continued into March, especially in Manitoba and much of Saskatchewan.

MILD WINTER

The prairie grain areas had a relatively mild, dry winter but heavy precipitation in August and September led to the crop-moisture results. Central Alberta had the highest excess, 6 per cent, and southwest Saskatchewan had a difference of 63 per cent above normal.

After the wet, cool months of August and September, the weather turned sunny and cold in October with precipitation below normal. November continued dry but mild, and December was particularly mild with precipitation light in most areas except Peace River.

January was another mild, dry month in the western regions of the Prairies but damp in the eastern half, with moderate ranges of up to 50 per cent above normal for the month in parts of Manitoba. Temperatures dropped and precipitation was light in February, with the exception of northern Alberta and eastern Manitoba.

Most central Alberta and southwest Saskatchewan for most areas moisture since last August and northwest Saskatchewan and south Alberta, respectively 39 and 67 per cent above normal. All other areas, except Peace River, ranged from 21 to 34 per cent above normal.

Atomic Warfare Will Be Studied

QUEBEC (CP) — The army will study the theory of atomic warfare in battle this summer when one of the largest concentrations of troops in Canada during peacetime takes part in exercise at Camp Gagetown, N. B., it was announced in Montreal by Major-Gen. C. Bolduc, Lethbridge, commander of the Canadian 1st Division, said Tuesday at a press conference the exercises are to train troops in modern warfare and will "include situations where the Vatican Removes Authority Of Cardinal Secura of Seville

By HENRY BUCKLEY

SEVILLE (Reuters) — The removal by the Vatican of all effective authority from Pedro Cardinal Segura, 74-year-old archbishop of Seville who has become noted for his outspoken criticism of Gen. Francisco Franco's Spanish government, has created a curious situation in this ancient city.

Walls the cardinal, continues to occupy the archbishop's palace and to preach in the cathedral, all powers of the archbishops are wielded by Msgr. Jose Maria Bueno Monreal, the archbishop-coadjutor appointed by the Vatican last November.

All communications to the archdiocese from the Vatican are directed to Msgr. Bueno Monreal to whom all administrative powers of the large archdiocese, together with the right to succeed Cardinal Segura, were given when he was appointed.

FRIENDS FURIOUS

In appointing him with full powers and right to succession, many people consider that the Vatican made it clear to Cardinal Segura that it would like to see him retire. At least as the cardinal does not challenge any dogma of the church, however, it seems that he cannot be removed from his position as titular archbishop of Seville.

Cardinal Segura's supporters are furious at what they regard as the unjust treatment of their pastor. Other Catholic circles show just as clearly their support of the archbishop-coadjutor.

During his 17 years as archbishop of Seville, in more than 200 pastoral letters and in more than 7,000 sermons which he has preached, Cardinal Segura has stormed against protestantism, socialism, communism, freemasonry, dancing, the old agreement with his United States, and many other things he considers harmful to Spain.

His ban on all ballroom dancing led to numerous conflicts. He placed the mayor and eight councillors of the town of Los Palacios in a form of restricted excommunication from the church, because they when told that religious processions at the annual fiestas would be cancelled if the people held dances, the mayor and the councillors approved the dances.

The cardinal excommunicated the civil governor of Seville because the latter, as a Falangist, wanted to have memorial lists of the names of Falangists who were killed in the civil war inscribed on the walls of the churches.

IN POOR HEALTH

Responsible religious authorities have say the many controversies raised by the cardinal, in addition to his advanced age and his ill health, were the reasons which led the Vatican to appoint an archbishop-coadjutor. These authorities deny any political motive. On the contrary, they say, if any attempt were made at political persecution of the cardinal within Spain, the church would undoubtedly stand firmly behind him.

The cardinal's supporters, however, insist that his known hostility to the present regime in Spain is the real reason for the measures taken against him, although they do not accuse Franco personally of having made any move against the cardinal.

W.I. Elects 1955 Officers

CARMEL — The Carmel Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Clare Horton for the March meeting. There were 16 members and four visitors present.

Mrs. Lattone called the meeting to order, with Mrs. Horton at the piano.

The reports of the standing committees were read as follows: Mrs. S. Homan read her report as Agriculture and Canadian Industries convener; Mrs. P. Reynolds her report as Citizenship convener; Mrs. E. Dafoe her report on Home Economics and Health; Mrs. J. Homan the report on Historical Research; Mrs. C. Thompson read Mrs. A. Whitmore's report on Community Activities and Public Relations."

Current Events were given by Mrs. E. Dafoe. It was decided that Mrs. C. Horton act as secretary-treasurer of the Co-op Medical Services, to replace Mrs. M. Robinson. 300 cook books will be printed and placed on sale.

The April meeting will be held at Mrs. William Watson's. Mrs. P. Reynolds volunteered to put together the Institute quilt. Mrs. A. Gowthorpe read the report of the slate of officers as prepared by the nominating committee.

Mrs. W. DeMille acted as pianist.

The slate of officers for 1955-56:

President, Mrs. James Fox; first vice-president, Mrs. A. Gowthorpe; second vice-president, Mrs. A. Whitmore; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. Homan; district director, Mrs. J. Patterson; Institute directors, Mrs. M. Ross, Mrs. G. Moorman, Mrs. F. Sullivan; Agriculture and Can. Industries, Mrs. C. Thompson; Citizenship and Education, Mrs. L. Lattone; Community Activities and Public Relations, Mrs. J. Homan; Historical Research, Mrs. E. Urch; Home Economics and Health, Mrs. W. Rodford; card convener; Mrs. C. Horton; pianist, Mrs. W. DeMille.

Mrs. Lattone introduced Mrs. Violet Elliott, Plainfield, the district president this year. Mrs. Elliott said that the district annual will be held at Carnilton this year on June 9 and expressed the opinion that the W. I. had a good year and found the reports most interesting.

Mrs. Elliott took as the subject of her address, "Our Women's Institute in Our Homes." She reminded that the objective is better homes and that sometimes good mothers must go away to be good mothers.

It was suggested that there be good programs at Institute meetings, do not ask too much of any one member and all meetings should be educational. Members should always find time for family life, give children happiness, faith, always take time to answer questions, work together with the families and keep the home together.

Mrs. Lattone moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

The action follows a month-long hearing before a special union trial committee. The suspensions bar the men from attending union meetings or acting for the union in any way. They are not expelled from the union, however, and will continue to pay dues.

Spring

... takes the long way to fashion

Make way for Spring ... for the colors and sounds and fragrances of a new, young season when everything grows and glows! Make way for spring songs and sunlight ... for spring flowers and fashions. Spring '55 makes way for the long, lean silhouette ... for flyright suits, airily-polished dresses, straighter-than-you-think coats. Spring fashion makes way for the lady-like look with a delicate flair ... for clear colors, gentle curves and, at last, flattery for all!

New Hats Shape Up In Straw

Effective new hats look subtly larger with a suggestion of bulk and greater importance. Little hats take cushioned edges, bulkier fit and elegant detail.

Important small little hats include the chignon hat with a pouf of straw or fabric to extend the silhouette. Some have lower shoe openings, framed with ribbon or flowers, to show up back curls or a chignon coiffure. Others are worn far back on the head and secured by decorative devices while their opposites are perched far forward looking backwards with cutaway backs or small brims that turn up in back.

Deep cloche hats have a new look of bulk and importance, yet are kept from disarranging the hair by their shallow crowns and deep brims. Off-face cloches fit well down at the back of a smoother, longer bob.

Large-brimmed hats appear earlier than usual, probably because they make such excellent complements for long-haired suits. Trimmed simply, the large hat takes drama in the use of a single gigantic flower, a huge jeweled buckle or a striking bow.

New straws and synthetics are beautifully decorative. Molding into sleek shapes that blend with costume lines, they need no trimming. Checkerboard straws combine smooth and textured strands; sale straws are woven with inky velvet and satinized straws take ombre shading for intriguing texture.

Designers weave white braid between colors, stripe cellophane plush in rainbow colors, loop sheer colored braids, interweave straws with tiny beads—all indicating a spring millinery trend to delicate detailing.

FLOWERS LOOK REAL

Velvet and silk roses sparkle with crystal dewdrops. Shaded pastels rose quiver on rubber stems, with life-like ladybugs and bees whimsically perched on petal or leaf. The effect is a real look for flowers of all sizes from tightly furled buds to full-blown cabbage roses.

Feathers are rarely mated with flowers. Some straw hats are dotted with tiny feather wisps and sparkling stones. Sheer veiling and lace add delicate patterning to crowns or brims. Matte jersey, chiffon and organdie are shirred, pleated or draped for accent.

Even modestly-priced bonnets frequently achieve an amazing wealth of detail with a handmade look. One so appropriate it is with such understated trimmings as suits, dresses and coats are featuring.

While (there are navy and black hats a-plenty, most are color-trimmed. Golden honey tones from creamy white to deep "burnt" straw shades harmonize with every costume color. Luscious bonbon pastels range from sunny Lemon Drop to Candied Lime and Raspberry Frappe.

Far East influence is mirrored in brilliant jewel tones, for example: Siam Sapphire, Arabian Ruby and Kashmir Emerald. Particularly important hues are hyacinths and lavender-tinged violet. Turquoise and Midnight Blue rate high for evening.

Bright sun-splashed colors—orange, coral and flame are significant as body and trimming both. Taupe-tinted grays and dearly while look new and wonderful in the millinery designs of spring, 1955.

SOCK PICTURE BRIGHTENS

High fashion colors will be featured in the new socks for spring, as an offset to the charcoal tones in clothing. Hello, cognac and pink are favored in stripes, argyles, fancy designs.

Long torso takes narrow side pleats in a surah print.

Lingerie Puts Cotton Into Miracle Class

The newest thing in lingerie this spring is cotton, newly rediscovered as a miracle material in its own right. Cotton plisse, dacron-cotton blends and embossed patterns (light enough to be worn under sheers) rub beautifully and never need ironing.

This is not to say that the miracle synthetics are passe—nylons, dacrons and particularly nylon-dacron crepes are very much in the newest.

All of these materials are seen frequently in short sleepwear. Many of the shorties team with matching dress-length sleepcoats, which can be worn over their short sisters as robes.

Many of the tailored shorties are also used for lounging. One set shows up-to-the-minute fashion consciousness in a shirt-detailed top and Bermuda shorts!

The newest prints in lingerie are such Oriental motifs as butterflies and pagodas. Roses, too, are increasingly important, following the spring print line.

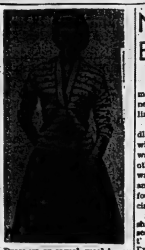
Little Furs Look New In Color

Treated with new processes, dyed in new colors and styled with new versatility, small furs provide more fashion than ever. Moderately priced furs take lightness of weight, color appeal and smart styling, turning this spring into a "fur-for-all" season.

New, different and revised names appear on the fashion fur roster and according to Associated Fur Manufacturers, are taking much of the '55 spotlight.

BRIEFEST OF COATS



Jaunty little coats, usually just above the waistline, combine the decorative and functional for day-time-evening wear. Distinctive silhouettes range from svelte Bess Brummel jackets with Dandy collars to fur sweaters with trim knit waistbands. Lounge jackets with easy hip lines are the fur industry's answer to Paris innovations.

Little fur scraps appear in sheared raccoon, sheared muskrat, sheared fox and Australian opposum as well as sheared beaver, nutria and rabbit in a gamut of pastel and vivid tones to match or contrast with costume colors. Azure blue and candy pink, for example, are offered for rabbit, while sand dyed fox, Broadtail, sheared fox and rabbit are available in American Beauty red, midnight blue and gold.

DISTINCTIVE STOLES

A new individuality in fur stoles supplants the uniformity of previous years. White, black, pastel-dyed and silver foxes make important spring stoles in both straight and contoured designs.

Silky flat furs are prominent in both straight and cape stole styles. Black-dyed muskrat makes news in supple stoles of varying shapes. Scarlet-dyed mole, navy blue sheared fox, pecan sheared raccoon and sea-dyed rabbit are outstanding among spring's distinctive stoles. The rabbit can be treated to resemble chinchilla for curled-fur fanciers.

Dress-up or casual, wool jersey in a pleated skirt and horizontally striped top that's plunge necked and flecked with metallic luster.

New Foundations Favor Eased Waist, Flat Hip

The alliance of foundation garments with ready-to-wear has never been so apparent as in the lines for spring.

There are brassieres and girdles to shape the "gentle look" with its high, round bust, eased waist and flat hip. There are other foundations to pull in the waist, giving the bosom accent and letting the hips curve. The foundation now conforms precisely to the preferred silhouette.

Since necklines are wide and shallow, rather than deep this season, many brassieres have offset shoulder or wide-set straps. Brassieres with straps often have plunging under the cups or crossed bands to raise and round the bosom.

The strapless bra, too, is important. Some styles offer cups pre-shaped by foam rubber lining or non-woven interfacing for firm uplift.

The strapless vogue extends into garments with longer control—like bra-lette fitting to the hip-line and the corselet, which extends to the thighs. Both types feature rounding cups, some lifting the bust up to two inches with wiring or princess-styling.

Even though the waist is eased in new fashions, it must still be defined. The bra-lette, the corselet and the high-top girdle achieve proper waist control. The one-piece foundation, allowing no break in the figure, emphasizes the long-torso look of the sheath or the overblouse.

HIP SLATTER-Y

If girdles straighten the hip-line with all-elastic construction or by calculated combinations of elastic and sheer rigid fabrics. Waistline girdles are more pronounced, to be worn with short or long line brassieres, depending on the need for diaphragm control.

Firm control is achieved with light-weight fabrics, new methods of banding and seam construction. Girdles are losing their bulky look.

This season's foundations appear in such dainty fabrics as marquisette, power net and embroidered cotton. Embossment and embroidery in a second color adds prettiness. White is the favored foundation color, but there are many girdles, brassieres and corselets in black and some in soft pastels.

Unrestrained Colors Provide Magnetism for the Costume

A glorious lack of restraint marks the colors of Spring. Since, in the main, trimmings are underplayed, gay colors play a double part in both flattery and magnetism. This spring women will wear colors that were previously limited to the more frivolous accessories such as sascots and hankies.

Tweed colors are myriad in clear randoms that include the entire spectrum. Many of the popular subdued and novelty fabrics feature metallic threads. Woven, overlaid, embroidered and printed stripes often show a second color. Cross weaves offer great color interest.

The newest color group around is the entire range of maroon, from pink through mulberry tones. Blue takes a purple cast for a hydrangea hue which promises to be a favorite in both pale and deep shades. Navy, of course, retains a strong position in the 1955 picture but will have to share its dominance with many rival hues.

Yellow is newly important, looking pale and fresh in daffodil-pineapple tints. Gold contributes strongly to the print and brocade line-up, and many yellows make pleasing grounds for printed fashions.

Crisp, clean greens achieve a feeling of spring in many categories of styles from cocktail cottons to active sportswear. Although green hues appear mostly as prints on related backgrounds or as specks in random tweeds, there is enough all-green to be worth notice.

Prints Shine In All Facets Of Fashion

From casual at-home clothes to those of majestic evening elegance, prints shine in every facet of fashion. Bursting with morning-fresh florals or demurely understated dots, print fashions run a colorful gamut and reach new heights of popularity this spring.

Spring's low torso silhouettes reports the Silk and Rayon Print Institute, is particularly well-adapted for printed fabrics. The elongated look is highlighted by fluid print skirts, often pleated from the hip.

Generally, the print carries through the dress to effect a long, unbroken line. Newest are the large-small versions of the same print found in one-piece dresses and coat-dress costumes.

A wide assortment of printed materials find sprightly expression in sheath dresses and the identical linings of go-with coats. The printed overblouse is a promising fashion entity.

Favorite smoog spring's print patterns are small florals, spaced or all-over and overlapping. They brush strokes render a hand-painted look to shiny-surface fabrics. Stylized, small motifs are distinctive, and bold stripes add verve to many a fashion.

Polka dots rate with the leaders. Coin dots, scattered snow, bubbles, sprinkling rain make happy variations to the conventional flat dots.

Preferred print fabrics include sharkskin, surah and paper weight taffetas. Blend fabrics offer new properties for long wear or fade washability.

FINE BUS DRIVERS

BRADFORD, Ont. (CP) — Three Gray Coach bus drivers, caught by a radar-beam device, were each fined $15 and costs Tuesday for speeding. Police testified the device clocked each of the buses at 67 miles an hour on highway 400 near this community 40 miles north of Toronto. The speed limit is 50.

...portswear ...s Colorful ...or Spring

As more and more men enjoy lengthened hours of leisure, sports wear knows ever larger in its fashion picture. This spring, the man who wishes to round out and update his casual wardrobe can choose from a completely new range of clear, clean colors, new fabrics and a sharply changed group of designs adapted to specific sports and leisure activities.

The new sport coats feature light- to medium weights in wool and mix-and-match blends, tweeds and shetlands in herringbones, checks, fleecy effects, nubs and slubs.

Many coat fabrics combine color patterns with weave or texture patterns. Deep shades relieved by bright color accents are among the style leaders. Popular combinations are black and pink, black and helio, cognac and deep brown.

Stylewise, the single-breasted, two button sport coat continues to lead, although the three-button model is gaining ground, especially among younger men. Both patch and flap pockets are shown in the new sport coats.

PINK IS IMPORTANT

Pink is an important new pastel in sport coats and slacks. Light-weight worsted wool gabardine slacks in pink are another testament of this color's new popularity. They're intended to be worn with sport coats of colors other than pink. Other favored colors in slacks to go with dark colored jackets are yellow, mint green and helio.

Slacks in lightweight flannel, wool and blends with Orlon, gabardine and covert are shown in solids, subdued checks, twill weaves, nubs and noils.

The new slacks are pleatless with tuck buckle and strap. The trend is to trim, tapered lines.

The new blouse-type jackets for spring have adopted an entirely new look. Colors are the brightest ever shown and novelty prints are boldly outrenched. Almost any solid color that can be named is being used—pink, helio, light blue, light green, orange shades on the red side, cognac and sandy yellow.

NOVELTY PATTERNS

One of the most successful of the novelty patterns is achieved by the new shading treatment (flocks of wool rayon applied to a fabric rather than a woven into it). These flocks have been combined with printed cloth to give a colorful chest or new look. Splashed prints and all-over patterns have grown in importance. A noteworthy innovation in this department is an all-over argyle print on sheen gabardine.

Washability is now recognized as an important asset in spring outerwear and this quality is stressed in the soft flannel, viscose, acetate and linen fabrics.

The leisure coat is making a big comeback on the casual fashion scene this spring. Offered in wools, rayons and linens, this coat has zipper fronts, half belts and full belts.

TAKE YOUR PICK

Pick stitching adds a smart massage to sport shirt and loose-type jackets.

Coat Views

Sharply contrasting tweed counterpoint the gently fitted "suit line" of the 1955 coat.

Color Makes The News in Shirts

Color plays the biggest part in the men's shirt story for spring. Soft pastels are solidly entrenched. The popularity of colored dress shirts to brighten the dark wardrobe grows apace, and for spring there is an ever-widening spectrum.

The success of plak and helio will continue into the warmer months. Cognac, peach, lime, mint green, rust, orange and bright blues are also very much in the picture. At the other extreme, charcoals have been added to dress shirts for ensembling with the lighter summer coat.

Through solid colors hold the spotlight, subdued and subtle patterns effects in fine stripes, candy stripes and fine checks figure importantly on the style scene.

Collars will continue their trend to short points, with medium spread.

Dress shirts will be broadcloth, chambray or the new open weaves which are presented in both natural and man-made fibers, including striped leons and patterns in fine Dacron batistes.

Sport shirts run the gamut from white to black with fiesta yellow, buscayne, rum colors, mint, orange and cognac bidding for favor. Patterns will include novel designs, checks, stripes, plaids, dots and space figures.

TICKETED FOR COMEBACK

The dressy look of the navy blue blazer and white flannel slacks with straw boater hat shows signs of making strong comeback for spring and summer.

Lightweight Luggage Available In New Accessory Assortment

Travel habits have changed since Canadians can get there faster, stay longer and go more often. Luggage fashions have kept pace with the year-round travel trend and, in an age of "carry your own," suitcases are lighter, easy to carry and easy to pack.

"Accessory" luggage is new, with adaptable cases or bags to match regular suitcases. New colors and materials make them eye-catching conversation pieces, too.

Among the most popular ideas are shoe bags with removable sections which make the bag useable for short trips, a giant hatbox to accommodate crinolines and full skirts, a double-duffle bag with two zippered compartments and another duffle with a magazine rack on one side, a zippered billfold pocket on the other and a folding umbrella in an attached holster.

Molded luggage is gaining popularity, its chief advantage being the absence of sharp corners to catch or break. This shape eliminates waste space in packing, too.

1955 travel bags will show a great deal of white, to coordinate with fashion colors. New, easy-clean treatments make light colors more practical. Pastel luggage, too, will be washable and scuff-proof.

Bright reds in fabric, leather or plastic and black patent are all individual and easy to identify in crowded stations.

Linen and Tweed Lead Spring Fabric Parade

A crisp, buoyant look dominates the fabric picture for spring '55. As the lines of fashion become simpler, the weaves and finishes of fabrics become more flamboyant. Eye-catching novelties with a rich look are the new-season favorites. Springy softness is everywhere.

Two requisites that designers insist upon are fabric quality and light weight. As easy washability becomes increasingly important to the Canadian woman, more categories of fabrics conform to carefree wear-and-wash standards.

Linens and linen-like weaves are everywhere, looking newest with shubbing, embroidery and printed patterns. Multi-colored plaid linens appear in suits and coats as well as dresses. Silk-and-linen and silk-and-rayon viscose mixtures join spun rayon in the linen-effect group.

Linen newly blended with wool makes an exciting coat and costume fabric that resembles Italian raw silk in light weight and rough surface. Straw-mat and silk are popular wool blends, while tweed takes the lead in extremely lightweight all wool. Random tweeds, from crisp and nubby to soft and fine, are seen most; but there is a generous supply of herringbones and other patterns in both quite smooth surfaces.

Shubby weaves look most important in basic wools, such as tissue-weight flannels, but a tendency to sheen types appears in the large crop of serge, twill and gabardine.

Pleated novelty cottons, border-design prints and unusual all-over prints share the spring spotlight with crinkle cottons. Solid-color crinkle cottons are blends that don't need ironing-are paired with new-looking printed skirts on such grounds as pique, cotton satin, twill and linen-weave cottons.

Sport cottons favor denim, ratiné, seersucker, twill and terry cloth, while dress cottons are thick matelasses, damasks and brocades. Cotton satin will be everywhere. Cotton coats and suits make a big story, using the heavier weights and glossy surfaces. Tweed and jacquard weave cottons make fine suitings.

Rich silks are significant in spring's dress-up styles. The newest are crisp textures with a bulky hand. Silks in gently draped fashions are soft.

Cosmetics Are Light and Airy

Spring's most appropriate fragrances and cosmetics, this year especially, will be light and feminine. A little flamboyance will not be misplaced, since all accessories will be airy and decorative.

With somewhat longer and mussy to soft and fine, are seen most; but there is a generous supply of herringbones and other patterns in both quite smooth surfaces.

Spring Line-Up For Sub-Teens

From plaid raincoats to print cottons, subteen fashions show an increasing preoccupation with style. This is especially evident in the Dior-inspired long torso which is seen in so many of the new spring fashions.

The full skirted, long torso-ed subteen dresses have inspired a new look in subteen lingerie, with slips and petticoats molding the hipline.

In suits, the long torso vies with box jackets for the most-important place. Both styles are seen displaying a nautical influence. Too, full skirts are gaining subteen suit popularity.

Willowy Dresses In For Spring

Though less drastic than anticipated, interesting changes in basic silhouettes have brought about a thoroughly 1955 look in spring dresses.

The new line is long and lean. Generally, necklines are higher, bustlines are higher and rounder, waistlines are somewhat lower. Set-in sleeves are slim. Armholes are smaller both in sleeved and sleeveless styles. The waist is not tightly nipped, although it is indeed acknowledged. All features contribute to a longer bodice line.

With spring, the long torso line becomes an effect rather than a sweeping movement of severely dropped waistlines. Some dresses feature a bodice line cut off at the hip bone; others achieve an attenuated feeling by dipping belts or cummerbunds that lie from the waist down; hip yokes, low-placed pouts and bows provide eye-lowering details on dresses that actually retain the natural waistline.

The over-blouse—either attached or unattached—is another way of producing the long look. But the newest of these, even, is somewhat shaped at the waist to defer to femininity's curves.

Skirt-wise the sheath is spring's darling. The long look afternoon dress usually offers a skirt that is gently shaped—neither pegged nor stretched taut—and combines slimness with easy movement. The slender skirt division ranges from casual dresses through daytime and evening dress-ups. The cocktail sheath is once more an important fashion entity.

LEAN COTTON SEASON

Even in full-skirted cottons and silk prints, the change toward gentler, leaner lines is notable. The airy, free-swinging style of late spring and summer also feature the high bustline, the wide and shallow neckline and the not-so-cinched waist. The full skirts feature unpressed pleats for the most part, but some bias-cut gored skirts are present.

The linens, the silks, the cottons of shining and textured surfaces and the increasingly versatile synthetics keep the fabric stock a light and carefree one. But the woods, more feather-weight and dress-appropriate than ever, make big news in spring dresses. The weaves and textures are myriad. But jacquard leads the roster.

Long Lines Go Smooth in Tops

The current trend toward jumpers has stimulated a new look in blouses. The spring '55 blouse has, in general, set-in si ves to avoid conflict with l ›per armholes. The blouses have smooth fronts with neckline and sleeve interest.

To show to best advantage over bateau or high square ›ocked jumper, blouse necks are higher—and sleeves are fuller - balance slim jumper skirts.

A second major style trend in blouses is the long torso look, apparent in the increasing quantities of overblouses. These stop anywhere from just below the wai to the hipbone. Many are nipped in or belted at the waist, while others have darting or seaming that curves the figure gently.

The most popular hip-interest overblouses are the middies, with many buttoning down the back.

Sweaters have gone to two new lengths. A good many of them are, surprisingly, shorter. A whole group, however, follows the long torso look.

TAKE $50,000 IN JEWELS

NEW YORK (AP)—A bag of cultured pearls worth $50,000 has been stolen from a jewelry importing firm by three bandits who forced their way into the company's Rockefeller Centre office. The trio, one of whom was armed, tied and gagged the firm's two partners and escaped from the 31st-floor office in the regular passenger elevator.

New Knit Cover-Up Offers Fashion And Comfort Above All

Small cover-ups—shrugs, boleros, pop-tops and miniature jackets—are too big to be overlooked this spring.

Tailored casual or dress-up —the cover-up is essential for spring's uncertain temperature and summer's air-conditioning. Some of the prettiest in wool or cotton knit provide 'round the clock chic.

One new style is "shoulder arms"—a bobby striped knit that looks like a tube because it's in one piece. The hands slip through wrist openings and voila! a shrug that covers just the shoulders. A cotton knit pop-top, cropped at the waist, features with tiny clothespins.

New shrugs in wool chenille are curved and cutaway like boleros. Collarless or daintily fashioned with mandarin or small turn-down collars, they're available in a roster of pastel and bold colors.

Brief bolikes are treated to sailor or capuchin collars.

LEATHER HUES Bob

There are three important new leather color categories: brilliant colors, such as cornflower blue, mauve and coral; muted pastels, such as cameo pink, platinum and pale yellow; and deep tones, taken directly from the paintings of the Old Masters.

SHORT SUCCESS STORY

Walking shorts are due to surge ahead for resort and casual wear, this year. Colors will range from dark to light for co-ordination with sport shirts, slacks, sport jackets.

Char Tones Set Pace In New Suits

The broad trend in men's spring clothes is toward the dark shades, relieved by bright colors in shirts, ties and accessories, and often as decorative touches in the suit fabrics.

In the new suits, there is great use of charcoal gray, alone, and as a mixture. The charcoal shade is used to "mute" other colors and many medium weight year-round weight suits appear in "char tones" —charcoal brown, charcoal blue and charcoal green.

These color combinations are achieved by blending different colored wools before they are spun into yarn and woven into fabrics. The colors are evenly mixed in the nap of the fabric, and the effect from a distance is of a charcoal color with a difference. The second color, whether green, brown or blue becomes apparent when closely viewed.

Bright colors appear in the spring and summer tropical worsted wool suit fabrics as decorative touches on a dark background. Pink and heliotrope are the most widely used decorative colors, and they are used sparingly. Both these colors have achieved popularity in shirts and neckwear. Their use in the wool suit fabrics is designed to achieve close harmony between accessories and suits.

YEAR 'ROUND WEIGHTS

Also important on the spring style scene is the introduction of the "year 'round suit," in medium weight worsted wool and wool tweed fabrics. This has resulted logically from the leveling off of temperature ranges. Men who prefer lighter suits will find that these new weights are just what they need for all but the coldest part of the late winter-early spring months.

On the other hand, their lighter weight extends the season in which they can be worn through June. If last year's temperatures are repeated, and on mild days throughout the summer.

For the really warm weather, "wash'n wear" suits of fabrics crafted from man-made fibres, such as Orlon and Decron will be popular this year. These suits will be exceptionally light in weight and will retain their neat, crisp look, even on the hottest, muggiest days. Constructed for complete washability, they will need little or no pressing after laundering.

TWO SILHOUETTES

There are two major silhouettes in the new spring suits both single-breasted. One is the familiar two-button coat style with patch pockets, center vent and a rather full coat body.

The second and newest is a perfection of the "natural look" suit that results in making this trim hooded wearable even by the biggest men.

This calls for narrower shoulders with no padding, soft, flexible coat front, high gorge (narrowing of the lapels at the shirt collar line), and high sleeve hole.

Pink is an important new pastel in sport coats and slacks. Basket weave wool sport coats in solid pink and lightweight pink wool shetland coats with scattered black and white nubs have a freshness that is appropriate for warm weather wear.

In sport jackets, colors for the upcoming season are the brightest ever show, featuring almost any pastel color that can be named.

Colored Hose Make a Debut

There's colorful news afoot in the hosiery world, as shoes open up for spring and summer wear. Because this spring opening bares more of the foot, women are becoming more stocking conscious—and taking to newly colored hose as a result.

The "blended look" above and below the hemline includes hosiery. Pastels, for instance, follow the lead of the new pastel shoe leathers. Stockings appear in pale pink, champagne, yellow and particularly pale blue, which blends so well with spring navy.

Gray is very much in evidence, melting into new gray ensembles.

The shock colors, while seen less frequently than others, are still more popular than ever before. Purples, deep pinks, strong yellows and bright blues make up the gayest notes in spring footwear.

Reds, so important in shoes, are missing in stockings. Instead they are subtly blended with pinky stocking tones or else contrasted with grays.

Avocado-colored shoes get the blend treatment also, with yellowed beige hose. Some, however, are a true avocado.

SUGGESTS SHORTER WEEK

MONTREAL (CP)—The National Federation of Textile Workers (CCCL) Tuesday suggested a four-day work week for mills forced to cut production. Federation president Rene Gonzelin said that if employee lay-offs are necessary, they should take account of seniority.

Made for Each Other

Easy-going separates have a one-piece look that's dress-up news. Shown, matching print and blouse of Everglaze cotton.

The costume look, interpreted in tweed cardigan coat with lining to match cotton shirt dress.

Bridal Gowns Tell Tall Story

Spring bridal gowns follow a Paris-inspired line with a new, tall look achieved by elongated waistlines, tiers, flounces and higher bustlines. Lace trim around the sides above the hip-line gives the long look to print dress gowns.

Skirts are bouffant below the long waistline and bodices are molded.

Most of the spring gowns are floor length, although there are many with chapel trains and quite a few ballerinas. Many feature little jackets over their strapless bodices.

Cotton or silk organdy, nylon tulle, nylon eyelet and many laces, particularly the Chantilly type, lend a fragile, delicate air to this spring's bridal picture.

SWEATER WITH SUEDE

The combination of suede leather with knitted wool in a single sweater is a merger that is destined to play an expanded role in sportswear this spring.

Fashion leaders are turning from uninteresting, plain walls to the beauty and individuality of wallpaper.

New Topcoats Meet Demand For Greater Formality and 'Flair'

Men's desire for both greater formality and "flair" is well satisfied in the new spring topcoats. The velvet collared overcoat launched last fall, appears for spring in top coats made of smoothly tailored covert cloth. Light gray-blue with black velvet collars and tan with brown velvet are particularly handsome.

Soft wool tweed topcoats are shown in rich color combinations such as chocolate brown with a faint pattern of light blue.

Featured fabrics include lessened weight wool, tweed, saxony, covert, knitted wool and blends of natural and science fibers. Patters present a wide variety of herringbone, checks, plaids and nubbed effects; raised effect boucles in selfcheck and colored designs.

Favored cuts in tweed topcoats are the single-breasted raglan with young looking balmacaan collar and set-in sleeve models with split seams, notched or bat collar.

SLIM COAT FOR SUB-TEEN

Like their big-sister teens, sub-teen coats are slimmer than last season, with many showing a surprising fullness at the back. Boy coats continue their popularity; many are in tweed and many are velvet collared.

Lower Lines Featured In Men's Shoes

The smartly dressed male will go stepping into this spring and summer in new shoes featuring lower cut lines. Here is the dominant trend in styling of footwear for the coming seasons, talking its cue from the slimmer, trimmer silhouette that will prevail in men's clothing.

Happily, the new styling, aided and abetted by newer and lighter weight leathers for soles as well as uppers, and by built-in air conditioning, is bringing the male the most comfortable shoes he has ever worn.

The new "lower line" is being featured on shoes for town wear and casual wear alike, and in a greater variety of colorful materials than ever before. Lighter weight calfskins and corrovans, soft suedes and fabric meshes in combination with leather are among popular materials.

Color trends in men's shoes for coming season are in step with mounting popularity of the darker toned clothing, with such interesting combinations as charcoal and light grey and contrasting browns to be seen in the offing.

Other colors from which men will choose this season are darker blues, black brown and black green, especially for wearing with charcoal toned suits and slacks.

The Italian influence has reached the American male's feet this year, according to the Leather Industries of America. Many of the new casuals have the modified tapered toe, the broader looking forepart and shorter backpart. These are mainly in slip-ons, which are as comfortable as they look, being crafted of very soft, supple leathers.

Air conditioned footwear for men achieves a new standard of warm weather comfort this year with the development of the new woven leathers which are available in a variety of surprisingly interesting weaves that actually breathe, as do the increasingly popular perforated leather shoes.

JEWELRY NOTE

Flexible and lightweight, mesh adapts to soft, fabric-like designs in jewelry. Gold or silver colored mesh provides a huge variety of both tailored and evening jewelry fashions.

Slip-on leisure wear features light-weight comfort and masculine styling in suede. This soft finish calf has leather tone background surfaced by multi-colored band. By Dobbs.

New Rainbow Hues Brighten Shoes for Boys and Girls

New designs, new colors, new leathers give windows of children's shoe stores the festive air of a florist's this spring.

The youngsters themselves have dictated the revolution in their own shoe styles over the past few years. Boys and girls from the age of five or so insist upon shoes with fashion interest, as much as anyone's. Though the laced oxford is still around, it seems to be fighting a tough battle especially in spring and summer.

Little girls' leather pumps are available in almost every color, in smooth and suede leathers and even some reptiles. Throat-line variations on the pumps include the pushed, deep-V, squared, pinked and scalloped in both single-and double-strap shoes. For the older girl, there are T-strap versions, just like Mother's.

PASTELS ON PARADE

Pastels lead the color picture, with pink predominating. There are all-pink shoes and shoes trimmed with spots and strips of pink. Blue and black dress shoes in suede wear such pink touches as kid bows, pearl trim and patinas. Smooth leather underlays and overlays of pink look new and pretty.

Multi-color canvas shoes turn up as strapping sandals for play and as shell pumps for dress-up. And, of course, all-white or white with pastel trim retains its sunny-season prominence.

Boys take over Dad's current favorite: the two eyelet leather shoe in moccasin, wing-tip and plain-toed blucher styles. Boys prefer the two-eyelet style because of the facility it offers in slipping in and out.

GORED SHOES POPULAR

For the same reason, the gored shoe is another favorite with boys. They have no laces at all, but are elasticized at the sides of the vamp for secure fit with easy-on-easy-off convenience. The black leather tassel moccasin is a third member of the slip-on class.

Color and texture grow increasingly important where boys' shoes are concerned. Casual shoes come in a leather color range from ice cream tan to green and heliotrope —although the latter colors are aimed mainly for tots.

Soft glove leathers and shag-back leathers with a suede flash appear in shoes of soft-flexible construction. Development in the past year of treatments to make leather rugged and wear-resistant as well as soft and supple is responsible for this trend.

ONLY CAMEL DYING

TORONTO (CP)—High Park zoo reported Tuesday that Canada's only camel is nearing the end of the road. The gloomy word accompanied the news that the camel is 30 years old this month. Zoo officials said Dinah's days are numbered; that no camel can expect to get much past 30.

PILOT KILLED

WINNIPEG (CP)—A NATO student pilot was killed Tuesday when his T-33 jet trainer crashed five miles northwest of Cypressville in an isolated area between Lakes Winnipeg and Manitoba, 140 miles northwest of Winnipeg. His name was withheld until next-of-kin are notified.

Tones Deeper In Men's Hats

Charcoal tones are deeper, shapes smaller and trimmings brighter in the new felt hats for spring. Narrower brims, introduced last winter are featured again, along with slim tapered crowns, and deep center crease models, unpinched in front.

Leaders among the charcoal tones are rated in the following order: (1) gray; (2) brown; (3) blue; (4) green. Newly featured for spring are unusual muted tones and feather mixtures.

Lighter, contrasting hat bands play an important part in the new styles. The "continental" hat band is gaining in popularity. This is the band with the traditional bow at back-center instead of at the side of the hat. Since the brims are generally narrower, the hat band has been widened.

High hatsre grosgrain bands and brim binding are used with striking effect. The trim is often in the same color family as the hat, but in a lighter shade. In choosing a band, a man has a real opportunity to assert his personality. He can be conservative or as colorful as he likes.

Casual and sports styles are becoming increasingly popular. These hats are light in weight and many are soft and supple enough to let a man shape his hats to suit his moods. Moving up in favor fast are Tyroleans and semi-Tyroleans, which are shown in suedes, velours and pebbles.

Neckwear Features Color and Contrast

The accent is on color and contrast in this spring's neckwear picture. To offset the dark tones of men's business suits, ties will present such striking color combinations as black and gray with helio, yellow, pink and new tones of blue and green, expressed in stripes ranging from narrow to wide, spaced figures, under-the-knot and embroidered motifs.

Shapes continue on narrow side, with the new square-end model coming up strong in the bundle of hand group. Featured fabrics will include repps, grenadines, foulards, twill weaves and cords.

YOU'LL BE SEEING RED

The red family of colors will be going strong this spring and summer in slacks or shorts for wear with black in shirts. The newest shade of red has an orange cast.

A new garment for casual and sports wear is this cruiser jacket of soft wool flannel in a tan and brown check. Four ample pockets. Wool Bureau Photo.

Little Boys Carry the Colors In Washable Spring Togs

The boys are carrying the colors this spring, as more and more mothers become buy-fashion conscious.

Still the most popular color combination is the black or grey and pink team. This spring white also teams with black.

The regular colors are rapidly gaining importance. These include champagne, brandy, lemon, cognac, peach, apricot, plum and the helio shades. Brass and lacquer, a metallic-look rust, are very much in evidence.

High colors are important in suits and slacks. Pink, blue or lemon gabardine slacks and Bermuda shorts are popular. And black cotton gab slacks with pleated-bosom white shirts are specially new.

Conservately speaking, washable seersucker shirtskin is new in slacks, while "Ivy League" suits are going strong.

In jackets, shrub-patterned vinyl plastic makes a new Western blouse jacket. Rain jackets are back, now with a vent effect. The jacket is solid, over a plaid or contrast-solid fabric for the vest-look.

Black corduroy jackets are seen frequently with gingham plaid shirts.

The Italians have influenced boys' shirts, with emphasis on the buttoned yoke. These shirts often have vertical and horizontal trim, meeting at the yoke. Many sport a nautical look.

A dacron-cotton blend is new in broadcloth or oxford weaves, while slubbed rayon gives many boys' shirts an Italian silk look.

Dark elegance is the keynote in the new Spring hats, as witness this model in "jet green", with lustrous band and brim edging lighter in tone than hat body. By Knox.

Sailor collars are plentiful, showing up with ascots, striped dickeys or string ties.

Long Jacket Suits Use Light-Weight Fabrics

Longer jackets and practically weightless fabrics bring fashion focus to the suit world this season. Big changes in shape and material plus important small changes in detail give spring's suit story a long-needed revision.

Jacket news is probably most significant, since this is the main attraction of the suit silhouette. The 22-inch length is wearable and with gentle shaping achieves ledges, without emphasizing the female figure. Tailored and natural, the longer jacket usually buttons all the way down and sometimes takes a belt. Long torso look is generally established.

Loose box jackets remain popular, the newest with some shaping at the waist. Some of the longer jackets are subtly bloused to a smooth hipline band with buckle closing.

PLEATED SKIRTS BACK

Skirts share the spotlight, with pleating variables slim and easy-going. Spring suits show skirts that are all-around knife pleated, interestingly box pleated, or inset-pleated or panel pleated. Inverted pleats fill the slim look and many sheath skirts have built-in pleats just above the knees.

There is no shortage of straight skirts, however; they contribute to the long, lean look and are most effective in crisp, medium-light woolens. Some are trompe-ing above the knee for a high fashion effect; others are gracefully pleated close to the hem for walking ease. Gored skirts offer easy slenderness and are seen in casual or spectator suit styles.

SUBTLE DETAILS

Further changes that typify the spring suit include the narrow sleeve, now set in high under the arms and often tapered to the wrist. Sport suits often feature a shirtwaist sleeve, slightly ballooned at the French cuffed. Smart cuffinks sometimes become part of the package and are usually the only ornament on the suit.

Buttons have exchanged their former glitter for a new crafted look. Leather, bone and self-and-contrast-fabric buttons show up on all categories of spring suits. Jewel trims have largely given way to such subtle detailing as braid, self-corduroy, over-collars and cut-out designs.

Collars and neckline show pretty spring changes, too. In the tailored suit, long narrow revers plus low placed pockets add to the lean silhouette. In the sports suit, designers have used the turn-down collar, the hood tab collar and the cardigan neckline in casual variations. Many designers have made novel collar treatments their signature for the season: some a petal effect, another a "clergy" collar. Generally, open necklines and flat, generous collars are shown—some with pretty touches of lace, linen or organdy.

It's definitely a tweed spring for suits—light, breezy, beautiful tweeds are often wool-silk or wool-linen blends. But there is ample choice of others.

Costume suit, with background blouse, in wool and cashmere.

Beads Take '55 Colors, Sizes

The color wheel spins a bright forecast of spring's fashion jewelry. Wedgewood blues are sparked with white, bright turquoise, lipstick red and vibrant shades of tangerine make color news in '55.

Textured beads of glass and tile are surging headliners, reports the Jewelry Industry Council. Necklaces feature large blue beads—robin's egg size speckled with white. Others use tiny purple and pink beads, flecked with silver or gold.

Beads are puckered, peppercorn-like hollow, lacy or cylindrical. There are mock seed pearls, very delicate, and pale colored beads, irregularly sized. Naturally, with so much bead news, there is a new necklace design for spring: the 30-inch "tie" or opera length necklace may be worn as a single strand or looped double as a choker.

The "tie" is usually thicker than a beaded strand and is fashioned with clusters of beads or tiny flowers. Most are matched with earrings and bracelets.

Wide, flexible beaded cuff bracelets and dender drop or roomie duster earrings promise to be spring favorites.

CAPTURE FISHING BOATS

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (CP)—Ecuador has patrols have captured two American fishing boats off the Ecuador coast, it was announced here Tuesday. The seized ships were the Santa Ana and the 950-ton Arctic Maid from Seattle. They were allegedly fishing in Ecuadorian territorial waters.

CRASH KILLS FOUR

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP)—Four men were killed Tuesday when a Rolls Royce experimental plane fitted with both piston and jet engines crashed as it overshot a runway.

Colored Shoes Lead a Parade Of '55 Styles

Decorative cut, color and trimming make the shoes of spring the prettiest in many a season. The fine line is drawn—not to be aggravated; heels, generally, are somewhat lower; materials are soft and supple and the colors are amazing.

Colored leathers have expanded their vistas in all directions. According to the Leather Industries of Canada, the most popular new shades are a bright sunflower hue that will usurp the place of spring navy in many a woman's heart and red, from the flame and scarlet tones to blue reds—such as mauve undertones.

TROPICAL LEATHERS

All colors are available in tropical lightweight leathers as well as new aniline-dyed suede pig, shag and crushed calf. Metal finished patent leathers are new and exciting, providing for the first time a soft lustre rather than a high shine.

Heel treatment takes a spotlight in 1955. There are three-dimensional, hand-painted, squared and sculpted heels. There are new, graceful medium heels that conform to fashion's "gentle look".

Vamp detailing is varied and distinctive; interesting hand-cut buckles, jeweled insets or encrustments, sports stitching and banding bring attention to a graceful cut shoe.

FINESSE OF DETAIL

Combinations of color and texture contribute to detail finesse. The popular spectator shoe, for instance, appears in a host of new leather combinations. Pinked collars and tips, French seams show the new interest in fine workmanship.

"As shoes enter their "open season," a closed heel and toe combination with a wide-open instep makes a significant change. However, the closed toe and open back style is increasingly popular.

Designed for good fit in pliant leathers, the open back pumps feature a high, closed vamp that offers great opportunity for imaginative trimming. Stitching, piping, tiny bow knots meet the challenge in new styles. Others feature baroque underlays, lacy lingerie touches, bead or jewel trims.

Sandals, of course, retain their supremacy for dress-up.

'Convertible' Suits Lead a Double Life

Making a welcome return for spring is the suit with two pairs of pants—with a difference for the suits; called "convertibles" or "threesomes," have the conventional coat and one pair of matching trousers. The second pair comes in another color and usually in a different weave.

This combination allows the coat and matching trousers to be worn as a business suit. The coat and solid trousers supply the owner with a tasteful outfit for leisure wear. The coat may also be worn with walking shorts or with the gray flannel trousers many prefer with sport coats.

Large Handbag Slims Down To Sleek Silhouette

This spring's handbags are long and lean, tall and slim or downright huge. Many soft bags stand away from the body line rather than following it as did the 54's.

Elongated barrel or cylinder shapes are the most popular of the cone-of-the-season's handbags. Bones, satchels and pouches, on the other hand, have been slenderized and stretched out—either horizontally or vertically.

The former is illustrated by a black patent leather box that reaches over a foot in length and is only two and one-half inches wide. It closes with a jeweled clasp on a flap that practically doubles around the bag.

Important texture-wise is shag, or reversed cowhide. These bags, usually casual in feeling, offer a surface more rugged than suede, yet with a pleasant fuzzy finish. Shag handbags come in brilliant colors, this season's most notable; a vivid tangerine bound in contrasting high-polish calf.

Handbag and shoe manufacturers have worked closely to provide maximum availability of matched colors and textures in their products. Both have presented a new moire, color in pliant tropical leather that promises to be a leader this season.

Greater color variety is accompanied by larger assortments of leather and fabric offerings for spring. Linens, strawcloths and the ethen family of fabrics show up in slim envelope bags as well as the more familiar pouches and tabs. Suedes and deerhide are a few additions to the leather handbag roster. Calfs are now tanned in the extremely soft and lightweight tropical leathers.

VOLCANO ERUPTS

The pleated skirt is one of Spring's suit favorites. This light-weight Dacron-and-wool.

Sisters View Chinchilla Ranch as Hobby

EDMONTON (CP)—Any woman can be a chinchilla rancher, says Cora Suter. All she needs is a spare bedroom or rumpus room.

Miss Suter, secretary of the Alberta branch of the Chinchilla Breeders of Canada, doesn't go as far as to invite the cuddly "chillies" into her bedroom. She raises them in her Edmonton back yard.

With her sister, Elizabeth, she bought a pair of chinchillas for $3.—200 three years ago. Their stock has grown to 127.

They made the cages—screened plywood boxes about three feet square with a sheltered hiding place in each, and room to play. The cages are housed in a frame building in the Suter garden and the temperature is kept at a constant 60 degrees.

The sisters are retired and view chinchilla ranching as a hobby. Commercial production is not yet feasible; development is confined to stock breeding. There are only about 100,000 chinchillas on the North American continent.

Shortie Gloves Take Colorful Leather Trim

Designs among new gloves show both imaginative styling and classic practicality. The extreme shorties glove, so youth fully gay in feeling, continues to hold first place, because of its versatility. Leather Gloves Industries report a trend to high color.

However, new finesse in trimming and detail, provides much fashion excitement. Shells, buttons, colored beads, self-embroidery are seen more often and are more beautifully handled this spring.

Shorties in glace kid, pigskin or cape leathers, or cotton fabric are trimmed with dressmaker piping in self or contrast colors. Contrast-colored leather piping on leather gloves is a charming new touch. Another group features decorative motifs in tiny leather-covered buttons at the side or a single line of rice pearls sewn at the hem.

The untrimmed shortie comes in gaily printed fabrics—all manner of cottons and synthetics. In such casual leathers as cape or pigskin. A single pearl-button closing or an elasticized wrist affords smooth, easy fit.

Growing in importance is the six-button length, slip-on glove, most fashion-right in a supple leather. Frequently gathered and elasticized at the wrist, it produces a chic flared effect and goes wonderfully over the new tight-tapered sleeve.

A new series of all-over perforated leather gloves appears in both shorts and, six-button length styles. They are available in all colors and most interesting of all, the perforations are arranged in a wide variety of distinctive designs.

Crippled Boston Bruins Make Last Desperate Try To Stay In Running

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

MINOR HOCKEY ROUND-UP

When the Booth Radio midget team skated off the ice with the city title under its wing last week, it marked the close of another successful season of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association. That hard-working group of gentlemen has, in the last five years, done a magnificent job for the community by keeping the youths of the city off the streets, teaching them the meaning of sportsmanship while giving them the opportunity of learning the finer points of hockey.

Since the origin of the group in 1943, when only two leagues existed with about 180 players participating, the league has expanded considerably, each year. During the season just closed there were 600 boys between the ages of eight and 20 took part in five different divisions, consisting of 26 teams. The squirt, pee-wee, bantam and midget leagues each had a six-team set-up, while two teams of juvenile-junious played exhibition games.

Thirteen games a week were played, on Thursday nights and Saturday mornings, taking about 10 ice-hours per week from October to February. City playoffs were then commenced and all-star teams from the three higher brackets advanced into the Ontario Minor Hockey playdowns while the pee-wees entered an Eastern Ontario tournament at Lindsay. Several squirt and pee-wee games were played prior to senior games.

In the city playoffs, the Canadian clubs copped the titles of the squirt, bantam and pee-wee sections, while Booth Radio won midget honors. Individual cups and trophies were awarded to the most sportsmanlike players, top goalie of the midget section, and the most improved players, while crests and trophies will go to league winners. All these awards will be presented at the annual banquet, another important part of the kids' fine training. Special guest that spring was NHL star Jimmy Thompson, and the association expects to come up with another fine affair in the near future.

* * *

Although the name of every "behind-the-scenes" worker cannot be mentioned it is only fair to give credit to the coaches, conveners and members of the league executive. Back of these are references, personel who willingly donated time and effort and showed a great deal of patience, especially at 7.00 a.m. on cold Saturday mornings.

Leading the organization since its beginning Frank Grandage, president of the MHA, and his right-hand man, vice-president Lloyd "Red" Duran, have had plenty of duties to perform. Drafting schedules, fixing playoff dates, arranging for transportation on out-of-town trips, settling player disputes and many other tasks, too numerous to mention, are all part of the free services rendered. Also doing a bang-up job are treasurer Bill Hurst and secretary Robert Smith.

* * *

Two conveners are named to each league. This past season saw Mel Richards and Cam Munroe handling the squirts, and Harry Rollins and Bill Brennan the pee-wees; Boller Lloyd and Neal Hallam looked after the bantams; Hugh Jones and Fred Jones were in charge of the midgets while Bill Gault and Jim Ebbet handled the juvenile-junior set-up.

Going down the line there are the coaches: Squirt, Howard Armstrong, Bob Smith, Campbell Munroe, Paul Cleary, Art Lajoie, and Adam Stalker; Pee-Wee, Joe Adams, Al Titterton, Jerry Pinkie, Harry Hagy, Earl Hunter and Oscar Dufour; Bantam, Bob Pringle, Archie Graham, Bruce Bishop, W. J. Musgrove, H. G. Emerson, James Colligan, Jack Soetsinger and Jay Collins; Midget, Don Barclay, Brian Mulvihill, Hub Macoy, Frank Bettiol, Doug Murray, Jack O'Brien, Capt. "Wargy" O'Neil, Dave Jones, Bill Boller, Claude Carr and Doug Soules; Juvenile and Junior, Maurice Rollins, Doug Thompson, Cal York and Carl Bolle.

Sponsors, too, played an important part in the success of the association. The squirts and pee-wees used the names of the National Hockey League clubs, while the bantam and midget divisions were sponsored by city business men and service clubs. Bantam sponsors were, Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis, Kinsmen, Elks and T's Men's Club. In the midget section, the teams were the colors of Northern Electric, Big "A" Company, Booth Radio, Mac Robb, Ernie Young's, Stewart Warner and Lewis Auto Electric.

HERE AND THERE

Softball enthusiasts are reminded to turn out in full force for Sunday's meeting . . . The Eastern Ontario Football League annual meeting is scheduled for Friday night at the YMCA . . . . Kingston's first home game against Orillia is slated for Saturday night. Rumor has it that the Penllacs have strengthened their defence and since they boasted the strongest rearguard in the league last year, the series will probably be a low-scoring affair . . . Dan Lee will be in a field of 23 runners for six executive committee positions at the OASA convention in Peterborough next week-end . . . . Belleville Memos' Booster Club winners in the group finals are MacDonald with four, Parisi and Macey three, Doran, Dave Jones, Gopsy two and singles for Dugan, DeGray and P. Jones . . . . Bobby Hull's Woodstock Junior "B" team is battling it out with Seaforth and at the time of writing each had won two games. Bob scored one goal in each of the first three games and pulled the hat-trick in the fourth while also picking up a number of assists so far . . . . J. Sid Smith and Ted Kennedy were in on four of the Leafs' six goals in the Detroit series. Impression received from the two games televised was that the Leafs showed such a lack of scoring power they would have been lucky to win a game in a 15-game series. . . . The top brass of the Memos and Point Anne hockey clubs are discussing an exhibition game here.

Frontenacs Oust Ottawa Juniors; Meet Marlboros

OTTAWA (CP)—Quebec Frontenacs, powerful enough to hold Ottawa Shamrocks to one goal in two games, will meet Toronto Marlboros in Toronto Saturday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven eastern Canada Memorial Cup hockey final.

The Frontenacs, sparked by the brothers Rousseau, whipped Ottawa 6-1 Wednesday night to take their best-of-three semi-final in two straight games. They won the first 7-5.

Jean Rousseau led Quebec scorers with three goals and an assist. His brother Guy was good for a goal and two assists as the Frontenacs held the Shamrocks scoreless until the last two minutes of play in the game and the series. The other Quebec goals were scored by Bill O'Dea and Wally Bradley.

Paul McManus backhanded a shot into the Quebec net for Ottawa's only goal.

Henry, Flaman Out for Series 'Long John' Will Guard Nets; Patrick Clings to Slim Hope

MONTREAL (CP)—The crippled Boston Bruins, their veteran goalie and star defenceman in sick bay, make a last desperate attempt tonight to stay in contention for the Stanley Cup.

Already trailing 3-1 in their best-of-seven semi-final series with the Montreal Canadiens, the Bruins' chances received a further setback Wednesday when it was learned that goalie Sugar Jim Henry and rearguard Fern Flaman both will be out for the rest of the series.

Henry suffered a fractured jaw Tuesday when he was hit by a shot from Calum Mackay. He finished the game despite the injury and was beaten by rookie Don Marshall in overtime for the winning goal for Canadiens' 4-3 victory.

Flaman received a severe chaylerhorse in the second period of the game and did not return to action.

Coach Milt Schmidt of the Bruins said Long John Henderson, who alternated with Henry all season, will be in the nets tonight. Don Cherry, a rookie from Hershey Bears of the American League, may be used as a fifth defenceman.

FIGURED THEY'D TIRE

Lynn Patrick, manager of the Bruins, figures his team would have had a good chance to win Tuesday if the overtime had been a little longer.

"I was hoping the overtime would be long," he said. "The Canadien players are older than ours and I figured they'd tire first."

Patrick was discouraged about the loss but said he thinks the Bruins still have a chance to win the series and advance into the finals against Detroit.

Coach Dick Irvin of the Canadiens said he plans to go along with the same lineup as Tuesday, meaning that Jacques Plante will play the entire contest in goal. For the first three games, Irvin had Plante and Charlie Hodge alternating back and forth from bench to net.

After losing 4-1 to Boston Sunday, Irvin scuttled the plan and put Plante in for the whole game Tuesday.

The only Montreal injury Tuesday was suffered by Ken Mosdell, who pulled a groin muscle. He is expected to play tonight, however.

Willie Pep Loses Verdict To Cadilli

PARKS AIR FORCE BASE, Cal. (AP)—Young Cil Cadilli opened a cut over Willie Pep's right eye in the fourth round and thus slowed the veteran featherweight down Wednesday night to win a split decision in their 10-round, nationally-televised fight before 3,300 air force men at this base.

The defeat was only the seventh in the Hartford, Conn., veteran's 190-bout career. The former world featherweight champion won the 191 fights while losing only seven and drawing one.

Cadilli, a young San Francisco battler, had Pep in trouble in the fourth as he launched a savage two-fisted attack. Shortly before the round ended Cadilli landed a hard right to Pep's head opening a cut over the right eye beside the nose. Pep staggered against the ropes but managed to finish the round.

Pepp handlers managed to repair the damage and he went on to roll up points to make the final decision close.

Whatever Runs, It Wont Be Rocky's Nose

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano says he is ready for two title defences this year—that's how sure he is of his nose.

"My nose is okay now — I've boxed close to 90 rounds and several times have been hit hard on it without the cut breaking open," said Rocky, who was in Chicago en route to San Francisco to open training for his title scrap with England's Don Cockell May 16.

Marciano's beak was first split near the end in his last fight with Ezzard Charles last Sept. 17.

Clancy Will Coach Leafs Next Season

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs, eliminated in the Stanley Cup semi-finals by Detroit Red Wings Tuesday night, disbanded and left for their homes Wednesday with the announcement that Frank (King) Clancy will be back to coach them again next season.

General consensus is that King, who agreed verbally to return for another season, has a large rebuilding job ahead of him. Leafs, who finished third in the National Hockey League standings before being swept from the best-of-seven semi-finals 4-0, didn't look too impressive in the playoffs.

And next year they won't have captain Ted Kennedy, the "heart of the Leafs" who reiterated his decision to retire from the game after Toronto's 3-2 loss to the Wings Tuesday.

"Our big need is forwards," general manager Hap Day said. "And we have to give our kids a chance to make the team. We have six defencemen so there's no particular worry there."

Day didn't say whether Leafs were contemplating any trades to obtain the forwards.

Harry Lumley will return to his home in Owen Sound. George Armstrong and Ted Sloan go to Falconbridge, Larry Cahan and Rudy Migay to the Lakehead, Brian Cullen to St. Catharines, and Ron Stewart to Barrie.

Some others will stay in Toronto and travel around the country making personal appearances on the banquet circuit.

Toronto Andy's Whip Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Toronto Andy's shot their way into the western Canada intermediate basketball semi-final Thursday night with a whopping 80-69 victory over Ottawa Eddy's.

Toronto rolled up a 51-point margin in the two-game total-point semi-final with Ottawa, winning it 163-112. They beat Eddy's 73-63 in the first game of the series Tuesday night.

The Andy's now go to Woodstock, N.B., for a series to decide who plays Halifax in the finals.

Kansas City Buys Three Yankee Stars

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) Kansas City Athletics Wednesday bought pitchers Duke Maas and Tommy Gorman and first baseman Dick Kryhoski from New York Yankees in a straight cash deal.

The purchase price was, announced as "in excess of $50,000."

Blackwell, once one of the finest right-handed pitchers in the game with Cincinnati, was on the Yankee voluntarily retired list last year, suffering from a sore arm.

Gorman appeared in 11 games with the Yanks last year after being brought up from the then Kansas City farm. His won-lost record was 3-2 and his earned run average 2.88. He is a right-hander.

Kryhoski, a veteran lefthanded first baseman, served several years in the Yankee organization before being traded to Detroit. He returned to the Yankees in a winter deal from Baltimore Orioles.

Janice White May Have To Cancel Swim

VICTORIA, B.C. — Janice White, who today postponed for the second time her attempt to conquer the cold and treacherous Strait of Juan de Fuca, may have to cancel her bid altogether.

Unfavorable weather blowing in from the Pacific forced the second delay in her planned 22-mile swim from Victoria to Port Angeles, Wash.

Officials who announced the postponement did not set a future time.

With the weather remaining unsettled, it appeared doubtful whether the 18-year-old Toronto girl can swim Friday.

She cannot make the attempt Friday she will lose much of the advantage of the tides. She had planned the first leg of the swim in a southeasterly direction in almost slack tide and then a southwesterly direction with a favorable tide.

Officials indicated that continued high winds and changing tides would prevent any attempt after Friday.

Sudbury Wins Mixed Spiel

MIDLAND (CP)—Frank Nettleton's Collingwood rink staved off a comeback attempt by Tel Edwards of Bathurst to win the Midland Curling Club's sixth annual mixed bonspiel here Wednesday.

Trailing 6-1 after four ends, Edwards recovered and trailed by only one shot on the last end. Nettleton made a great shot with his last rock to win the trophy.

The game was the only close one of the five final games Wednesday.

Bert White's Oshawa rink scored a 15-9 win over Ernie Nicholson of Midland to win the second trophy event. Dr. Jim Small's Midland rink also had an easy time winning the third trophy, 13-3 from Don McIntosh of Woodstock.

Two Midland rinks, skipped by Al Steer and Dr. C. N. James, won 10-5 and James bounced clubmate Karl Bertrand 13-5.

'Jolly Jawn' Warns Red Wings Canadiens 'Rougher Than Ever'

By JOE FELLS

DETROIT (AP)—Many think it's a psychological manoeuvre, but general manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings warns that Montreal Canadiens will be "rougher than ever" if they reach the finals of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

They're forgotten about the Richard incident, and are playing serious hockey, Adams said. "Even though the Rocket is out, the Canadiens still have plenty of good players.

"If they beat Boston to get into the finals, they'll be rougher than ever. Remember, they would like to get even with us."

Canadiens are within one game of getting another crack at the Stanley Cup. They lead Boston Bruins 3-1 in their best-of-seven semi-final series. The two teams play in Montreal tonight.

With six straight victories—one shy of the National Hockey League record—the Red Wings are looking for a few of averages, and Adams admits it.

"The percentages are against us," he said. "There has to be a letdown sometime."

It is in fear of this letdown, many experts feel, that Adams is warning his team to beware of the big, bad Canadiens.

Flyers Gain Western Finals

VANCOUVER (CP) — Edmonton Flyers gained a berth in the Western Hockey League final Wednesday night by whipping Vancouver Canucks 4-3 and taking the best-of-seven semi-final four games to one.

Flyers now will meet the winner of the Victoria-Calgary series for the President's Cup.

The Edmonton victory belonged mostly to Don Pyle, who came through with a trio of goals. Lorne Davis completed Flyers scoring. George Ford and Fred Brown scored for Canucks.

CLAIM RECORD

LONDON (AP) — Arkady Voryev, Russia's world middleweight weight-lifting champion, has added to his laurels, Bel Bozar trades said Wednesday.

Voryev, according to the Moscow radio, hoisted 387 pounds in a meet in Sverdlovsk, bettering by a pound the British record he set at Vienna last year.

Judge Refuses To Dismiss Football Suit

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Federal Judge John W. Holland refused Wednesday to dismiss a $325,000 damage suit filed as a "test case" by the Chicago Bears professional football club against a Florida lineman with breach of contract. After lengthy hearings, the court ordered the case to trial but no date was set.

Seeking dismissal of the suit were the Hamilton Tiger-Cats of Canada's Big Four Football League; Carl M. Voyles, Vero Beach, Florida dealer who served as general manager and head coach of the Tiger-Cats in 1954; and James F. Dempsey Jr., Miami, former star with the University of Florida.

The Bears, in their suit filed last June, contend that Dempsey "jumped" his $6,500 contract to play tackle with the Tiger-Cats last season. They claim, further, that the Tiger-Cats "raided" the Bears when they signed Voyles for $25,000 from Dempsey, who served as a radio sports announcer before joining the Tiger-Cats. They also seek an injunction to prohibit the Canadian club from further "raiding" of the Bears.

Dempsey played with the Bears four years before announcing at the close of the 1953 season that he was not interested in a new contract, offered in March, 1954.

Sale of Three Yankees to Kansas Wont Draw Criticism, Is Belief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some folks think the New York Yankees blew their chance for a sixth straight American League pennant last year when they sold Vic Raschi, star right-handed pitcher, to the St. Louis Cardinals before the season opened.

It's hardly likely that George Weiss, the Yankees' general manager, will be criticized for his latest deal—the sale Wednesday "in excess of $50,000" of three players to the Kansas City Athletics. Two of the players not only have dubious value, but are expendable as well.

The straight cash deal sent veteran pitcher Ewell Blackwell, re-lefer Tom Gorman and first baseman Dick Kryhoski to the A's. Blackwell, now 32, established himself as the right-handed "whip" in 1950-51 with Cincinnati. But he's had his troubles since. The Yanks had the option back on the active list — he voluntarily retired last spring with a sore arm—but he appeared destined for a release.

Gorman, 28, has been up and down in the Yanks' system since 1946. He had a 10-7 record in three tries with the Bombers. Kryhoski, 30, has been known to swat a ball out of the park, but at other times he's hit around .300.

FINAL GAME

While the deal was being settled, the Yankees were forced in their final Florida game of the spring. It finally ended because of darkness in a 10-10 tie with the Philadelphia Phillies after 12 innings. Johnny Kucks, the Yankees' highly rookie pitcher, and Jim Owens, the Phils' promising young hurler were slapped around for the first time in the exhibition trials.

Baltimore and Pittsburgh split a doubleheader. The Orioles made off with the first game, despite only three hits, as Hoot Evers homered with a man on for a 3-1 decision. Pittsburgh got the nightcap 5-0, with rookie southpaw Roger Sawyer and righthander Elroy Face holding the Orioles to two hits.

Southpaw Billy Hoeft, threatened with bullpen duty, gave up just three hits in six innings as Detroit whipped Boston 9-3. Sam White's triple gave the Red Sox their three runs in the ninth.

Pete Runnels had three hits and a walk, good for two runs driven in, to lead Washington's 13-hit attack in an 8-3 decision over Cincinnati.

Milwaukee and Brooklyn, high on the contender list for the National League pennant, battled 1-1 until the eighth, when Jim Wilson walked four and gave up a Sandy Amoros' single and two runs that made it a 3-2 Dodger victory.

The New York-Giants and the Cleveland Indians had a slugfest in their final Arizona game of the spring, Foster Castleman's single won it for the Giants in the ninth 13-11.

Canuck Bowlers Lose First Game

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The touring Ontario Provincial Lawn Bowling Association Wednesday lost to the combined Glendale and Pasadena Lawn Bowling Clubs 21 to 17.

The Ontario bowlers won three and lost six matches.

Secretary Charles W. Loomis blamed fast greens and loose courts for throwing them off their game.

"It was our first game this spring and quite an experience," Loomis said.

ORILLIA (CP)—Orillia Pontiacs whipped Kingston Goodyears 6-1 Wednesday night in the first game of the best-of-seven Ontario Senior B hockey semi-final.

Defenseman Jack Irvin got Kingston's lone goal in the second period.

Scot Meets Sassenach on Saturday On Wembley's Green Battlefield

By JEFF RYAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Britain's top soccer attraction Saturday is an international match which finds England against Scotland on the traditional battleground at Wembley Stadium's green turf.

Nearly 100,000 fans are expected to attend the annual classified tiff that can always be expected when Scots meet Sassenach on the football field. To set the proper mood Sassenach national rivalry, the Scots will make a point of fetching along their tartan tam-o'-shanters, kilts and bagpipes.

Transplanted Scots living in exile London suburbs will join countrymen travelling down from Scotland for the game.

Scotland's Wembley record has English supporters worried. In 21 years, not counting the wartime period, England has never beaten Scotland at Wembley, but many soccer experts—notably the English ones—say the drought will end Saturday.

Carrying England's banner are such wizards as Stanley Matthews, Billy Wright, Nat Lofthouse and Don Revie.

Scotland, headed by Willie Cunningham, fields 10 of the 11 players who lost 4-2 to Hungary's national squad last December. Last time the same Hungarian band beat England twice, 6-3 at Wembley and 7-1 in Budapest.

Only two other internationals at Wembley, Scotland has won two and drawn two. Oddly, the English squad has seemed more at home on Scotland's ground, winning all four post-war international at Hampden Park in Glasgow, despite the disconcerting effects of the famous "Hampden roar," the avalanche of sound reserved by the crowd for visiting teams.

Marmora Wins TVL Northern Title Meets Point Anne for League Crown

The Marmora Millionaires captured the northern section TVL hockey championship and will defend the right to meet Point Anne here for the league title and trophy and league title here last night by downing Campbellford 6-3 in the seventh game of the series. Marmora won four games to Campbellford's two while one ended in a tie.

Last night's battle saw the winners take a 5-1 lead in the first period, Campbellford scoring the only two goals of the second period and Marmora getting four in the wild, penalty-ridden final 30 minutes. Sixteen penalties were dished out, most of them coming in the last five minutes of play, giving three misconducts and two majors. A brawl broke out at one time and William of Campbellford threw his stick at referee Bill Holway to add to the action. There were 24 penalties in all.

Marmora was pressed hard at 1.33 of the first when Leonard drew a hooking penalty but Killman kept the couple of Marmora shots to hold the fort. They opened the scoring just after Lavender's return, Killman finding home Jones' rebound. Maynes and Lee went off together for roughing at 5.20 and seconds after their return Bob Maynes backhanded Lavender's goal home for a 2-0 lead in favor of Marmora.

Wilson notched Campbellford's lone goal of the period at 10.27 with a quick backhand. Bob Mantle got that one back on a 15-foot drive at 14.11. The Millionaires netted a pair of quickies near the end of the period, Maynes from Trumble at 19.03 and Trumble on Lavender's pass 18 seconds later to make it 5-1 at the period's close. The teams split six minor penalties during this session.

Campbellford shaved the margin down with the only two goals of the middle stanza as play continued rough. Herrington netted the first at 4.55, taking a pass from Blake and cutting across the goalmouth to beat Killian with a beautiful effort. Maynes got the gate for Marmora at 6.53 and Fox Campbellford at 12.55 but no damage resulted on either occasion.

Wilson made it 5-3 in the last minuta of the period, pushing the disc into the corner on a three-way ganging attack with Payne and Blake picking up assists. Both goalies looked good this period.

Marmora powered home in the early minutes of the third period, Maynes going in on a clean break only to blast one over the net while Wilson hit the goalpost for Marmora. Trumble netted the final goal of the game at 15.07, taking a passout from the corner, Maynes and Lavender setting up the tally.

The penalty parade started at 18.33, Wilson and Blute going off together, Herrington following a few seconds later, then Payne at 16.28 and Maynes and Lee 36 seconds later. A brawl broke out at 17.49 with Pace and Leonard, the main attenders, getting a minor and major each. Wilson drew a boarding sentence at 18.11, but his stint at Holway and had a misconduct tacked on. Field drew the same for Argyle and Doober also got ten minutes, four seconds later, for some unkindly remarks to the officials.

Maynes and Trumble paced the scorers with two goals each, while Blute and Mantle sunk the other Marmora markers. Wilson rifled home a brace of goals in defeat and Herrington netted the odd one. Lavender drew three assists for the winners.

Point Anne Eliminates Bobcayeon, Enters Intermediate 'C' Semi-Finals

The Point Anne Centennials earned their way into the OHA Intermediate 'C' finals last night by handing the Bobcaygeon Bobcats a 7-3 defeat to sweep their series. In three games to two. They now meet the winners of the Newton-Powassan series in the semi-finals, but no dates have been announced.

The Centennials took a 1-0 lead, the Bobcaygeon ice in the first period last night, watched the homesters tie it early in the middle session and then fired home four in a row to take a commanding 5-1 lead. Bobcaygeon got one back before the period ended but the visitors rapped a pair more in the final twenty minutes to win going away. The teams split ten minor penalties.

Joe Scott scored Point Anne's attack with three goals, one in each period, and one assist. Bill Strahan claimed two goals and a helper. Tim Williams five goals while Pat Gilmour assisted on three markers. Gerry Goyer and Ted Semark each drew two assists with Leo Goyer getting one. Jerry Nicholls fired both Bobcaygeon goals, Kimble getting one assist.

The Cementmen showed plenty of scoring punch against the Bobcats, taking their first game 6-3 and the second 10-7 to outscore Bobcaygeon 20-11 in the three games played. They are now in the Eastern Ontario championships.

In the northern division Beeton and Powassan are battling with the winners meeting Point Anne, in another series, Fisherville and Electric are playing with the wigners clashing with Lucan or Mildmay. The winners of these will meet for the all Ontario title. Lucan won the championship last year, defeating the Marmora Millionaires and since Point Anne have already ousted them from the running, Lucan and the local squad are favored to battle it out for the title.

The teams:

Bobcaygeon — Ross Nicholls, Gordon, Percy Nichols, Ernie Nichols, brother Nichols, Phillips, Kimble, George Nicholls, Packer, Poole, Lee.

Point Anne—Letman, Hurst, Semark, L. Goyer, J. Green, G. Goyer, Stewart, D. Green, Hunter, Strahan, J. Scott, Gilmour, Williams.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, April 1, 1955

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Take time out for thought, planning. Top effort should bring real returns. Forget the past when conditions were different. Work on today.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Mental strain may be your biggest obstacle now. While you may be forced to maintain a hectic pace, don't let it cause anxiety, nervousness. If you have the inner urge you can achieve.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Your sterling character should easily dominate today. Avoid anxiety and haste. Be true to yourself and you will achieve.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — A steady pace and keen observation will make a big difference in results. You are versatile and can deliver when you are really trying. Be up to par today.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Don't let "moods", uneven temper or bad disposition dominate you today. Leo natives have a keen sense of humor and are good salesmen when true to themselves.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — You may have to make a decision between two courses today. Stars favor the conservative path. Be alert, on guard, always.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — The natural steadiness of Libra can offset obstacles, contentions. Vital factors today are your temperament and strong desire to put forth best efforts.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — You energetic folks must take time occasionally to rest and relax — even if it is only for a few minutes at a time. This will replenish energy, make up fresh ideas as to how to proceed. Sincerity counts.

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius) — Favorable for carrying out clever ideas or starting new undertakings. Get all on the way for betterment next week. Good rays.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn) — Whether you have a strenuous program or a relaxed one, take it as a sturdy Capricorn native usually does. Serious, children's activities especially favored.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — This is a time for reviewing to make sure one is on the right track, to enlist any honorable means to gain in truly worthwhile matters. It is never too late to begin anew.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — There are so many little ways to assist a needy person, cause, or to improve one's self but they eventually make up a grand whole. No better time than now to start afresh.

You born today are or Aries, under which Sign were born many of the world's great organizers, progressive moderns, artistic achievers, and teachers. You are endowed with great integrity and clear-sightedness. You make fine parents, but also like to leave home for travel when you can and like to have your loved ones along to share your journeys. Be careful not to wear down vital forces by doing too much; stum including loved ones. Birthdate: overexciting activities. Curb any Wm. Harvey, Eng. physician, dis- tendency to dominate others — coverer of blood circulation.
